The president, Arturo Alessandri, took office in 1920, at the beginning of the worst of it. He came in with an ambitious and much needed reform programme, but was compelled to let the most of it go by the board while he rolled up his sleeves and tackled the most imperative problem—balancing the budget. Two things were needed; increased taxation and decreased expenses. These the president aimed for and has been about 50 per cent. successful

When he gave account of his stewardship to Congress June 1, the government still was 107,000,000 paper pesos ($14,500,000) to the bad. And the foreign debt had been increased to 1,177,000,000 paper pesos, or about 95,000,000 pesos more than in 1921. The internal debt was 590,000,000 paper pesos, having suffered an even greater increase.

Hopeful of 1924

That the president was able to see a ray of light ahead, promising that this current year the government would probably break even and in 1924 be able to commence the task of reducing the debt, was almost wholly to the improvement in the nitrate market with its consequent assurance of an ultimate increase in government revenues. Another failure of the market would still mean another period of chronic deficits and ruinous borrowing.

President Alessandri may be said to have been only 50 per cent. successful in meeting the crisis of the first three years of his term because, while he was measurably successful in reducing the expenses of the state he could not increase taxation. It has been this prolonged crisis that has finally demonstrated to Chile what a thoroughly mixed blessing possession of the nitrate beds has really been.

With her fiscal muscles softened, as it were, by the years of soft living on the easy money derived from the nitrate taxes, she found herself unable to take on a rigorous course of taxation when the need for such a step confronted her

President Alessandri, as soon after taking office as he had acquainted himself with the desperate state of the government's finances, called on Congress for an income tax and an increase in the existing tax on land values. Congress still is debating both. They have been opposed, and successfully opposed, from the start by the wealthy land owners, the big power in politics. Meantime the fiscal affairs of the country remain abjectly dependent on the rise and fall of nitrate sales.

Posts, Rails, Wires

The government of Chile is much closer to its people in an economic sense than is that of the United States, for a much greater proportion of the people are directly dependent on it for a living. Here not only the ordinary functions of government and the carriage of the mails are operated by the state, but also a complete telegraph system and with a few rather unimportant exceptions the main arteries of the railway system are state-owned and operated.

In addition, because Chile has a centralized form of government, the provincial and even municipal administrations are to a considerable degree financially dependent on it for the central authorities, and hence on the nitrate market. It follows that the purchasing power of a large number of wage earners is directly conditional and that of an even larger number indirectly affected by the fiscal condition of the government itself. Decreased revenues in the last few years have made necessary the dismissing of many employes and there have been occasions recently when government wages were several months in arrears due to squabbles in the Congress over the advisability of continuing certain appropriations.

A drop in the nitrate market also directly affects purchasing power, and therefore the general prosperity of Chile, by reducing the dividends of the nitrate companies. About 50 per cent. of the stock of the nitrate oficinas is owned in Chile, the rest abroad—chiefly in England. Many wealthy Chileans have been hard hit by the recent price depression.

Stories are afloat of this or that family giving up its luxurious home to lease it to well-to-do foreigners and moving itself into more modest quarters. Tales are told of expensive cars being turned over to chauffeurs during the daytime to be offered for hire as taxis, returning in the evening to do duty in "keeping up a brave front" for their owners.

There have undoubtedly been many tragedies of this kind not only among the directly affected stockholders but among the land-holding and other property owning classes whose welfare is indirectly touched by the fluctuations in the world's consumption of nitrate of soda.

Chile is fully aware of what ails her economic system, that it is lopsided. She needs first taxes, to balance her budget, reduce her foreign and internal debt and put her currency back on a gold basis. She needs to build up her agricultural and manufacturing industries, as far as possible with Chilean capital, and to find markets, domestic and foreign, for her production that will relieve her of her dependence on the nitrate fields.

To do this she must eventually raise the standard of living of her own population.

These needs are recognized by a growing body of Chilean statesmen who are intent on improving every opportunity to foster the infant industries of the country in the hope that they may eventually surpass and overshadow the nitrate industry as a factor in Chile's economics.

SOUND-RANGER WILL PROVE BOON

French War Invention May Help to Save Buried Miners—Very Sensitive Can Hear Voices Through Ordinary Fifty-Foot Coal Pillar.

The geophone, a sound-ranging instrument invented by the French during the world war, can be used to rescue entombed miners, locate mine fire areas and reduce accidents through blasting, says the Engineering Foundation in a statement describing the development of the peace-time possibilities of the invention by American experts.

"The form of the instrument, by which it is now possible to hear long distances through rock and earth, has been developed by the United States army engineers and the United States bureau of standards," according to the foundation's statement, prepared by Alan Leighton, physicist of the bureau of mines. "Later the sensitiveness of the instrument was increased by engineers of the United States bureau of mines.

"The instrument is in principle a seismograph and is entirely mechanical in its action. The geophone consists of a flat iron ring about three and one-half inches in diameter and one-half inch in thickness, in the centre of which is suspended a lead weight fastened with a single bolt through two metal discs, or diaphragms. One of these diaphragms covers the top, the other the bottom of the iron ring. There are two brass cap pieces, the top one having an opening in the centre, to which is fastened a rubber tube leading to a stethoscopic earpiece.

Vibrations Caused

"If the instrument is placed firmly upon the ground and there is any pounding or digging in the vicinity, the case of the instrument will vibrate with the earth. The lead weight, because of its mass, will, however, remain comparatively motionless, since it is suspended between the elastic diaphragms.

"There is thus produced a relative motion between the diaphragms and the case. This motion alternately compresses and rarifies the air in the spaces between the cap pieces and the diaphragms. The air waves thus set up within the instrument are then transmitted to the observer's ears by means of the rubber tubing and the ear pieces.

"The small inclosed air space in the bottom of the instrument, between case and diaphragm, serves to dampen the vibrations of the diaphragms. It is customary to use the geophones in pairs, connecting one instrument to each ear. The direction of a sound from an observer can in this way be determined with considerable accuracy on the binaural principle of direction determination.

Metal Diaphragms

"The diaphragms in the original instrument were mica. It has been shown, however, that metal diaphragms are more sensitive and more durable. A nickel diaphragm .025-inch in thickness is perhaps best. The thickness of the diaphragm is apparently limited by the ability of the inclosed bottom air pocket to prevent undue vibration.

"To give some idea of the sensitiveness of the instrument, it may be said that under suitable conditions sledge pounding has been detected more than 3,000 feet through solid rock in a Western metal mine; that the same pounding has been detected 2,000 or more feet through coal, 500 feet through mine

"External noises, such as those caused by light winds or machinery running nearby, greatly interfere with the successful operation of the instrument. The characteristics of the sounds are transmitted very accurately through the geophone. This means that one can easily judge the nature of the machine or instruments making the sound. Talking can be heard through an ordinary 50-foot coal pillar with about the clearness of the old-fashioned phonograph.

War Purposes

"While the geophone was first used to detect the underground mining operations of the Germans, it has been successfully applied to many peace-time purposes. The instruments may frequently be of value in locating and rescuing miners who have been entombed in a mine disaster. They have also been used successfully in establishing, roughly, the relative positions of approaching tunnel headings, and may thus serve to prevent accidents incident to blasting through unexpectedly.

"They can frequently be employed in determining the drift of churn-drill holes, and experiments with diamond drilling seem to indicate that under certain conditions they would serve the same purpose with such drills. While it might not always be possible to follow the drill from the surface, it is certain that if the hole were being put down ahead of accessible workings the geophones might be useful.

"Under exceptional conditions they have served in locating mine fire areas. Usually the sounds from such a fire are too weak to be transmitted any great distance. Most satisfactory results have been obtained in locating water pipe leaks, and one mining company reports success in locating leaks in compressed air lines buried along their entries."

AGONIZING EXPERIENCE CURED MR. BLOSSOM.

It is the experience of most bashful men that destiny is continually leading them into embarrassing situations. Meaning situations that would be embarrassing even to a bold man. And it's a singular thing about a bashful man's most memorable ordeals that they are usually the result of some act of his own.

So it was with Jonas Blossom, when he bought a motor lawnmower, says the New York Sun and Globe. Although it was the first gasoline grass cutter to go to work in his suburb, Jonas did not hesitate. It was one of those occasions when the shyest of men are lifted above their shyness and wrapped in a glamor impervious to the fierce light that beats upon a pioneer.

The Blossom home, which was almost half paid for, had a lot of lawn, some of it quite hilly and lumpy, Jonas calculated that his new motor lawnmower would do a man's work at the expense of an occasional half gallon of gasoline. To be sure, he would have to walk around with it, but merely as one strolls with a young woman.

He had not counted on the public interest that would be aroused by the spectacle of a self-conscious citizen with scarlet ears stepping lively to keep up with a chugging and chattering contraption that fairly raced over his domain, dragging him with it like a captive at the chariot wheel of a Roman conqueror. He soon realized, to his anguish, that the entire population of the suburb was gathering to observe the antics of the machine and himself, and that made him desperately unable to get the hang of the simple control mechanism.

To be sure, he managed to guide it at first in a broad and wavy fashion, but as to the means for regulating its speed or halting it in its mad career, his mind had become a blank. The grass flew, and so did Mr. Blossom. And the crowd proceeded from gasps of amazement to peals of laughter as the demon lawnmower, disdaining his slackening efforts at steering, began to pluge hither and thither at random.

The climax came when, after demolishing a pansy bed, flattening a row of sweet peas and dragging Mr. Blossom through a very thorny thicket of roses, it charged into a young forest of dahlia stakes, knocking them down like ninehausted owner.

Thence, in the unique character of a runaway lawnmower, it fled to the street amid the shouts of the crowd, which made way for it, and seemed to be making for the railway station pursued by the dishevelled Mr. Blossom and several dogs, when it bumped into a tree and swerved on to the lawn of a handsome widow, where it cut grass with great industry until captured and subdued by the owner of a neighboring

BANKING FOR WOMEN

CLEVELAND, Aug. 11.—There is a great field in banking for women according to Mrs. C. E. Hearin, oc Clay, Ky., who attended the recent twenty-first annual convention of the American Institute of banking here. Mrs. Hearin is vice-president of the Farmers National Bank of Clay.

"Woemn are better in matters of detail than men, although as a rule they are not so good executive," Mrs. Hearin said.

Asked if she did not think women aren't a trifle too sympathetic, Mrs. Hearin said:

"The very thing we need is more sympathy. For instance a young man comes in for a loan, trying to get a start in life. I think we ought to be just as liberal with him as we can. Ten years from now he may be the biggest man in the community."

TO RECEIVE LEAGUE OF NATIONS REPORTS

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 11 (Canadian Press).—The proceedings of the fourth General Assembly of the League of Nations which opens in Geneva on Sept. 3 will be reported for the League of Nations Society in Canada by its Europcan representative, W. G. Cleaves Doyle, who is resident in England but travels extensively throughout Continental Europe in connection with the League's work.

He has recently transmitted to Ottawa an interview which he has had with Dr. Alfred Grunberger, Austrian Minister for Foreign Affairs regarding the action of the League towards financial reconstruction in his country. It is of interest to Canadians to know that Dr. Grunberger's wife was formerly Miss Davison, a native of Nova Scotia, where she has recently been visiting. His son, furthermore, is a student at Toronto University.

Dr. Grunberger said that before the loss of Trieste, Austria's unique port on the Adriatic, that country was closely in touch with Canada through the Canadian Pacific Railway. In Austria, he said, there was a widespread desire to renew relations with the Dominion, with a view to exporting Austria's manufactured articles and getting Canada's much-needed grain.

The work of the League of Nations, Dr. Grunberger held, had averted a catastrophe in Eastern Europe. Austria, Italy, Czecho-Slovakia and other countries stood ready to intervene. With their currency stabilized the Austrian people felt a renewed security. A year ago they had contemplated wholesale emigration, while today there was observable the optimism which came of the beginning of a real renascence of normal economic life. Dr. Grunberger expressed the belief that by 1924 the Austrian Government would be able to balance its budget.

A FRIENDLY INVASION

LONDON, Aug. 11 (Canadian Press)—At the moment London is in the grip of a huge but friendly invasion. Never have the hotels been so full of visitors—from the Colonies, Continent and the United States. Everywhere one meets Americans, most of them in horn-rimmed spectacles and Holland suits which look as attractive as they are cool. Meanwhile the home-grown Englishman clings tightly—literally as well as figuratively—to his conventional suit of cloth. No matter how brilliant the sun shines serges and tweeds are "the thing." Up West top hats, stiff collars and morning coats are endured with patience if not pleasure, while the women in contempt of tradition are cool and comfortable with bare necks, bare arms and wispish draperies of muslin and crepe-de-chene.

There seems to be a fashionable exodus overseas, as not only is the Prince of Wales to enjoy an autumnal holiday on his ranch in Alberta but Eleanora Duse is to visit Montreal following her appearance in New York. The increase in the number of passengers to the Dominions during the last month is possibly not unaffected by the enforcement of "dry" ships by Washington. The arrival of the Leviathan, the much-heralded teetotal liner, has caused much amusement over here. Every passenger was allowed to bring on board his or her private stock of liquor which they were permitted to hand round to their friends at meals, always providing that none of the ship's officials were asked to touch the pernicious stuff either in glass or in bottle.

Everyone is much interested in the visit of the British Lawn Tennis Ladies team to Canada. The team will first compete in tournaments in the United States arriving in the Dominion towards the end of August, when it is hoped that Canadian talent will be ready to meet the home-grown variety.

The "Playbox," a part of the "Help the Theatre" movement started by Basil Dean, opened on Thursday last with John Masefield's "Melloney Hotspur." The play is one of ghostly interest and centres on the idea that the dead have an active influence on the lives of the friends and relatives. The spiritualists are very keen on this latest manifestation of the power of spooks and Sir Arthur Conan Doyle is likely to put in an appearance at the debate on the meaning of the drama which takes place next week. This is but one of the signs that show how the theatrical season has gained in impetus these last few weeks. A number of new productions are announced and despite the wonderful weather the theatres are full.

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 11.—Although the shipping of live chicks through the mails by parcel post is prohibited in Canada the officials of the local post office occasionally receive shipments of live chicks which have been accepted in the United States for delivery in Canada. The officials have the power to refuse the shipments and send them back to the point of shipping, but as this in most cases would mean the death of the chicks, ube officials usually send the cases on to their destination.

Many people wonder how it is that small chicks only a few hours hatched can go a journey taking anywhere from 12 hours to 3 days, withot food and yet arrive alive. The explanation is that a chick when hatched does not require food for from 48 to 72 hours. The chick is ordered by the poultry men some days before it is hatched and when the batch is hatched it is put into specially prepared cases right away and started on its journey to the purchaser. As a rule all the chicks in the shipments come through their first adventure safely.

ILLEGAL DIVERSON WATER BY CHICAGO

Sir Adam Beck Claims Action Causes Huge Annual Loss to Canada.

TORONTO, August 11 (Canadian Press). — In the course of a statement which he issued last evening, Sir Adam Beck, chairman of the Ontario Hydro Commission, argues that an annual loss of $21,000,000 was being occasioned to the Canadian public by the Chicago sanitary district's illegal diversion of water from the Great Lakes systm.

The Chicago district takes quite, in contravention of the governing authorities, Sir Adam alleges, from 8,000 to 10,000 cubic feet of water per second for the purpose of diluting its sewage so that it will be inoffensive, and for further purpose of supplying light and power services to its community.

This action, Sir Adam decIares, causes an annual loss of 300,000 horse-power of electrical energy to Canada, the monetary value of which, in view of its being the equivalent of 3,000,000 tons of soft coal, would be $21,000,000.

The officials of the Chicago sanitary district, which includes the city of Chicago and its outlying areas, recently toured through Canada, stopping off at Toronto, Ottawa, and other places.

They argued through the public press that their action in diverting the water from the Great Lakes into the Mississippi River were not detrimental to the Canadian interests, as they were prepared to install regulatory works, costing $2,500,000, in the Niagara River below Buffalo and in the St. Lawrence River at Galop's Rapids.

Such works, they stated, would restore completely the lake levels as though no diversion had taken place.

This contention, Sir Adam refutes, pointing out that no matter how beneficial regulatory works might prove to be, there would be just so much more so with the additional water which Chicago uses. The diversion of the sanitary district has at times, the Hydro chairman states, involved an amount of water equal to that which passes over the American Falls.

Much other business was discussed, but no further action was confirfmed. Council adjourned to meet the first Monday in September.

A FIGHT AGAINST HIGH-PRICED GAS

Shipping Gasoline to South Dakota for Sale at 16c. Gallon.

MARION, Ohio, Aug. 11.—(Canadian Press).—One hundred and sixty thousand gallons of gasoline purchased in Chicago Thursday will be shipped at once to nine cities in South Dakota for sale to the public at sixteen cents a gallon. The announcement of this latest development in South Dakota's "gasoline war" was made here to-day by Governor W. H. McMaster, of South Dakota, who came to Marion to attend the funeral of former President Harding. The Governor further announced that he is calling upon the surrounding States to join in the fight against "high" gasoline prices.

SUMMER HEAT HARD ON BABY

No season of the year is so dangerous to the life of little ones as is the summer. The excessive heat throws the little stomach out of order so quickly that unless prompt aid is at hand the baby may be beyond all human help before the mother realizes he is ill. Summer is the season when diarrhoea, cholera infantum, dysentry and colic are most prevalent. Any of these troubles may prove deady if not promptly treated. During the summer mother's best friend is Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the bowels, sweeten the stomach and keep baby healthy. # Kawartha Park News Budget

KAWARTHA, PARK, Aug. 10.—The flotilla of illuminated boats took place on Saturday evening and was a great success. The boats which were decorated with greens, flags, bunting, baloons, leaves and lanterns assembled at the Kawartha dock and with Heber Rogers with his trusty motor boat towing the canoes and skiff and the power boats following up the procession started through the islands and when the dance at Juniper was in full swing the flotilla passed and cause a sensation with their yell which was designed to advertise the regatta on Monday:

"Oh potater; oh potater
Half past alligator,
Raw, raw, Bellagator
Chicarow, chow
Kawartha Park regatta, rah, rah, rah.

This lusty appeal certainly brought results on Monday as it seemed as if everyone on the lake was at the regatta.

The young folks were armed with horns and kazoos and woke the echoes as the procession wound its ways among the islands. There was certainly music in the air as the young folks sang merrily and spent a delightful evening. Every possible precaution was taken for safety and no castrophe marred the success of the evening. This will certainly be numbered among Kawarthas red letter occasions.

Bit of Excitement.

On Monday morning the passengers on the steamer "Empress" had a bit of excitement in Clear Lake near the Rotary Camp when they saw a small animal (species not recognizable) swimming in the lake. The "Doris" (owned by J. C. Budreo of Toronto) sighted the animal and by circling around about R. J. Henders of Toronto rescued a large black squirrel which, however, did not appreciate Mr. Henders kindness and escaped again to the lake at the personal risk he was re-captured and owing to his lively habits making him a rather trying shipmate, he was put on the top of the launch where he dried his fur and was finally liberated on the Kawartha shore. Black squirrels have been extremely rare in this locality though their red brethern are all too plentiful.

The Squirrel Swan.

The debated question as to whether or not the black squirrel can swim was settled finally on Monday. Mr. Hendens, his rescuer, had a busy day as he did yeoman service as starter at the regatta in the afternoon and all day received many congratulations on his heroic rescue.

Gospel Tent.

How to Reduce Your Repair Bills

Just take a pencil and a piece of paper, and jot down the various sums you have paid out for repairs during the last 12 months. When you have them added up, divide the amount by 4. This will give you the amount your repairs would have cost had you taken a few simple precautions. The other 75 per cent represents the amount you have paid for neglecting to attend to certain things regularly. An automobile is a wonderful piece of mechanism, and will stand an enormous amount of abuse. Still it DOES require SOME attention, and in this article I will tell you a few of the things you should do to enable you to keep the cost of repairs to a minimum.

Have you ever realized how much trouble and expense is caused by neglecting to lubricate, not only the engine, but also other parts of your car that have rubbing surfaces.

You would not think of filling up the crankcase with kerosene instead of lubricating oil, would you. Yet do you know that after you have run a car about 500 miles, a very considerable amount of gasoline has found its way into the crankcase and has diluted the oil to such an extent that if you were to draw it off and had it analyzed, you would find that about a third of what you thought was oil, would really be GASOLINE. The old oil in the crankcase should be drained off regularly every 500 miles, and a fresh supply poured in.

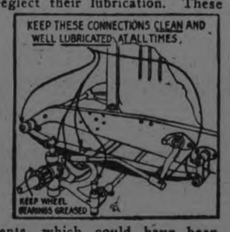
When oil becomes very much diluted it allows the bearing surfaces to come together, and the friction set up causes rapid wear, and very soon the engine becomes noisy and you have to take your car to a repair shop for an engine overhaul. This will cost you anything from $50 to $200, yet you would have saved this amount if you had just taken the precaution of draining the old oil out at regular intervals, and had kept your engine supplied with a good grade oil at all times.

Do you always inspect the level of the oil in the crankcase to see that it is CORRECT, before you leave the garage.

If you allow the level of the oil in the crankcase to become TOO LOW, it cannot circulate properly through the motor, and the parts that do not receive enough oil, start to wear rapidly. If you run far, with the oil in the crankcase too low, the engine starts to heat up and perhaps a bearing is burned out, and a big repair job is the result.

If you give the engine TOO MUCH oil at a time, what happens? For a start, the spark plugs become fouled and have to be taken out and cleaned frequently. After a short time, they become so bad that you have to put in new plugs at a cost of from 50 cents to $1.00 each. Too much oil in the crankcase causes carbon to form quickly on top of the pistons and cylinders; then the cylinder head must be removed and the carbon scraped out, and it is more than probable you will also have to have the Valves ground, an operation that will deplete your pocketbook by from $15 to $25.00. All this expense could have been saved if you had kept the oil at the CORRECT level in the crankcase.

Rapid wear takes place in the steering pins, and King bolts if you neglect their lubrication. These parts are so exposed that water and grit work their way in unless they are kept clean and properly lubricated. These parts should not require replacing on the average car oftener than about once every 18 months. Neglect them, and they will need replacing in less than half that time, a repair that will cost you from $6.00 to $18.00.



Remember also, that neglect to lubricate these important parts not only causes them to wear rapidly, but may also cause them to weaken and break, and this has been the cause of many accidents, which could have been prevented by keeping steering connections properly lubricated.

Keep the spring leaves and shackle bolts well lubricated. If you neglect them, it not only gives you a stiff spring action which sets up a vibration that loosens every nut and bolt on the car, but also is one of the most common causes of broken springs, and spring replacements cost anything from $12.00 to $25.00. Keep the spring leaves lubricated and the clips that hold the spring in place on the axle tight, and it is rarely you will have to dig down into your pocketbook to pay for repairs to springs.

Keep the oil in the Gear Box and Rear Axle at the proper levels, Examine the level frequently, especially, if there is any indication that oil leaks from either of these parts. Lubricate both front and rear universal joints once a week, as they wear VERY rapidly if they are not kept well lubricated.

Remember, first, last and all the time, that the amount of money you pay for repairs, depends largely on the care and attention you give your car.

Two Games Monday--Play-offs Next Week--Leaside Play Here

NEXT WEEK BUSY ONE FOR PLAYERS

Seniors Have Four Games Scheduled—Play Off For League Honors — Junior Games.

Next week will be a busy week for the local baseball players. The senior team has at least four games scheduled while the Lakeviews are expected to get in a couple of games in the O.B.A.A. play-offs.

The Central Leaguers start the week off with two exhibition games with the Oslers scheduled for Monday. On Wednesday they will play one of the play off games for the league championship. This will be an out-of-town game and the return game will be played here on Saturday.

The opponent for Wednesday and Saturday's games will depend on the outcome of today's games. In the event of Kingston pulling up on even terms with the Petes the play off with Kingston for the second half honors will be staged with the Wednesday game in the Limestone City. In the event of the Petes maintaining their lead and capturing the second half honors the play off for the championship of the League will be staged with the Wednesday game played in Belleville and the Trunks back here on Saturday. If a third game is necessary it will be played in Cobourg.

The Lakeviews, Junior city champions will meet the Oshawa champions this week and the winners of this series will play off with the Kingston Junior City champions.

JOHNNY DUNDEE HAS QUEER ALIBI

According to Johnny a Wad of Gum Cost Him the Title in One Fight.

NEW YORK, Aug 11.—Thirteen may be an unlucky number for some people, but not for Johnny Dundee.

After 13 years of plodding, Dundee finally has annexed the featherweight championship of the world.

A wad of chewing gum—five sticks, to be exact—kept him from winning the title back in 1913, if you are willing to take Johnny's word for it.

Chewing gum is one of Dundee's few dissipations. Johnny is a rapid-fire chewer. In his bout with Criqui, in which he won the title, Dundee's jaws were as much in action as his two hands.

Ten years ago, Dundee was matched with Johnny Kilbane, who held the featherweight title as a result of a victory over Abe Attell. The bout ended in a draw, although many of the experts were inclined to think that Dundee won. It was a hair-line decision.

"If you want to listen to an unusual alibi, give me your ear. A wad of chewing gum cost me the title in that bout with Kilbane. Don't laugh. That's the real truth.

"The day prior to the fight I was taking a walk in down-town Los Angeles. I noticed my shoes needed a shine, and stepped into a shining parlor to have them cleaned. In getting into the chair I stumbled and swallowed my wad of gum—five sticks.

"That gum seemed like a lump of lead in my stomach. Inside of ten minutes I felt sick and all during the fight I suffered as a result. It was a week before I felt like myself again.

"Yes, sir! A wad of gum cost me the featherweight title ten years ago. But I have no kick coming, as it would only have meant the featherweight championship of the United States, while I now have the world title.

Leaside May Play Home Games Here

The Petes will be out of town on Wednesday but the chances are that the local fans will have some high class baseball dished up for them just the same. Oshawa and Leaside are scheduled to play off for the honors of "A" section of the league this week and the Leaside team has applied for permission to play its home games in Peterboro. The request has not yet definitely been granted but no objections are expected and it will in all probability go through. The Oshawa-Leaside game would under these circumstances be played here on Wednesday with the return game in Oshawa on Saturday. The winner of this series will play off with the winner of the Big Four section for the championship of the Central League.

ANNUAL MEETING SOFT BALL LEAGUE

Men's League Will Hold Re-organization Meeting August 20.

The annual meeting of the Mens' Soft Ball League will be held on Monday evening, August 20. Officers for the coming year will be elected and plans will be discussed for the coming season. It has been suggested by the president of the league that those teams wishing to enter this fall should hold their organization meeting between this date and the date set for the league meeting in order that the accredited representatives may be present.

No definite plans have been formulated yet for the coming schedule and it will be necessary to know how many team are to take part before anything definite can be done for this reason it is important that all teams wishing to enter should have their representatives present at the annual meeting.

The place and hour of the meeting will be announced later but it will be probably be held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms.

KAMM IS AFTER A BATTING RECORD

Threatens to Break the Major League Record For Two-Base Hits.

CHICAGO, Aug. 11.—The "Dublin Kid" is the nickname the White Sox players have slipped to Third Baseman Bill Kamm, better known as the $100,000 beauty.

But the title has nothing to do with Bill's ancestry or birthplace. It's the result of Kamm's hobby of hitting doubles or two-baggers.

Kamm threatens to break the major league record in this respect. With about 50 games to go he has more than 30 doubles to his credit. If he goes along at the clip that he has maintained to date he is almost sure to set a new mark.

The major league record for two-base hits during a season is held by the late Ed Delehanty. During season of 1899 while playing with the Philadelphia club of the National League, Delehanty recorded 56 two-base hits.

Delehanty's feat has stood up under the assaults of the game's greatest batters for 25 years. The mark was seriously menaced in 1912 when Tris Speaker, playing with the Boston Red Sox, totalled 53 doubles. That stands as an American League record.

Kamm attains his greatest speed after reaching first base. Once he passes the initial sack he is in high. This fact, coupled with his ability to grasp possibilities quickly, enables him to stretch what would be a single to the ordinary runner into a double.

ASKS FOR ADMISSION.

GENEVA, Aug. 11.— (Canadian Press.)—The Abysinian Government has sent a formal application to the League of Natuions for admission to membership and it will be submitted at the next meeting of the Assembly. Abysinia is preparing to send a delegation with full powers and ready to act if admission is accorded.

DERRY TO HURL FOR THE PETES

Cobourg Mound Artist Will Do Duty in Monday's Game With the Oslers--Two Fast Games

"Punch" Derry of Cobourg is scheduled to do the hurling for the Petes in the afternoon game with the Oslers on Monday. The mound artist for the morning session has not been chosen but will be one of the regular staff probably Heckman, though McElroy, Hutchinson and Turner will probably all get a chance to show their wares before the day is over.

The two games on Civic holiday mean a busy day for the Petes. The morning game is scheduled for 10.15 and will have to get away sharp on time in order to give the players as much rest as possible before coming back for the afternoon battle. The second game will start at o'clock. Kay and LeBarr will be the umpires for both games.

The Oslers have this season shown themselves to be one of the fastest teams in Toronto. They were runners-up to the Hillcrests, who captured the honors for the Hampden Park League and were only nosed out by a very narrow margin.

MANY MANAGERS HAVING TROUBLES

Managing a Big League Team Is Anything But a Soft Proposition.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—Managing a major league ball club is far from a soft proposition. It is doubtful if there is a more uncertain position in the world of sport.

Managerial ability is based largely on the games won column. A number of big league teams, expected to do big things, are battling to hold a respectable place in the second division, if there is such a thing. As a result many managerial changes are hinted at.

In the American League Lee Fohl passed out as leader of the St. Louis Browns. He will go to Boston unless Chance is retained. Sisler succeeded Fohl at St. Louis.

Donie Bush, making his major league debut as manager at Washington, has had a tempestuous season. Injuries have played havoc with the showing of his club. In all probability Owner Clarke Griffith will try some other combination next year.

In the National League is is almost certain that this year will mark the passing of Fred Mitchell at Boston. While no one expected Art Fletcher to finish anywhere but last with the Phillies, another leader will likely handle the reins at Philly next season. A manager seldom lasts longer than one season with that club.

Two months ago rumor had Pat Moran getting the gate at Cincinnati. Then came a splurge by the Reds, who are now putting up a battle for first place. That has temporarily put Pat back in high favor, but he must keep the Reds up there to retain it.

Truly the job of managing a major league ball club is far from a bed of roses.

Several Fights Featured Kingston-Belleville Game

Umpires are living in perilous days, and a man is taking quite a chance when he attempts to ajuducate in contests on the diamond.

Belleville and Kingston came together on Wednesday in a C.O.B.L. fixture in the Limestone City, which was featured by a number of incidents not down on the official programme. Thereaux of Bowmanville, who was officiating with Dick Butler, was given a wallop by a Kingston player, while Jack Ouelette had a run-in with a spectator during which blows were exchanged. Then a few of the supporters of both teams had a fistic argument. These little specialties as well as the game were all seen for the one admission.

A waitress tells us they ought to put rouge in the coffee because it is so pale.

COLONIALS TROUNCE THE ALL STAR TEAM

Good Fielding and Long Hitting a Feature of the Game.

The Colonials evened up the count in the series of exhibition games when they slammed their way to a 15 to 7 victory over the All Stars in a game played last evening at the Central Park grounds.

Both teams played sterling ball the Colonials showing superiority only in their hitting. The Colonials also got all the breaks that were going. The fielding of both teams was almost errorless and all hit the ball for long rides.

The feature play was the double play pulled off in big style by Mrs. Lee, Miss Bradshaw and Miss Scott. Mrs. Lee pitched good ball for the winners. Miss Patterson was also hard to hit. Both pitchers received air-tight support. Long clouts were the feature of the play, many hits going for extra bases.

The Colonials took the lead early in the game and kept it, but the All Stars rallied in the ninth and leaned on their bats for a total of five runs.

Miss Goodwin made some good catches of Miss Drury's long drives in left field.

The lineups:

All Stars—McCarthy, cf; Mann, c; Hayes, 2b; Thornton, 1b; Drury, lf; Edwards, 3b; T. Meredith, ss; Gimblett, rf; Fowler, ss; Patterson, p; sub, Clarke.

Colonials—Plunkett, c; Bradshaw, 1b; Lee, p; Scott, 2b; Sanders, 3b; Todd, ss; Greenshaw, ss; T. Wade, cf; V. Wade, rf; Goodwin, lf.

Score by innings:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| All Stars .... | 000101005— | 7 | 10 3 |
| Colonials ..... | 10105116— | 15 | 12 2 |

Trial Races To-Day For the Richardson Cup.

CHICAGO, Aug. 11.— (Canadian Press.)— Lake Michigan's entry in the Richardson Cup race, the international Great Lakes yachting contest to be held September 5, 6 and 7, at Toronto, will be decided in a series of trial races to start here today.

Nearly a score of fast R-class yachts, the only class allowed to race for the Cup, representing the eight clubs in the Lake Michigan Yachting Association, will start in the first trial race, to be run over the 12-mile club course.

The Richardson Cup, offered by Commodore S. P. Richardson, of Toledo, after the famous old Canada Cup had been retired because of a protest, for several years has been emblematic of the stiffest competition between Canada and the United States on the Great Lakes.

The Erie-Huron entry, the yacht Mebley, of Cleveland, already has been selected. Michigan's entry will be known within two weeks and the Ontario starter will be selected before the end of the month.

Of the boats racing to-day, Ariel, formerly owned by Addison Hannon, of Boston, and winner of nearly every class race in which it was entered in eastern waters, was brought to the Great Lakes expressly for this race by Ogden T. McClung, and its showing in early club races has been exceptional.

Four Swimmers Will Attempt the Channel.

DOVER, Aug. 11. — (Canadian Press.)— Four swimmers will attempt to cross the English Channel to-day, three from the English side and the other from the French.

Two of the trio that will start from Dover are United States swimmers and both are from Boston, the city in which Henry Sullivan, who last week became the third man to swim the Channel, is a shoe salesman.

They are Charles Toth, who made two unsuccessful attempts to swim the Channel last year, the first time getting within four miles of his goal, and the second time within five miles, and Sam Richards, who surrendered in his attempt four miles off the Dover coast, when taken ill with a fit of coughing. They will start at 6 o'clock.

An hour later Romeo Maceil, of the Argentine, will start off on his attempt, and at the same time, from Calais, Enrique Tirrabocci will start on the difficult task.

Base Ball Records Made This Season

Joe Dugan, Yankees—Played 26 consecutive games without making an error.

Cy Williams, Phillies—Cracked out three home-runs in one game.

Everett Scott, Yankees—Passed the 1,000 mark in consecutive games played at shortstop.

Grover Alexander, Cubs — Pitched 54 consecutive innings without giving a base on balls.

Adolfo Luque, Reds — Won seven consecutive games in staging great comeback after bad season in 1922.

Dazzy Vance, Robins—Struck out 15 Giants in 11 innings, 14 in 9 innings, yet lost his game.

Phillies-Cardinals — Made a major league record of 10 home runs in one game at the Philadelphia park.

Stanley Coveleskie, Indians—Pitched 28 consecutive scoreless innings.

Rolly Naylor, Athletics—After being in the majors six years registered first shut-out of his career over Chicago White Sox.

Charley Grimm, Pirates—Batted safely in 25 consecutive games, getting one or more hits.

New York Yankees—Suffered only one defeat in the first swing around western end of American League circuit.

O.B.A.A. ACCEPTED THE RESIGNATION

Toronto Association Will Be Given Until August 16 to Comply With Ruling of O.B.A.A.

TORONTO, Aug. 11.—The Toronto Amateur Baseball Association at its recent meeting having refused to restore the Riverdale Senior League to full membership without prejudice on the same basis as previous to that leagues withdrawal, an action taken in support of the O.B.A.A., and this decision being contrary to the understanding given to the O.B.A.A. executive by the T.A.B.A. delegates at recent meetings of the O.B.A.A. the O.B.A.A. executive, at their regular meeting held at the A.A.U. office, 46 Richmond Street west, Thursday night, considered the question of withdrawing the T.A.B.A.s resignation as requested by that organization.

However, the Toronto Association having broken faith with the O.B.A.A. by refusing to re-admit to full membership the Riverdale Senior League, and by allowing Charles Allen to play in Toronto when he did not qualify under the residence rule, contrary to the ruling of the O.B.A.A. executive, the O.B.A.A. executive have decided to accept their previous letter of resignation and admit the Riverdale Senior League of Toronto, who have consistently supported the governing body.

During the period of the conferences between the O.B.A.A. and T.A.B.A. the latter body asked the O.B.A.A. not to make public any statement to what transpired at the meetings; the T.A.B.A., in turn, have consistently carried on a propaganda in the press, holding themselves up as martyrs to the cause. The statements made are in a number of cases erroneous and a deliberate misrepresntation of facts. The O.B.A.A. have up to the present refrained from entering into any public controversy, believing it in the best interest of amateur baseball not to do so, and that will also be the policy in future.

The committee, in its decision, also took cognizance of the fact that this is the second time the T.A.B.A. have attempted to create trouble for the O.B.A.A., they having in 1920 pulled their champion clubs out of the Ontario series, refusing to meet other clubs on the dates set by the O.B.A., the same being agreed to previously by their own representative. The O.B.A.A. official statement is as follows:

The O.B.A.A. executive at their meeting held in Toronto on Thursday evening, August 9, do now declare.

1. That the former letter of resignation from the T.A.B.A. to the O.B.A.A. is now accepted.

2. That no application for re-affiliation from the T.A.B.A. will be considered by this executive until—

(a) The Riverdale Senior League is restored to full membership and good standing without prejudice on the same basis as it formerly held, including the right that they be permitted to play in the city championships series this year.

(b) A letter is received by this executive from the T.A.B.A. withdrawing the statements issued by that executive on the occasion of its resignation.

(c) That it will in future agree to abide by the O.B.A.A. rules and regulations and the decisions of the executive.

(d) That in matters effecting different organizations in the O.B.A.A. all such questions must first be referred to the O.B.A.A. for decision and same is final.

(e) That the T.A.B.A. be given until August 16 to comply with these conditions.

INTERNATIONAL MATCHES.

FOREST HILLS, N.Y., Aug. 11. —(Canadian Press.)— Leading women teinnis players of the United States and Great Britain will meet to-day on the turf courts in the new stadium at the West Side Club in the first of a series of international team matches. Seven matches, including five of singles and two of doubles will be played for a trophy by the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

JOE M'GINNITY IS STILL "IRON MAN"

Old Star of the Giants Can Still Give the Young Dudes Some Lessons in Shut-Outs.

By BILLY EVANS.

When speaking of the miracle men of baseball, don't overlook Joe McGinnity.

Who is Joe McGinnity, you ask? Twenty years ago he was a big league star pitcher. For seven years he was a member of the New York Giants, sharing with Christy Mathewson the pitching honors of the club.

Thirty years ago Joe McGinnity began his baseball career with the Montgomery (Ala.) club of the Southern League.

Why should Joe McGinnity be numbered among the miracle men of baseball?

Well, at the age of 54, when golf, not baseball, is the favorite sport of men of that age, McGinnity is still pitching and as usual he is doing a mighty good job of it.

Still Shuts 'Em Out.

Not only is McGinnity pitching winning ball, but he is also managing the Dubuque (Ia.) club of the Mississippi Valley League.

Recently the wires carried a story that made old time fans all over the country sit up and take notice. The news item was to the effect that Joe McGinnity at the age of 54 had shut out the Marshalltown (Ia.) team with only three hits. Since that time McGinnity has turned in a half dozen similar performances.

Back twenty years ago McGinnity was the "Iron Man" of the majors. It was always "Iron Joe" McGinnity or "Iron Man" McGinnity, when reference was made to the great pitcher.

Joe earned that nickname because of his ability to stand all kinds of work, but particularly for pitching double headers.

Now it is a rarity for a pitcher to try to pitch and win two games in the afternoon. That was a regular diet with McGinnity. In all probability he has pitched and won more double headers than any twirler in the game's history.

Deserves His Title.

McGinnity richly deserves the title of "Iron Man." It is fitting that a pitcher who, after 30 years of twirling, a third of it in the majors, should be so named.

An easy delivery that placed no strain on the arm, he possessor of good control, tells in a few words why McGinnity continues to pitch at an age when most players have forgotten all about baseball as far as being an active participant.

While McGinnity did not confine himself to any particular style of delivery, he was one of the first pitchers to use the underhand ball with great success. Of the modern pitchers, Carl Mays is one of the few pitchers who has been successful with that style delivery.

Remarkable Athlete.

Winning 20 ball games in a season is considered an unusual pitching performance. Not for Joe McGinnity, however.

In a major league career extending over 11 years, McGinnity six times won more than 20 games. In 1903 he won 31 games, while in 1904 he registered the big year of his career, 35 wins against 8 defeats for a percentage of .814.

In his 11 years of big league pitching McGinnity won 236 games and lost only 134 for a mark of .638.

These are just a few reasons why Joe McGinnity, pitcher at 54 years of age, is entitled to be known as the "Miracle Man" as well as the "Iron Man" of baseball.

ALL RED SOX NEED IS A NEW TEAM

New Owners Have the Franchise and the Park But That is About All.

BOSTON, Aug. 11. — Frank Chance is convinced that whoever manages the Boston Red Sox next year will have a big task ahead.

Chance as manager of the Sox this year has done well with the club despite the fact that it has been a tailender from the start and is almost certain to finish in the cellar berth.

"The new owners of the Boston club have the franchise and the park, but they must get a ball club," says Chance.

"This would not be such a difficult proposition if the club had only a few weak spots. Instead it is a team that is weak in every department, particularly as to reserve strength.

"It will be necssary to build the Red Sox from the ground up. There isn't a position on the club that is cinched. New material of high-class calibre is absolutely essential.

"Pitching is very essential. My club gets good pitching about every fourth day. It lacks speed and has no great offensive powers. It is a club that is giving its very best efforts, but lacks many essentials of a first division ball club."

RAILWAY HEARING OVER BY TUESDAY

Two Lawyers to Appear on Behalf of the Railways —Night Session Monday to Speed Up the Case.

OTTAWA, August 11. Canadian Press. — Isaac Pitblado, K. C., counsel for the Manitoba government and the Winnipeg Board of Trade, concluded his argument before the Privy Council yesterday afternoon, oposing the appeal of British Columbia and Alberta, for a revision of the railway rates which are claimed by these provinces to discriminate against them. When the council reassembles on Monday afternoon, F. H. Chrysler, K. C., for the Railway Association will oppose the application.

It is expected that his address will continue during the afternoon session and with a view to speeding up the case the council has agreed to sit on Monday night.

Gerald Ruel, K.C., counsel for the National Railways informed Premier King that he would require only a few minutes to state his argument. Mr. Chrysler and Mr. Ruel will be the only lawyers to address the council on behalf of the railways.

G. G. McGeer will then have an opportunity to reply and it is expected the hearing will be over by Tuesday evening.

President Suspenders are great to make you feel well

Puzzling Plays

When a fly ball is juggled and runners advance on the play, disputes invariably arise as to the status of the base runners.

The following play in a minor league last year resulted in a protested game. A similar play in the National League a few years ago also resulted in a protest.

There are runners on second and third. The batter hits a difficult line drive to left field. The center fielder goes over to back up the play. While running with his arms extended the ball struck squarely in the left fielder's hands. He was unable to hold it, the ball being deflected in such a way that the center fielder was able to catch it before it struck the ground.

The runner on second did not believe a catch possible, and started to advance the moment the ball was hit. The runner on third held his base until the ball struck the left fielder's hands and then crossed the plate.

The ball was thrown to second, and the runner doubled up before he could return. It was then thrown to third, and a claim made for a triple play. The contention raised was: the runner on third really had no right to leave until the center fielder caught the ball, which was the actual completion of the play.

What about it?

THE INTERPRETATION

The runner on third had a right to leaves the base which he held, the moment the ball struck the left fielder's hands. He observed every rule and the scoring of his run was legal.

The runner on second who failed to hold his base was, of course, doubled up the moment the ball reached the base he had vacated in advance of him.

If juggling the ball was permitted, whether intentional or not, base runners would always be at sea as to when to advance. Therefore it must be at the very moment the fly ball strikes a fielder's hands.

CHIEF OF HURONS.

QUEBEC, Aug. 11. — (Canadian Press.)—Lieut. Governor, Sir Charles Fitzpatrick will shortly be elected a chief of the Huron tribe of Indians. This honor will be conferred on Sir Charles by the Indians of Lorette in recognition of the great interest the Lieutenant-Governor has always taken in the welfare of the tribe and as a token of their homage to the sovereign whom he represents in Quebec.

MRS. MALLORY MAY LOSE TENNIS CROWN

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—While Mrs. Molla Mallory has been a rather disappointing standard-bearer for American tennis in international competition, she has held out for years impregnably against the American girls who disputed her right to the national championship.

Previous to the coronation of Bill Tilden as the tennis king of practically the whole world, the American men's title, over a stretch of six years, was passed around among a small group of stars, including McLoughlin, Williams, Johnston and Murray.

During the same time, Mrs. Mallory was gathering a succession of triumphs in the women's class that had only one interpretation, in 1919, when Mrs. George Wightman won the championship.

Other women stars, during her long reign as the queen of the American courts were known and admitted to have more strokes, better execution and a more polished game, but they lacked the aggressiveness, the winning temperament and the physical qualifications to stand up against Mrs. Mallory.

After the American champion had proved her superiority over the best of the native born Americans near her own age, it became apparent that she would continue to reign until some young player was developed or until her game began to slip.

As the visiting British girls and the American contenders for the title begin to warm up in the tournaments, preliminary to the national championship, it begins to look like Mrs. Mallory is at last in real danger of losing her grip on the cup.

From her failure to live up to form in her early season play on European courts, it might be concluded that Mrs. Mallory's game has passed the peak. It must be remembered, however, that on her first trip to Europe she was just recovering from an attack of influenza, and athletic trainers say that the effects of "flu" weaken the constitution for months and months.

Even if the American champion succeeds in getting back into first-class physical condition in time for the national championships, it is obvious that she will be in danger. The long expected, and somewhat desired development of young stars has been accomplished in Helen Wills, the seventeen-year-old California girl, and in Miss Kathleen McKane, the youthful British star.

Many of the tennis critics, who have been watching the improvement of "Little Wills" since she came east the first time, believe that it is within her game to win the championship this year without the help of Miss McKane or Mrs. Geraldine Beamish, another British star, both of whom have defeated Mrs. Mallory this year.

The most striking thing about "Little Wills," however, is that she is "little" now only in terms of affection. She has developed physically in most surprising proportions since she was here last summer.

She has always played a game of pronounced masculine style and with the strength to back it up, it does not require much imagination or any tendency toward the romantic to picture her as the coming champion. Perhaps not this year, but some year sure, and not far away.

WINNER MEETS THISTLES, HAMILTON

The winner of the G.W.V.A. versus Brantford game to-day meet the Thistles of Hamilton in the semi-final of the Ontario cup.

TENNIS BEGINNERS

The Backhand Stroke

There are a few players with a natural backhand stroke, but very few. With most it is either a weak, defensive stroke or the result of long anr patient practice. It looks easy, but is one of those things which people just don't do naturally.

In attempting to make this stroke, the young player will soon discver the force and logic of the admonitions for good foot work and form which have been stressed in previous articles. All players have some natural ability, and may have been able to entirely disregard form and still make some very good strokes. But with the backhand—never. The port side stroke is played from the toes up, and without good stance and co-ordination it is seldom effective or sure.

The directions are simple. Start with the weight on the left foot and transfer it to the right in finishing. There is no need to change grip, though on a high pitch the thumb may be extended along the handle to give more power and control. A slightly shortened grip also tend to give better control, but reduces speed. Stand a little closer to the ball than on a forehand, and if the ball is low, bend the knees and shove from the toes up. Most players slice a bit on their backhands, and this is not a bad feature, provided they allow a few inches for the curve or loop.

There has been much controversy as to whether the head of the racquet should be above the wrist in the English style or whether the racquet should be below the wrist. There is room for argument, but it is pretty generally conceded that the safest way is to get down to the shot and literally shove it over, even at the sacrifice of some pace.

The learning of this stroke will require persistence, as first attempts are quitely likely to be disappointing. Do not weaken, however, and it will come to you.

The next article will deal with volleying.

SPORT GOSSIP

George Herman Ruth has issued an ultimatum to these fresh pitchers Mr Ruth, in a public warning, says that they must quit intentionally walking him or he will quit base ball

Mr Ruth is sick and tired of it all He is disgusted He has had more than enough and all that even he, patient and generous Ruth, will stand for

There are times in the lives of men when they must assert themselves and demand their rights Such a crisis has appeared in the existence of Mr Ruth

* * *

An artist must satisfy his public Mr Ruth considers himself an artist, at least some industrious pot-boilers have included him in lists of artists Be that as it may, Mr Ruth feels that he "has a public" and "his" public demands home runs and he cannot supply his public with the art of hitting these home runs when pitchers won't let him It is not fair to Mr Ruth or Mr Ruth's public You can see for yourself that it is not

He had cried against the injustice of it all, the cruel trickery, the contemptible intent He has, as a gentleman of course, remonstrated against the practice, but nothing has come of it Instead of listening to a master craftsman and trying to conform to the code of sports ethics, these persons who pitch have gone blithely on their diabolic way More than that! The managers under whose command these fellows labor have even approved of the plan of purposely passing Mr Ruth and a few of them (Mr Cornelius McGillicuddy being one) have broken into public print and approved the action Mr Ruth has his suspicions that the others have given their private approval

* * *

This thing has gone quite far enough It is going no further Mr Ruth will see to that He has set his big feet firmly down upon the matter He is going to be pitched to or there is going to be a collapse of the American League Nothing short of that They are going to find out the kind of man they are monkeying with They are going to pitch to him or they are not going to find him coming to the plate He is so angry that he is going to retire from baseball

Human endurance will go so far It has its limits Mr Ruth has discovered that When an artist steps out to give his public what his public demands and a gang of hoodlums that can be called unmoral in a base ball way, fellows without sense of duty or honor or decency or ethics, combine to smother the art in a public idol, one can always gracefully retire if one's request for just and fair dealing is ignored That is what Mr Ruth will do Walk out on the mob! That is his decision

* * *

Mr Ruth has made his plan known through this column Mr Ruth, like that other hard-fisted leader of the intelligencia, Jack Dempsey, produces a column in the newspapers ever so often

Mr Ruth discusses the matter fairly and freely in a heart-to-heart talk with his public He says there is nothing for him to do but leave the game that he loves so well and where he is worshipped by his public It will hurt both sides to have Mr Ruth leave but, as we said before, there is really nothing else that a gentleman can do and keep his self-respect

The die is cast, the card is turned, the gavel has fallen Every worm will turn Lambs still become lions

* * *

We have read the great artist's ultimatum with keen interest Also, with a sympathetic interest We know how the soul of him is seared by the injustice of a cruel majority, how his art is thwarted and how it withers under the intentional pass system We can appreciate the cruelty of it all, the contemptible smallness of it

But, when he leaves base ball flat, what will Mr Ruth do for a living? The answer to that, knowing Mr Ruth as we do, is beyond our imagination Yes, far beyond it

A CHALLENGE GAME OF BOWLS

A very interesting game of bowls was played on Wednesday evening last for two bags of flour, or their equivalent value in any other commodity to be divided equally between the Children's Shelter and the St. Vincent Society.

It appears to have come about in the following way:

One of the first year members, who has become very proficient and expert in "drawking to the kitty," appears to have been talking of his success, (an unusual thing, for he is very modest), to a former member of the club, who had not had a bowl in his hand for the past ten years.

The former member promptly issued the above challenge and named his rink, his lead had not had a bowl in his hand for several years, his vice had only bowled one game in years, and his second man was the oldest and feeblest member of the club. The first year man was to take his choice of the remaining members of the club, and needless to say he picked the best he could find —literally a picked rink.

The game created great interest and excitement. On the last end the rinks were tied and there was not a half inch between the winning and losing bowl.

The game was practically a contest between the "Has Beens" and the "Actives." The following is the score:

Has Beens ..1xxx352xx1x5xx2x—19
Actives ..... 931IIxxx45x2x21x1—20

The rinks were as follows:

Actives— C. J. Seymour, J. Sedgwick, M. Chenhall and J. J. Howden, skip.

Has Beens— R. Matchett, D. H. Moore, R. J. Soden and W. F. Johnston.

BED SPRINGS.

If your bed springs are not covered you should put a covering of strong unbleached cloth over them to protect the bedding and the mattress.

RYE'S PAVILION OPEN NEXT WEEK

Practically Completed Now With Fine Dance Floor and Commodious Arrangements.

Mr. H. B. Rye will open to the public next week a new dance pavilion close by his boathouse at the foot of Lock Street. It was hoped that the work would have been completed to-day in time for Monday night but some of the finishing touches remained to be added and Mr. Rye desired to have everything ready and in place on the occasion of the first dance.

Rye's Pavilion is 45 feet by 50 feet with an airy height of a storey and a half. The dance floor is 25 feet by 50 feet and is of heavy hardwood. At the north end are the entrances and the refreshment booth, and at the opposite end are checking rooms and lavatories. Ample broad space has been leit on either side of the main floor for sitting out and for spectators. The sides are screened to such an extent that the floor is practically in the open air. When the weather becomes cooler, the sides now hinged up can be let down, and it is expected that the Pavilion will be in use until November at least.

Mr. Rye is taking every precaution to provide an atmostphere at the Pavilion that will appeal to the general public. Mr. Max Sloan has been engaged as floor manager and with him will be five or six stewards. To discourage possible loiterers every person entering the Pavilion will be charged ten cents, and the check rooms with the lavatories beyond them will be under the direct supervision of special assistants.

A four piece orchestra has been engaged for the opening night which will be announced early next week, and for the present it is intended to hold assemblies three nights a week, Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

Construction of the Pavilion was begun two weeks ago by Mr. George Sloan who has made surprising progress. The wiring was put in by Messrs. Alexander and Hall.

Canadian Stock Exchange — And Mines — | New York Stock Exchange — and Curb Prices —

Today's Quotations and Opinions and Reviews of the Markets.

New York, August 11. (Special.)—Brief reports of to-day's stock market could have been written from the floor of the exchange where 85 per cent. of the business originated after an irregular opening followed by some selling largely by the bears. A covering movement took place during the second and last hour demonstrating how bare the market is of stocks; the close was higher; the market is easily sold but not so readily bought. For instance Baldwin advanced one point to 112 5-8 on buying of a few hundred shares; Studebaker advanced to 101 7-8 from 100¼, less than two thousand shares. Famous Players startled Bears by 106 shares selling at 70 up 1 from the previous close, and 1 3-8 above the low of the day. A director said the regular dividend would be declared next week; Westinghouse held firm at 58 and American Can sold at 88 3-4 up 5-8 from the previous close; Amer. Loco. responded to investment buying selling at 73 1-4 up 3-4, and Baltimore & Ohio, which is under accumulation sold at 48. The oils and rubbers developed considerable heaviness and Bears in later issues got their stock rather easily which they covered. The stock market opened irregular and quiet to-day with a small attendance both of the board and in the Street.

National Biscuit was strong at 42 1-2 up ¼ from the Thursday close; Steel at 87 3-8 was off ¼, American Locomotive at 72 3-4, was up 1-4 and Westinghouse at 58 was up 1-8. There was presure on United States ruber which opened at 38¼ off ½ and later sold at 37 1-8. Producers and refiners was heavy and quite active, selling at 30 3-4 off 3-8, evidently the bearish element has assumed the attitude of picking on any issue, which shows any sign of activity, the street being full of qualms these days readily follows any weakness by selling short, thus adding to overcrowded short side; even constitutionals are afraid to get on the selling side these days. The rubber and tire issues were under attack soon after opening today on reports of a further cut in tire prices. United States steel rubber sold at 36½ off 2⅛ from the Thursday close, and later rallied to 37. The rubber first preferred sold at 91 off 3 and then rallied at 91¾; opening prices included United States steel 87 3-8 off ¼; Erie 13 up 1-8; Kennecott Copper 37 7-8 up 3-8; Amer. Loco 72 3-4 up ¼; St. Paul 15 1-4 up 1 1-4; Anaconda 39 3-4 up 3-8; Westinghouse 58 up 1-8; American Can 8¼ up 1-8; American Telephone and Telegraph 122 3-4 off 1-8; General Motors 14 1-8 off 1-8; Texas Co 41 7-8 up ¼; Pan American Petroleum B 57 3-4; Sinclair 21 7-8 off 1-8

NEWS BRIEFS

VANCOUVER, Aug 11 (Canadian Press) —This city is to have the privilege of welcoming many newspaper-women and free-lance writers, "artists in black and white," poets, and advertising writers when the Canadian Women's Press Club meets here, Sept 24 to 26 Three years ago Montreal was the chosen city and Mrs Lucy Doyle of Toronto was given charge of the destinies of the club

The most important amendment to be submitted to the convention reads as follows: "Any member retaining national membership and dropping membership in the local club will be classed as an associate member" It is suggested that local treasurers assume responsibility for fees, and for the examination of credentials for admittance to the club The national vice-presidents, it is proposed, should rank by seniority of the provinces

MONTREAL, Aug 11 (Canadian Press) —Miss Edith Leitch, sister of Miss Cecil Leitch, the famous golfer, has just arrived from England When interviewed by The Gazette Miss Leitch said that golf generally seems to be more popular than ever in the Old Country particularly among the younger people She will return to Montreal in time to compete in the Canadian Ladies' Open Championship in September

MONTREAL, Aug 11 (Canadian Press) —Three young women dressed in khaki, hiking from New York to this city, found no rest for their tired feet when they struck Whitby, Ont, in the dusk The girls, Marjory Brooks of Boston, Emily Davis of High Falls, N Y, and Ella Fields of Atlantic City, N J, covered 1,000 miles on their present trip

When they reached the Y W C A here they told the tale of suspicious Whitby farmers who were afraid the girls were bandits apparently, and who would give them no shelter Up to that time the husky-looking young ladies had always reached a town before sunset Now they, too, are afraid of the dark, and all because of Whitby-Ont, which had had its own scare recently and was taking no chances about harboring angels unawares

KINGSTON, Ont, Aug 11 (Canadian Press) —A protest against the presence in the municipally-owned cricket field of a large tobacco advertisement on a baseball score board has been made by the local branch of the W C T U The ladies contend that such an advertisement should not be permitted upon a field owned by the general public

WINNIPEG, Man, Aug 11 (Canadian Press) —Requesting Premier Mackenzie King to take up the matter of the personal naturalization of married women at the forthcoming Imperial Conference, the Canadian Council of Agriculture's executive committee has communicated with the Premier, pointing out some of the injustices alleged to exist in the Naturalization Act The view of the Council, is stated in a resolution as follows:

"Whereas a woman who is a British subject by birth or naturalization assumes the nationality of her husband on her marriage to a person of foreign citizenship, be it resolved that the Government of Canada be asked to amend the Naturalization Act of 1914 and 1920 to enable married women to take out personal naturalization papers"

PEDESTRIANS IN CITY MUST REMEMBER RULES

Several pedestrians were checked up by the police this forenoon for walking across George Street, between Charlotte and Simcoe Streets. Chief Newhall points out that safety zones have been established at these crossings, and while using them pedestrians are perfectly safe. If citizens do not co-operate with the police in making the new effort for traffic control successful, the Chief claims he will have no option but to ask for a by-law making it a punishable offence to cross between intersections.

PAY ENVELOPES ARE DOUBLED

Wages and salaries in manufacturing industries doubled, almost exactly, between 1914 and 1921. This is shown by the last census.

Total wages and salaries paid by all American manufacturing establishments compared as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| 1914 | $ 5,342,157,000 |
| 1921 | 10,763,442,000 |
| 1919 | 13,342,655,000 |

These figures show that the average person employed in manufacturing was paid about $108 in 1921 and $133 in 1919 for each $53 he received in 1914.

The rise and fall in the average income apparently just about matched fluctuations in the cost of living, for people on the payrolls of manufacturing industries. So, when considered in terms of buying power, incomes really stood still or close to it. "You got more dollars, but a dollar wouldn't buy as much."

The "total value" (presumably the selling price) of all manufactured products in 1921 was close to 44 billion dollars—to be exact, $43,653,283,000.

This was neary a third less than in 1919. It was four-fifths more than in 1914, though wages and salaries were twice as much as in 1914.

The situation in 1921 was that labor (wages and salaries) received about a fourth of the value of the things it manufactured.

What became of the other three-fourths?

Well, more than 25 billion dollars were paid for materials used in manufacturing, and a lot of this represented labor's share (wages and salaries) back at the source—in preparing the raw and semi-finished materials for manufacturing process—and transporting them to factories and mills.

These figures for 1921 include all activities of 196,000 manufacturing establishments employing 8,257,000 Americans.

Reduced to simple figures, the situation in that year was that, to each $820 paid for wages, $256 went for salaries, $2,53b for buying materials to be used in manufacturing, and $1,831 added as profits, taxes and other items previously mentioned.

Figures fluctuate in various years, but on the average the statistics for 1921 probably show the relative amounts that go for wages, salaries and cost of materials out of the final value of the manufactured products.

Capitol Entertainment

D. W. GRIFFITH'S PICTURE AT THE CAPITOL

"The Fall of Baylon" is the title of the new D.W. Griffith production that again brings this dramatic genius to the fore as the peer of all producers of mammoth spectacles. Those who have been privileged to see Mr. Griffith's "The Birth of a Nation" and "Hearts of the World" will welcome the announcement that "The Fall of Babylon" will be show here at the Capitol Theatre.

One of the largest and most notable companies ever assembled by Mr. Griffith will enact the principal part, the foremost players including Constance Talmadge, Tully Marshall, George Fawcett, Mildred Harris, Pauline Stark, Seena Owen, Alma Rubens, Kate Bruce, Alfred Pagt, Elmo Lincoln and Ruth Darling. More than 125,000 men and women appear in the spectacle.

Arrangements have been made to hold over for Monday Matinee and Evening the fight picture "The Leather Pushers." In holding same it will give the patrons of the Capitol a chance to see it on account of not showing picture last Thursday, when film was mislaid in shipment to Peterboro.

They Had No Banks

IN pioneer days the general merchant often kept the money of his customers for them — there were no banks. Buying and selling were largely by barter only.

The coming of the branch bank filled an important need in every community, and to-day the wise farmer, business man or private individual keeps his money in the bank and makes full use of the many services it has to offer.

The Peterboro Rangers' Band held a moonlight excursion last evening. Roberts' orchestra provided the music for the dancing, and the band played an enjoyable programme on the upper deck of the boat. It was one of the most successful moonlights of the season, and many were turned away for lack of accommodation. Another band moonlight will be held in the near future.

"RASSLERS" HAVE LEFT US.

Two wrestlers who were with the Billie Clark shows, stayed over in Peterborough for a week or more to harden up on pick and shovel work. They hired with Jack Thirnbeck on the sewer in Engleburn district, and clocked in regularly until this morning. The whole construction gang received their cheques yesterday afternoon. From all accounts the two wrestlers could do a good day's work.

WINNIPEG HAS DRY CLEANING

Dustless Sweepers Built in Peterboro Adopted With Great Success—Three Machines Installed,

Referring to the Dominion Dustless Sweeper which originated in Peterborough, the Manitoba Free Press says:

Winnipeg, one of the first cities of Canada to operate electrically-driven street railway cars, now leads the world in being the first to adopt the dry, dustless system of street cleaning. The city has purchased equipment, of which W. T. Blaney, formerly a Winnipeg man, is the designer, constructor and patentee, and has adopted this plan of street cleaning after tests had been made in the presence of Alderman W. B. Simpson, chairman of the civic health committee, and Street Commissioner W. F. Tallman, together with other members of the city council, and figures on record in the office of the last named go to prove that the contention of the manufacturer is well grounded, that the machines do the work in a thoroughly efficient and economical manner. A test was made between wet and dry cleaning, a wet sweeper first being used, and it was proved conclusively and to the satisfaction of the city's representative, that the application of water, or sweeping after sprinkling with water, was not the proper solution of the dirt problem, for after the wet machine had swept a given area, and time had been allowed for the street to dry, the dry dustless sweeper passed over the same surface and left it polished.

In the opinion of those competent to judge, among them being officials responsible for the cleanliness of the city streets, the dry, dustless sweeper is a wonderful machine; indeed, it is so pronounced by every one who has seen it in operation. Not only will it gather the finest of dust from the street surface, but it will pick up foreign materials, such as a brick weighing five pounds, pieces of wood, broom handles, glass bottles, chunks of cement, lengths of wire, part of an automobile tire, even a piece of the flashing from an automobile, and a piece of chain. These articles were thrown on the street by mischievously inclined persons while the test was being carried out, and who desired to test for themselves the ability of the machine to remove heavy articles from the street.

"I did not come to your city to conduct an experiment" declared H. M. Bishop, managing director of the manufacturing company. "I came with the finished product, of whose efficiency I was fully aware and in which I had supreme confidence, for I knew it would do all that we claim it would do. I brought it to your city after years of labor spent in developing an idea and putting the machine through the most severe tests. I did not represent that we had a stone picker, though the machines will remove coarse materials from the street in a really marvellous manner.

"The fact is, dry sweeping is only accomplished with effectiveness and without committing a nuisance by installing in the machines an air filter, which, I think we may honestly claim, is 100 per cent. efficient, handling, as it does, thousands of cubic feet of dust-laden air every minute, the air returning to the open absolutely cleansed dust-free."

The dry, dustless system was given a rigorous try-out in various sections of the city, under exacting conditions, and the machines responded to every demand made upon them. In some places the dust on the pavement was very heavy, being, in one particular spot, fully one-quarter of an inch deep. This condition existed after a heavy rain which had changed the dust to mud of the consistency peculiar to prairie points. Much of this mud had been carried by vehicle wheels from an unpaved portion of the street, where, when dry, it had been ground into the finest particles by passing traffic. Even this gumbo was gathered into the machines with absolute thoroughness. The capacity of each machine is 2¾ cubic yards, which represents from two to five hours' continuous sweeping without dumping. It is operated by one man, and most of the sweeping is done at night, when traffic is at its lowest ebb.

Both Alderman Simpson and Mr. Tallman, street commissioner, inspected some of these machines at work at the factory two years ago, so they were fully cognizant of what they could do before they were brought to Winnipeg. So favorably impressed were they with the manner in which the work was done and with the low cost of operation that they speedily became boosters of the idea, well satisfied that it was the best system of street cleaning that Winnipeg could adopt.

Every credit is due to Mr. Blaney, the designer and builder, who worked out all the details of a perfectly operating machine, and the introduction of this system of street cleaning to Winnipeg was a proposition of no mean proportion. Mr. Bishop has been in Winnipeg about three months preaching the gospe. of dry, dustless street cleaning, and has the satisfaction of seeing the machines make good on every claim he has advanced in their behalf. He brought three machines, three drivers and the designer, who have worked steadily for a month, as the manufacturing firm was determined that all the terms of their contract with the city should be carried out to the most minute detail, and this was accomplished to the satisfaction of the city council.

Highly Commended

"One of the strong features of this dry dustless street sweeper," declared W. F Tallman, street commissioner, in an interview, "is that it can be operated in cold weather, in the spring and fall, even when the temperature is 10 below zero. In the winter the car tracks are clear and a space of perhaps 20 feet on each side, also, and the machine can keep this area thoroughly clean. We were looking for some means of keeping our streets clean in cold weather, in the spring and fall, when we cannot use water, and this dry dustless system seems to me to be the only process for this city. During the 30 days these machines were under demonstration and test Main street, Main street and Portage avenue from Higgins to Hargrave and sometimes to Sherbrook were kept in very nice shape and at very greatly reduced cost.

"The Dominion Dustless Sweeper is the only machine of which I know that can be used in cold weather. To my mind the council was very wise in adopting this system, and deserves every credit for its selection. To my mind there is no comparison between the wet and dry systems, the latter cleaning the streets of the finest dust in an absolutely dustless manner. The machines we have used have fully come up to our expectations and the company has made good on every claim it has advanced for it."

DOUBLE DROWNING

EMPRESS, Alta., Aug. 11.—(Canadian Press). — Word has reached here of the double drowning at Buffal, a point on the Empress Line, of Miss Edna Currie, aged 18, and William Orphen, aged 17, last Tuesday. Miss Currie and her companion went down Tuesday to a camp on the Red River. They were missed Tuesday afternoon, and a search was made by the Provincial police, who found the body of the girl on Thursday. The body of the young boy is still missing.

TO RESTRICT FIRE

BUDAPEST, Aug. 11.—(Canadian Press.)—Two thousand farmers are striving to-day to restrict a fire that is sweeping the fields and forests in the neighborhood of Sza Toar. Great ditches which are filled with water as fast as they are made, are being dug in the path of the conflagration. Ashes falling into a straw stack from a peasants' pipe started the fire.

ANOTHER ATTEMPT

DOVER, Eng., Aug. 11.—(Canadian Press.)— Another attempt to conquer the English channel, which assumes almost the character of a race, was begun at 12.35 o'clock this afternoon when Charles Toth and Sam Richards of Boston, and Romeo Maciel, of Argentine, entered the water and struck out for the French shore.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE IS BACK ON THE JOB

Will Now Have a Free Hand to Formulate New Policies.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—(Canadian Press.)— President Coolidge returned to Washington early to-day from Marion, where yesterday he attended the funeral of President Harding. He motored directly from his special train to his temporary executive offices at the Willard Hotel.

The Presidents' return to his desk was regarded as marking the actual beginning of his task of formulating the policies which are to govern his conduct in office. During the interim since he took the oath of office a week ago, he has been almost constantly engaged with the funeral ceremonies of his predecessor, and he made it a rule to take no decisive action on any public question until the last obsequies were over.

EDMONTON MAN TO GET TEACHERS PRESIDENCY

MONTREAL, Aug. 11. —(Canadian Press.)—H. C. ## BRITISH SOLDIERS PREPARE TO LEAVE TURKISH TERRITORY

Genuine Regret Among Christian Races When General Harrington and Soldiers Bid Farewell.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 9. — (Associated Press).—With the coming of peace at Lausanne, preparations are being made by the British army to evacuate the territory which they have held since the armistice. There will be genuine regret among all the Christian races here, and no little sorrow among the educated class of Turks, when General Harrington and his 12,000 soldiers bid farewell to the Golden Horn. For whatever uncasiness their presence gave to the new regime at Angora, their occupation of the capital and Straits has been a power for good.

Indeed, with the small French and Italian garrisons and the Yankee bluejackets from the American destroyers in the Bosphorus, the British soldiers have been the main source of security and order throughout the large area menaced by the Turks. Time and time again at Chanak, in Gallipoli, at Constantinople and in Thrace, their patience has been tried by the Turk, but they have kept their rifles muzzled, their bayonets reversed and their tempers in leash.

General Sir Charrles Harrington, the patient and tactful commander-in-chief of the Allied forces here, has addressed a typical message of commendation and of caution to his officers and men. In it General Harrington, who is beloved of all ranks for his human qualities and his constant solicitude for his men, says:

"It must be realized that it is only human to expect that our departure will be heralded with a certain amount of satisfaction by the Turks. I look to all ranks to conduct themselves during this period with dignity and restraint, and to do all in their power to avoid incidents, so that the evacuation may be carried out in accordance with the high standard which exists throughout the force, and so that they may leave behind them a memory and respect for British forces which will be long-lived in Turkey and in the history of the British army.

"All have a difficult task to perform. The patience and restraint which have been exercised by the troops are beyond all praise, and worthy of the best traditions. The closing weeks may be difficult ones, and for this reason I ask all ranks to help me in completing the task with the dignity and high sense of duty which has so characterized the forces I have been so proud to have under my command."

The evacuation will be completed six weeks after the ratification of the peace treaty. General Harrington has asked his government for instructions regarding the status of the army of occupation during the period subsequent to the ratification until evacuation. He suggests the provision that no Turkish forces shall be allowed to come to Constantinople, and that no triumphal entries shall take place until the last of the troops have gone, in order to avoid the danger of incidents during the delicate period.

SCORES INJURED WHEN RIOTERS ATTACK POLICE

Constables in Berlin Forced to Use Their Bayonets on Mob of Disorderly Communists

RAID ON GATTLE

BERLIN, Aug. 14. — (Canadian Press.)—Police reported more than a score of wounded when a mob in the Hermanns Platz here this morning stormd a detachment of police, who finally were forced to use their weapons. In the Berliners Strasse, demonstrators attacked the police, who routed the mob after one man had fired at a policeman. Minor riots were reported in the suburb of Schoeneburg and other districts, in which some people were wounded, but none killed.

Traffic in the city was resumed early this morning, although strikers tried to confiscate coal deliveries and halt street cars. Generally speaking, however, the situation seemed easier at noon, despite the morning and overnight outbreaks, which apparently were the result of methodical action by the young Communists. Police headquarters informed the United Press at noon that the tension was slackening, although heavy police reinforcements were kept ready at all barracks in the workmen's districts, with orders to be prepared for any eventuality.

A general view of the nation-wide situation as meagre reports from the provinces began coming in early this afternoon, indicated the Communist plan for a general strike on the first day of the regime of the new Cabinet of Chancellor Stresemann would be only partly successful, the Neu Berliner Tageblatt headlined "General Strike Collapsed," and all reports indicated the disorders had not reached the limits the Red leaders had expected, although authorities admitted conditions were grave.

Leipsig despatches said the demonstrators marched in farming districts, confiscating every third pig in all herds encountered and one cow from each large herd, the animals were slaughtered and taken to the city, where the meat was sold at 50,000 marks a pound, or about a cent.

Farmers were reimbursed at this price.

PREMIER PLANNING TO MAKE A REPLY

PARIS, Aug. 14. — (Canadian Press)—Premier Poincare, who will return to Paris tonight has informed his collaborators at Foreign Office that he intends "in the most courteous manner possible, to reply point by point to the note of Lord Curzon, British Secretary for Foreign Affairs on the reparation question." Although reply will be courteous, it is asserted in Foreign Office circles that it will be a stout reaffirmation of French viewpoint and flat rejection of British suggestions.

WEDDING BELLS

BROOKS—SWENSON.

At nine o'clock on Saturday morning, 11th August, at the Church of the Sacred Heart, the marriage was solemnized by Rev. Father Collins, of St. Peter's Cathedral, of Mrs. Olivine Swenson, of Montreal, and Mr. H. T. Brooks, of this city. Mr. and Mrs. Brooks will reside in Peterborough.

POWELL—ELLIOTT.

On Saturday, August 11th, at 271 McGill street, the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Elliott, a quiet wedding took place, when their daughter, Florence O.A.M., was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Morley V. Powell, B.A.Sc., son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Powell, 588 George street.

Rev. J. D. Richardson officiated, and Miss May Ritchie sang very sweetly "Until," during the signing of the register. The young people were unattended.

After a short motor trip to Niagara Falls, Mr. and Mrs. Powell will reside in Peterborough.

HUNTER STREET BRIDGE CLOSED

Hunter street bridge is closed to traffic during paving operations, and will remain closed for at least two weeks, Roy H. Parsons, City Engineer, stated today. Smith street bridge and the locks bridge are the nearest points at which to cross the river.

TWENTY-THREE WERE LOST IN CAR ACCIDENT

Motor Bus Plunged Over Precipice in Effort to Avoid Hitting a Woman.

OTHERS WILL DIE

TARBES, France. Aug. 14. United Press. — Twenty three lives were given to spare one here late yesterday when a motor bus containing 30 tourists bore down a narrow mountain road upon a woman pedestrian. The momentum of the heavy car was such that the driver could not have averted knocking the woman down. He swerved to avoid her, and the car plunged over and into a ravine 200 feet below, 23 of the passengers being killed. The accident occurred near St. Sauveur, where the new and famous Napoleon bridge crosses a rushing torrent.

The driver in attempting to avoid striking the woman, who was emerging from the bushes, swerved his machine sharply in the narrow road that skirts the precipice. The coach turned completely over, crashing to the bottom of the ravine.

A rescue party went to the scene of the accident and extracted the bodies. All were terribly mutilated, and it was impossible to identify them. The remaining seven passengers in the coach were severely hurt and their recovery was doubtful.

GENERAL STRIKE IN BERLIN CALLED OFF

BERLIN, Aug. 14. — (Canadian Press).—The general strike in Berlin was called off by Communists this morning, all transportation lines reopening. The strike of Hamburg and Bremen pilots, which has been tying up North Sea traffic at these ports has been ended.

Street cars and underground railways were running, and traffic on the state railways was almost normal.

The police prevented attempts to hold demonstrations in various parts of Berlin.

The situation at Stettin has become worse. The Dock employees went on strike and number of shops were plundered, especially butchers and bakers.

The Communists have become very active among farm laborers. Strikes have broken out on more than fifty estates in the Soldin district, Brandenburg province.

The Communists appeal for a general strike at Leipsic failed.

Twelve persons were killed and more than eighty wounded at Aix La Chapelle last night when crowds attempted to storm police headquarters and rescue prisoners taken during the day when the police broke up a food shortage demonstration.

Anxious Day Opens.

With late reports indicating an increase in mob disturbances throughout Germany, Chancellor Stressman and government faced another anxious day this morning.

During the night came rumours that twenty persons had been killed in Hanover and fifteen in Zeitz, Saxony. Rioting was also said to be in progress in Modez, Silicia. The City of Hamburg, by proclamation of Senate is virtually under martial law as the result of a serious clash there yesterday between strikers and police. So far disturbances in Berlin have been of a minor nature, and police have been called into service only to stop plunderng or prevent Communist agitators from persuading loyal workers to leave their places of employment. However, there is noticeable dissatisfaction with food prices and shortage of staples.

Presient Ebert has sent a message to William Cuno, warmly thanking him for his services to the countrfy.

WITHDRAW TROOPS FROM STRIKE AREA

SYDNEY, N.S., Aug. 14—(Canadian Press)—Although nothing official is available, it is stated in well informed circles that the various units in the Canadian army which have been stationed here on strike duty for over six weeks will entrain for the mainland tonight.

The Provincial police force will remain on the ground. It has been partially disbanded and work of demobilization will be complete in about two weeks time, if nothing untoward occurs.

Military units still in Sydney include 22,000, a French Canadian battalion, the Royal Canadian Dragoons and detchments from other branches of the service.

RESUME NEGOTIATIONS TO AVERT HARD COAL STRIKE

Diggers, Operators and Federal Commission Will Meet Tomorrow in Hope of Reaching Agreement by Which Mines Will Not Shut Down Sept. 1st.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14. — (Canadian Press).— Members of the Federal Coal Committee today were completing plans for meeting in New York to-morrow with representatives of United States Union Miners and Operators in the anthracite field, summoned by the committee to renew negotiations in order to avert shutdown of anthracite mines on September 1.

An agreement to insure continuance of production after expiration of the present wage contract, whether or not there has been a settlement by that date, a question over which the two sides are now deadlocked, will be the first objective of the commission, it was said in its efforts at conciliation. With such an agreement obtained, commission then would be expected to continue meditation in the dispute, concentrating first on the Union's demand for installation under a new wage contract of "check of F" system of collection of Union dues. It was this demand that broke up the conference between Union representatives and Operators at Atlantic City ten days ago, before the wage increase and other demands had even been dscussed.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, has accepted the invitation of the Federal Coal Commission to confer in New York to-morrow with the Commission and Anthracite Operators to avert a strike on September 1.

Samuel D. Warriner, chairman of the general committee of Anthracite Coal Operators, to-day announced that operators have accepted the invitation of the Federal Coal Commission to attend the parley in New York with the coal miners.

PRICES OF GAS HIT TOBOGGAN UNITED STATES

Price-Cutting War Becomes Effective Today in Mid-western and Southern Districts.

16 CENTS A GALLON

CHICAGO, August 14 (Canadian Press). — Reductions in gasoline prices, begun in the United States when Governor W. H. McMaster, of South Dakota, ordered the State Highway supply depots to sell gasoline at 16 cents a gallon, assumed a national aspect to-day when price cuts announced by the Standard Oil Companies of Indiana and Kentucky and independent producers became effective in the Mid-Western and the Southern States.

Gasoline to-day is selling at 15.4 cents in Chicago, 16 1-4 cents in Omaha, 15.9 cents in Kansas City, 22 cents in Louisville, Ky., 11 cents in Dallas, Texas, and from 13 to 16 cents in other parts of Texas, with prices in other sections affected by the reductions varying.

CANADA NOT AFFECTED.

TORONTO, August 14 (Canadian Press).—Reports that gasoline prices have hit the toboggan in various parts of the United States have had no influence on prices in Canada as yet.

The wholesale prices quoted to-day by one of the largest refiners was 25 cents for the Imperial gallon, and which, it was explained, represents a drop of 12 cents whnin the past year

It was also pointed out that the Imperial gallon used as the standard of measurement in Canada was almost 20 per cent. greater than the standard used in the United States.

FIRST HARVESTERS LEAVE FOR WEST

Included In The Party There Were a Number Of Women.

TORONTO, Aug. 14.—(Special)—Ontario's first contribution toward assisting in harvesting the western crop this season left Toronto last night at mid-night via the Canadian Pacific included in the 1200 people which left Toronto were a considerable number of women, two special cars being reserved for them and their escorts.

The special Canadian Pacific train made up of 20 cars including a lunch counter, where food and refreshments could be obtained, is expected to be the first train from Ontario to reach Winnipeg, and will arrive there Tuesday night. Stops will only be made at divisional point On Monday 20 cars from various points in Ontario will pass through Toronto, while a special train will pick up cars at various points en route.

Canadian Pacific officals stated that an unusual response to the call for harvesters has been received and it is expected that extra trains will be necesary to cope with the traffic.

SERIOUS CLOUDBURSTS.

SALT LAKE CITY, Aug. 14.—(Canadian Press)—Twelve lives are believed to have been lost in Northern Utah as the result of a series of cloudbursts last night and early today. Property damage is expected to total upward of $1,000,000.

Police Department Sandwich Cut Off

WINDSOR, Aug. 14.—(Canadian Press)—Members of Sandwich town council gasped last night when they were informed that last Thursday citizens of the town had no way of communication with the police department. An inspection of lines that day revealed fact every police telephone was out of order.

NEW KING FOR DAVID'S HOUSE

Eighty-Year-Old Boy Seeks the Crown of Benjamin Purnell.

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Aug. 14.—And now Comes George Shoemaker with a "prophecy" of his own.

It's this—that he's to be the chosen one to take the place of Benjamin Purnell, "king" of the House of David.

Shoemaker—once a member of the colony and ousted 10 years ago — has been waitng these long years for the reign of Benjamin to end. In the state's investigation of Benjamin and his colony, Shoemaker sees the end.

"I shall rule,' says the 80-year-old erstwhile disciple of Benjamin. "Benjamin's blood will not be cleansed."

Shoemaker has already called upon deserters from Benjamin's camp to gather round him.

Shoemaker has been a familiar figure in Benton Harbour for 10 years. He came here 20 years ago from South Bend, Ind., joined Benjamin's block and then eventually was ejected.

But Shoemaker never renounced the Israelite faith. He still believes that he will live forever. And at 80 he looks as if he might, for he's hale and hearty.

Shoemaker says he put well patentsr nto Benjamin's hands that were worth $40,000. Since coming out of the colony he's made his living putting down wells. Time and again the old well-digger has walked over a piece of ground and said; "There's water here."

And when he put his well down he never failed to hit the right spot!

That's why some of those who have deserted Benjamin's domain think the old man is inspired and that he will eventually head the 144,000 elect of the House of David.

THE WEATHER.

The gentle showers of Sunday and to-day will have the effect of reviving vegetation, as well as the despondent spirits of some of our agriculturists. A year ago to-day was one of the warmest days of that summer, when the thermometer rose to 90 degrees. The following is a comparison of the rainfall of last year and this:

| | 1922 | 1923 |
|---|---|---|
| May | 1.80 | 2.91 |
| June | 3.29 | 4.77 |
| July | 2.48 | .76 |
| Aug. | 2.12 to date | .34 |

Sunday's shower amounted to 7-100 of an inch. The Black Knights yesday had rain insurance on their demonstration, but as no rain fell they will have no claim, but it would have required a considerably heavier shower than fell on Sunday to validate their claim of one-tenth of an inch.—W. P.

LET ENGLAND CLEAR OUT OF THE CONTINENT

Leave France and Germany to Settle Their Own Quarrels, Says the Daily Express.

GERMANY'S VIEW

LONDON, Aug 14. (Special.) — Commenting on the British note the London Daily Express declares editorially: "The note implies a tremendous departure in British policy, the definite orientation towards Germany and France. It is the old fatal doctrine of the balance of power, the support of the weaker nations against the stronger on the continent.

It simply changes the policy of being dragged at the coat tails of France for that of being bear-leader to Berlin. The Express contends that both policies are wrong and that England should clear out of Europe altogether, leaving France and Germany to settle their own quarrels.

Chancellor's Statement.

Dr. Gustav Stresmann, the new German chancellor outlined in a statement to-day in Berlin, conditions under which Germany is ready to abandon passive resistance in the Ruhr. The conditions are: Complete restoration to Germany of her right of control over the Ruhr; re-establishment of conditions in the Rhineland assuring her safety under the treaty, and liberation of every German citizen who had been outraged, evicted or imprisoned.

RAILMEN MAY ASK A WAGE INCREASE

TORONTO, Aug. 14.—(Canadian Press).—Canadian chairman of Brotherhoods of Railway Conductors and Railway Trainmen have returned from Cleveland Conference bringing news of a decision to inaugurate a wage increase movment. The proposed new schedule before the conference is slightly higher than 1920 rates, which were accepted by the men under protest. It was decided to pool the views of the men before inaugurateing the movement on any particular system in Canada or United States. A vote will be taken at once.

Thomas Todd, of Hamilton, one of Railway Conductors, was elegted to the Executive, who will have the wage movement under their direction.

NEW SYSTEM CONTROL IN HANDLING PARADES

An innovation in traffic control during parades was instituted in Peterboro yesterday. Acting on the suggestion of Jack Spence and Ernest Reid, members of the Royal Black Knights, the police cleared the automobile, from the west side of George street, asking them to park on the east side. This left a clear path for the parade close to the sidewalk on the west side, and prevented obstruction to the street cars. It is thought by Inspector Reid that this plan will be followed in dealing with future parades.

CANADIAN ENGAGED TO EARL OF HADDINGTON

MONTREAL, Aug. 14.—(Unitde Press)—Mr. and Mrs George W. Cook of Westmount, Montreal, announce the engagement of their second daughter, Sarah, to the Earl of Haddington. The elder daughter two years ago married the Earl of Minto.

REPORTS QUALITY MILK SOLD IN PETERBOROUGH AS GIVING SATISFACTION

But Hereafter Sanitary Inspector Will Collect Samples for Testing at Laboratory Without Giving Previous Notice of His Intention to Do So.

HEALTH BOARD MET

Frank Rathbone, owning property at 163 Antrim street, appeared before the Board of Health this morning with a plea that he could not afford to fit his rented house with sewer connection as ordered. The cost would be $440, he said, and his house is assessed at only $850. He suggested using tile instead of cast iron as an economy measure, and this was permitted if the piping is not laid nearer than eight feet from a foundation. Mr. Rathbone agreed to do the work if the city council will supply the materials on the five year repayment plan.

Compel Installation.

Mr. Mason broached the subject of compelling everyone to install sewer connections. It is useless to recommend the installation if no action is taken to enforce the recommendations, he said. The duty of the Medical Health Officer is to see that by-laws are enforced, Mr. Mason said.

Dr. Young claimed that his duty ended when he advised the Board of Health that a house was placarded as unfit for habitation. It is the duty of the Board to notify the City Solicitor, who is also Solicitor for the Board. He should prosecute the offender.

Mr. Lynch agreed with Mr. Mason and Dr. Young said that he would not act as prosecuting ohicer for the Board without a fiat from the Board.

A house owned by T. E. Bradburn placarded some time ago, was discussed. The notice was ignored, it was stated by Mr. Mason. "It is not right to force men like Mr. Rathbone to carry out the rules of the Board while others refuse to recognize the Board" he said.

It was resolved on motion of Mr. Lynch and Mr. Mason that the City Solicitor be instructed to prosecute on instructions from the Medical Health Officer.

Solicitor Kept Money.

One of the scavengers licensed to clean outdoor closets complained that people will not pay him. Some owe him as much as $10. He took his cases to the City Solicitor who wrote some of the debtors. Only one paid the complainant said and the solicitor kept the money for his own charges.

Dr. Young suggested adding charges for this work to the tax bill.

Mr. Lynch said the Board of Health would not be a collecting agency and recommended the complainant to meet the City Council with his request.

Queen Mary Hospital.

There was one patient in the hospital on July 1st and two on Aug. 1. These are cases of spinal meningitis and erysipelas.

An application for sewer connection in Rye's pavilion was received. Mr. Rye was informed that the Board has no jurisdiction and he was advised to communicate with the City Council.

Dr. Young said the provincial authorities are examining the conditions in the Little Lake where factories empty sewage into the lake. If this is not stopped the provincial health officers will forbid the cutting of ice there he said.

A Petition.

A petition signed by 16 citizens requested that installation of sanitary conveniences be compelled in several homes on Lansdowne street, and Prince street, between George street and Aylmer street, the out-

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

The remarkable story of the Adventures of Nancy and Nick in Pee Wee Land will start in The Examiner to-morrow.

There has been such a mix-up in that tiny country that the Fairy Queen just had to send these famous, adventurous Twins to see if they couldn't patch up King Spookum's difficulties.

The Pee Wees are tiny mites, and this land is so small you could not see it unless you used a microscope.

But that doesn't bother the Twins, for they have put on their magic shoes and just by wishing, they can become as small as the peewiest Pee Wee, and go wherever they please.

You will enjoy their adventures in Pee Wee Land. Start right in with them from the time they leave the Fairy Queen to-day to when they report back, their mission done.

The Adventures Start To-morrow, 15th August.

Honor the Memory of Worthy Citizen, Unveiling Tonight

Th, ceremony of unveiling a memorial tablet to the memory of the late F. R. Yokome will take place this evening at 8 o'clock.

The tablet has been erected by citizens entirely without regard to political or religious affiliations and that is placed in St. Johns as the church attended by Mr. Yokome. The great number absent and the holiday spirit is a difficulty, but on this account others will make the greater effort to give the influence of their presence and to show the appreciation generaly manifested by Peterboro people for good citizenship.

The interest already shown would seem to indicate that the gathering on so unique occasion will embrace men and women of all walks of life as helpers in a common cause.

COMPANIES IN RADIO MERGER

New Agreement Will Facilitate the Use of Radio Patents.

MONTREAL, Aug. 14. — Announcement was made to-day of an agreement recently entered into by the Canadian General Electric Company the Northern Electric Company, the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company, The Canadian Westinghouse, the Bell Telephone Company of Canada, and the International Western Electric Company, covering the use by all of them for radio purposes, of the respective patents of each concern. Under the terms of the agreement each of the companies agrees to the use of its patents by the others within the natural field of such other company. The Marconi Company will have the use of all the patents for wireless telegraph purposes, the Bell Telephone Company for the purposes of manufacture and sale. The latter companies will continue in active competition with each other, as heretofore. This is somewhat similar to an arrangement made in the United States at the suggestion of the United States Federal Government to promote the development of the art in the interest of the general public.

PRESS COMMENT ON THE BRITISH NOTE

ROME, Aug. 14.—(United Press)—The semi official Volta declares that the British note on reparations is a complete and limpid exposition of the whole question of reparations and inter allied debts, it shows the determination of the British Government to throw inthe weight of its own political influence and financial position to an extent never before seen in history, the agency statement declares, the "Epoca' discussing the note say that Poincare's answering speech is "replete with sophistry." The Italian Press generally united in support of the British stand although some papers stress the belief that Italy should stand apart from the situation guarding her own interests.

THE EXCHANGES OPENED WITH MUCH UN[illegible]Y

LONDON, Aug. 14. — (United Press)—Foreign exchanges opened with uncertain quotations in the money market here today. French francs reached a new low record at 18.25 while the Belgian franc dropper to 10.65. German marks wobbled between 12,000,000 and 17,000,000 to the pound.

IRONING HINTS.

Starched articles require a hotter iron to make them smooth than unstarched ones. Hence it is well to begin the ironing with the coarser things until the heat becomes even and the iron smooth.

NOTICE.

UNTIL FURTHER NOTICE THE HUNTER STREET BRIDGE WILL BE CLOSED TO VEHICLES ON ACCOUNT OF PAVING WORK. BY ORDER.

EXTOLLS WORK BY MR. MOWAT AT BOYS' CAMP

Two Weeks Longer and the Little Folks Would Not Be Recognized by Parents.

ROTARY LUNCHEON

The history of electric lightning in Peterboro was the interesting subject handled by H. O. Fisk at today's Rotary luncheon.

Early in 1884 negotiations between the Dickson Estate and the Royal Electric Company of Montreal resulted in the introduction of the arc light in Peterboro.

By 1886 about 100 arc lamps had been installed in the stores, public buildings and on the streets. Later, the incandescent lamps replaced the arc lamps in popular favor for interior work, and the first house wired was that of William Walsh.

Mr. Fisk said the next work, before the Utilities Commission will be the street lightning system. This was dicussed by Mr. Fisk in an extended report, which will appear in a later issue.

The Rotary Camp.

Outlining the work of the Rotary Camp at Clear Lake, the chairman extolled the excellent work done by A. H. Mowat, Toronto, in training the boys. "If they had two weeks longer under Mr. Mowat," he said, "the boys would not have been recognized by their own parents."

George Gillespie and his coworkers were given their share of praise for the way in which they handled the supplies for the camp. So well were these apportioned that only a roast of beef was left unused.

George McDonald was in charge of the committee to gather the boys for the camp.

Transporting of supplies to the camp was done without charge by Capt. Young of the Stoney Lake Navigaton Company. The Stock Bread Company transported the supplies from Peterboro to Lakefield where they were taken over by the boat.

Three Deserters.

Three boys were found intractable in the camp walked a way after a few days. On the way they passed a school house and stopped long enough to break windows and deface the interior of the school. They were caught and brought before the Chief of Police. One of the boys is already under the care of a Rotarian and the other two were handed over to Rotarians Fred Hungerford and Jerry McLellan.

Chief Newhall said that since the Rotary Club had taken up the boys work, juvenile crime in Peterboro had been cut down 50 per cent.

Visitors.

Visitors at the luncheon today were George Cairns and Gordon Smith of Toronto; Frank Sandy of Lindsay; G. R. Fairhead, Toronto; W. W. Anderson, Regina Reed Wren acted as chairman and John Crane officiated at the piano.

W. R. Morris urged Rotarians to attend the memorial service in St. Johns Church tonight on the occasion of the unveiling of a tablet to the late F. R Yokome, who did muh as editor of the Examiner to bring prosperity to Peterboro.

The Capitol Theatre had a holiday programe which would be hard to beat. Along with the big Griffith production, "The Fall of Babylon," was one of the "Leather Pushers" pictures ,a Harold Lloyd comedy, and a quartette of male singers, the Aeolian Male Quartette, direct from two weeks' engagement at the Toronto Hippodrome.

"The Fall of Babylon" is one of those Griffith productions which are spectacular and satisfying. The massive character of the attempt seems to swell beyond the limits of the narrow screen, giving an impression of overpowering length and breadth.

Based on the story of "Intolerance," with some changes and additions, the tale centres about the figure of Belshazzar, his Princess Beloved, and the Mountain Girl, in love with her king. All scenes of indescribable splendor and magnificence, the action moves on to a final, inevitable end. In the midst of Babylon's last bacchanal, a voluptuous orgy of feasting and pleasure, the conqueror enters through the mighty gates, opened by a traitorous hand. The priest of Bel, jealous of the dethronement of his idol in favor the new Goddess Ishtar, plays the villain's part. Conspiring with Cyrus, the Persian conqueror, he betrays Belshazzar and causes the fall of the city.

The mass of detailed investigation required for a production of this sort can better be imagined than described. There is something wonderful in the art of a producer who can give his audiences such a picture of the daily life and struggles of a people who lived five hundred years before Christ. No hint of modern custom, save, perhaps, in the bobbed head of the heroine played by Constance Talmadge, is evident throughout a wonderful picture. The scene that depicts the siege of the city by the armed hosts of Cyrus, assailing the mighty walls with huge moving powers, while the defenders use bows and arrows, flaming oil and catapults to drive them off, is spectacular in the extreme. The panoramic view of Belshazzar's mighty hall, unrolling its mile-long length of tiled magnificence, is a triumph of the art of the silver sheet. There is a touch of irony in the incident showing Belshazzar's father, the pious, aged monarch, unearthing with pleasure the ancient bricks of buildings buried three thousand years before, and there is also a parallel with modern customs drawn by the sub-titles in many, pointing out the similarity of manners in that forgotten age. Women painted with kohl and henna, walking in the fashion of the movie idols of to-day the jealous intrigues, the woes and fears and loves of a bygone civilization, have their mirror in modern life.

The "Leather Pushers" picture shows the Kid trying to escape from the serving of divorce papers, started by his wife ,Dolores. He disguises himself as a poet, and with his manager playing the part of a bug collector, goes to a summer resort. His adventures with a love-lorn damsel here and his fight with a jealous rival, make a good comedy out of his latest ring adventure.

Harold Lloyd is the moving spirit in a farcial affair, "His Only Father," a burlesque which causes one to wonder occasionally just what it is all about. The millionaire father is introduced in the act of burning up a pearl necklace, and some loose hundred dollar bills; his son bestows a stray million, wrapped up in a chocolate box, on the blind beggar at the street corner, and then departs for a southern saloon ,where he salvages a girl and falls into a gold mine.

The Aeolian Male Quartette is composed of four good singers, whose voices blend beautifully in their varied selections of part songs and close harmony singing. They sing in the English manner, with a certain amount of restraint and a careful attention to effect, that gives a satisfying atmosphere of finish to their work. Bursts of hearty applause greeted every number in a group, which included "Sally in our Alley," a lovely rendition, with a huming refrain, of "Mighty Lak a Rose," a "Jack and Jill" song, and two merry bits about three jolly musketeers and the fair sex.

NO TENDERNESS IS FELT FOR GERMANY

British Believe That France will Wreck Economic Conditions Of The Whole World If Inclined.

LONDON, Aug. 14. Canadian Press. — What is claimed to be "an authoritative and direct footnote on British foreign policy," was made public last evening by the Central News.

"There is no tenderness in the British Empire for Germany," declares the statement, "but the Government believes that if France is out to maintain an indefinite strangle-hold on Germany, the complete overthrow of the economic situation of Europe, if not of the whole world is certain."

"Although there is more than suspicion that the French policy is directed to the isolation of Great Britain is Europe, the British government are seeking not isolation but the cooperation of France. If that fails, obviously Great Britain will try a hand at the isolation game."

"Great Braitais may then try to win over Italy, to detach Belgium from her support of France in the Ruhr, and to bring into line with her Holland, Switzerland, Sweden and Norway, with are suffering equally with or more than Great Britain from the effects of the French policy.

"Apart from the immediate aims of the Government in Europe, the dominating note of their policy is ultimate cooperation between Great Britain and the United States for world settlement. No immediate or sensational response from the United States will be expected, but Premier Baldwin believes Europe cannot be saved unless the people of the United States join the British in saving them."

FIRE THREATED APSLEY VILLAGE

Strenuous Work by Residents of District checked Flames in Bush.

APSLEY, Aug. 14.—For ten days and nights every available man in the village and district has been strenuously contending with the bush fire, which at one time it was feared threatened to wipe out the village itself. On Thursday a second fire broke out and help was so scarce that the women and visitors went out and fought with success this second danger. On Saturday evening another S.O.S. call came in to battle with another big fire reported from Harvey township, and Reeve Brown was busy recruiting the few remaining men to go to Trout Lake and Cadge Lake Portages to fight it at these points. The continued dry weather and high westerly winds are against the fire fighters who are becoming exhausted and the situation is hourly becoming more grave. Many settlers have lost all their hay marshes, but so far no homesteads have been burnt.

Inspiring Address.

The Venerable Archdeacon Davidson visited Apsley on Saturday, and on Sunday preached at three of the Anglican churches in the Mission. Large congregations assembled at each church to welcome him, and his inspiring addresses were deeply appreciated. Mr. E. G. Spence kindly conveyed him by motor to the different centres. While in Apsley the Archdeacon was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Downey.

(Aids to Beauty)

Here is a home treatment for removing hairs that is quick, painless and inexpensive: With some powdered delatone and water make enough paste to thickly cover the objectionable hairs, apply and after 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and it will be left soft, clear and hairless. This treatment will not mar the skin, but to avoid disappointment, be careful to get real delatone. Mix fresh as wanted.

GREASE STAIN.

If grease or oil has been spilled on the matting, make a thing paste with fuller's earth and cold water and spread thickly on the spot. When it dries lay a paper over it and let it stand two or three days. Then brush off the earth and the stain will have disappeared.

COOL WEATHER HAS RETARDED RUST IN WHEAT

Cutting Will Be General in Manitoba Before The Week Is Out. Saskatchewan Is Backward.

UP TO AVERAGE.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 14.—(Canadian Press.) — Except in the sections where rust and saw-fly have wrought havoc crops throughout the west continue to exhibit satisfactory promise. The weather has been favorable, perhaps a little too cool for the rapid maturing of grain, but decidedly helpful in retarding rust, says the weekly crop report of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Labor is now arriving in goodly numbers and is being quickly absorbed, there being a strong demand from Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Before the end of this week binders should be busy in all sections of Manitoba. Weather in this province the first part of the week was cool with local showers on the whole favorable especially in places where rust is working. All crops show a heavy stand but in many districts the tips of heads of wheat have not filled as expected; this is due, in large measure to the effects of heat and other activities of the saw-fly and the yield will suffer on this account. It is certain that both yield and grade have been reduced over large tracts of the province. Coarse grains have escaped extensive injury and promise very fair yields.

In Saskatchewan there has not been the best of ripening weather, but crops are going ahead rapidly and although there has been little cutting, this operation will, with favorable weather, be well under way in one week. If favorable conditions continue to prevail until harvest this province promises an average, or better, crop.

"Rapidly approaching maturity," is the general report from Alberta. The crop as a whole is as far advanced as the average year, the standing is uniformly good and present. indications point to satisfactory yields in all sections of the province. Harvesting will be general in a few days.

On the Edmonton, Dunvegan and British Columbia Railway lines the weather during the past week has been warm and clear and entirely favorable for the maturing of grain. Early wheat is now being harvested and cutting generally should start before the end of the present week. Oat cutting has also commenced at a few points.

Weather generally throughout British Columbia has been moderately warm and dry and all varieties of tree fruits are sizing up well, while vegetables and grain crops are in excellent shape. Tomatoes in semi-ripe condition are moving heavily from Okanagan points. Early apples, plums, peaches and apricots are also being marketed.

BRITISH YACHTS WON FROM THE U. S. ENTRIES

British Boats Have a Lead Which The U. S. Craft Cannot Possibly Overcome.

COWES, Isle of Wight, August 14 (Canadian Press). — Great Britain is going to have nothing to worry about when the last two heats in the British-American Cup race for 6-meter yachts are sailed at Ryde this week, for the British yachts annexed the prize yesterday by defeating the United States boats, 24 points to 12, in the fourth heat.

Yesterday's scores added to those of the previous heats gave the British a total of 96 points, to 48 for the Americans, and it would be impossible for the yachts from overseas to obtain enough points in the final races to put them in the lead.

Coila III., owned by J. J. Stephens, won yesterday's heat, while another British-owned yacht, the Reg., finished second.

The United States yacht Lea was third.

Greta Britain took fourth and fifth places with the Capelle and Suzette respectively.

Great Britain now has won the cup twice, while the United States has captured it once.

The British boats this year have been able to make the most out of the frequently unfavourable conditions, with the result that they had first and second places in all four heats.

GERMAN CABINET HAS BEEN CHOSEN

Dr. Gustave Stressman Takes Up The Burden Of The Chancellorship. —Other Members.

BERLIN, Aug. 14. — (Canadian Press.)—The new German Cabinet is constituted as follows:

Chancellor— Dr. Gustave Stresemann.

Minister of Foreign Affairs—Herr von Bergen.

Minister of the Interior — Herr Sollman, Socialist.

Minister for Occupied Areas — Herr Fuchs, Clerical.

Minister of Finance—Herr Hilferding, Socialist.

Minister of Economics—Hans von Raumer, People's Party.

Minister of Reconstruction and Vice-Chancellor—Herr Schmidt, Socialist.

Minister of Labor—Herr Brauns, Clerical.

Minister of Justice— Herr Radbruch, Socialist.

Minister of Railways—Herr Oeser, Democrat.

Minister of Posts and Telegraphs —Herr Giesberts, Clerical.

Minister of Defence—Dr. Gessler, Democrat.

Food Controller—Dr. Hans Luther, Democrat.

Diego von Bergen is Ambassador to the Vatican. His consent to accept the portfolio of Foreign Affairs, has not yet been obtained by Dr. Stressmann, although it is said he is mostly likely to do so.

Wilhelm Sollmann is well known as a Socialist leader in the Rhineland. He is a sturdy opponent of the separatist movement.

Herr Fuchs has been provisional president of the Rhineland and Herr von Raumer is closely identified with industrialist activities. He held the post of Minister of Finance in the Fehrenbach Cabinet in 1920.

Dr. Otto Gessler, Rudolph Oeser, Dr. Luther and Herr Brauns are holdovers from the Cuno Cabinet, while Herr Radbruch, Herr Giesberts and Herr Schmidt were members of the Wirth Cabinet.

Trent River Personals.

TRENT RIVER, Aug. 14.—Mr. Ira Ivey of Kingston is visiting with Mrs. Ivey and daughter at Mrs. John Watter's (Mrs. Ivey's Mother).

Mrs. T. J. Horkins and family of Campbellford are holidaying at their summer home.

Mrs. Davis, Sr., and daughter, Mrs. Robertshaw (nee Dorothy Davis), with Mr. Robertshaw and baby, of Toronto are guests of Mr. Fred. Scott.

Mrs. Will. Christie of Toronto is holidaying at the Christie cottage.

The death took place in Toronto on Tuesday, August 7, at his residence, 65 Metcalf street, of Mr. Thomas Gain, husband of Adelaide Victoria Sleeth, in his 73rd year. Funeral was held on Thursday, 9th, to St. James' Cemetery. The late Mr. Gain was a yearly visitor at the Christie cottage a few seasons ago. Mr. Fred. Gain is a son. Mrs. Fred. Gain left for Toronto to attend the funeral.

Miss Eleanor Ferris of Campbellvisiting her friend, Miss Irene Davidson, at "Sunnyside."

C.P.R. DIVIDEND DECLARED.

MONTREAL, Aug. 14.— (Canadian Press.)—At a meeting of the board of directors of the Canadian Pacific Railway held yesterday afternoon the following dividends were declared:

On preference stock 2 per cent. for the half year ended June 30 last; on the common stock, 2 1-2 per cent. for the quarter ended June 30 last; from railway revenues and specials income.

Both dividends are payable on October 1, to stockholders of record at 3 p.m. Aug. 31.

Belgians Do Not Approve of Note

BRUSSELS, Aug. 14.—(Canadian Press.) — The British reparations note has created a rather unfavorable impression in Belgian official circles particularly because the legality of the Ruhr occupation is contested. Great Britain's agreement to accept the amount of her debt to the United States as her total payment for reparations and inter-allied debts, however, is regarded as a possible basis of discussion.

However, Premier Theunis, and Foreign Minister Jaspar, although on vacation, have received the note and are studying it.

FIRES ASSUMING SERIOUS ASPECT

In Burleigh It Is Feared Two Farms Have Been Burned Out.

LAKEFIELD, Aug. 14. — Ever spreading forest fires throughout the whole district north of Peterborough are assuming a very serious aspect. Two bad fires are reported in Burleigh and it is feared that the farms of W. Dunsford and W. G. Stone have been burned out. Another fire north of the Dunsford farm is said to be threatening the limits of the Peterborough Lumber Company and one hundred men are engaged in fighting the conflagration. Four farms have already been burned out in the vicinity of Apsley and the course of the flames has not been checked. Other fires are reported at Lake Koshkabogamog and Turtle Lake, several summer cottages being reported burned at the latter place.

A call was received at Juniper Island yesterday for volunteers to fight a fire which has broken out about two miles south of the Peterborough Rotary Club's boys' camp.

A pall of smoke from the various conflagrations hangs over the whole Lake country and fears are expressed that some of the summer cottages may fall victims to the flames. The portage between Long Lake and Cedar Lake has so far proved a barrier across the path of a fire in that district, but if the fire crosses here the whole north shore of Stoney Lake will be seriously menaced. Still another fire is reported in Centre Dummer.

Only a heavy downpour of rain can relieve the situation which is rapidly becoming extremely serious. Rain last week would have not only quenched the incipient fires already burning, but would have prevented many of the fires which have started in the last couple of days. The brief though heavy fall of rain which visited Peterborough and Lakefield on Sunday did not go near the fire area, instead the heavy wind which accompanied the rain swept through the whole district spreading several of the fires to alarming proportions. The fires in Burleigh were carried over a mile and a half in one night.

Another Liquor Still For License Officers.

A still in full working order and a quanity of mash seized at 187 Louis street on Friday last by License Inspector Joseph Stewart and Excise Officer W. H. Buller. The still was removed to the Customs House.

The seizure was made at 4 p.m., and the owner of the apparatus, who was employed at a local factory, made good his escape. He left his family of six children, one of whom is only one month old, and the officers confidently expect to bring him before the magistrate this week. The still was set up in the back kitchen of the house.

ERNEST J. LEMAIR CLERK OF COUNCIL

Former Secretary of Sir. Wilfred Laurier is Appointed Clerk of The Privy Council.

OTTAWA, August 14. Canadian Press. — Ernest J. Lemair, Superintendent of Supply and Equipment in the Post Office Dept., and at one time secretary to Sir Wilfrid Laurier, has been apointed Clerk of the Privy Council, in succession to the late Rodolphe Boudreau, it was announced last night.

Mr. Lemaire entered the service of the Government on Aug. 1, 1894, when he was attached to the staff of the Privy Council; in 1904 he was employed in the office of the Prime Minister in a secretarial capacity, and in 1907 was appointed private secretary to Sir Wilfrid Laurier, a position he continued to hold until the Government changed in 1911 when he was attached to the Post Office Department.

In conection with Mr. Lemaire's appointment it is noted by government officials that the post of clerk of the Privy Council would have been open to him in natural process of seniority had he remained in the department which he quitted in 1911.

BLACK KNIGHTS CHURCH PARADE

Orangemen Should Hold Vision Of Their Forefathers, Visiting Clergyman Declares.

"It is not enough for us to be able to wear the ensigna; it is not enough for us to boast that our forefathers shed their blood in the cause," Rev. Thomas Marks of Cochrane, told the Royal Black Knights of Peterboro, in the Murray Street Baptist church on Sunday night. The occasion was the annual celebration of the relief of Londonderry, and upwards of 100 members of the Order paraded from their hall on George street, to the crowded church.

"You need to be obsessed with the idea of this great fact," the speaker said, "that the day is coming when all men shall be free and no man shall dare to dictate to us how we shall worship God."

The reverend speaker based his remarks on "The power of a vision.' Napoleon, he said, was spurred on by a vision that one day he would rule the world. The miser has a vision of gold—"it is one thing to live in a golden age, and another to live in an age of gold." "There are two things in this world which are trying to give us visions, the spirit of God and the spirit of the devil. One will give us a vision of the beautiful and the other will give us a vision of hell."

Vision of Freedom.

William Wilberforce had a vision of all men free, and despite his weakness he was the means of wiping out slavery from England. Rev. George Walker had a great vision when he preached the Gospel to the besieged in Londonderry, and bade them hold on, for there could be "no surrender." "That vision carried Walker through the memorable siege. That wonderful man and those wonderful men and women who stood the terrible siege had not a vision of themselves. Their thought was that Derry must not surrender. The relief of Derry paved the way toward the victory of the Boyne and helped toward placing William of Orange on the throne."

"We have lost the vision our forefathers had," the speaker declared. "To-day we must be tolerant. We consider ourselves to be free. Do you know that the northern part of our fair province is going very quickly into the hands of the Roman Catholics, and not only that, but French Roman Catholics? The whole of the north country has been taken hold of, and the Protestants are all being bought out. You can go into township after township and find only French Roman Catholics. We have lost our vision when we will allow such things to go on. We should see to it that this Province should remain Protestant. Every Protestant should become imbued with the ideal that every man should worship God according to the dictates of his own heart. Today and to-morrow as you celebrate the anniversary of this wonderful relief may God grant that you shall not only celebrate, but that the vision and power that those people had may be imparted to you."

Miss Trucie Pearson was in excellent voice, and her solo, "The Lord is my Light," was very appropriate.

Ingersol Girl Was Injured In Accident.

INGERSOLL, Ont., August 14.—Canadian Press. — Margaret Mattson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mattson, of King street wase, was rushed to the Alexander Hospital yesterday afternoon suffering from a fractured skull and internal injuries as a result of being struck by a truck chassis driven by Gordon Walsh of Lambeth. Walsh is being held by the police pending the immediate turn in the girl's condition.

GRAIN GROWERS IN U.S. PLAN TO KEEP PRICE UP

Would Form Gigantic Pool and Hold Wheat in Any Quantity for a Basic Price of $1.50 a Bushel.

BANKS INSECURE.

SPOKANE, Washington, August 14. Canadian Press. — A resolution calling on Congress for passage of legislation providing for the organization of a government wheat purchasing corporation with $500,000,000 capital stock, of which $50,000,000 wuld be paid in, was approved yesterday by the Resolutions Committee for presentation to a conference of wheat growers of the Pacific Northwestern States, in session here.

With the money thus provided the resolution recommends the Government would purchase wheat in any quantity and at any time for basic price of $1.50 a bushel, with sufficient variation to provide for carrying charges and to control distribution.

Unity of action by the wheat growers of the United States in support of a definite plan of congressional relief was urged by U. S. Senator William E. Borah.

Opening of the foreign markets will prove the eventual solution of the wheat price problem, Senator Borah declared, adding that there is no over-production of wheat but that all the present crop would be taken if it could be delivered to the countries which want it.

John Q. Adams, president of the Farmers' Union of Washington and Northern Idaho, who called the conference, declared that the Federal Farm Loan Banks lending money on Farm products, are doing busiess on an insecure foundation, because of the present situation as regards farm markets.

Dean Johnson of the Department of Agriculture in Washington State College, said the average cost of producing a bushel of wheat this season was $1.44.

SEVERAL KILLED IN GERMAN RIOTS

Food Shortage Cause Of Demonstration Which Ended in Clashes With The Police.

BERLIN, Aug. 14. — (Canadian Press.)—Chaotic conditions still prevail in various sections of Germany owing to the situation created by the shortage of food and the general spirit of unrest.

Additional disorders were reported from various town yeserday, with further casualties growing out of fighting between townspeople and the police.

At Aix La Chapelle four men were killed and forty wounded by the police in a potato shortage demonstration, while at Grefeld several men were wounded in a Republic manifestation. There also were disturbances at Gelsenkirchen and Rheinhausen. At Hamburg striking shipyard workers in a clash with the police lost several men killed and many wounded. At Lubeck, Communists compelled the Senate to adjourn.

In Berlin the strike of the transportation workers is causing the authorities much trouble. The activities of the strikers yesterday necessitated the Government ordering many of them under arrest.

SHOULD PRACTICE FIRE PREVENTION

Too Many Blazes Are Due To Negligence in Peterboro County.

LAKEFIELD, Aug. 14.—Forest fires are raging in many parts of our own county. For more than thirty miles the terrible crimson glow of the fire at Apsley can be seen and should be a warning to careless people to put out fires before leaving them; or, better still, not to light a fire unless under the most favorable conditions, and then watch it with the great vigilance. Many fires which are menacing the homes of our own people in Peterborough County are the result of someone's negligence, which is literally criminal.

In Lakefield, within the past few days, there have been several grass fires, which, checked in time, did no damage because they were seen instantly and measures were taken to stamp them out; but if no one had seen them where would the end have been? One dreads to think of it. A carelessly dropped match started a blaze on Tuesday and on the three successive days the same thing occurred in different parts of the village. Fire prevention should be taught and practiced in every home and community in Canada, and soon the results would be a decrease in our fire statistics, which are the highest of any country in the world at the present time.

COARSE FISH WERE MENACE TO OTHERS

Suckers Removed From Lake Winnipegegosis.—Adult Fish Used To Stock Lakes and River.

OTTAWA, Aug. 14.— (Canadian Press.)—Considerable attention has been paid by the Department of Fisheries, this year, to the removal of suckers and other coarse fish from lakes where their rapid propagation has menaced the existence of white fish and other commercial species it has been announced by officials in charge of this feature of departmental work.

Over 42,000 suckers were removed from Lake Winnipegosis and destroyed while 281 adult fish and 5,530,000 eggs were planted in other western lakes the character of which precluded stocking with the finer varieties. More than 550 catfish have been transferred from Selkirk, Manitoba to Prince Albert, Sask., for the Saskatchewan river and 400 to Quill Lake, Sask.

From the lakes near Fort Qu'Appelle, 180 yellow perch have been placed in Wascana Lake, 150 in Round Lake and 80 in Lovering Lake. Lady Lake received 72 pike and perch and 60 were planted in the Moose Jaw river.

This method of stocking with older fish is supplementary to the regular stocking of waters with fry from the various hatcheries.

Forty Ton Yawl Had Tempestuous Voyage.

HALIFAX, Aug. 14.— (Canadian Press.)—The forty ton yawl Spitfire, forty years old, is in port here from Swansea after being buffeted about the Atlantic since June 25. The little craft faced head winds almost continually and was driven to the north of Newfoundland. She had a narrow escape from an ice-berg off Cape Race.

The Spitfier has a load of Scotch whiskey and cleared from the Welsh port for St. Pierre. She is commanded by Capt. Fenwick who has previously commanded large trans-Atlantic boats.

THE DEATH TOLL GROWS.

Two hundred and thirty-five lives snuffed out by automobile accidents in the Dominion of Canada during 1922—an increase of 38 over the death toll through the same agency in 1921—should cause grave concern with thinking people as to whether Governments and the nation are measuring up to their responsibilities for protecting human lives. Then, besides the appalling number of fatalities recorded for the same year, there were hundreds of major and minor casualties by which men, women and children of both sexes, suffered permanent and temporary injuries. Yet the slaying of humanity by this vehicular product of modernity grows apace month by month until one is constrained to conclude that many drivers of cars and a large proportion of the public generally are utterly thoughtless of that sanctity of human life which has characterized the Anglo-Saxon race for ages past. In such circumstances it behooves the institution and aggressive implementing of such lays and ordinances, together perhaps with highway and railroad restrictions, as will actually protect the people from themselves and reduce automobile accidents to a reasonable minimum.

Perhaps three of the principal causes of automobile fatalities and casualties are railway grade crossings, speeding and criminal recklessness. Of these the results of mishaps on grade crossings are oftentimes so ghastly as to beggar description; for when many tons of locomotive steel comes into contact with a motor car and its human freight a mangling of humanity not infrequently follows which shocks and appals. Then why not attempt the effacement of these death-traps, thus eliminating a temptation quite irresistible to some autoists to test speed with a rushing train; or take a chance, and also blotting out a menace to others who, by environment at some especially dangerous crossings, might be caught unawares? In this respect English law pretty adequately protects the public. For miles approaching the city of London some railroads are laid on concrete arches, while others run underground or through cuttings. In the country many principal highways are carried over railroads on bridges—not half a million dollar monuments like that at Hunter street, but sufficiently strong for their purpose. Then, the gate principle of protection also finds its place. Of course, Canada is a young country compared to England, but it is sufficiently adult to take advantage of the lessons the Old Land teaches in protecting railway crossings, and curb this ever-increasing toll of life recorded in the daily press with startling frequency. Nothing better offering, so far as present practicability is concerned, would it not be preferable that highway travellers were even forced to stop and open (and close under penalty) gates at the principal country crossings before and after passing over them than that their lives should be jeopardized? So far as urban crossings are concerned, surely no person will question our contention that not a single one should be without both its gate and gateman.

As to speed with the automobile, the irrepressible speed fiend is characterized by one United States judge as mentally irresponsible in that one respect. We do not care to adopt that view, but from observation we gather that, given the means for fast driving, a large majority of men are inherently prone to take advantage of it. In this connection, our Provincial traffic bylaw regulates the speed of motor vehicles to a maximum of 25 miles an hour on rural roads and 20 in cities, towns and villages. Twenty-five miles an hour is a pretty fair clip at which to travel, and that limit probably satisfies the average man or woman. 'Tis not long since we managed quite comfortably on 8 or 10 miles an hour behind old Dobbin and derived as much pleasure from it, perhaps, as from the greater speed sanctioned by the Motor Vehicle Act. However, while the law fixes a limit for speed on rural highways and manufacturers produce high-power cars capable of exceeding that limit, we must expect that temptation to break the law will prove quite irresistible to many natures. But where death or injury ensues through violation of the speed act the punishment should be sufficiently severe to effectively deter others whose speeding and general reckless control of a car constitute a menace to life and limb.

Regarding automobile travel in urban centres, the greatest improvement toward restricting accidents is in evidence. The implementing of traffic regulations and work by traffic constables have produced, and are producing increasingly effective results. Vigilance and law observance by both pedestrians and motor vehicle drivers we believe are gradually minimizing the danger which the automobile's birth originated. But criminal negligence and what might be termed barbarous disregard for the safety of others are still responsible for too many deaths and casualties. For such offenders it is gratifying to notice that the authorities are imposing drastic and commensurate sentences. A wilful breach of the Motor Vehicle Act by which a fellow mortal is launched into eternity is now adjudged as manslaughter, punishment for which should be stiffened again, and yet again, until that quality of manslaughter becomes practically extinct.

WHERE PEDESTRIANS AT FAULT.

To continue the theme in the foregoing, it seems manifestly unfair that public opinion should in the majority of automobile accidents where pedestrians are victims unequivocally attach blame to the autoists. And in that connection we wish to convey this thought: No considerable portion of the human race seems to have inherited that spirit of envy which impelled the first murder recorded in the Bible, while other are imbued with that distorted mental vision which erroneously construes protective measures as uncalled-for restriction of their individual freedom. Such temperaments are conducive of danger to their possessors, particularly where the rights-of-way of automobiles and pedestrians conflict; and in many accidents on streets and roads to the latter the victims themselves are at fault. Unfortunately, also, there seems to exist with some non-autoists a sort of passive antagonism toward modern vehicular traffic which finds vent in downright obstinacy, not to say dangerous carelessness.

Then there are unaccompanied children who unexpectedly dash in front of a car, the driver of which at times only avoids impact by exercise of admirable presence of mind and control skill, to say nothing of the budding youth who imagines that all human smartness attainable is tabernacled within his few pounds of undeveloped anatomy. For instance, quite recently a Peterborough motorist came into contact with a small imp of Satan of this latter description while motoring home. At all times a careful driver, and finding himself gaining on a small boy and a cow, this motorist in question reduced his speed to a "safety first" minimum and kept both eyes open, so to speak. He didn't at all like the look of the small boy, whose deportment and manoeuvres seemed to spell deviltry. In fact, he was suspicious that something was going to happen. And something did happen, for when within a short distance of cow and boy the latter deliberately crossed road in front of the car and gave its driver the laugh—a defiant, tantalizing, derisive expression of juvenile hostility and "dare." But here followed a scene on that quiet country road in which the small boy suffered the surprise of his life. Having missed striking the boy by but a few feet, and naturally resenting the urchin's "dare," our autoist alighted and administered with Nature's weapons such a trouncing as we hope drove into his howling subject the fear of autoists and their machines, if not of the Almighty. Similar treatment might profitably be applied to others of the rising generation in such circumstances as the above.

Here we emphasize that drivers of motor vehicles have their road privileges, which should be respected by pedestrians; also that the latter should observe the safety zone regulations as well as the former. And it is to be hoped existing and future measures introduced by Legislature, Federal government or municipalities for public protection afoot or on wheel will be coupled with such punishment for their violation as will prove potential for wiping out that blot on our civilization—an ever-mounting death and casualty toll in motor vehicle accidents.

DIVERTING CANADIAN WATERS.

Sir Adam Beck, with characteristic vigilance, is striving to prevent the diversion of very large quantities of water from the Great Lakes system to the Mississippi River, by the Sanitary District of Chicago for sewage purposes, as well as for the provision of Hydro-electric power. The facts as set forth by Sir Adam are most disturbing. He has no difficulty in showing that the existing arrangement, which he characterizes as "illegal," operates to the very serious detriment of this Province, and that any extension would constitute a tremendous handicap to the future development of the water powers of Ontario. The suggested scheme, by which the Sanitary District of Chicago would compensate Canada for its water loss, is shown to be ridiculously inadequate. In the course of his statement, Sir Adam says:

"It cannot too clearly be understood that the Sanitary District is not seeking permission to divert water in excess of the 4,167 feet per second, because the Sanitary District actually is diverting water in excess of this licensed quantity, even up to some 8,000 or 10,000 feet per second, without securing permission from the proper authorities. . . . The Sanitary District has been pursuing its own course, and what it seeks today is governmental sanction for that which it has been doing, and is still doing, illegally."—Hamilton Spectator.

ON THE HORIZON.

Looming against the distant rim
A ship, with al her sails in trim,
Is vanishing into the blue,
Seeking far ports I shall not view.

Perhaps her sails are soiled and frayed,
Her decks with coal-dust overlaid,
But seen afar across the sea,
She is a Ship of Dreams o me.

And if her cargo have the scent
Of spices of the Orient,
Or reek of guano and of hides,
I know not, but I know she rides

On rolling deeps that I would cross
And that about her bows there toss
Bright showers of the salty spray,
And that her mast-heads swing and sway;

And that I'd almost sell my soul
To feel her decks beneath me roll,
And hear her timbers strain and creak,
And sense the salt wind on my cheek.

I think there is no lovelier sight,
Vouchsafed to give the eyes delight,
Than is a ship, with sails atrim,
Against the far horizon's rim.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

It is a curious anomaly that no such thing as scarcity of help was heard of before labor-saving machinery.

There is no surplus of wheat except in the minds of the theoretical faddists. Wheat is nourishing food. Millions of starving human beings die every year because enough food is not available for them. The farmers' problem and that of these starving millions is to put this so-called theoretical surplus to work. That is not a task for Government, but an opportunity for business.—New York Commercial.

The two essential conditions governing Sunday games are, first, that they should not make it a working day for other people; and, secondly, that they should not be allowed to interrupt or scandalize church-goers. Subject to that we are satisfied that a general extension everywhere of healthy games on Sunday afternoon would not only be a great social benefit, but would be practically conducive to religion and morality.—The New York Times.

There are farmers and farmers. For instance, Farmer Coolidge, and then again Magnus Johnston.

TORONTO CATTLE.

TORONTO, Aug. 14.—The cattle market opened slightly more active yesterday morning. Prices were about at last weeks' level and steady. There were 1,500 cattle less received than at last week's opening. Very few western cattle came in, and the demand for good butcher cattle continued. Packers took several loads of heavy steers at $7.50 to $7.70. A small lot of 21 sold at $8.00. The cow trade was fairly active. Best butcher cows sold at $4 to $5, and Holstein springers and milkers sold at $80 to $100. There is a good inquiry for store cattle. At noon exporters began to buy 300 cattle, probably at $7.50 to $8.00.

Lambs were 50 cents lower at $11.-50, and good light sheep sold at $5.00 and $6.00.

Hogs were stronger again yesterday at $9.85 fed and watered, and some going outside at $10.

Quinn & Hisey sold: Butcher—3, 3,250 lbs., $7.10; 5, 4,400, $6.60; 7, 5,650, $6.25; 10, 7,490, $5.85; 4, 2,150; $4.50; 2, 1,640, $4.50; 1, 820, $4.50; 2, 1,840, $4.25. CASH GRAIN.

MONTREAL, Aug. 14.—(Canadian Press)—There was a little more business done in cash grain in the local market yesterday but trade in carlots of oats was reported quiet. The tone of the flour market was steady with prices unchanged. Enquiry for millfeed from all sources continues good, but the tone of the rolled oats market was easier with prices showing a decline of five cents per bag. Trade in baled hay shows no improvement. There was no change in the egg market. The butter market remains quiet, but the undertone to the cheese market is strong.

CHICAGO WHEAT.

WILSON ELECTED IN SOUTH PORTSMOUTH

Third Conservative To Be Elected From This Riding in Nine Months.

LONDON, Aug. 14. Canadian Press Cable. — In the by-election yesterday in South Portsmouth rendered necessary by the resignation of the member Lieut.-Colonel Leslie Wilson, to accept the governorship of Bombay, India, Major Herbert Cayzer, Conservative, was elected over his Liberal opponent, Sir Henry Lawson, by a majority of over two thousand. The vote was: Cayzer 11,884; Lawson, 9763; Cayzer was elected in this constituency in the general election of last November, but resigned on a plea of ill-health, making way for Col. Wilson, the Conservative whip, who had been defeated in the St. George's Division of Westminster, and was in need of a seat.

Miners Object To Importation Of Coal.

CALGARY, Alta., Aug. 14.—(Canadian Press)—As a result of more than half of the ten thousand members of the United Mine Workers of America, District 18, being unemployed at the present time, a formal protest will be framed by the U.M.W.A. against the importation of coal from the United States for use on certain sections of the Canadian National, according to information received from Secretary Peacock yesterday.

U.S. BLACK NIGHTS MARCHED IN SARNIA

Hugh Parade Had an International Aspect. Members Of Brown Wing Of The Order.

SARNIA, Ont., August 14. — For the first time in more than six years the Royal Black Knights of United States Preceptories marched this afternoon in a Derry day parade under Canadian jurisdiction, enjoying full and authorized fraternal relations. As a sequel to the recent settlement of the Triennial Council at Winnipeg, recognizing what is known as the Brown faction in the United States State of Michigan, R. P. B. No. 60, came over to Sarnia from Port Huron the other night and presented R.B.P. No 301, with a handsome banner. Virtually all lodges and preceptories along the American border belong to the Brown wing of the Order, now recognized by the Triennial council and many were represented in yesterday afternoon's parade to Bayview Park, giving an international flavor to Western Ontario's celebration of August 12th.

About 3,000 participated in the parade to the park, where speeches were delivered.

Lodges from Middlesex, Elgin, Sarnia, Chatham and United States districts participated in the procession.

TWO INJURED.

They will spend the next few weeks there at Percy Boom, Prince Edward County, and in this locality. Mr. Harston will supply the pulpit of Simcoe Street Methodist Church, Oshawa, for three Sundays.

Held Enjoyable Picnic.

The Bay of Quinte Winter School held their annual picnic on Wednesday, when nearly three hundred members and their friends left Bewdley and Gore's Landing at 9 a.m. and 9.45 respectively for Peterboro, arriving there about noon. Accompanying the excursionists were Rev. Capt. E. Harston, President, Rev. H. A. Bunt, Secretary, the former from Woodville and the latter from Canton, and other officers of the school. The afternoon was very pleasantly spent in Peterboro and about 5.30 o'clock they left the city for the home trip. Community singing was indulged in and the whistle blew at Gore's Landing all too soon. It was a matter for regret that some who desired to make the trip were unable to do so as there was not room for all.

A Unique Game of Bowls.

A peculiar bowling match took place at the Cobourg green one evening recently between rinks skipped by Mr. E. Guillett and Mr. A. E. Hircock, the like of which does not occur oftener than once a life time Mr. Hircock won the first six ends, being twelve ahead, then the Guillet rink forged ahead into the winning class and won the next six, beating their opponents by one shot.

The rinks were:

| Andrews | Cowan |
| C. Gravin | Baxter |
| S. J. Watson | Harry Allen |
| E. Guillet | E. A. Hircock |

Camborne Items.

The Board of Management of Camborne Methodist church has decided to paint the exterior of the church.

The W.M.S. of Camborne church attended the meeting at Bethedsa last Thursday night by invitation and put on the program. Quite a number were present.

This section of the country with the whole district is badly in need of rain.

Miss Peebles of Colborne, is not returning to her school duties here for another term. It is understood that a new teacher has been engaged.

The school-house is being painted and decorated by Mr. Parsons of this village, will practically lose all its likeness to the "little red schoolhouse."

Picnic At Presqu-Isle.

The choir of St. John's Church, Port Hope, motored to Presqu-Isle, where they were very pleasantly entertained at the summer home of Mrs. G. V. Strong.

Enjoyable Picnic Held.

The Ladies Aid and Women's Mission circle of the Cobourg Baptist Church held a very enjoyable picnic at Victoria Park here on Wednesday afternoon.

Enjoyable Garden Party.

The garden party at the lawn at St. Joseph's Orphanage, Cobourg, Wednesday afternoon was largely attended and proved to be a most enjoyable event. A large number of the clergy of the District were in attendance. There were games for the children at which prizes were given. The lawn was beautifully decorated and the booths and tables presented a most attractive appearance. In the evening the Cobourg Concert Band was present. A large crowd was in attendance.

Died at Pittsburgh.

It was with saddened hearts that Cobourg citizens learned on Sunday that another of our most popular summer residents had died that day following an operation. Mr. McCook spent a part of the summer at his country home here, but returned to Pittsburgh a short time ago for medical treatment. Genial, upright, kindly, deeply interested in benvolent enterprises, Mr. McCook was held in high regard by Cobourg citizens. He was an especially good friend of the Cobourg Hospital, where his beneficience has made the lot of patients and staff easier and added materially to the equipment for combating disease and death.

Old Bird Race.

The seventh old bird race flown from Wayne, Indiana to Cobourg, a distance of 406 miles, resulted as follows: First, Geo. Manton, with a record of 668, 88 yards per minute; second, Wm. May, 644, 88; third, Thomas Leonard, 644, 08.

Sons of Scotland Burial Plot.

Twenty-five year ago the Sons of Scotland, an active organization here, brought the Black Watch Band, which was touring Canada, to Cobourg to give a concert. The net proceeds of the entertainment was used for the purchase of a burial plot in the Cobourg Union cemetery, where the remains of any Scotchman not having relatives here might be interred. It was there the other day that the remains of Roderick McLean, an employee of Ontario No. 1, who was accidentally drowned

Harman—Nixon.

The marriage took place at the Baptist parsonage on Wednesday evening of Miss Bertha P. Nixon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Nixon of Cobourg to Mr. Percy L. Harman, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Harman of Aurora, Ont. Rev. J. M. Morton conducted the ceremony. The bride wore a pretty gown of white canton crepe, and was attended by her sister, Miss Elsie M. Nixon, wearing white crepe de chene. The groomsman was Mr. Thomas W. Nixon, the brides brother.

Perow—Holmes.

At St. Michael's church on Monday morning, Rev. Father Corkery officiated at the marriage of Miss Emma Holmes, daughter of Mrs. William Holmes and Mr. James Perow, formerly of Brighton. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Nora Holmes and Mr. William Holmes was best man. Mr. and Mrs. Perow will make their home here and have the sincere good wishes of many friends in which The World joins.

Held For A Week.

The three men who were arrested in Belleville on Saturday afternoon, after securing gasoline from Mr. Martin of Welcome and not settling for it, were held there until last Saturday morning, when they were allowed their liberty. Theodore Grenier and Genereau, charged with vagrancy in Sidney pleaded guilty. They were sentenced to one week in jail dating from the date of their arrest.

Harry Charron, the owner of the car was charged with reckless driving. He pleaded guilty but claimed that his speedometer was not working and that a car going to the city passed them. Provincial Sergt. Atkins confirmed the statement about the speedometer. The court imposed a minimum fine of $10.00 and costs $7.75, and the accused was allowed a week to settle.

These are the men, whose presence in this district led to many rumors that the bandits had passed through here.

Enjoyable Outing.

Last week was an occasion of pleasure for the local church choirs. St. Peter's choir held their annual outing to Rochester and the Methodist church choir with heir popular leader and organist, Mr. Frank Parkinson, and the Sunday School orchestra under their most efficient leader, Mr. M. E. Hall, motored to Presqu-Isle Point, where they enjoyed a most delightful picnic.

Mrs. J. G. Nichols, town, Mrs. G. V. Strong, Port Hope, Miss Haskett of Montreal and another cottager very kindly placed their lawns at the disposal of the visitors, a courtesy that was very much appreciated. These ladies also opened up their cottages for serving supper and helped in every way possible to make the outing an enjoyable one. A program of sports was run off, that was much enjoyed. The orchestra put on a short program at the cotgramme was given by the choir and orchestra at the Pavilion.

FANCY LININGS.

There seems to be a sudden fad for reversing the general order of things and wearing one's linings outside. Cloaks of white fur lined with black velvet and a soft turnback collar of the velvet are flattering as well as stunning.

ROYAL BLACK KNIGHTS CELEBRATION OF DERRY HOLIDAY FEATURE HERE

Thousands Lined Peterborogh Streets To Witness Attractive Parade Of City and District Orangemen. — Insurance Against Rain Not Needed.

GOOD SPORTS.

Yesterday was "stay at home" civic holiday for Peterborough, judging by the number of people who lined the streets to witness the parade of the Royal Black Knights in their Derry day celebration.

For the sports which were held at the Exhibition grounds after the parade, the grand stand was crowded to capacity, and every shady spot and the fences were lined with spectators. About 500 Knights took part in the parade and sports; eleven horses were entered in the races, and the sports lasted until 5.30, there being something doing every minute.

The insurance against rain placed by the Black Knights was not neeed, ideal weather prevailing throughout.

Herman E. won the 2.30 class race and Bessie Brook passed the wire first in all three heats of the 2.15 class race. Both events were over a mile course.

The Horse Races.

The first race was the 2.15 class, in which there were six starters. Hazel H., owned by Edward Jones, Peterborough, sustained a broken bone in her leg after completing a quarter of the first circuit. Bessie Brook, owned by Frank Montgomery, Peterborough, led the field throughout the three heats necessary to give her the decision. The times for the heats were respectively, 2.17¼, 2.17½ and 2.17½. Sunny Jim, owned by G. E. Caldwell of Port Hope, ran second; Polly Stout, owned by Richard Elmhurst, Lang, took third place; Roy Mack, owned by Dr. Johnson, Port Hope, was fourth; and Liberty Patch owned by A. V. Tinney, Cobourg, was drawn.

In the 2.30 class Herman E. started a general favourite and maintained his lead throughout, passing the wire first in the three heats necessary to the race. His time was 2.29¼, 2.29½, 2.29½. The winner is owned by Art. Elmhurst, of Indian River. Cy. Wenger, owned by William Elmhurst, Indian River, ran a good second; Major Hal, owned by J. Sutherland, Peterborough, was third; Furiosa second, owned by A. V. Tinney, Cobourg, ran fourth, and Alta Dewey, owned by Dr. Robertson, Peterborough, also ran.

In the judges' stand were: Dr. J. A. Sinclair, starter; George Lipsett and Arthur Clysdale, timekeepers; Gus White, Charles Schooley and Mert Storey, judges; and Charles Schooley also acted as clerk.

Board of Works Won.

In a closely contested tug-of-war between Board of Works and the Black Knights, the former won, in two straight pulls. The teams were composed of: Board of Works—J. Murphy, anchor man; Bob Manley; George Sexby; George Simpson; B. Menzies; E. Withers; Robert Weaver; C. Clute; W. Webdale and J. Leahy. James Murphy and Dave McGrath were spares. Black Knights: Flannery; Waldie; D. Andrews; Brown; George Mitchell; J. D. Manley; F. Burnham; Moore, Brook and James. A box of cigars was presented to the winning team, which has been chosen to compete at the Exhibition next month.

Protect Public Schools.

Speakers from all parts of the province urged the members of the Orange Order to stand behind the Public schools and protect them as a measure towards a greater and better Canada.

Rev. W. T. Wickett, of Tyrone, urged his hearer to stand four square for the principles of Christianity and free religion, the two principles for which the Order stands.

Rev. A. McLauchlin, of Keene, Past County Master of Durham East, said the two great emotions which stir the human heart are the emotions of affection for religion and love of country. Referring to the Order of Black Knights, the speaker said the organization stands for the upholding of the British Empire. "We believe that by being the best followers of God we shall be the best citizens of the country." In regard to the school question, he said, "we can be the best patriots by obeying the law of the land. Where the law of the land in regard to the school question is not obeyed there is illiteracy. We should take a deep interest in this question, for every child has the right to be taught in his mother tongue."

Other speakers were R. M. Patterson, Fraserville, Grand Chaplain for Eastern Ontario; W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P. for West Peterborough; Rev. A. V. Marks, Cochrane; and J. H. Spence, chairman.

During the sports selections were played by the Peterborough Rangers Band.

Lodges from Millbrook, Oshawa, Norwood, Glen Hill, Pontypool and Peterborough joined in the event, with several fife and drum bands.

HER BABY SUFFERED WITH SUMMER COMPLAINT

A fact mothers must face is that summer complaint with the prostration, often verging on collapse, which sometimes accompanies this disease, makes it one of the most serious and dangerous to contend with during the hot months.

Thousands of infants die annually whose lives could have no doubt been saved by the timely use of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, and it has been the experience of thousands of mothers during the past 78 years this valuable preparation has been on the market, that it is the safest and most effective remedy for use in all cases of looseness of the bowels.

Mrs. S. Lafontaine, Great Desert, Ont., writes:—"My baby, when a year old, was suffering with summer complaint. Two doctors attended him, but nothing would stop the vomiting and diarrhoea. A friend told me to try Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry and after the second dose the baby was better and I can say it saved my baby's life.

I wouldn't be without a bottle of 'Dr. Fowler's' in the house for untold gold.'

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY

Terence Desmond (Terry) Exquisite and convent-reared, unbelievably innocent, is forced to work as a cashier in her father's roadhouse while

Juliet Divine, the stage name of her beautiful half-sister, whom Terry has not seen for years, lives like a princess and talks vaguely of a millionaire.

Terrence Desmond, their father, moody and selfish, formerly caretaker of an estate, is now the proprietor of the Blue Moon, a roadhouse. He is anxious to get Terry married and off his hands.

Mrs. Parmalee owns Silverwood, the estate of which Desmond was caretaker.

Betty Sheridan, her grand-daughter, whose rudeness to Terry the latter will never forget, is the wife of

Miles Sheridan, handsome and likable, who when Terry was a child furnished the money to send her to the Convent, partly to atone for his wife's rudeness. To Terry, he is always 'The Prince.'

Eustace Nazlo, a wealthy Greek, unscrupulous with women, is impressed by Terry's beauty and her resemblance to Juliet Divine, the famous stage beauty. He invites her to go for an auto ride and on the way to New York, he kisses her.

While Nazlo is arranging for a private dining room at the Hotel, Terry slips away. Nazlo is furious.

CHAPTER XIV.

An Unexpected Visitor

"The young lady had a letter in her hand," the door man informed him. He had asked if she would like it posted, but she said, "No, thank you," she preferred to go out herself.

"Did you see whether she took a taxi?" Nazlo inquired, controlling his voice.

The man hadn't seen what the young lady did after she went through the revolving door. Others had come in about that time. He'd forgotten to watch for her return.

Nazlo's blood pounded in his head, and he had difficulty in concentrating. But he was a man trained to master emotion except at times when he could afford the pleasure of letting it master him.

He forced himself to face the question: "What would the girl be likely to do?"

There was one thing certain. She wouldn't have run away if she'd meant to come back. And it seemed almost equally certain that, as this was her first visit to New York, she wouldn't go wandering about the streets.

It seemed as if her one thought would be to get home. Probably she hadn't much money. No doubt, however, she would have enough for a ride in the subway, and the journey to Oldport by train.

Like a fool he'd told her among other things, how easy it was to travel to New York from Long Island and back! Yes, she would run for home. That must be what happened.

But it had not happened.

Terry had made use of a convent letter which she had in her pocket, in order to escape without rousing the door porter's suspicion. She was going to her sister's! She was going to find Jule.

She had no money at all. Nevertheless, while Nazlo was studying a timetable, in order to head her off at the Pennsylvania station if it could be done, the girl was in a taxi.

She had not dared to get into one in front of the restaurant, lest she might be seen, and traced. But, having hurried round the corner, and walked very fast for a block and a half, she noticed a number of vehicles in front of a hotel.

The girl had seen many couples arrive at the Blue Moon in such conveyances, and knew that they were not private cars.

"Take me to the Ardlamont, on Riverside Drive," she said, half afraid—in her ignorance—that she might be asked to pay in advance. If she had been, she planned to say, "My sister lives there. She will give me the money." But it was a relief that the man seemed to trust her.

If Julia were not at home, maybe there'd be a servant, from whom she could borrow. But oh, it was too bad to be true that Jule should be away! She hoped desperately that it might not be so.

There was not only the difficulty about paying. She did not know what would become of her for that night unless she found Julia—or indeed for the nights to come, for she felt that she could never go back to live with her father.

The drive seemed much longer than before, because the girl feared each moment to see Nazlo's great grey limousine. He had asked her why she was interested in Riverside Drive.

He might come now to suspect from her questions and from the likeness to Julia, that they were related.

Even when the taxi stopped, and the lighted pale brick bulk of the Ardlamont loomed above her, the girl peeped anxiously out of the window before she ventured to descend. But there was no automobile in sight resembling Nazlo's

The only one in front of the building was a dark colored car of much the same build, which looked black in the summer dusk

"Will you please wait a few minutes, and I'll bring you down the money, or send it," said Terry. The chauffeur made no objection to this proposal, and she was relieved

Yet her voice trembled as she asked a negro in livery, inside the door, if he knew whether Miss Divine was at home.

"No, I don't know, Miss," replied the man, staring, no doubt because of the resemblance. "I ain't seen her go out, and her auto ain't been around. But you better take the elevator up to her floor. It's the tenth."

As he spoke, the smart-looking negro motioned towards a pair of sliding oak doors which at that instant flew apart, showing a tiny room, with an electric light and red velvet seats round the wall. In it stood an old negro in the same dark green livery as the first.

"Going up, Miss?" he asked.

Terry had never seen an elevator, but she walked into the little room and was shot up and up, with appalling speed. The attendant was able to inform her that Miss Divine was in. He had taken a gentleman to call on her about fifteen minutes ago.

At the tenth floor the black man pointed out a door at the left of a marble-paved corridor, and Terry touched an electric bell.

But her hands were cold despite the humid warmth of the night. Could the gentleman with Julia possibly be Mr. Nazlo?

She was kept waiting a few moments, and was just about to touch the bell again when the door opened. A tall, fine-looking mulatto woman in a black satin dress, a little lace cap and apron, and high-heeled shoes, gazed wide-eyed at the red-haired girl in mourning. Her expression showed astonishment.

"Is Miss Divine in? Oh, I hope she is!" Terry almost gasped. "She—she's my sister."

"My goodness! You sure did give me a start, Miss!" exclaimed the maid. "Ye-es'm, she's in. I reckon if you're her sister she'll maybe see you. But I ain't sure. She wasn't expectin' you, was she?"

"No," Terry admitted. "I didn't know I was coming. I live in the country, a long way off. Oh, but I'm sure she'll see me! Do let me come in!"

SCOTS SPENT CIVIC HOLIDAY AT CHEMONG.

Large Crowd Enjoyed Themselves at The Rendezvous.

The Caledonian Club members and friends spent civic holiday at Chemong. They left the market square in the early morning in auto busses supplied by Comet, Fontaine's and Coney's. When the last bus arrived there were over one hundred and fifty out for a pleasant day's enjoyment which came up to the usual high standard. The genial rendezvous proprietor threw open his high-class dancing hall to the visitors, so as to allow them the privilege of participating in their national dances —Highland Fling," Eightsome Reel, Quadrilles, Lancers, which was interspersed with the latest light-step, but the old-fashioned dances particularly pleased some of the Chemong residents who remarked on the excellence of the dancing partners. Just before the final dance in the afternoon, Miss Isa Thomson entertained the company by the Highland Fling.

The baseball game between the married and single men resulted in the has-beens beating the single men by a large score. Some went boating, fishing and swimming, also the usual Scots character was not wanting for a roam around the country side. Through out the day Pipers Petrie, Thomson and Leith entertained by a number of selections.

Sports were held in the afternoon and valuable prizes were distributed to the lucky winners.

The executive of the Club wish to express their thanks to the Rendezvous proprietors for the splendid services rendered to them in every way.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 14.—The members of the Ancient Order of Foresters and visiting brethren, attended divine service on Sunday morning at the Methodist church. The pastor, Rev. Wesley Elliott, preached a very helpful sermon from the words found in James 1:27, "Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this, to visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world."

The speaker asserted that the two clauses in the text might be summed up into two words, Charity and Purity, dealing with man's duty to others and to himself. In the latter clause of the text man's life might be governed by four fundamental principles, or standards of living (1) The laws of the state; (2) Public opinion; (3) Conscience, and (4) Christ.

Rev. Mr. Elliott declared fraternal organizations to be by-products of the church, doing the work often neglected by the church and he held Christ up as the example, all should follow, as he was the model citizen. It was not enough that he did no one any harm, but He went about doing good.

The members of the Order, upon their return to their lodge room, tendered a hearty vote of thanks to Rev. Mr. Elliott for his inspiring address.

Electric Storm.

Quite a severe electrical storm accompanied by heavy rain, wind and hail passed over town on Sunday afternoon. No damage is reported in town, but a silo on the farm of Mr. Ernest Haig, Seymour, was blown down during the storm.

When you have cooked more roasting ears than the family could eat, remove the grains from the left-over cobs and spread out in a thin layer to dry in a warm oven. When thoroughly dry store in a cool dry place and use for soups, fritters, or for any purpose you would use fresh or canned corn.

Keep cool and fit

for the warm days by eating nourishing, easily digested foods that do not heat the blood or tax the digestion. The ideal Summer diet is Shredded Wheat Biscuit with fresh fruits and vegetables. Shredded Wheat is the whole wheat ready-cooked and ready-to-eat—no kitchen worry or work. A delicious, nourishing meal can be prepared with it in a few moments. Children love the crisp baked shreds of whole wheat in Summer after the heavy foods in Winter. It supplies all the bran you need to stimulate bowel exercise.

door closets now in use being a nuisance.

This was referred to the Sanitary Inspector for investigation, and on his report to the M.O.H. notices will be served directing the work to be done.

Request Refused.

A request from Gordon C. Reader in respect to a new house at 84 Gladstone avenue, was refused. The building permit for this house issued in April, contained specifications for sewer connections in compliance with the bylaw that no new houses shall be built without sanitary conveniences.

Recommendations Forwarded.

Recommendations were forwarded to the City Council for the installation of conveniences at 59 Sophia street, and 496 Elm Street. in accordance with the by-law.

Health Week.

A recommendation from the Health Week Association, London, England, for the observance of a Health Week was passed to the City Council.

A complaint was received from a neighbor that 237½ Princess street is unsanitary. The premises at 346 London street were also complained of. The M. O. H. was instructed to notify these owners to install sewer connections Other complaints from sections where sewers are not convenient, were accepted. but the Board could take no action.

Milk Tests.

The M.O.H. reported that the milk tests were very satisfactory.

It was suggested that the milk for testing be taken from the vendors on days when the test is not anticipated.

The Sanitary Inspector was instructed to meet the vendors without notice and seal a bottle which must be surrendered to the laboratory.

There were present: George H. Duncan, chairman, James Lynch, E. F. Mason, Dr. T. W H Young, C. S. Stapleton, Sanitary Inspector, and A G. Metheral, Plumbing Inspector.

Think of Fur and Keep Cool

By Marian Hale.)

NEW YORK, August 14. — August, besides being the hottest month of the twelve, is the one which custom and the fur dealers have consecrated to the rite of buying the fur coat.

And, indeed, perhaps one of the best ways in which to forget the heat is to ramble around in a fur store, viewing garments designed for zero weather. But don't try on too many in a single summer's day!

The thought alone of a new fur coat is usually exciting enough to take the normal woman's mind off the temperature. This season's models are particularly distracting. They wrap, drape, slink, or become perky at your command, and they reach heights of loveliness never before attained.

In general, the straight silhouette is adhered to, though there are plenty of circular and flaring models for those who prefer. Flounces, godets, and shirring mark a model as essentially of this season. Cape styles are rarely seen except in the very elaborate wraps for evening. The mandarin sleeve prevails.

Hudson seal and caracul are the most popular medium-priced furs. These are usually trimmed with a contrasting fur, such as squirrel, fox, lynx, and fitch.

Squirrel, with less of a reputation for service than seal, but extremely becoming, is seen in combination with pointed fox, dyed squirrel, and Australian opossum.

In the short sport coats, bordered racoon is conspicuous, and so are leopard, ocelot ,and nutria.

Among the most gorgeous wraps, ermine, Persian lamb, mink, and sable are treated as they never have been before. Linings of velvet and supple duvetyn are new this season.

There is a tendency in the plainer coats to keep the lining the colour of the fur, but often it is beautifully embroidered in self colour, or sometimes a band of figured or brocaded silk is added about the hm.

The average length of this season's fur coat is 48 inches, but those for elaborate wear are 50, while those for evening are sometimes 52. The sport models come shorter, from 45 to 48, and the jacquettes may vary as much as 12 inches. It is very important in a short fur coat to find the proper length, and this is regulated entirely by the stature of the wearer.

Fur dealers are looking forward to a fat year and are stressing the luxurious models with price tags that run into four figures.

CONTENTMENT.

Oh, no, my fancy never turns
Towards camps, nor cottages nor yearns,
To hie off to the lakes way
With crowds, who fashion's fads obey.

The sport, which Izaak Walton thought
So fascinating, charms me not;
Nor wish is mine, to ply the oar
Round Burleigh's rugged, rock-bound shore.

I have no wild desire to be
Disporting with fair Naiads free,
Clad in brief minimized array,
Beseeming butt for Faun or Fay.

Even Terpsichore's sprightly art,
Tempts not this calm, contented heart;
Ah, the light fantastic is but meet
For spirits gay, and frisky feet.

For grand regattas, praised so high,
I scorn to waste a single sigh,
Dearly, indeed, is pleasure bought
Within the sound of noisy yacht.

The beauties of Kawartha Lakes,
No wander-lust in me awakes,
For idle folly, 'tis to roam,
When, we have all there is, at home.

And Providence has cast my lot
'Mid pleasant scenes, in peaceful spot,
Where stately elms their branches spread,
In shady canopy o'erhead.

Whence sweet-voiced warblers all-day long
Pour forth a tide of silvery song,
An undisturbed, sequestered nook,
Where one may well peruse a book.

Or, with friends congenial wile away
Those hours, ere sunset's parting ray;
Ah, such friends, cast in honors mould,
'Mid much light dross, are sterling gold.

Fair Trent Canal gleams full in view
Ploughed by trim vessels, not a few,
There crowds of eager tourists flock
To see the great, world-famed Lift Lock.

It seems to me the untravelled mind
More real enjoyment here may find
Than in those haunts of frivolous sport,
Where Fashion's votaries resort.

But distant hills are ever green,
And far-off fields, of sunny sheen,
Yet search in sooth, the whole world wide,
The sweetest joys at home abide.

(Mrs.) A. F. Calder.

Firpo Knocked Out Weinert Of Newark.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 14 — (Canadian Press.)—Luis Angel Firpo, South American heavyweight, knocked out Charley Weinert of Newark, N.J., in the second round of an eight round no decision match last night in the National League ball park. The knockout came after one minute and 49 seconds of the round had passed.

Firpo boxed his winning battle in a business like manner. From the first bell, until the time that his ponderous right crashed into the Newark man's chin, he was after him, swinging rights to body, pushing lefts to face. Weinert's blows were few and apparently unnoticed by the Argentinian.

I had terrible pains and backache, and was tired and weak, not fit to do my work and care for my three little children. One day I received your little book and read it, and gave up taking the medicine I had and began taking the Vegetable Compound. I feel much better now and am not, ashamed to tell what it has done for me. I recommend it to any woman I think feels as I do."—Mrs. J. R. McMAHON, 153 Harvey St., Chatham, Ont.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has for nearly fifty years been restoring sick, ailing women to health and strength. It relieves the troubles which cause such symptoms as backache, painful periods, irregularities, tired, worn-out feelings and nervousness. This is shown again and again by such letters as Mrs. McMahon writes, as well as by one woman telling another. These women know, and are willing to tell others, what it did for them; therefore, it is surely worth your trial.

NEW HIGH SCHOOL OF CAMPBELLFORD TO BE CREDIT TO THE TOWN

Will Embody Every Detail, Not Lacking Assembly Room and Gymnasium.—Council Votes Balance of Sum Required for Construction.

MAYOR'S STATEMENT

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 14. — When Campbelford's new High School is completed it will be perfect in every detail, not lacking a gymnasium, an assembly room and a ventilation system, as the indications were when the contract was let some time ago. The building will be modern, aproved by the Department of Education, an ornament to the town in which it is located. The balance of the sum required to complete the building, according to the original plan, has been voted by the town council. There will be no more referendums on the subject.

This action was taken at a special meeting of the council held last night. Only two members opposed the additional grant—Reeve Anderson and Councillor Dorie. Councillor Carter was absent, but the other six, including Mayor Meyers, voted in the affirmative.

Mayor Meyers Makes Statement.

Mayor Meyers said that the question of a new High School had been discussed between the council and the Board of Education until the patience of the councillors was exhausted. He was convinced that it would be for the welfare of Campbellford if the council got this matter settled in the best interests of the town.

A vote had been taken recently, and the result was practically a 50-50 decision. About one-third of the building as originally planned, has been left out. The excavation and the foundation for the gymnasium and assembly room has been completed; evidently the Board of Education is convinced that it has money enough on hand to carry out this work.

"Is the building," continued the Mayor, "to be left in that state, with an open excavation as a trap for the High School students? I believe the approval of the Department of Education of the reduced plans of the building was only temporary. That aproval was given to enable the Board to start work on the building and with the understanding that it would be completed in a short time. The Department will not allow it to remain in that state very long. I have looked into the regulations and I find that the Department insists upon a good ventilation system. I can hardly believe that the Department would permit the building to be opened if it is completed as it is contracted for now, without any ventilation. I believe that the majority of the people are in favor of having the building completed according to the original plans and that the majority are also opposed to taking another vote.

Vote would Cost $400.

Mayor Meyers gave his reasons for objecting to another reference of the question to the taxpayers. A special election would cost about $400, and this he regarded as a useless expense. Before such an election could be held it would be necessary to revise the voters' list and then to call together the court of revision to pass upon it. The mayor was convinced, he said, that another vote would result in a majority for the additional grant of $28.800.

The Resolution.

The mayor then submitted a resolution rescinding one that was passed at a session in July, providig for a referece of the matter to the ratepapers as demanded by the Board of Education. The mayor's resolution last night called upon Town Solicitor Humphies to take the necessary steps to raise $28,800 by the issue of debentures.

"I believe," said Councillor Burke, "that the council has no alternative but to grant the money. It is a good business proposition. The High School building cannot be left in an unfinished condition. For that reason I second the resolution.

Members Explain Stand.

The only two members of the Council who actually have changed their minds on this issue, as shown by their votes last night were Councillor Cole and Deputy Reeve Wilkinson. Both explained their positions.

Councillor Cole said that he had obtained the opinions of three of the leading lawyers in Belleville who were staying at his cottage at Crow Bay. All three agreed that if the Board of Education went ahead and completed the building that the town would eventually have to pay for it, and that delay might mean an extra cost of fine or ten thousand dollars. These opinions were what had induced him to change his mind.

Deputy Reeve Wilkinson said he believed that members of the Board of Education have come to the conclusion that they have not taken the proper course. They have infringed upon the law in order to gain their point. Hinting broadly that the trustees had muddled the school question the Deputy Reeve opined that it was up to the councillors to come to the rescue. They could help to beautify the town.

The building, if put up incomplete, will be no ornament to Campbellford He felt it was the duty of the Council to fall in line and have the building finished. He would like to see his colleagues unanimous on this issue.

"I have changed my mind," asserted the Deputy-Reeve, "but only because I have satisfied myself that it is to the best interests of the town to put up a building as originally planned."

Reeev Stands Pat.

Reeve Anderson stood to his guns. It was, he declared, an insult to the intelligence of the Council to bring this question up again, as it had been disposed of by a majority vote time and again. Every member of the Council, from the Mayor down, had gone on record as being opposed to passing a money by-law without a vote of the people. He believed that the question of the additional grant should be submitted to the taypayers. If they were willing to spend another $28,800 on the High school they should be given a chance to say so.

"They were given a chance," said Mayor Meyers, referring to the recent questionnaire.

The Reeve answered that the vote referred to did not amount to 'that,' the 'that' being represented by a snap of his fingers. What should have been submitted was a money by-law instead of a questionnaire.

Mayor Meyers explained that the course taken by the council was the only legal one that could be followed at the time to get the verdict of the people. A money by-law could not be submitted as the Board of Education had made no demand for such action.

"Do you not believe that the school has to be finished?" asked the Mayor.

"It will be finished in time," returned the Reeve.

There was a call for the question and the yeas and nays were taken with the following result:

Yeas—Mayor Meyers, Councillors Cole, Burke, Allan, Meiklejohn and Deputy-Reeve Wilkinson.

Nays—Reeve Anderson and Councillor Dorie.

30 Year Debentures.

Town Solicitor Humphries, who was present was instructed to take the necessary steps for a debenture issue, to run for 30 years and to bear interest at the rate of 5 1-2 per cent. On this resolution Reeve Anderson refused to vote, Councillor Dorie alone voting in the negative.

When a new contract for the building of the High school is let the Board of Education will be asked to submit a copy to the council.

Discussion Resumed.

The discussion aws not permitted to drop. Deputy Reeve Wilkinson vigorously challenged the remark of Reeve Anderson that there must have been considerable wire pulling to bring about the change in some of the councillors. The Deputy-Reeve declared that he had not been advised or questioned as to his stand. He had gone to the new building to see the situation for himself and took the position which he did on his own responsibility. If he had done wrong he must suffer the consequences and he was prepared to abide by them.

"I wonder," said Reeve Anderson, "why the council did not take this course long ago and settle the matter instead of permitting the discussion to continue."

"We have settled the matter tonight," replied the Mayor. "If we had not done what we did to-night the discussion would have lasted indefinitely. Next year the Board of Education would have come to the council with another request for money. As the matter stands now it is settled for the next 25 or 30 years."

ORLAND DEFEATED BY CAMPBELLFORD

CAMPBELLFORD, August 14.—Campbellford and Orland meet for their final game on Monday evening on the local diamond and the home team won by a score of 8 to 4. The visitors put up a good, clean contest, and are game losers, accepting as they do all reverses without the crabbing so often heard from a team in their position. Way pitched a good mage, and although the team finishes last, it has on its line-up some players League.

L. Moran made a double in the first and Houlihan, with three singles, carried off the batting honours for the visitors.

Blakely made four hits in as many times up, and Pete Nancarrow, who played centre, got a single in the second. Hume who started behind the bat had one of his fingers badly smashed in the first inning the second accident of the kind he has met with this year, and had to go back to his old place in right field, West taking second and Holmes doing the catching for the remainder of the game. Hume's broken finger did not prevent him making a double the first time up. Play was called at the end of the first half of the eighth on account of darkness. The line-up:

Campbellford—Cowell, 3b; Eagleson, ss; Hume, c and rf; Holmes, 2b and c; Weston, 1b; Brady, p; West, rf and 2b; Nancarrow, cf; Blakely lf.

Orland—Samis, ss; L. Moran, c; Belford, 2b; Houlihan, 1b; Way, p; W. Moran, 3b; Plumpton, cf and p; Thompson, lf; F. Moran, rf.

—By innings—

|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Campbellford | 1 | 0 | 1 | 0 | 2 | 1 | 3 | x | 8 |
| Orland | 1 | 0 | 0 | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 2 | 4 |

Umpires, Cowan and Davidson.

Notes.

In the sixth Orland was retired on four pitched balls, Belford flying out to Brady, Houlihan to Holmes, and Way to Cowell. In the seventh, Brady fanned three in a row.

In the second Way hit West with the ball, grazing the top of his head so closely that he knocked off the batter's hat. West got his base.

Warkworth and Campbellford have won 11 and lost 5 games each. They will now play home and home game to break the tie for second place. The first of these games will be played at Warkworth on Wednesday afternoon and the second at Campbellford on Friday. If a third game is necessary, this will be played on some neutral diamond.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Local Odfellows Decorated Graves of Their Departed Brethren— Foresters Attended Divine Worship.—Personals.

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 14. — Members of the local lodge of Oddfellows, on Sunday decorated the graves of their departed brethern, who are resting in Mount Pleasant and neighbouring cemeteries. Meeting at 2.30 p. m. in their lodge room in the Ferrie Block, they marched in procession, headed by the Northumberland Regimental Band, to the cemetery where the memorial service was held.

Early in the afternoon there had been a fall of rain accompanied by heavy hail, and when the procession started the weather was still threatening, but in spite of this there was a good turn out of members of the society and citizens. Bro. R. Dunk was marshall.

Marching at the head of the procession were the members of the Belleville Canton, No. 8, 16 strong, in full uniform, who at various stages of the march went through their evolutions with military precision. These were under the command of Capt. E. Juby, the other officers being Lieut. George Youker Ensign R. S. Johnston, and Lieut. Col. H. W. Suedstrom.

Each of the marching brethern carried a handsome bouquet of flowers, which were laid on the graves as the brethern, on reaching the cemetery moved from one visiting place to another and with a few words laid their floral tributes upon each.

The following are the departed brethern whose memory was thus honoured: — Bros. R. Bartlet, W. Thomas, C. Doxee, J. B. Ferris, R. Peeling, H. E. Hodge, C. C. West, William Marsh, William Phillips, James Dinwoodie, James Dickson, B. Carnahan, John Smith and R. Joyce.

Bros. James Diamond and William Ashton are buried in the English Line cemetery, Bros. F. Maybee in the cemetery at Wellman's and James Donald at Burnbrae. The graves of these were decorated by committees appointed for the purpose during the forenoon.

Address by Rev. W. Elliott.

Rev. Wesley Elliott, the new pastor of the Methodist church, and who is a member of the order, was the speaker of the day. He commended the spirit of fraternity that prompted the brethren to pay tribute to the memeroy of the departed. Every man, he said, leaves a monument behind him. If the speaker wished to see the best monument that the late General Booth erected in his own memory, he could behold it in the Salvation Army, of which he was the founder. The monument for John Wesley was the Methodist church, for Martin Luther the Protestant fiath, and for Wilberforce and Lincoln the freedom of the slaves.

There is some good, some virtue, Mr. Elliott said, in every life. These expressions of sympathy should not be left until decoration day, but the living should be shown some appreciation.

Those who lived in the past have made life better for us. They have give nus our education, our religion and our homes. One sows and another reaps. We should take up the heritage that has come to us and try to improve it. That is the best monument that we can erect in our own memory.

After the band had given an artistic rendition of "Nearer, My God to Thee," the brethren marched back to their lodge rooms, where the procession broke up.

Thomas Crisp Seaburn Dead.

CAMPBELLFORD, August 14.—Thomas Crisp Seaburn died at his home here early on Monday morning after a three months' illness. The deceased was born in England in 1856, but twelve years ago came to Canada with his family, settling for a while at Hoard's Station. Soon afterward he removed to Campbellford, where he had been a faithful employee of the Campbellford Cloth Company ,formerly the Trent Valley Woollen Mills, for the past ten years.

The deceased is survived by his wife ,whose maiden name was Rosanna Gasket, and ten ihildren, Albert in Australia, George, Harriet (Mrs. George Collins), Harry, Jane, Charles, Stanley, and Sidney of Campbellford and Edith and Lily in New York.

The funeral will be held on Wednesday afternoon at 2.30 to Christ Church Cemetery.

Seriously Injured.

Graydon, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bell, was severely injured by an automobile on Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Bell took her children down town to see the Oddfellows' parade, and when at the Methodist Church corner the boy broke away from his mother and ran across the street just as a car driven by Walter Irwin turned the corner. The fender of the car struck Graydon on the back of the head, throwing him to one side.

The boy was carried into the home of Dr F. Free nearby, where he received medical attention. His injuries are not regarded as serious, and he is making favourable progress toward recovery.

Boy Breaks Arm.

George, the ten-year-old son of Samuel Smith, of Canrobert Street, broke his arm while playing with some companions around a lumber pile last evening.

That lovely gleam olive oil gives your hair

The soft gleam that makes hair beautiful comes from the olive oil shampoo, hair specialists say. Science has found that olive oil keeps hair soft and pliant. Then hair gleams.

Olive oil in its simplest, most economical form for your shampoo, is PALMOLIVE SHAMPOO. It thoroughly cleans scalp and hair—removes dandruff. Leaves hair most amazingly soft and silky. No dull dryness and brittleness.

Get a bottle at any drug or department store. Use it. Note the improvement.

Ode on Chemong

Cyril McElhiney, the young son of Staff Captain and Mrs. J. A. McElhiney of Toronto, who has been staying with his parents at Chemong Park, has returned to Toronto. Going back on the train, he penned the following verses, indicating his desire to remain at Peterboro's pretty summer resort:

"The flier carries me swiftly on Through farms and creeks along.
It's wonderful that I'm not at ease,
I'd like to be in Chemong.

I've been three weeks in the good old park
It's been full of life and fun.
But I must go back and start to work.
I can't always be a bum.

It's easy enough to be pleasant
When holidays pass like a song.
But the man worth while is the man who will smile
When he has to leave Chemong.

To start in a sweltering office
Where they tell me all goes wrong
Back to a noise and bustle
That never disturbs Chemong.

But I can't kick, so I'll dig right in,
And when success, perhaps wealth, come along,
I'll retire, and by the sweet-smelling pines,
Spend the rest of my days in Chemong.

SAYS GERMANY CAN AND SHALL PAY

Easier to Do So Than to Stand Pressure in Ruhr

PARIS, Aug. 14. — (Canadian Press.)—A "yellow book," of diplomatic documents issued last night by the French Government contains thirty-seven telegrams and letters, most of them between Premier Poincare and French Ambassadors. They are dated from May 2 to August 3 and deal with the Ruhr situation, reparations, debts and British questionaire.

Premier Poincare put his position plainly in the June 12 message to the French Ambassador in London. He instructs the Ambassador to tell Lord Curzon "that "it is the problem of inter-allied debts which prevents us from telling Germany now the exact amount she owes us."

The message adds: "The solution of this problem is in the hands of Great Britain first of all, and the United States afterwards. The latter can be approached in a common accord by the allies when they have agreed upon a formula, and it has become evident that everything depends only upon the attitude of the Government of Washington."

The yellow book was issued as a reply to British action in announcing that the world would be called upon to judge the present situation with regard to Germany. The documents, which hitherto had not been published, consist mostly of instructions tot Ambassadors on how to present the French viewpoint on the situation.

They set out in great detail, and often in exact language, declarations made by the Premier publicly, and empahsizes M. Poincare's absolute conviction that Germany can pay, must pay and will pay, because France will follow her policy of making it easier to pay than to stand pressure in the Ruhr.

A NEW ORGANIZER FOR PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

The Rev. W. F. McConnell, B.A., now minister of Leamington Presbyterian Church, Chatham Presbytery, has accepted the position of Dominion Organizer, recently been offered to him by the Presbyterian Church Association for the continuation of the Presbyterian Church in Canada. Mr. McConnell is an honor graduate of McGill University, having specialized during his course in history and English. His theological course was taken partly in Montreal Presbyterian College, from which he graduated, and Westminster Hall, Vancouver.

Before entering his university training he held business appointments in the cost department of the Canadian Rubber Company, Montreal, and in the export freight department of the Canadian Pacific Railway, Montreal. During this period of his life he was interested in home mission work in Nazareth Street Mission as a member of Crescent Street Presbyterian Church, and also in a little mission called Park Street Louis in the north end of the city. Eventually he became the student missionary of the latter, and during his early student days this mission became Livingstone Presbyterian Church with a fine new building which was built in 1911. Mr. McConnell later held appointments in Kensington Presbyterian Church, Crescent Street Church and Outremont Presbyterian Church.

At the outbreak of the war in 1914 he joined the O.T.C. McGill and remained in training till the spring of 1915 when he graduated in theology. In June of that same year he was appointed chaplain to the Canadian Mounted Rifles and specially ordained in Rosemount Presbyterian Church to the duties of chaplain in the Canadian Army. After about a month with the troops in Valcartier Camp he sailed for England in July, 1915. After serving with the Mounted Rifles he was transferred to No. 4, Canadian General (Toronto University) Hospital, for service in the East, and spent the winter in 1915 and 1916 in Salonica. After being invalided home he was attached to the 3rd Division Artillery and then to the Canadian Convalescent Hospital at Epsom as senior chaplain.

While at Epsom he received honorable mention and was promoted to the rank of major. In 1917, he was transferred to Seaford as senior chaplain and then to France as senior chaplain to the Canadian Forestry Corps where he remained till the spring of 1919.

After assisting in the organization of the letters that were sent to all the ministers of Canada advising them of the return of the soldiers to the different churches at home, he returned to Canada in May of that year. In the fall of 1919 he was called to Montreal to organize a religious survey of the city in which all denominations took part.

In April, 1920, Mr. McConnell accepted a unanimous call to his present charge. During his stay in Leamington he became convener of religious education for the Presbytery, and also for the synod of Hamilton and London, where he has been always active in young people's work.

Petes Won The Second Half-War Vets Were Beaten By Brantford

LOCALS TOOK SECOND SERIES BY TRIMMING COBOURG SATURDAY

Heavy Hitting Featured One Sided Game. Locals Won Second Half with Ease.

SCORE WAS 11 TO 1.

The outcome of the Belleville-Kingston game mattered not at all for the Petes landed on the Cobourg nine here Saturday and trimmed them up to the tune of 11 to 1 and the visitors were extremely lucky to get the 1. The victory gave the locals the honors of the second half of the schedule by two clear games and they will now play off with Belleville for the Big Four title.

The Petes on Saturday turned in a game of real championship form and showed a smooth working aggregation that had Cobourg baffled all the way. They were particularly good in their offensive and landed on the offerings of three Cobourg twirlers for sixteen hits, eight of which went for extra bases. Swanston and Wolfe each had a triple, double and single in four trips to the pan while Ansaldo hit three times in five times up and Collins doubled and tripled in three official appearances. In the field the Petes played a great game taking everything that came their day. An excusable error in the eighth gave Cobourg the run that robbed Heckman of a shut out, a runner passing in front of Helson caused him to lose the ball.

Though Cobourg collected ten hits they were kept widely scattered and snappy work on the part of the Petes cut off several runners after they had got on the bases. Seven of them were turned back via the strike out route.

The Cobourg players had plenty of opportunity to show what they could do in the field and on the whole they did their work well. Derry in particular had a big day in center field taking five flies, his bad throw to third, however, went as an error.

Heckman went the whole distance on the rubber for the Petes. He was never in trouble at any time and took things rather easy. He fanned seven without issuing a walk but gave Schaffer a free ticket in the ninth when he was hit by a pitched ball. In addition to turning in a first class game himself he received first class support from his team mates.

J. Kenny started for the visitors but was touched for five hits in the first five innings. Every one went for extra bases and every man to hit either scored or drove in a run. He was derricked at the end of the fifth and Jahren went in. The Gull Lake boy fared even worse than his predecessor and was banged for nine hits in two innings for a total of six runs. He follew Kenny and Schaffer took up the burden for the last inning. He got away with two hits and no runs. Kenny fanned one and Jahren walked one.

First Inning.

Cobourg—Skitch lined to Heckman. Turpin grounded to Heckman. Drennan hit to deep short and beat the throw. J. Kenny sent a highy fly to Comolli. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Peterboro—Legon made first on Drennan's error. Wolfe sacrificed Legon to second. Ansaldo hit to left for two sacks and Legon scored. Swanston grounded to Drennan, Ansaldo going to third on the play. Comolli grounded to short. One run, one hit, one error.

Second Innings.

Cobourg— Derry grounded to Heckman. T. Kenny struck out. Jackson grounded to Comolli, Heckman covering the bag. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Peterboro—Heckman flied to J. Kenny, Helson fanned and Johnston flied to Skitch. No runs, no hits no errors.

Third Inning.

Cobourg — Jahren struck out. Schaffer hit through the box. Skitch hit to Helson forcing Schaffer at second. Turpin struck out. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Peterboro—Collins got two bases on a hit to center. Legon flied to left, Jahren making a nice catch. Collins, however, went to third when Jahren threw badly to second. Wolfe hit to deep left but was out trying to stretch it into three sacks, Collins scoring on the hit. Ansaldo flied to Derry. One run, one hit, one error.

Fourth Inning.

Cobourg—Drennan flied to Ansaldo. J. Kenny hit to second, Johnston made a good attempt to get it but made a bad throw when forced to throw from the ground. J. Kenny stole second. Derry and Kenny struck out. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Peterboro—Swanston hit a Texas Leaguer which bounced over Derry's head, Swanny getting three bases. Drennan scooped up Comolli's hit, Swanston scoring on the play. Heckman flied to Schaffer. Helson flied to Derry. One run, one hit, no errors.

Fifth Inning.

Cobourg—Jackson flied to Heckman. Jahren struck out. Schaffer hit through the box. Skitch doubled to left. Turpin flied to Legon. No runs, two hits, no errors.

Peterboro—Johnston grounded to Turpin. Collins hit to deep centre for three bases. Legon bunted, going to first when Kenny tried to get Collins at the plate and failed. Legon stole second. Wolfe grounded to third base. Legon went to third and made home on Schaffer's over throw to third. Ansaldo flied to centre. Two runs, one hit, one error.

Sixth Inning.

Cobourg—Drennan was safe on Johnston's error. Legon made a pretty catch of J. Kenny's long fly. Derry struck out. T. Kenny grounded to Helson. No runs, no hits, one error.

Peterboro — Jahren replaced J. Kenny, Kenny going to left fleid. Swanston hit over third base. Comolli singled to left field. Heckman sacrificed. Helson singled through second, both runners coming in. Johnston flied to second. Collins walked. Legon flied to J. Kenny. Two runs, three hits, no errors.

Seventh Inning.

Cobourg— Jackson grounded to Ansaldo. Jahren flied to Collins. Schaffer flied to Ansaldo. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Peterboro—Wolfe hit to right field but was out when he slid over second. Ansaldo singled and stole second. Swanston doubled through third scoring Ansaldo. Comolli doubled scoring Swanston. Heckman hit a Texas Leaguer and went to second on an attempt to get Swanston at the plate. Helson flied to left field. Johnston singled to centre scoring Heckman. Collins popped to Jahren. Four runs, six hits, one error.

Eighth Inning.

Cobourg — Skitch grounded to short. Turpin hit over short. Drennan singled to centre and Skitch was caught at third when Wolfe made an excellent throw. Drennan scored when Helson let J. Kenny's grounder got away from him. Kenny was forced at second on Derry's tap to short. One run, two hits, one error.

Peterboro—Legon grounded to Turpin. Wolfe singled over second. Ansaldo singled. Swanston sacrificed to Schaffer. Comolli flied to centre. No runs, two hits, one error.

Ninth Inning.

Cobourg—T. Kenny singled. Jackson flied to Turner, who doubled Kenny at first. Jahren doubled. Schaffer was hit by a pitched ball. Skitch singled but a great throw by Wolfe caught Jahren at the plate. No runs, three hits, no errors.

LAKEVIEWS WON IN EXTRA INNINGS

Seven Inning Game Went Nine Before The Adanacs Were Defeated.

The Lakeviews had to go two extra innings to defeat the Adanacs 5 to 4 in a fast game played at the Exhibition grounds yesterday afternoon as part of the Derry Day celebrations. The game was scheduled to go seven frames but the teams were tied 4 to 4 and two more innings were needed to decide the winner. Whitehouse started for the Lakeviews, but was relieved in the fifth by Moore. Both turned in a good game, allowing nine hits between them. The Lakeviews played errorless ball behind their heavers. Hardill did the gunning for the Adanacs and struck out six. He allowed six hits.

The players were:

Lakeviews—Cameron, ss; L. LeBarr, 1b; Moore, 2b, p; Whitlow, cf; Collins, c; Whitehouse, p, 2b; Halliday, 3b; McIntyre, lf; J. LeBarr, rf.

TRUNKS TRIMMED KINGSTON PONIES

Ponie's Chances to Beat Peterboro Went Blooey On Saturday Afternoon.

KINGSTON, Aug. 14.—(Special)—Solid hitting, coupled with very poor work in the field by Kingston lost the game Saturday afternoon to Belleville by the score of 8 to 3 and Kingston's chances of tying with Peterboro went into oblivion. The game was a rather listless affair, with bonehead plays on the bases and field marking Kingston's play. Belleville hit hard and timely and garnered two home runs while Kingston, apart from three innings were never very dangerous, though Jack Williams' wildness was the cause of his being removed from the game.

The Belleville line up was shifted with Weir playing second and "Peenie" Mills in the field. In the first inning Brownscombe cracked a mighty homer to left and in the fourth inning two runs were scored on very poor judgment of a fly by Nicholson. He allowed it to drift over his head. The visitors followed with four runs in the sixth when they bombarded Gallagher, and added another in the ninth on Ross' homer.

Kingston scored one run on Somerville's homer in the fourth, tallied another in the sixth, and their final counter in the eighth. Oulette finished the last four innings and pitched good ball while Gallagher was wild and was hit hard. The umpiring was fair, though Large who officiated on the bases called some rank decisions.

Teeple made several errors at short before he was removed and Twigg sent in his place. The latter, playing his first game at short turned in a good game, but the former's errors had been too costly. Cherry in left field did some marvellous catching even though hobbling about with a charley horse. The teams were:

Belleville — Ross, cf; Brownscombe, ss; Weir, 2b; W. Mills, lf; H. Mills, 1b; J. K. Williams, 3b; Casey, rf; Hagerman, c; Williams, p; Oulette, p.

PETES HAD THE BEST OF DOUBLE TILT WITH OSLERS OF TORONTO

Morning Game Ended in a Tie But Afternoon Fixture Was All for Peterboro.

TWO GOOD GAMES.

The Petes came from behind to tie the score 9 to 9 in the morning fixture with the Oslers yesterday and then stepped out in the afternoon fixture and walloped the visitors to the tune of 5 to 1. The Oslers put a fast team on the field and played some snappy ball. The Petes on the other hand injected several costly errors in both games but great work on the mound saved them.

Chambers, who played with the Bowmanville Central Leaguers last year did the hurling for the visitors for the crutain raiser and turned in a first class game. McElroy went the whole game for the home squad. He was a little wild at times but with decent support would have held the visitors scoreless. He struck out eight, allowed but five hits and walked five. Frankie Collins was behind the bat for the Petes for the first time this year.

The Oslers started off with a god lead but the Petes caught up to them in the fifth. The visitors grabbed a bigger lead in the seventh and the Petes again tied the score. The locals missed a fine chance to grab the game in the last inning when they had men on second and third bases with but one out. Helson's best effort was an easy pop fly, Johnston drew a walk filling the bases and Shaughnessy fouled two, after getting three balls and two strikes, before he finally struck out.

The Petes had the edge all the way in the second game taking a three-run lead in the second frame when two bad errors helped them along. The Petes crammed three of their four errors into the third frame to give the visitors their one run but from then on played first class ball.

"Punch" Derry went the whole road for the locals and turned in a good steady game. He kept the hits well scattered and was seldom in danger. He fanned four and walked one. Spring started for the Oslers and went six frames. The Petes found him for hits when they were needed most and made all seven count. He was relieved by Lewis who finished the game and was touched for four hits and one run. Bridel ended the game when he was caught at the plate trying to stretch a three bagger into a homer.

HASTINGS DEFEATED BY CAMPBELLFORD

Play-Off Ball Clash Ended In Score of 10 to 6.

HASTINGS, Aug. 14.—The game between Campbellford and Hastings, stopped by rain on the opening day of the league and interrupted again by another downpour two weeks ago, was played off at this village Saturday afternoon and once more the Campbellford nine confirmed the habit of winning that they acquired in all their games recently. Hastings played as earnestly as if the contest was to decide the possession of the championship cup. Every member of the team put his best foot foremost and Caldwell in the box showed wonderful improvement but the visitors won by bunching their hits. Their work in the field too, was excellent, the single error of West being the only black mark against them, but if ever a misplay was excusable that one certainly was. In the ninth Caldwell sent a high fly to centre which West reached after a long run but just as he got it he stepped into a hole and the jar caused him to drop the ball. Weston struck out in the second the first time he has fanned this season, but he made up for this slip by making two singles and a double before the game ended.

The score was 10 to 6 and the game was tied by the visitors in the eighth as neither side scored in the ninth the Campbellford team went to bat in the tenth. It was then that they did their best work of the afternoon. When five runs had been scored the Hastings team quit as some of their players had to leave to catch the train for Peterboro.

The Hastings team were strengthened by two men from Toronto, Foster who played short and Bailey who held down the third sack, both having been pressed into service for the occasion. Both did excellent work but Foster will probably return to Toronto announced that there are men in the Northumberland League not so easy as he appeared to imagine at the start.

Running along right field on the Hastings diamond there is a deep gully. If the ball ever goes over the edge of this it rolls until it strikes the rising ground on the other side. In his first time up the recruit from Toronto managed to place the ball in this declevity. It was a clean three base hit but Foster sought to stretch it into a home run. Shillinglaw recovered the ball and threw it to Brady who was playing centre, Brady relayed it to Holmes and the Campbellford second baseman pegged it to Hume, who was catching. It was a surprised base runner who as he slid head first for the plate, was tagged out while he was still his own length shor of his goal.

In the seventh Foster was the victim of another sharp play by the visiting team. After reaching first on a safe hit he wandered off the bag like a man in his sleep but he woke up with a start when Weston rapped hi min the ribs with the ball, Brady, in the box, getting the assist.

There were some changes in the lineup of Campbellford. Nesbitt was away but Hume took his place behind the bat and nothing got away from him. West pitched the first four innings, Brady taking center and Shillinglaw was shifted to right. He made two good catches each time saving the ball from going into the gully.

Hastings scored one in the first on a triple by N. Scriver and a single by Cruickshank. Singles by Horwood, C. Scriver, N. Scriver and Harrington netted them another in the second. In the fifth they ran up a tally of four on hits by Harrington, Burkholder, Caldwell and Bailey, helped by Fosters base on balk. That ended their run geeting and for th remainder of the game they were able to garner only three hits.

Campbellford made their first run in the second when Holmes tripled to right and Brady sent him in with a single. West hit safley but Shillinglaw was out on a long fly to right. Howard caught West of the bag by a quick throw to first.

In the fourth Weston singled and Brady, sending a roller to the pitcher, reached first while the latter was throwing out Weston. West doubled to left and Brady scorad.

In the eighth the visitors tied the score when Blakely singled to right. Cowell, Eagleson and Holmes hit safely and Weston doubled. Blakely not only made two safe hits, but again demonstrated that he can cover as much ground as any man in the league. His fielding record for the game was three put-outs and two assist.

The score was still tied at the end of the ninth but the visitors in that frame turned the contest into a regular orgy of slugging. Every man who faced Caldwell made a clean hit. Eagleson, first man up, singled, Hume doubled to right centre, Holmes was safe, Weston singled to right, stole second and was sent in when Brady hit safely. With four runs in, Brady on first and no one out, Hastings gave up.

H. J. Wood accompanied by his wife and son, motored from Young's Point to see the game and was by unanimous vote elected to umpire on ball and strikes. His decisions were fair to both sides. W. H. Chapman officiated on the bases

G.W.V.A. ELIMINATED BY BRANTFORD IN RACE FOR ONTARIO FOOTBALL CUP

Local Footballers decisively Beaten by the Massey Harris Team on Saturday.

SCORE WAS 6 TO 1.

By trimming the local G.W.V.A. team 6 to 1 the Massey Harris eleven of Brantford won the right to meet Hamilton in the semi-finals for the Ontario Football Cup. The game was played Saturday at Riverside Park immediately following the baseball game and a goodly number of the local sports fans were on hand for both the contests.

In the first period the game was fast and well played with the visitors holding but a slight edge though they outscored the Vets by 2 to 1. It was in the second period that the strength and speed of the Brantford team showed for they played rings around the locals and scored practically at will. Though the locals made numerous raids into Brantford territory at many stages of the game they ran into a stone wall defence and time and again were robbed of opportunities to shoot at the very last moment. The visitors on the other hand had the finish to their play which the locals lacked and it was just that extra polish that made the Brantford boys a superior team and won the game for them by a decided margin.

Though not called upon to make any spectacular plays the steady and consistent work of Brown and F. Gilbert on the visiting defence was one of the features of the game. Baker, Taylor and Hingley were the stars of the visiting forward line. Taylor netted four and Bingley two for the Telephone City boys while the neat combination and accurate passing of Baker figured in five of the six counters.

Hurle, J. Wade and Sharman divided the few honors of the local team though Charlie Griffin turned in a fine game in the nets. Though still suffering fom the injuries sustained in the game at Brantford his work between the sticks left but little to be desired and except for his stellar display the score would have been much bigger than it was.

The Game.

Taylor kicked off for Brantford and for the first few minutes the play was even. Crowe cleared for the Petes when the visitors looked dangerous on their first raid and Sharman carried the ball back for the Vets but without results. Brantford got down again but off sides spoiled the play. Brown took the kick on hands against Blowers and his forward line carried it down with a fine exhibition of passing only to have Taylor shoot over the bar. On the return Sharman centered nicely only to have the forwards miss an open goal. A foul kick from close in gave Brantford an opportunity but the ball hit the upright. The Vets came back and forced a corner which Stone saved.

The Brantford forwards carried the ball right back and Baker placed a nice pass right into the goal mouth for Taylor to head the ball into the nets, giving Griffin no chance to save. The Petes lost two good opportunities on one occasion drawing Stone right out of the nets for a very narrow save. A great pass from Blowers to Wade gave the Vets' center forward a chance to equalize and he beat Stone with a great shot from close in. For a few minutes the Petes had the best of the play and a pass from Sharman to Chambers gave a grand chance to score only to have the ball go over the top by inches. Baker and Taylor again carried the ball down the field and half a minute before half time drew Griffin out of his goal for Taylor to score the second counter.

In the second period everything went Brantford's ways. Griffin saved twice and Brantford made raid after raid into Peterboro territory. The Petes got in one shot when Wade drew Stone out of the nets to make a save. Monks got the ball on the rebound but was not quite quick enough. Brantford carried it right back and Baker again passed to Taylor who scored from close in. The Vets came back and forced a corner which Monks placed well but Stone again made a great save. Brantford fell back to a defensive game and though a great deal of the play was in their territory the Vets could not get through to score. The locals forced two corners but without result.

In the last twenty minutes the visitors went at in great shape scoring three times. Taylor netted their fourth counter taking a rebound from a shot by Moss. A minute or two later Hingley scored on a pass from Baker and the same pair came right back for the sixth tally with less than five minutes left to play.

The players were

Brantford—Stone, goal; Brown and F. Gilbert, backs; H. Gilbert, Marshall and Proctor, halves; Moss, Hingley, Taylor, Mercer and Baker, forwards.

G.W.V.A.—Griffin, goal; Crowe and Bishop, backs; Hurle, Burrows and Blowers, halves; Sharman, Dyer, Wade, Chambers and Monks, forwards.

Referee—

Referee—Hugh Niven of Peterborough.

KEENE DECAMPED WITH GEORGE ST.

Cogneawagas And Keene Now Tied For Second Half Honours.

In a hard-fought battle at Keene last evening the home team emerged the winners over George street by the narrow margin of one run. Delahaye, twirling for the Sunday School boys, ran into hard luck in the first inning, 4 runs being scored mainly on wild heaves by his teammates after he had retired the first two himself. The Peterboro boys steadied down and held Keene to two counters for the remaining four innings and managed to shove five ringers over themselves. The game was called on account of darkness at the end of the fifth, with Keene one to the good, but the George streeters going strong and a few more innings might have reversed the results. This leaves Keene and Cognawagas tied for second half honors.

The players were:

Keene—C. Nelson, 3b; G. O'Dette, ss; Hawkins, c; T. Fletcher, 2b; C. Robertson, p; M. Renwick, rf; M. McCarthy, cf.

George Street—A. Delahaye, lf R. Miller, ss; Outram, 2b; Elliott, 1b; C. Miller, c; Shield, cf; J. Baird, 3b; A. Baird, rf; H. Delahaye, p.

Score by innings:

STRANGE FIGHT OVER WAR-TIME PAINTING

CINNCINNAI, Aug. 12.—Love, money and a passion for art!

All figure in a strange fight over a war-time painting now reposing in a bank vault here.

Mysterious forces of two continents are involved in a determined attempt to wrest it from its present owner, Mrs. Charles F. Stewart, wealthy Cincinnati society woman. But who they are, no one seems to know.

And very little is known about the portrait. Perhaps it is from the brush of some famous artist. Perhaps it is just a mothers keepsake.

Mrs. Stewart bought it for $300 three years ago. Now she refuses $30,000.

The painting shows a handsome French army officer—a Major des Albers, by name. At the front the major's face was badly disfigured by shrapnel. Surgeons remolded it. But the features were not the same as when the handsome officer left for the front.

That is why, it is though, his family—if it is they who are battling for the portrait's ownership—desires to recover the painting.

Several efforts to get Mrs. Stewart to part with it were made before John D. McIlhenny, Philadelphia multi- millionaaire, entered the case. He wanted it, he explained, for the Des Albers family. Behind it is a sentimental value—a mother's desire for the portrait of her boy before his face was remade. Mrs. Stewart refused.

But Mrs. Stewart's friends declare she will be willing to relinquish her claim if she can ascertain positively that it is the mother who wants the painting and not some speculator.

The G.W.V.A. footballers lost a brand new football in the game with Brantford at Riverside Park on Saturday. The ball went into the river and was brought back but that is the last the Vets saw of it. It can be identified.

After giving a written guarantee to the O.F.A. that they would finish the season with the B. & D.F.A. the Cockshuts of Brantford were reinstated by the provincial body. This does not raise the suspension of the three players of the Cockshut club.

LEANDER OARSMEN ARRIVE IN CANADA

Famous English Crew Will Take Part In The Toronto Exhibition.

MONTREAL, August 14 (Canadian Press). — Fifteen bronzed oarsmen, members of the famous Leander Rowing Club, arrived in Montreal last night with the liner Doric, and were welcomed by a number of prominent men as they stepped from the gangplank.

The Leander crew left at 11 p.m. for Toronto, where they will participate in the regattas to be held in connection with the Canadian Exhibition.

The Leanders were met by a distinguished gathering of Canadian sportsmen, including the Hon. Joseph E. Thompson, Speaker of the Ontario Legislature, and past president of the Canadian Amateur Oarsmen Association; E. J. Laidlaw, president of the Argonaut Athletic Club, Toronto; F. J. Mulqueen, president of the Canadian Amateur Oarsmen's Association; Dr. M. M. Crawford, Len. Johnston, of the Lachine Rowing Club; and A. P. Kertland, representing the Eastern Rowing Association.

After exchanging courtesies the whole party left the steamer to make arrangements for the transportation of their boat, which was sent by the same train for Toronto.

C. M. Pitman, coach of the crew, said that all his men had been in strict training during the whole voyage, and he expressed confidence in the team that they would come through with flying colours when the test came.

A BIG JUVENILE GAME TOMORROW

Sacred Heart and Maple Leafs Play at Riverside Park.

MIDGET GAME OFF

Sacred Heart and Maple Leafs will play at Riverside Park tomorrow evening. The game will start at six o'clock, with Umpires Kay and LeBarr in charge.

A win for Sacred Heart will give them the second half. To stay in the hunt for the second half, the Leafs must win this game ,and also defeat Hillcrests. With so much at stake, the teams should provide an interesting contest, tomorrow evening.

The Midget game between Curlers and Sacred Heart billed for this evening was called off at noon, on account of the weather, and will be played on Thursday evening.

The trip to Port Hope for the Bantam Curlers has been postponed for one week.

Curlers and Kiwanis Bantams play at King Edward school grounds on Wednesday evening. Rotary and Belmonts meet at Sacred Heart on Friday evening.

LACROSSE

It was reported yesterday that Leaside intermediates would play at Hastings on Friday afternoon in the first semi-final round in that series.

Marmora Juniors and Saint Simons of Toronto are playing a sudden death game here on Thursday afternoon to decide their round of the junior semi-finals.

Oshawa juniors surprised Riverside. of Toronto yesterday evening beating them by 8-4 on their own grounds after losing at home 6-4. Garrison in goal put up a star game.

FLED FROM FLAMES IN NIGHT CLOTHES

TORONTO, Aug. 14.—(Canadian Press).—Two automobiles and one motor truck were destroyed, three families were forced to flee in scanty clothes, one man was burned about the arms, and a large stock of groceries and foodstuffs suffered smoke spoilage by fire that broke out in three large two storey frame sheds on North Yonge Street early this morning.

With the aid of the police and neighbours grown-ups and children, about twenty in all, got out safely. One mother had to go through a pall of smoke to rescue her baby. The damage amounted to about $25,000.

NEW GERMAN CHANCELLOR WAS VISITOR IN TORONTO

TORONTO, Aug. 14.—(Canadian Press).— Dr. Gustave Stresmann, the new German chancellor visited Toronto in September, 1912, staying at the Queen's Hotel, it is recalled by H. Feilmann of the Canadian Translation Bureau. On the occason of his Canadian visit, Herr Stresmann, a member of the National Liberal party, during the Hohenzollern regime, officially represented the German Imperial Government in what proved an abortive attempt to end the customs war then existing between Germany and Canada.

Meringue

There is no mystic incantation to pronouce over meringue making. The result may be ethereal, but the procedure is of the earth earthly—by main force and elbow grease.

Eggs for a meringue MUST be beaten with a whisk. A dover beater or churn beater can not whip the amount of air into them necessary to make a perfect meringue economically. One egg well beaten will "go" farther than three half beaten. And the eggs MUST be fresh.

The temperature of the whites has little effect on their beating properties, but the whites must be unclouded. A tiny bit of the yolk prevents them from beating well. If when breaking the egg and separating the white from the yolk the yolk is broken and some does penetrate the white this must be removed. To do this dampen a clean soft cloth and dip into the yolk. Do this until every trace of yolk is removed. The yolk clings to the cloth.

The beating of an egg is a delightful example of "physical change' without 'chemical change.' Chemical change of course takes place as soon as sugar is added, but the action of air on the albumen causes no 'chemical change.'

Simple Meringue.

This is used for pie and pudding frostings.

One egg white, 1 tablespoon cold water, ⅛ teaspoon salt, tablespoons sugar.

Separate white from yolk carefully. Put white on a platter. Add water and salt and beat with a whisk till stiff and dry. Beat in sugar and use as desired. Bake in a moderately hot oven for six minutes. This amount of meringue will cover a pie or pudding eight inches in diameter.

Special Meringue.

Two eggs (whites), 1 tablespoon water, ½ cup powdered sugar, 1 tablespoon lemon juice.

Put eggs sugar and water in a deep platter or shallow bowl. Beat with a whisk until stiff enough to hold its shape when pulled up with beater. Add lemon juice slowly beating constantly. Bake ten minutes in a slow oven. This makes a heavy meringue.

Either of these meringues can be spread evenly, piped with a pastry tube or puffed with a fork for baking.

Kisses of Meringue for Dessert.

Three eggs whites, ¾ cup granulated sugar, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla, ⅛ teaspoon salt.

Beat whites on a large platter till stiff. Gradually beat in sugar. This mixture must be beaten till it keeps its shape when dropped from a spoon. Cover a damp board with old-fashioned foolscap paper. Drop mixture from a large spoon onto paper, shape smooth with spoon. Bake three-quarters of an hour in a slow oven.

The salt should of course be added to the whites when beginning to beat. Add vanilla with last bit of sugar. When meringues are done remove from paper and put two together. The bottoms of the 'kisses' will be sticky and stay together. Or remove from paper and scoop out the soft inside and return shell to oven for a few minutes. To serve fill with fresh fruit and whipped cream or ice cream.

BUSH FIRES REPORTED IN KINGSTON DISTRICT

KINGSTON, August 14. — Canadian Press. — Bush fires yesterday raged in several localities north and west of the city. Considerable damage has been done to line fences, standing grain and woods, though up to the present time there has been no report of any buildings having caught fire. Hundreds of farmers and villlagers in the different places have been kept busy fighting the flames. The worst outbreaks have been reported from Odessa, Tamworth, Northbrook and Doe Lake.

PREVENT MOTH DAMAGE.

STEWED MEATS.

All meats stewed and braised should be treated like boiled meats—first great heat, then a gentle simmering.

REPORT HOLD-UPS ON THE HIGHWAYS

Motorists Terrorized by Modern Dick Turpins Last Three Weeks.

TORONTO, Aug. 14.—(Canadian Press.)— According to report here, citizens travelling over highways of the province, particularly on the Niagara Peninsula, and Brantford and Hamilton roads, are being terrorized by a number of hold-ups and burglaries which have occurred during the last two or three weeks. Many stories are told by motorists and others of masked men confronting them on lonely sections of roads and demanding that they stop and deliver their valuables. In some cases shots have been fired after motors that ignored the demand.

Provincial and county authorities have been asked to exercise special vigilance in regard to these modern Dick Turpins, whose methods, it is said, prove most of them to be amateurs at the game.

Canadian Stock Exchange And Mines — New York Stock Exchange and Curb Prices

Today's Quotations and Opinions and Reviews of the Markets.

NEW LOW FOR FRANCS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—(United Press.)— Consideration of the difficulties in budget with Germany refusing to make further reparations payments, resulted in another new low for francs in the early dealings, but stocks continued to show indifference to developments in foreign situation and price changes in the early dealings were without significance except where individual issues were affected by special news. United Rubber advanced over a point to 37 1-8, reflecting the six months' earnings statement which was better than many forecasts indicated. Rumors were circulated last week that the report would show nothing for the Common. Instead, the balance available for the issue equalled $2.22 a share. It is evident from this showing that dividend of preferred stock is not in danger. Unsettlement was created throughout the list toward the end of the first hour by heavy selling of the Oil stocks, resulting from the drastic cuts in gasoline prices announced in fifteen States by Standard of Indiana, Sinclair, Producers and Refiners, Marlan, Cosden and Phillips bore the brunt of the pressure, new lows for the year being established in some instances. Refining companies stand to lose heavily as a result of the sweeping reductions in gasoline prices. Standard of Indiana will be hard hit as it is the largest marketer of gasoline in the west and middle west, but it is traditional that a product does not remain below cost for any great length of time. General opinion seems to be that the so-called gasoline price war will not last more than a few weeks. Washington is already deluged with protests from small companies. It is claimed the big companies could weather a prolonged price war, but that the smaller companies would be forced into bankruptcy.

Predictions from well informed sources of a further cut in mid-continent Crude Oil alone brought another selling wave into the oil group in the late morning. Sinclair reached a new low at 19 3-4, Cosden 30, Producers and Refiners at 28 5-8 and White Oil at 22 1-4. Standard Oil of New Jersey and California, however, met support well above the previous lows for the year. In other sections of the list selling was readily checked before the levels of resistance established in the last two months were approached, but no attempt was made to further the recovery. Bullish operators apparently awaiting developments in the gasoline price war.

TROOPS OF FREE STATE SURROUND AND ARREST REPUBLICAN LEADER

Eamonn De Valera Captured in Market Square Under Sensational Circumstances — Soldiers Appeared While Irish Chief Was Addressing Meeting in an Election Campaign.

FIRED OVER CROWD

ENNIS, County Clare, Ireland, August 15. — (Canadian Press). — Eamonn De Valera, Republican leader, was arrested by Free State troops here to-day on his appearence to address a Republican meeting in the election campaign.

The arrest was made under sensational circumstances. De Valera was addressing a meeting in the Market Square when Free State troops came on the scene and fired several volleys over the heads of the crowds. A stampede occurred and several arrests were made.

Troops then surrounded platform and took the Republican leader into custody.

Tumultuous Welcome

When De Valera appeared on scene there were many thousands of people around the platform and he was given a tumultuous welcome.

Then a voice was heard shouting, "Soldiers are coming," and immediately a large body of militia with armored cars surrounded the platform.

FREEZE MOTH THAT IS DRAWN TO FLOUR

WASHINGTON, Aug.15.—(By Canadian Press).—A miller at Williston, N. D., has discovered that he can freeze the Mediterranean moth, the larvæ of which get in flour, more economically than to gas it. The usual way is to give the insect gas, but the Department of Agriculture likes the natural remedy.

Last winter the miller asked the Weather Bureau to notify his company whenever a temperature of 20 degrees or lower for at least several hours could be expected.

As soon as weather sufficiently cold was forecast the company put out all fires and opened doors and windows, and all the moths and most of the eggs were frozen.

DETECTIVE TO EXAMINE BANK ROBBER SUSPECT

MONTREAL, Aug. 15.— (Canadian Press.) — Questions by police failed to-day to elicit anything relating to the Toronto bank messenger hold up from three men arrested as suspects last night. The men are said to have stoutly denied any connection with the crime. Suspects will be examined by a Toronto detective, who will arrive here to-night for that purpose.

SUSPECTED MAN AGAIN BAILED

Bank Messengers Failed to Identify Detroit Man Who is Remanded.

TORONTO, Aug. 15. — (Canadian Press).—William Morton, of Detroit, charged with connection with the recent robbery of bank messengers here, appeared in the police court here to-day and was again remanded for eight days, being released on the renewal of his bail of $15,000. Mr. Morton, after this mornings hearing, intimated that he was being put to considerable expense and inconvenience in regard to the present case and his family, including his small children were suffering from the ignominy of it. When seen by the bank messengers a week ago, Morton was not idntified by any of them as being among the robbers.

MOTHER SAYS "Y" CAUSED DOWNFALL

George King, 19, of Hamilton, who was found guilty of murder by a coroner's jury investigating the death of Eric Johnson, was led astray by pool-playing in the Y. M. C. A., his mother claims.

The Y. M. C. A. is investigating the charge and has already denied that there is any objectionable influence brought to bear on a young man through the game as played at the "Y." Asked why the pool room is not closed to outsiders, one of the officials said "it would not be a paying proposition to exclude everyone but Association members."

"The Peterborough Y. M .C. A. does not permit outsiders to use the billiard room provided for members," stated G. H. Roper, General Secretary when interviewed to-day. "We are very careful to see that no bad influences are brought in contact with the boys. To open the rooms to persons not members would be to sacrifice principle to desire for gain. Our rules are very strictly carried out in this matter.

The Peterborough officials are confident that the influences encountered in the Peterboro branch are all for the good of the boys and young men, and they are doing their part to maintain the high place which this Branch holds in the organization.

NEW CABINET WILL FOLLOW OLD PROGRAM

Speech in Reichstag Indicates Same Principles That Guided Cuno—Warns French.

FURTHER CLASHES

BERLIN, Aug. 15. — (United Press) — Chancellor Stresemann's new coalition government appeared firmly in power to-day after its presentation to the Reichstag, yesterday and a strong vote of confidence by that body, a majority of the middle groups of public opinion seemed in full accord with the government and ready to back it against the communists and extreme reactionaries—the only groups in open opposition. Meantime the internal situation showed signs of calming despite new outbreaks yesterday in Acchen, Aix-La-Chapelle and in vicinity in which ten were killed and upwards of 100 wounded and extension of the strikes in the chemical and electrical industries at Frankfurter.

Downed Heckling

The new Chancellors opening speech in the Reichstag, during which he boldly downed communist heckling, showed the new government will follow out the same broad lines as the preceding cabinet of Dr. Wilhelm Cuno change in German governments indicates an end to Germany's power of resistance, the Chancellor said his new tax program was expected to ameliorate internal finances considerably and reiterated the policy that Germany considers the Rhine provinces as inviolate, regarding the Ruhr, Stresemann said it will always remain the soul of industry and a necessary symbol of the nations material accomplishments.

The Chancellor attributed internal confusion to a breaking of the popular nerve, "nothing is so bad for a nation as not to know its future." He said, "but a people with the great past of Germany need not fear we still have the power to carve our own destiny," throwing a warning to France, Stresemann said, it would not be safe to press the German people too far, disruption, he said, would mean Bolshevism, a person that would not halt within German borders."

New Ambassador

Dr. Cuno, it was reported, has been mentioned as new German ambassador for Washington, a post he probably would accept.

Berlin continued quiet to-day, after a minor clash in Frankfurter avenue, last night, in which one man was wounded severely when police fired on a crowd of demonstrators.

Bluffed Burglars

TORONTO, Aug. 15.—(Canadian Press)—Three armed men, masked and apparently well-informed, forced entrance sometime after midnight, to premises of Lakeshore and Country Club, on Toronto Hamilton highway, near Port Credit and banging of a door of private apartments of J. Pember, manager of Club, threatened to "finish him" if he did not hand over keys of rooms where valuable silvercups and other things were kept. Mr. Pember tried to get assistance by telephone, but found difficulty in getting a connection burglars finally got through his barricaded door and at same time Pember shouted in to the telephone "come quickly, there are armed robbers in the Club." The ruse worked and three men ran down the hallway and cleared away.

Prices.

The tendency of prices of commodities will in the long run continue to be toward the pre-war level, and that level may be re-established in the not very remote future. This is the published view of the Swiss Bank Corporation, whose predictions for some years have been almost clairvoyant.

It claims that high prices have been and are due to inadequate world production, which is slowly being remedied. Europe's production, it estimates, still is a fourth below normal.

LARGE CACHE OF DYNAMITE MENACED CITY

Boys Discover 27 Sticks of Explosive, Sufficient to Blow Up London, Ontario.

BOY EXPLODED ONE

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 15.—(Canadian Press).—Twenty-seven sticks of dynamite, sufficient to blow up the city of London were discovered by boys twenty feet east of Carfrae Crescent entrance to old traction bridge at 10.30 this morning. Two minutes later London south residences were rocked to their foundations when a 17-year-old lad who made the find purposely set off one of the sticks, escaping with his life only by great good fortune.

Citizens Excited.

Hundreds of excited citizens streamed out of their homes when the explosion occured. The police arrived five minutes later, and frightened residents could only be persuaded to return after the officers departed with the remaining 26 sticks.

Two dozen dynamite caps, were included in the discovery.

When the explosives were hidden, who put them there and for what reason are questions that baffle local detectives. Many theories have been advanced but all are based on conjecture.

NO COMPLAINTS OF POST OFFICE HERE

But Mercantile Firms in Dominion Say Samples Going Astray.

Upon complaint from many large mercantile firms in the Dominion that their samples were going astray in the hands of the postal authorities, investigation was undertaken by the Post Office Department.

The irregularities were most noticed in the case of tea samples, and the investigation showed that many of the employees are responsible for the petty thefts A strict warning against the continuance of this practice has been sent to every office in Canada.

No Complaints Here.

Asked regarding the matter this morning the local post office officials said there had been no complaints emanating from merchants or others in this district, and no trouble of this kind occurred in Peterborough.

The communication sent out by the Inspection Division officials says in part:

"A number of losses of this kind which have occurred would suggest that some postal employees appear to regard these samples as not being mail matter in the usual sense, and that abstracting them from the mails does not render the persons responsible liable to the same penalty as misappropriation of other classes of mail matter. This is a mistaken impression which may lead to very serious consequences for persons concerned."

It is further pointed out that abstraction of samples from the mails constitutes a theft under the criminal law, this being an indictable offence, and rendering the erring person liable to five years' imprisonment.

RECOVER 91 BODIES.

KEMMERER, Wyo., August 15 (Canadian Press).—Ninety-one bodies had been recovered this morning from the depths of the ill-fated Frontier Mine, where 134 miners were entombed by an explosion yesterday morning, according to an announcement this morning by J. D. Quealey, vice-president and general manager of the Kemmerer Coal Company, the owner of the mine.

Enthusiastic Over Crop Conditions in Western Provinces

Mr. Dawson Kennedy, who has just returned to the city after a six week's trip, during which he visited places in the Western provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, and British Columbia, is very enthusiastic about crop conditions.

Granted favourable weather between now and harvesting time, he thinks this year will produce a record crop.

Never in his experience, he says, has he seen such good wheat nor such fine cattle on the grass. In Alberta and Saskatchewan, in particular, the crops are in wonderful shape.

In Manitoba, conditions are not so good, owing, in his opinion, to the lack of suitable preparation of the land.

In some districts threshing has already commenced. A farmer in the Peace River section threshed a few stooks with a flail, which showed a yield of 64 pounds to the bushel, and about 40 bushels to the acre. This man has already cut 350 acres.

A 40-bushel-to-the-acre yield is anticipated in many districts in Saskatchewan, excessive rains have resulted in the flooding of a few lowlying fields, but the general outlook in the West this year is for a bumper crop.

DRAFT EVADER ESCAPED PLOT

Wanted in United States, But Becomes Storm Centre of Excitement Caused by Recent Killing.

EBERBACH BADEN, Aug. 15. —(United Press). — The attempted kidnapping of Grover C. Bergdoll, American draft evader and fugitive in the United States, threatened to become an international incident here to-day with Americans, Germans, French, Swiss and Russians all involved.

The latest developments included the disappearence of the Frenchman Sperber, who was quietly removed from the local hospital by Bergdoll and German Green Police in full uinform. It was reported that the removal of the Frenchman was caused by circulation of a threat that a band of seven French friends of wounded men were enroute here to rescue their comrade.

The Americans under arrest for connection with the alleged plot, C. H. Griffis of Hamilton, Ohio, and Victor Neilson of Chicago, continued to deny the existence of any plot but admitted they had met Sperber and the man killed by Bergdoll, Karl Schmidt many times in different cafes. Police revealed additional information when they said, they had found scratches in steering wheel of auto, in which the Americans were arrested the name "A. R. Bachon" followed by the initials "A. G. R. 5."

Griffis remained despondent in jail refusing to talk to anybody, Nielsen was defiant demanding his freedom in default of any conclusive proof that he was guilty of any crime. Meantime, German police investigaters were piecing together details of the attempt to overpower Bergdoll and spirit him away to Paris for deportation to America.

Bergdoll shot down and killed one man and wounded another last Friday night when several men concealed in his apartment, seized him in an attempted kidnapping. Two other men waiting outside in an old American army automobile with an American standing on the side, were arrested after being menaced by the crowd. German authorities said one was an American and the other a Russian prince. Both of Bergdoll's assailants were identified as Frenchmen in the service of the Americans. Bergdoll said the men seized him, but that he succeeded in breaking free and then drew a revolver and fired.

Bergdoll and his brother were the most notorious draft evaders in the United States during the war. Irwin served a sentence in prison and was only recently released to return to the home of his wealthy mother in Philadelphia. Grover made several attempts to escape and finally succeeded while on leave at his mother's

NO CANADIAN INVESTIGATION GAS SITUATION

Federal Government Has Not Been Requested for Action Regarding Motor Fuel Prices.

SIX MUST COMPLAIN

OTTAWA, Aug. 15.— (Canadian Press).—No federal investigation of the gasoline situation in Canada is likely in the immediate future at least. Inquiry in government circles to-day indicated that no inquiry is in progress nor has any request for action been received.

Under division of powers under the Canadian Federal system enforcement of laws regarding conspiracy in restraint of trade have been largely in hands of the provinces. At the last session an act was passed to provide for the investigation of combines, but administration of this law has not yet got under way. In fact, it was only last night that announcement was made that the Minister of Labor had been placed in charge of this branch of government activity.

It is to the Labor Department that an investigation of the kind being made in United States would naturally belong, but before the machinery of the new act could be put into force, it would be necessary for a formal complaint to be laid by six persons. Even then it is probable that some time must elapse before an inquiry could begin, as the organization under the new law is not yet completed.

Was His Conception of a True Gentleman

One Associated with the Late F. R. Yokome Takes Occasion to Praise his Many Virtues.

As one who was on intimate terms with Mr. F. R. Yokome for many years. I would like to add my tribute to the memory of a man who, while unassuming, and not seeking publicity, was one of Nature's gentleman, and for whom I came to have the most sincere respect. As a printer, it was my task for years to put his editorials into type. Mr. Yokome had a peculiar style in his penmanship, and until a person became accustomed to his writing, it was with difficulty it could be read. I feel safe in saying that thousands of his editorials have passed through my hands, and been put in type, to the edification of the general reader, the consternation of his political opponents, and the warm approval of others. He always endeavored to write good English, and would frequently change a sentence several times to get the particular shade of meaning he desired. While some of his political articles were of a caustic character, and appeared to be written in gall and wormwood, he always tried to avoid giving personal offence. Dickens was his model for style, and Dickens' Christmas Carols a book he said he always read at Christmas time, so "I may get the Christmas spirit."

His love for music was well-known and unaffected. One day after putting in type a particularly ponderous review of an organ recital, I asked him if the praise he was bestowing on some musical number was not a little far-fetched, and if he really felt the appreciation he expressed. He said: "I take more pleasure and real satisfaction out of a little good music than from the most elaborate dinner that can be served."

He was a lover of Nature, and passionately fond of trees. Nothing seemed to arouse his ire quicker than the mutilation of trees, and many a verbal castigation did he give the linemen who unmercifully trimmed the shade trees on some of our streets.

He had an eye for the lines of beauty and I have heard him say that a crooked piece of sidewalk or fence had the same effect on him as a discord in music.

One day after putting in type one of his editorials, which I felt was not his own personal views I asked him how he reconciled his written views with his spoken ones. He said "You must remember that the editor and F. R. Yokome are two distinct personalities.' When I expressed surprise he said "Look at our preachers—they preach what they are paid for.'

Mr. Yokome was a kindly-disposed and tender-hearted man, a lover of Nature and things beautiful in Nature and my ideal of what a true English gentleman should be. While he has passed on, his memory is still green with hundreds. He did not live in vain.

WALTER PETERS.

TABLET UNVEILED BY PETERBORO CITIZENS TO LATE F. R. YOKOME

Could Place 5,000 Laborers at Once in Northern Ontario

SUDBURY, Aug. 15.—(Canadion Press) — Superintendent Wilson of the C.P.R. (Algoma division) expressed opinion this morning that five thousand laborers could be placed in Northern Ontario, within 24 hours if they were available.

"Lumber camps," he said, "are simply marking time pending return of harvesters, while railway construction work is being seriously retarded by scarcity of men.

"Mining production reflects the Labor situation," he said.

DISPARITY IN PRICE OF "GAS"

Costs Five Cents Near Wells in Oklahoma and 32c. to Peterboro Consumers.

Gasoline sold at five cents gallon in Oklahoma yesterday, while Peterborough motorists paid in the vicinity of 32 cents.

It is extremely improbable that any reduction will take place in the price of Canadian gasoline irrespective of how much the price may drop in United States, Imperial Oil Company representatives say.

Many people who have used both American and Canadian grades of gasoline say that the Canadian product is superior to the United States gasoline.

The refineries across the line have not a market for all the by-products obtainable from the crude oil, and therefore did not refine the same grade as is done in Canada. Much of their high grade gasoline it is contended, is much inferior, being made up largely of naptha, kerosene and a poor grade gas, being, therefore, marketed at a lower price.

In this country every by-product is refined, and as there is a ready market for each product, the best result of the crude oil, gasoline, is necessarily of very high quality. Like the best of other products it naturally brings the best prices.

Distribution costs heavy

Another thing that tends to add to the expense of gasoline in Canada is the increased distribution cost. In New York state alone, practically three times as much gasoline is used as in Canada, and the transportation and distribution cost are much smaller. In Canada the product has to be transported over an area a hundred times greater.

Fear?

Nearly three billion dollars worth of new life insurance policies were taken out by Americans in the first six months of the year. This is partly fear that one's dependents will be unprovided for in event of the bread-winner's unexpected death. It is also a matter of thrift, and a highly sensible one, for life insurance seems to be the only way the average man can manage to save enough.

You bet them you'll die before they think you will. If unlucky, you win —or, rather, your heirs do. Life insurance is the most unselfish of all our many ventures. It is scientific civilization in its highest degree.

Impressive Service and Ceremony in St. John's Church Last Evening, When Archdeacon Davidson Dedicated Memorial to Departed Citizen Highly Honored and Respected.

OUTSTANDING LIFE

To perpetuate the memory of the late Ferman Richardson Yokome, who held during his long life in Peterborough city a warm spot in the hearts of all who enjoyed the privilege of his acquaintance, a handsome memorial tablet was unveiled and dedicated in St. John's Anglican church last evening.

Erected by the citizens of Peterborough in this city's oldest sacred edifice, where the honored departed worshipped for many years, the text carried by the tablet—"With good will doing service"—is eloquently expressive of a life devoted to duty and labor in community empire and christian interests, were worthy of emulation. For as a thoughtful journalist and editor of the evening Examiner the late Mr. Yokome ever wielded his pen in enhancement of practical christian charity and municipal and national endeavor, and ardently advocated co-ordination for moral uplift, social reform and city progress.

And so there, in the dear old edifice the late Mr. Yokome loved so well—the most church-like church in Canada he always characterized St. John's — it is peculiarly fitting that his fellow citizens should have honored him by keeping his memory ever green in erecting an appropriate memento to his recognized value as journalist and citizen.

On entering the church last night all eyes were arrested by a strikingly true-to-life oil painting of the late Mr. Yokome, hanging conspicuously in the porch.

A truly representative gathering, its personnel included representatives of the Federal and Provincial parliaments; judicial, professional, industrial, commercial and business interests. Members of the Examiner staff were also present in force.

Simple Ceremony

The service itself was simple but impressive and, conducted by Archdeacon J. C. Davidson, conveyed a sympathic touch which irresistibly appealed to all present and struck a responsive chord in the hearts of the congregation of some 300, as evidenced by their reverent attention to and participation in the proceedings.

The Peoples Chimes, in the securing of which the late Mr. Yokome took an active part, rang in the congregation by playing such appropriate hymns of invocation as "Abide With Me." The service consisted of prayers, hymns, reciting the Apostles' Creed, a well rendered solo by Miss Ruby Quartermaine, "O Canada," in which the congregation united in chorus and concluded with the National Anthem.

Archdeacon Davidson had the acceptable assistance of Rev. James Rollins of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, who read the lesson; which conveyed the thought of obedience and service, precepts always practised by the late Mr. Yokome—obedience to God and service also to him and to mankind in general.

The Unveiling

The unveiling party consisted of G. N. Gordon, member of the Federal House; W. H. Bradburn, Legislative member; Judge Huycke of Peterborough, Judge Ward of Port Hope; Mayor W. H. Taylor; Rev. James Rollins and Archdeacon J. C. Davidson. His Honor Judge Huycke removing from the tablet its covering, the Union Jack— emblematic of that patriotism which Mr. Yokome always vigorously advocated and demonstrated — the Archdeacon dedicated the memorial to the glory of God and in honor of him whom citizens so highly, esteemed; and he added, "may all who look upon it be inspired in their duty to God and to their fellow man."

A Bronze Tablet.

The tablet is the most outstanding

SWEDEN QUESTIONS IMPORT OF LEAGUE IN WORLD AFFAIRS.

As Long As United States, Germany and Russia Are Outside League It Lacks Universal Character.

STOCKHOLM Aug 15.—(Associated Press).—The Swedish government has just published its reply to the inquiry circulated by the Geneva Secretary of the League of Nations as to whether the various members of the League favored a special pact for general reciprocal guarantee, stating that, in its present form, and under present conditions, the government cannot endorse the proposal.

The Swedish reply says that as long as the United States, Germany and Russia are not members of the League it cannot be looked upon as having a universal character. Although the League has gained in power and authority during its three years of operation, it cannot yet be considered strong enough to deal effectively with the larger international problems which are at present menacing the peace of the world, and Sweden thinks that the guarantee system proposed would be of little value without the powerful authority that might come from universality of membership.

The government holds that if Sweden, with her stabilized relations with foreign countries, were to sign the guarantees proposed she would expose herself to comparatively larger risks than those of other states. It would be impossible, says the reply, for a Swedish government, under the present status of political unrest in the world, to propose to the representatives of the people that they enter into international obligations which might lead to military measure not compatible with Sweden's own vital interests and national independence.

Meanwhile, the government repeats a recommendation previously made to the effect that compulsory arbitration should be provided for all disputes of a judicial nature. And it hopes that conditions may develop to such a point in the future that any disturber of political peace will be considered the enemy of all nations, and that such a disturber will be punished by the joint action of all nations.

VIOLENCE MARKS PATH OF ARCTIC TRADERS

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Aug. 15.—(Associated Press).—Mystery ships plying the Siberian arctic laden with whisky, which is bartered to the natives for furs, still take their toll of murder in the piratical traffic, according to Captain Andrew Predersen here, who says he was recently an innocent member of such an expedition. The limit was actual murder, he says, when the Siberian government attempted to stop the traffic. Captain Predersen's story follows:

"We sailed out of Nome for what I was told would be a trading voyage to Siberia. I will not tell the names of the owners or skipper of the trader, for reasons best known to myself. At one port the boat took on a large quantity of furs, after getting the natives drunk on moonshine whisky. An official of the Siberian government came aboard to collect a tax and force payment for the furs. He was thrown overboard and shot. The last I saw of him he was clinging to a piece of ice. I do not know whether he died or was rescued.' On the cruise back I heard talk of murdering me because I knew too much. For nights I didn't sleep, and while I rested in the bunk I kept a revolver in my hand ready for action."

BRITISH EXPERT WOULD LIMIT AIR ARMAMENTS

LONDON, Aug. 15.— (Associated Press).—Major-General Sir Frederick Maurice, who was Chief of Military Operations for Great Britain during the war, declares in an article on the increase in the air forces of France and Britain that "it is high time the question of limitation of armaments is taken up seriously." He says that the British Government's recent decision to nearly double England's present air equipment meant a return to competition in armaments and that such competition is not likely to lead to improved relations between the two countries.

General Maurice emphasizes Great Britain's willingness to enter into a conference on the reduction of air armaments similar to the Washington conference on naval armaments. But for the present, he says, Britain must, out of self-protection, bring her air strength up to that of France. "France," says he, "is the only country which within the next ten years is likely to be able to consider seriously an attack upon England from the air. Today we are not in the most remote danger of invasion which comes by sea. Therefore, for the first time for centuries, the navy has ceased to be our first line of home defence, and that role has devolved upon the air force.

Why People Become Nervous and Run-down

Prominent Health Official Explains

By G. M. Lipinski, M. D.
Former Member of Philadelphia, U. S. A. Health Department

"The reason why persons who are weak, anaemic, nervous and run-down have gotten into that condition is because they are so constituted that they use up their vital energy and nerve force quicker than their bodies can replace it."

"Their systems fail to extract from the food they eat and retain in sufficient quantity those mineral elements without which the body is absolutely unable to create vital energy and nerve force. And so they go on expending, day by day, their vital energy without adequately replenishing the supply until their systems become completely run-down, their blood gets impoverished and their nerves are unstrung. The mineral elements which are essential in the creation of vital power are particularly calcium, potassium, sodium, phosphorus and iron. And these elements must be administered to those patients whose systems do not extract them in sufficient quantity in the natural way from their food That is why I always recommend Wincarnis for weak, anaemic, nervous and run-down patients. For Wincarnis contains all of these vitally necessary elements in a form that enables the system to readily assimilate them and which is acceptable to the most delicate stomach."

LONDON'S NIGHT LIFE MAY SOON SHINE AGAIN

LONDON, Aug. 15.— (Associated Press).—England needs a new law regulating public houses and places of entertainment, say the owners of London's hotels and dance halls, who have banded together to obtain less stringent laws in the matter of closing their places.

The present law, which is adhered to vigorously by the authorities, was passed in the reign of George II., in 1751, and requires that the dance places of all classes close at the stroke of midnight. Under this act the authorities may grant special licenses for specific places to remain open until later, but generally they stick to the Georgian habits, and night life in London comes to a halt at twelve o'clock.

At the present time many of the cafes in London have permits to remain open a few nights a week, but there is nothing certain in the present arrangements and they are changed as often as a new council is elected or the present members feel inclined.

The hotel and cafe proprietors will ask the London County Council to draw up a new law to be presented to parliament, and they have obtained the backing of the "Brighter London" movement committee which is seeking to make London a rival of gay Paris.

THE REICHSTAG GAVE THE NEW CHANCELLOR VOTE OF CONFIDENCE

Big Majority Voted In Favour Of The New Cabinet. Stresseman Outlined His Policy.

RHUR QUESTION.

BERLIN, Aug. 15. — (Canadian Press)—The new Cabinet headed by Chancellor Stresemann was given a vote of confidence yesterday by the Reichstag 240 deputies out of a total of 341 balloting in favor of the Government. Seventy-six votes were cast in opposition, while twenty-five deputies supposed to be of the Bavarian People's Party, abstained from voting. The other opposition came from the Nationalists and Communists.

The vote came after Dr. Stresemann had addressed the Reichstag and given that body the new government's viewpoint on the general situation, and particularly with reference to the crisis brought about by the occupation of the Ruhr and the Rhineland. He informed the members of the Chamber that Germany required complete restoration of her rights in the occupied territory as essential to the abandonment of passive resistance. The setting free of all German imprisoned in the district occupied by the French and Belgians and permission for the return of those who have been sent out of the occupied area also were made condition for a cessation of passive resistance.

Dr. Stresemann declared the change in the government was not a sign of weakness on the part of Germany. On the contrary the change had brought nto being the strongest cabinet, as regards any idea of permitting the violation of Germany, that the country had had since the republic was formed.

Passing almost immediately to the question of the occupation of the Ruhr in his address, the Chancellor said passive resistance was deeply rooted in the firm conviction of its justice. "This ,"he declared, "has been unequivocally recognized by the British Government, and we may assume that this statement of the British conception will find echo in France and Belgium.'

Asserting that Germany would welcome arbitration of the Ruhr question, Dr. Stresemann added: "We have no doubt that any impartial decision would restore to us our Ruhr territory and on the day this happens all forces will work to end the intolerable paralysis of the main artery of German economy.

"If the free and unrestricted administration of the Ruhr is assured us if the situation in the Rhineland; again is such as it is guaranteed by international treaties; if every imprisoned German in the Ruhr and the Rhineland is restored to liberty, then, after a breathing spell has been granted us, we shall be able, by exerting the whole economic force of the country to furnish means for settlement of the reparation question provided the burdens imposed upon us, permit of the existence of our economic life and the further development of our nation. The consolidation of our political and economic life is a preliminary condition for a resumption of the reparation deliveries which had to be discontinued owing to economic derangement caused by the invasion of the Ruhr.

Turning to domestic affairs, the Chancellor said that what most was demanded from the new Government was activity in restoring order. A promising beginning had been made by the Reichstag, he said, in the adoption last week, of the new taxation laws introduced by the Cuno administration. He appealed to all classes to support the gold loan, declaring that it was the Government's duty to satisfy the demand for a stable currency. The Government also regarded the demand for a stable basis of wages justified in view of the present circumstances. The Chancellor concluded by asking confidence from the Reichstag saying:

"He only is lost who surrenders himself. We have a right to believe in Germany's future, and it is our task to secure it.

Debate followed in which representatives of the four government parties approved the Chancellor's declaration and a vote of confidence in the new administration was given.

FINGERS AMPUTATED

Victim Of Leo Rogers Getting Around Again

NORTH BAY, Aug. 15—(Canadian Press).—Constable William McGovern, who was the first victim of Leo Rogers' rifle after the bandit had made his escape from the North Bay Court House, on May 11, last, is making his appearance on the street for the first time since receiving the wound. He was discharged from the hospital this week to resume his position with the local force.

JUVENILE COURT THREATEN PARENTS

Thirty Children Not Provided With School Facilities.

NORTH BAY, Aug. 15. — Conditions in which it is alleged over 30 children between the ages of seven and 16 are prevented from attending school through the failure of their parents to provide accommodation or a teacher, have been brought to the attention of the Nipissing District juvenile court authorities, and unless remedied may result in court proceedings against a number of Phelps Township residents on charges of "contributing to the delinquency of children."

Over a year ago residents of a certain section of Phelps requested and received a government grant for the erection of a school and construction of a road. Only the foundation of a log school was built and the remainder of the grant expended on roads. In the meantime children up to 12 years af age are going without any kind of education.

BOY CHOKED

HAMILTON, August 15 (Canadian Press). — Choking on food which is thought to have lodged in the windpipe, Joseph, three-year-old son of James and Mrs. Franchesdo Hughson Street North, died in the General Hospital yesterday afternoon, fifteen minutes after being admitted.

The child, it is said, ate a quantity of fried cakes, and suddenly fell from its chair to the floor.

are the direct cause of much unhappiness in our homes; their condition irritates and wears upon the husband and often ruins a child's disposition. This condition of the mother is often due to some weakness which makes her entirely unfit to perform her household duties and bear the strain upon her nerves that governing children involves. Every woman who finds herself in this condition should remember that statistics prove that 98 out of every 100 women who suffer from female ills are helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and lose no time in giving it a fair trial.

Old Rivalry Of Boats Will Be Reopened Soon.

CHICAGO, August 15 (Canadian Press). — A rivalry of years' standing will be re-opened here when the yacht Rogue, champion of her class in Boston waters, and Ariel, New York class champion, both new to Great Lakes waters this year, will meet again in the Sir Thomas Lipton cup races, scheduled for Thursday, Friday, and Saturday.

Besides the two entries, three winners of the Lipton Cup in former years will be entered, Gossoon, Yank and Seri.

The Lipton Cup was given to the Columbia Yacht Club by Sir Thomas Lipton, famous British yachtsman.

Since 1902 Chicago boats have captured the Cup in every race except three, Detroit entries winning in 1904 and 1905 and Cleveland in 1917. The Cup in 1917 was turned over to the Chicago Yacht Club, under whose direction this year's races are being held.

Pilot and Captain To Blame For Wreck

MONTREAL, August 15 (Canadian Press). — Judgment was handed down yesterday by Captain L. A. Demers in the case of the s.s. Bay Birch, which was wrecked near Port Neuf a few days ago.

Pilot Severe Perron's certificate was suspended for the rest of the shipping season.

Captain J. M. Cossette's certificate was also withheld, his suspension dating from 14th August to 14th October.

The Court was of the opinion that an error of judgment had been made by Pilot Perron, and also held the captain responsible for keeping his engines at full speed when the vessel was aground.

The Birch Bay was an old ship and has now broken in two. She is thought to be a total loss.

Lumberjacks Despise Harvesting Excursions

MONTREAL, Aug. 15.— (Canadian Press.)—The big movement of harvesters to the Canadian west is now being paralleled on a smaller scale by a run of lumberjacks to the west and north; and it would appear from comments made by the latter, gathered in scores in the Windsor station yesterday evening awaiting a train to the lumbering centres, that the jobs of grain cutting and wood-cutting are incompatible and that a bushman would take on a harvesting job only as a last resort.

A feature of the gathering of lumberjacks was the entire absence of Englishmen, the party being made up of French-Canadian bushmen, Scotch, Dutch, Russians and Polaccks.

Warden William Meighen Transfered To Prairie.

AMHERST, N. S., August 15. — William Meighen, brother of Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, for the past years warden of the Maritime Penitentiary at Dorchester, N.B., leaves on Saturday night to take charge of the Manitoba Penitentiary, at Stoney Mountain, near Winnipeg.

Splendid Set Of Men On Harvester Trips.

MONTREAL, Aug. 15.— (Canadian Press.)—"In my nineteen years at sea, I have never brought across the Atlantic such a fine-looking set of men of every trade and profession as on the present trip," was the comment of Purser O'Hagan of the S. S. Doric on the 900 passengers taking advantage of the special harvester rate who sailed on the vessel that has just docked here.

These men included doctors, ministers and professional men as well as hundreds of skilled artisans. Arriving at Halifax and Montreal this week there will be over 4,000 of the same type of men coming for the western harvest.

Fortune In Liquor Poured Into Sewer.

WINNIPEG, August 15 (Canadian Press). — While police officials and press representatives attended the last rites, liquor, some good but mostly bad, valued at more than a quarter of a million dollars, was poured into the sewer here yesterday. It was confiscated by the Provincial Police in 700 raids during the last six months.

JOSEPH PICARD HEAD COMMISSION TO LOOK INTO TIMBER NEEDS

Commission Will Decide If An Embargo On Pulp Wood Is Needed. To Inquire Into Resources.

THE PERSONNEL.

OTTAWA, Ont., August 15. Canadian Press. — The personnel of the Commission which will inquire into the forest resources of Canada with a view to determining the need or otherwise of an embargo upon the exportation of pulpwood, was announced last night by the Prime Minister.

Joseph Picard, manufacturer, Quebec City, is named Chairman of the Commission, and the other members are: Apollos Bamber Kerr, barrister, Toronto; Robert W. McLellan, barrister; Fredericton, N.Y.; Joseph G. Sutherland, lumberman, Clyde River, N.S.; and William Anstie, contractor, Vancouver, B. C.

Commissioners are instructed to inquire into and report upon the forest resources of Canada, with particular regard to the following points:

The extent in each province of wood of various kinds available for pulp.

The quantity of wood so available on lands owned by the provincial governments and subject under provincial laws and regulations to restrictions requiring the partial or total manufacture of such wood in Canada.

The quantity of wood so available on lands owned by the Dominion and subject under Federal laws and regulations to restrictions requiring partial or total manufacture in Canada.

The quantity of such wood on other lands and the conditions under which such lands are held whether by ownership or lease, whether by corporations or by individuals, and whether by citizens of Canada or of other countries.

The quantity of pulpwood produced in each province of Canada during the past ten years, showing the portion used in Canada and the portion exported.

The question of the prohibition or restriction of the export of pulpwood from Canada.

The making of recommendations that may be deemed expedient for the conservation of pulpwood for present or future use.

TERRIFIC STORM HITS NIPISSING

Standing Crops On Forty Farms Destroyed And Buildings Demolished.

NORTH BAY, Aug. 15.—Advice which reached North Bay to-day, the south and east parts of Nipissing districts indicate that damage amounting to over $200,000 occurred among farmers, as a result of a wind and hail storm which swept across the district last Sunday afternoon. Bonfield reports state that the storm which reached cyclonic dimensions battered all standing crops on nearly forty farms, into useless straw, and windows in buildings with in a strip a mile wide and three miles long were smashed to pieces. Hailstones which fell between Bonfield and Rutherglen were reported to be as large as hen's eggs and residents of Bonfield were shovelling drifts of them off their door steps, later on Sunday evening unharvested crops of farms in the district are a complete loss the damage to each farmer being between $500 and $1500. Many of the farmers carried no insurance against wind and hail.

The storm which was accompanied by thunder and lightning, no damage having been reported from the latter however, crossed Lake Nippising from the West between four and five o'clock in the afternoon passengers on the Northern Belle returning from the French River, state that for a time the waves assumed sea-like proportions and more than a dozen suffered the qualms of sea sickness at one stage of the battle against the storm, a small fire started but was extinguished by the steward before the passengers even knew of its existence. After an hours battle with the wind the ship again sailed in calmer waters and reached the wharf without any damage than to its passengers cheeks.

It is thought that the storm after crossing the lake became more concentrated and swooped down with greater fury on the farms east of Bonfield, turning at Rutherglen and Reading South. It was the worst in fifty years, old residents of Rutherglen section are quoted as saying.

OBITUARY

GEORGE LACKIE.

The death occurred on Tuesday, August 14, of George Lackie, North Monaghan. The funeral will take place on Thursday, at 2 o'clock, from his late residence. Rev. G. I. Craw of Springville will conduct the service, and interment will be in Frazerville cemetery.

Martin John Kenny Is District Judge.

OTTAWA, Aug. 15.— (Canadian Press.)— Martin John Kenny, Port Arthur barrister, has been appointed senior judge of the district court of the provisional judicial district of Thunder Bay, it was announced last night. He will also serve as a local judge of the high court division of the Supreme Court of Ontario.

Naphta Lamps Must Conform to Design.

OTTAWA, Aug. 15.— (Canadian Press.)—Regulations governing the sale of naptha for use in lamps have been established by an order-in-council. The regulations provide that naptha shall not be sold for use in lamps, unless the lamps are of a design approved by the Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association or the Western Fire Underwriters' Association.

Cool Weather is Delaying Harvest

EDMONTON, August 15. Canadian Press. — With weather conditions cool, the grain crops in central and northern Alberta are ripening slowly and harvesting has been given a set-back as a result. Estimates from various districts show that there has been slight damage from frost and rain, while in some areas grain is extremely heavy and lodging.

Cutting will be fairly general in about ten days and probably sooner if there is a period of hot weather. According to present anticipations, the binders will be out between Aug 20 and 25, while some sections will commence harvesting on a fairly large scale this week.

LABOR MINISTER HAS A NEW TASK

Must Enforce Act Relating To Combines And Trusts.

OTTAWA, August 15 (Canadian Press). — Hon. James Murdock, Minister of Labour, has been charged with the general administration of the Act which provides for the investigation of combines, monopolies, trusts, and mergers, it was announced last night by Premier King.

The Act, which was passed during the last session of Parliament, confers wide powers upon the officials in charge of its administration. It provides that an investigation may be ordered upon a complaint supported by six persons and for the appointment of a permanent registrar to conduct the preliminary probe.

Penalties which may be imposed where convictions are secured take three forms, first, the responsible parties may be proceeded against under the Criminal Code, secondly, any tariff protection enjoyed by the concern may be withdrawn, and, third, proceedings may be taken before the Exchequer Court to cancel patent rights.

BOYS ON LAST LAP OF LONG TRIP IN CANOES

Seventeen Youngsters Built Own Craft And Have Almost Completed 150 Mile Journey.

OTTAWA, Aug. 15.— (Canadian Press.)—Seventeen boys, ranging in age from thirteen to seventeen years and accompanied by two older leaders, swept into the city yesterday on the last lap of a trip of a hundred and fifty miles in canoes built by themselves. The boys reached Ottawa on the Rideau canal. They started their remarkable adventure from the boys' camp of W. C. Crouch, known as "Tip Camp," on Grand Stone Island in the Thousand Islands of the St. Lawrence river. This morning they will be given a motor tour of the city and will visit all the important places here before leaving on their return journey to the Thousand Islands.

The route followed was along the St. Lawrence and Lake Ontario to Kingston and from that city via the Rideau river and canal.

Averaging twenty-five miles a day in their home-made canoes, the boys have camped out on the banks of the river and canal every night in small tents and carry their own outfit of cooking utensils, blankets and other requisites.

Jean Leon Cote In Senatorial Vacancy.

OTTAWA August 15 (Canadian Press). — It was announced last night that Jean Leon Cote, of Edmonton, has been appointed to the vacancy in the Senate created by the death of Senator Amedee Emmanuel Forget.

This appointment disposes of the open seat in the Alberta representation, but there are still two Senatorial vacancies to be filled, one in New Brunswick, and the other in Quebec.

IN MEMORIAM.

"His life was gentle, and the elements
So mix'd in him that Nature might stand up
And say to all the world, This was a man!"

The Examiner rejoices in the posthumous honor which citizens have paid to Ferman Richardson Yokome, its former editor, in the dedication of a tablet to his memory in St. John's Church.

For thirty-six years, up to the very day of his sudden death in the morning of March 11, 1918, Mr. Yokome guided the destinies of the Examiner through its editorial and news departments. Of the three newspapers that were published in Peterborough during the greater part of that time only one remains; but in 1875 the Examiner was not the strongest, even as it was also not the oldest. The co-operation of a prudent and aggressive executive counted substantially in that success, but the large part of it was due to the work of F. R. Yokome.

Anonymity screens an editor from his audience, and after thirty-six years of continuous expression in the columns that were exclusively his, Mr. Yokome was known to comparatively few of his readers personally. As a personality, however, he cast an immeasurable influence over the gradually widening sphere of the Examiner's circulation.

As an editorial writer he approached his work with detachment and the impersonal manner. He strove to keep his heart from his sleeve, but his ideas in their translation to cold type inevitably showed the imprint of the inner character that shaped them.

And it was that splendid character and winning personality, the fine flowers of the spirit of F. R. Yokome, that have abided with his friends as a real presence during the five years since his death.

Appreciation of his service to Peterborough must have been the dominant motive actuating those who desired and arranged to perpetuate his name in a high and holy place in the city he loved. And Mr. Yokome had merited exceptional recognition from his fellow-citizens. The activities of his fullest editorial years touched the community in countless contacts, and to every deserving association and enterprise he freely gave his sympathy and support. Public bodies such as the City Council were never beyond his vision and vigilance, and if he sometimes chided them or criticized their acts it was a kindly criticism prompted by fidelity to the highest interests of the city.

* * * * ....

If he had a hobby in his editorial work, a subject to which he persistently returned, it was his advocacy of better streets; not merely better roads—and improved facilities for vehicular traffic were frequently discussed in his columns—but the general beautification of the city by the planting of trees for their comforting shade and especially for the life that was in them and might survive.

Mr. Yokome was imbued with the idea that his generation should take thought of the next, and that consideration was but the revelation of his innate unselfishness, one of the bright facets of his character.

Often he had the satisfaction of finding the public responsive to practical suggestions he put forward, but after all it was not so much his material accomplishments as it was the spiritual aspect of his personality that has endured in the memories of his friends.

Mr. Yokome's was a simple and lovable and, withal, a profound nature. Directing a medium of publicity, he himself shunned its glaring light, and was one of the most retiring and unassuming of men. Modest, frank and sincere, he detested pretense and cant and guile and was unsparing when his sense of duty required him to expose them.

He was a man of culture, of refined aesthetic tastes; a student always, orderly and efficient in his methods, he set an example for youth by acquiring in his later years a working knowledge of the Italian and Spanish languages. He was essentially intellectual and a lover of the arts, of all the graces of life, especially of music; and students who indicated latent talent, with earnestness and ability, received judicious encouragement from Mr. Yokome's pen.

As a writer the veteran editor of the Examiner was fluent and lucid, persuasive and, when need be, trenchant and scathing. His mind-house was a storehouse of ready and effective quotations that illumined, pointed and adorned his writings, and not the least of his literary possessions was his extensive memorization from the Scriptures.

* * * *

As an editor Mr. Yokome stood high in the respect of his peers in this country, and his opinions and comment were frequently reprinted. In that position, too, as chief of his staff, he revealed himself as to perhaps few of his other friends.

Under the stress of his daily work, however fortune fated with him, he exhibited always that kindly, equable, rarely-ruffled disposition that was his outstanding characteristic. With it was his patience and unselfishness, thinking last of himself if at all; clean of speech, charitable in thought, and possessed of a fine sense of humour. How he hated slang, and superficiality, and usurous money-grabbers, the petty meannesses of life!

F. R. Yokome was a tireless worker, loyal to his paper and jealous of its reputation. He had no divided allegiance in that respect. His code of newspaper ethics was merely a transcription of the code of a gentleman, and what he practiced himself he expected of his assistants, nor would be ask them to overstep those bounds for any passing advantage. In his last years he gave himself without reserve to the cause of Britain and her Allies, to the winning of the war; and every local effort to that end received the fullest support in the columns of the Examiner, while otherwise he explained the essential significance of the conflict with telling force and unremitting persistence.

To have known F. R. Yokome was a privilege, to have worked under him was a comprehensive scholarship in the humanities, and association with him was the companionship of a gentleman, and a learned, inspiring mind.

* * * *

The honour that has been paid to Mr. Yokome was in a sense reflexive, for it redounded to those citizens and friends whose own spirit of citizenship and fine sensibilities found their counterpart in the public service and the simple nobility of him they so highly esteemed. Character in its intrinsic worth was given new emphasis by this tribute to F. R. Yokome.

Happy circumstances of last night's impressive ceremony were the presence of Archdeacon Davidson with whom, as rector, Mr. Yokome worshipped for years; and likewise the fact that the brass tablet commemorating his name and his work has been placed in old St. John's Church within sight of the pew Mr. Yokome occupied for nearly a life-time. No doubt it was because he was animated by such a deep respect and affection for his own church and faith that he respected the religious convictions of others. He loved his neighbour. In that respect his contribution to social harmony and good-will can only be surmised, but his friends know that it was very real.

F. R. Yokome was not only a loyal citizen, for he had served his country in his time; a man, too, with the frailties of men; a dear friend to be held with hoops of steel; a Christian gentleman in whom St. John's Church must be well pleased; an editor worthy of responsibility as a moulder of public opinion and a helper and companion of whom the Examiner will ever be proud.

CANADA AND THE WAR.

(The following is the last editorial F. R. Yokome wrote for the Examiner. It was published on the day of his death, March 11, 1918, and was written but a few hours before he was fatally stricken on his way to his office. The subject and his treatment of it reveal his staunch Canadianism and his admiration and sense of gratitude to Canada's soldiers.)

The action of Canada throwing herself wholeheartedly into the war for the preservation of civilization and, incidentally, of herself, is amply justified by the fact that the country has abundantly shown herself worth, and worthy of, the tremendous sacrifice involved.

Though in some ways Canada has met great losses, they are set off by great gains. Canada has gained immensely in reputation and international standing by her splendid discharge of war duties. The sterling quality of her people, their resource and capability and courage in war have become known, and have strongly appealed, to the world. Canada not only literally rushed to arms in the first months of the war, but in an inconceivably short space of time raw civies were converted into capable soldiers, and on the battle front they showed themselves, by the highest qualities of fighting, the equals, if not, in some respects, the superiors of the best and most finely trained regular European troops.

The splendid fighting, the magnificent stand in crises, earned for Canadian troops the credit of "saving the situation" and blocking the way of the enemy to Calais and—England. The magnificent work of Canadians in the earlier years of the war has been maintained. The splendid tribute of the great Canadian General, Sir Arthur Currie, to the work and valor of Canadian soldiers during the last two years of the war, are of a piece also with the compliments paid to them by former British commanders; and are of a piece also with the world-wide acknowledgement of the splendid resourcefulness, courage and skill of the Canadian soldiers as fighters. The recent conferring of Distinguished Service Medals upon a batch of individual Canadians involves distinction—they only win the medal by chance; that is, circumstances favoured them and gave them an opportunity of doing deeds of signal gallantry which would have been done by any like number among the Canadian divisions if similar chances had been presented them.

We cannot estimate the immense benefit conferred on Canada by the courage and fighting superiority of her soldiers. The splendid character they have developed on the battle line has, by common consent, been transferred to and shared in by the Canadian people.

Canada is known and held in respect the world over; and in no country does she rank higher and meet with more enthusiastic recognition than in the great country to the south of us. In hundreds of inland and comparatively obscure newspapers in the United States, whose readers before the war perhaps never saw the name of Canada once a year, appear from day to day and week to week laudatory tributes to the character and achievements of Canada and Canadians. They are proud of us, not only as Allies, but as neighbours and virtual fellow-citizens of the great democracy that covers this continent.

Canada stands to gain immensely in the matter of international standing and commercial and industrial interests by the splendid advertising given by the comparative handful of Canadians fighting and floundering in the mud of Flanders. The war has made Canada known as she never was known before. To millions in the world the name of Canada, only a dim title on a map, has become a blazon of glorious achievement and capability.

We owe this primarily to our brave soldiers, and we cannot hold in too high esteem the gallant men who have, at the price of life and limb and untellable hardship and sacrifice, done this great work. We cannot hold in too loyal love, affectionate remembrance and proud esteem the Canadian soldiers who have laid down their lives for us men and our glory, and now sleep under the blood-painted poppies in Flanders' fields, or regard with too grateful recognition those who have done their bit and come back to the citizenship whose interests they have fought so bravely to preserve and promote.

TORONTO CATTLE.

TORONTO, Aug. 15.—There was a very light run at the stockyards yesterday morning. 361 fresh cattle came in, common to medium stuff, and the trade was quite slow. It is probable that the run will be cleaned up at yesterday's prices. There is a good inquiry for choice butcher cattle, but very few came in yesterday morning. Monday afternoon and yesterday morning there were about 300 cattle bought for export at $7.25 to $7.70. There is no prospect of butcher buying this week. Cows were slightly stronger at $5 for tops.

Lambs were 50 cents higher at $12.00. There were few sheep on the market.

Calves sold up to $1.00, slightly stronger.

Hogs went 50 cents a hundred higher, at $10.35 for thick smooths, fed and watered, and $11.30 for select bacon. There is a probability that hogs will go higher.

Yesterday's Receipts.

CHICAGO WHEAT.

CHICAGO, August 15 (Canadian Press). — For the first time in nearly a week, the wheat market yesterday took a decided downward course. European selling of future deliveries was a bearish factor and new buying lacked vigour in the face of a 6-cent recent upturn in values. The close was unsettled at 5-8c to 3-4c to 1 5-8c net decline, with September 99 1-2c to 99 5-8c, and December $1.03 3-8 to $1.03 1-2.

Corn finished 5-8c to 3-4c to 1c to 1 1-8c down; oats at 1-8c off to 1-8c to 1-4c gain, and provisions varying from a setback of 5c to a rise of 21-2c.

CHICAGO CATTLE.

Hogs, receipts 24,000; 10c to 15c higher; common and mixed packing kind steady to strong; bulk good and choice 140 to 240 pound average, $8.20 to $8.45; top, $8.50; bulk desirable 250 to 325 pound butchers, $7.85 to $8.15; bulk packing sows, $6.10 to $6.50; good strong weight pigs, $7.00 to $7.75; estimated holdover, 9,000.

Sheep, receipts 15,000; fat lambs generally strong to 15c higher; feeding lambs and sheep strong to 15c higher; culls steady; good and choice Western lambs, $12.75 to $13.00; top, $13.00; natives, $11.75 to $12.35; top, $12.50; yearlings, $10.00 to $10.50; good light weight killing ewes upward to $7.75; medium and handyweight, $6.00 to $7.00; feeding lambs, $12.75 to $13.00.

EGG MARKETS

OTTAWA, August 15 (Canadian Press). — The market continues firm and the quality of the receipts better. Specials and extras continue in good demand. It is reported that another good sale has been made for immediate export.

Toronto firmer; jobbing prices unchanged. Buying prices delivered, extras 38, firsts 26 to 28, seconds 20.

Montreal specials 38 to 39, extras 33 to 34, firsts 28, seconds 23 to 24.

Western markets unchanged.

St. John, N.B., extras jobbing 36 to 37, firsts 30 to 32, retail extras 45, firsts 40.

Prince Edward Island quotations delivered extras 26, firsts 22, seconds 17, retail Charlottetown extras 32, firsts 26.

WINNIPEG CATTLE.

WINNIPEG, August 15 (Canadian Press). — Receipts, 1,195 cattle and calves, 302 hogs and 55 sheep.

The cattle market was steady yesterday with a strong undertone, quality butcher steers and heifers being in demand at slightly firmer prices, with the medium classes about steady.

With light receipts the hog market was stronger yesterday, with the indications that thick smooths will reach $9.90.

A few good quality lambs at $10.50 or 50 cents over Monday's close.

CASH GRAIN.

MONTREAL, August 15 (Canadian Press). — The domestic market for spot supplies of Canadian Western oats was stronger here yesterday, and prices were marked up 1 cent per bushel. A moderate trade was done in flour. There was no change in the millfeed market, and trade in rolled oats was quiet. The baled hay market remains steady. Prices for all grades of eggs were advanced 2 cents per dozen. The undertone to the butter market was strong. A fair trade prevailed in cheese.

METAL MONEY IN EUROPE.

BERLIN.—(United Press).—Russia, Austria and Germany plan issuance of metal money. In fact, Germany already is putting into the market a lot of practically worthless 200 and 00 mark aluminum pieces. Austria has announced, since her money has become stabilized, she will issue larger denominations of coins. And Russia announces, through the People's Commissar for Finance, that in 1924 metal coins will be issued

STRUCK A WRECK.

ST. JOHN'S, N.F., August 15 (Canadian Press). — The steamer Sable I., which struck a submerged wreck on Monday night shortly after leaving the harbour of St. Pierre, was beached at Lamaline, Newfoundland, and may be refloated, reports from the south coast of the island said last night.

All on board the vessel were landed safely.

The steamer from Halifax and St. Pierre to St. John's had just landed 7,000 cases of whisky at the French port.

In the evening there was a grand display of fireworks after which everybody made for the Pavilion to dance. But before the dancing started, Rev. Watson gave a short address in which he introduced Rev. Mr. Young. Mr. Young needed no introduction to the people of Marmoff and on for years. Mr. Pearce, on for years. Mr. H. R. Pearce, in behalf of the congregation presented Mr. Young with a purse. The recipient thanked the congregation and in his short address mentioned the warm place in his heart he had for the Marmora people, and also the fact that Crowe Lake was one of the beauty spots in Ontario.

The balance of evening was spent in dancing from which the proceeds went to St. Paul's Church.

Personals.

BORN IN MONAGHAN DIED IN THE WEST

Death Removes Link In Pioneer Days When R. T. Goodfellow Passes.

The following from the Daily Herald, Prince Albert, Saskatchewan, of Monday, July 30, will find interest in both Peterborough City and North Monaghan:

Prince Albert lost another of its esteemed old-time residents on Saturday evening in the death at his home on River street and First avenue east of Robert Thompson Goodfellow aged 66. On Wednesday last, after being indisposed for a short time he suffered a paralytic stroke, from which he never rallied, death coming after 5 o'clock on Saturday afternoon. Mr. Goodfellow followed the practice for the past ten years of spending the winters in California. For a month prior to his return home a few weeks ago he had not felt well, but at first after returning he appeared to be improved in health.

Funeral Tomorrow.

The funeral will take place on Tuesday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from the home to the city cemetery, the Rev. R. J. McDonald officiating. He is survived by Mrs. Goodfellow, five daughters, Mrs. H. G. Cottam, city; Mrs. J. M. Turnbull, city; Mrs Wm. Meighen, Dorchester, N. B., who is now at home; Mrs. D. Malcolmson, city; Mrs. A. R. Smith, city; and one son, Rupert T.; one sister, Mrs. F. W. Shea, of Eleventh street east, and one brother, Wm. Blaine, of Twentieth street east, also survive. A third brother, Andrew, also an early settler in Prince Albert, died in 1911.

An Early Pioneer.

The late Mr. Goodfellow was one of the oldest in point of years in the country of the city's residents. He had come to Prince Albert in 1879. He was a man of exceptional energy and initiative and had been unusually successful in his business undertakings. He was held in the highest regard in the community and his opinions on any matters were always received with respect.

The late Mr. Goodfellow was born March 24, 1857, at Monaghan, Ontario of Scottish parentage. He received his education at Peterborough where he was later engaged for a year as a clerk. He then learned carpentry, under Wm. Lacheur, and became an expert in the trade. Early in 1879 a Rev. Mr. Ross was lecturing through Ontario describing the country about Prince Albert. Mr. Goodfellow, then a young man of twenty-two, heard one of the lectures in Peterborough and was so impressed that he decided to come out and see the country for himself. On May 13 he was one of a party that started westward. Thirteen days later they pitched camp in Winnipeg on the site now occupied by the Eaton store. From there with their baggage equipment and supplies on ox carts, Mr. Goodfellow with his companions set out on the long road across an almost trackprairie for the final goal. The usual conditions due to early spring travel were met in aggravated form and the ox carts were often mired; so much so that some of the party lost heart and returned to Winnipeg. Mr. Goodfellow and three others persevered and reached their goal, arriving in Prince Albert on July 24. The trip from Winnipeg took 59 days, and Mr. Goodfellow walked the entire distance.

Early Buildings.

His throough knowledge of carpentry was soon put to good use in the building of the original Emmanuel College then under construction on the site now occupied by the penitentiary. All parts such as doors and window casings had to be made by hand and a good deal of this work was done by Mr. Goodfellow. While they worked at his building he and his associates lived in a little log house still standing on the north side of the road near the turn approaching the old W. C. McKay farm house.

In 1880 he induced his brothers, Andrew and Wm. Blaine, to join him in Prince Albert. The C.P.R. telegraph line was in over the northern route and the railway survey line had followed, giving expectation of the line coming north also. In 1880 the brothers built the first sash and door factory and planing mill west of Winnipeg. It adjoined the Hudson's Bay grist mill, the one engine serving the two mills. In 1881 machinery was brought from the east, and they built a much larger planing mill about where the Holmes Block on Eighth street stands. He was associated in this enterprise until about 1888.

Church Building.

In 1881, the brothers built the first Presbyterian church. Its site was about the middle of Central avenue in front of where the Avenue Hotel now stands. The brick used were made by the Goodfellow brothers in 1880.

On September 29, 1881, the late Mr. Goodfellow married Miss Margaret Leask, a native of the Orkney Islands, who had come to Prince Albert from Winnipeg in 1876 by steamer over the water route to Grand Rapids and up the Saskatchewan by steamer. The marriage ceremony was performed at St. Mary's church, still standing in the west end, and by the late Bishop McLean. Soon after coming to Prince Albert Mr Goodfellow had selected as a site for his home the corner of River street and First avenue east. Here he built his first home in 1882, later replacing it with the present handsome structure which, with its grounds, is one of the show places of the city.

Business Activities.

About 1886 he opened a fruit and confectionery business in a store on the corner of the property where he built his home. He had many interesting reminiscences of those earlier days, particularly of his experiences on meeting the Indians. He continued in that business until 1903. In the following year he built the store now occupied by the Prince Albert Trading Co., at the corner of Central avenue and River street, later enlarging the building. He conducted a grocery and confectionery business there until 1909, since which time his attention was given to his extensive interests here and in California.

Public Minded Man.

The late Mr. Goodfellow was animated by a high sense of public duty, was always behind any move for civic betterment, and for four years sat as a member of the Council. He was through the rebellion of 1885 as a scout, doing effective work in that capacity.

He was a member of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, and in earlier days was a member of the Board of Managers. His fraternal associations were Kinistino Masonic Lodge, No. 1, and the Chosen Friends.

Your system demands ALL BRAN if constipation is to be relieved!

Your system needs the "roughage" that Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, supplies. For, it will not only permanently relieve constipation if it is eaten regularly, but its full-content of the vital elements of wheat will build health and strength in a wonderful way.

You need bran in its full and beneficial strength and that's what you get in Kellogg's Bran—ALL BRAN! You eat Kellogg's for relief and you will get relief in a way that nature planned. Foods with a bran mixture cannot help the man, woman or child who faces grave illness through constipation. You must have ALL BRAN—"roughage" that will sweep and clean and purify and bring health back!

Children should be given Kellogg's Bran each day; grown people should eat Kellogg's each day—at least two tablespoonfuls, in chronic cases with each meal. Its mechanical action will afford permanent relief.

And, you will find Kellogg's Bran a delight to eat because it is so delicious. As a cereal, sprinkled on other hot or cold cereals, or used in countless bakery batches or in cooking, its nut-like flavor will thrill your appetite—and each spoonful means so much in permanently relieving constipation and in warding off this gravest national ailment. Kellogg recipes are printed on each package.

Start the entire family eating Kellogg's Bran to-day. See the color come back to faded cheeks; see the snap that will go into lagging steps. Kellogg's Bran is wonderful. All grocers sell it!

Peterboro Party Had Accident On Highway.

LINDSAY, Aug. 15.—A motor car containing a number of Peterborough people, met with an accident on the Port Hope highway on Monday. The lights of the car suddenly failed and the car took to the ditch, where it was wrecked. One of the party in the front seat was dashed through the wind shield, but received no serious injury.

South Harvey Fire Destroyed Cottage.

LINDSAY, August 15. — The big bush fire which has been raging at South Harvey Township destroyed the summer cottage of Mrs. Belcher on Friday last, but was prevented from spreading to other property.

According to reports received, Sunday's heavy rainfalls saved the situation in different parts of the country, where bush fires proved a real menace.

Steam vessels are usually six times as long as they are wide.

Bon Ami

—makes the tub snow-white

BON AMI not only makes the tub clean and white, but actually makes it glisten.

For this soft white cleaning mineral not only cleans, but has a real polishing quality. Just sprinkle a little of the powder on a damp rag. Give the tub a few brisk rubs and away goes the dirt. And it does not scratch the delicate enamel.

Bon Ami also cleans the nickel faucets—makes them look like new silver.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

Old Boys' and Girls' Reunion Committee—Personal Mention.

MILLBROOK, Aug. 15. — The executive committee of the Old Boys and Old Girls' Reunion met on Saturday evening and received reports from committees. The chairman of the Sports' committee stated that after considerable discussion, and correspondence, with bands from various points, it had been deemed the wisest course to engage the services of the Oshawa band for the three days. This will ensure an excellent musical programme throughout the Re-union, beginning with a band concert on Saturday evening, the orchestra which forms part of the band furnishing the music for the community gatherings on Saturday and Monday evenings. They will also give a sacred concert on Sunday evening at the close of the public service. As the band will be held at 3 p.m. on Saturday it will be possible to have them meet the 5 p.m. train when it is expected that quite a number of the returning Old Boys and Girls will arrive, civic reception of some nature will be given, and at 7.30 p.m. there will be addresses of welcome from the reeves of Cavan and Millbrook, from the Town Hall balcony. If the citizens will give their hearty support and start things off with a good swing on Saturday there is no doubt but the entire Reunion will be a marked success.

The Millbrook I.O.O.F. Lodge has kindly given the use of their rooms for the accommodation of the band, Mr. W. Porteous being in charge of the kitchen and dining hall. The ball and lacrosse teams coming in from outside points will also be entertained for meals at the I.O.O.F. hall. An open-hearted hospitality on the part of all householders will doubtless be extended to the guests of the municipality and everything possible done for their comfort and entertainment.

The chairman of the different committees, who form the printing committee, are having the large posters printed and placed in the stores and other public places this week. Small handbills giving details of the program: for the three days will be distributed later. There will be two mass meetings on Sunday, afternoon and evening, with each church holding its on service in the morning Addresses by returned Old Boys, and special musical numbers. The order of service for Sunday's mass meetings will be printed and Rev. Canon Allen will be in charge as he is the only one of the resident clergy who is in reality a Millbrook "Old Boy."

MILLBROOK, Aug. 15.—Miss Florence Fallis is visiting friends in Toronto, going to the city on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Stinson, and family, Miss L. Connell, and her guest, Mrs. Baker, of Collingwood, motored to Janetville on Sunday and were guests of his mother, Mrs. A. Stinson.

Mr. Harold Fallis, of Toronto, has been a recent guest of his mother, Mrs. D. Fallis, and his brother, Mr. L. Fallis, Fallis Line.

Mrs. J. Edgar Burnham, Peterboro, was the guest of Mrs. E. L. Burnham over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Eakins returned Saturday after a pleasant week's outing with friends at the Thousand Islands.

Died: In Cavan on Friday, August 10, 1923, Isaac Larmer in his 82nd year. The funeral will be held from his late residence Lot 19, Concession 4, Cavan, on Monday, August 13, at 2 p.m. Interment in the Presbyterian cemetery, Centreville.

Died: In Toronto, on Thursday, August 9, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. Dawson Fair, 57 Kenneth Avenue, Margaret MacPherson, widow of the late John Nesbitt. Interment at Woodville, Ont., on Saturday, August 11, 1923.

YOUTHFUL SLAYER SOBBED PITEOUSLY

George King Broke Down When Jury Brought in Verdict of Guilty.

HAMILTON, August 15 (Canadian Press). — George King, 19-year-old youth, was last night found guilty of murder by a coroner's jury.

He shot and killed Erie Johnston, his 17-year-old sweetheart, at the doorway of her parents' home, 84 Kinrade Avenue, late on the night of 7th August.

King broke down when he heard Coroner Rennie read the verdict. He buried his face in his hands and robbed piteously. His strength also seemed to suddenly desert him. He was unable to walk and had to be carried to the detention room.

When being assisted to the patrol, en route to the jail, he collapsed again, and had to be lifted into the vehicle. Low whines, such as a dumb beast in agony might emit, were the only sounds he made.

MANY KILLED IN MINE EXPLOSION

Over 100 Men Still Unaccounted For Have Perished.

KEMMERER, Wyo., Aug. 15. — (Canadian Press.)— In the grip of sorrow and desolation, Kemmerer and its little coal suburb, frontier, one mile away, where approximately 100 miners perished yesterday morning in an explosion in Mine No. 1 of the Kemmerer Coal Company, already has set about the task of preparing her dead for burial. Early to-day 25 bodies had been recovered.

Throughout the hours of darkness, as arc lights shed a pallid illumination over the weeping, grief-stricken throng at the portal of the mine, rescue workers brought forth blast-charred bodies of victims who were suffocated as they fought for safety from the poisonous gases.

Thirty-seven of 137 or 138 miners who were entombed by the blast, have emerged from the mine alive Of these, one lies at a hospital in a serious condition as a result of smoke and gas fumes It is believed he will recover

The exact cause of the blast remained a mystery early to-day.

Disastrous as was the loss of life, the interior of the mine was only slightly wrecked by the explosion, and rescue workers who plunged into the smoke-filled passage ways early yesterday were hampered but little by debris. At entry 15 it was necessary to clear away a cave-in, which had buried six mine cars, and beyond at entry 17, workers were forced to relay stretches of track torn by concussion.

Charred timbers and smoke blackened cars found by rescuers at the first led to the belief that fire was raging in the workings after the explosion, but investigation later is said to save revealed no other traces of conflagration.

DE VALERA COMES OUT IN THE OPEN

Makes Promised Appearance at Political Meeting, and Quite Undisguised.

ENNIS, County Clare, Ireland, August 15 (Canadian Press). — Eamonn De Valera made his promised appearance this afternoon at a political meeting here.

The Republican leader drove up in an open car, undisguised. He was given a wild welcome by a crowd of 1,500 people.

The Republican leader is the Republican candidate for Clare seat in the forthcoming elections, and the people are speculating as to whether the Free State Government will arrest him.

In some quarters it is said that if De Valera is not arrested, it will be a ridiculous manifestation of weakness on the part of the Government, which is supposed to have long been searching for him with a view to making him prisoner.

It is asserted that such a procedure would detach considerable support from Professor John MacNeill, the Minister of Education, who is the Republican chief's opponent.

During a Free State election meeting to-day at Kinvarra, on the Clare-Galway border, a free fight is reported to have occurred in which revolvers were used, and eight persons were wounded and taken to the hospital.

ANGLO-FRENCH ECONOMIC WAR

Hinted That England's Policy Toward France May React in No Trade Between Countries.

PARIS, August 15 (Canadian Press). — Suggestions of economic war between France and Great Britain are met with frequently in current conversations with the leading French business men engaged in the trade with Great Britain, and now are creeping into the press.

Large importers of woollens from Great Britain expressed the view yesterday that business between the two countries would necessarily decline on account of the extraordinary rise in the pound sterling, and that no organised movement was required to bring that result about, as it was the inevitable outcome of what is declared here to be a London campaign for the depreciation of the franc.

The Matin in a double-leaded leader to-day asks Prime Minister Baldwin if he is not aware that his policy toward France is tending to bring about a movement in which the watchword will be "No business with Britain. No purchases in Britain."

MORE THAN SPEED NEEDED ON BASES

Best Base Runners in the Majors Are Not Always Fast Men.

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Aug. 15.—Speed alone does not make for clever base running. Maurice Archdeacon of the Rochester club of the International League is a striking example of that truth.

Archdeacon is one of the fastest men in the history of the game. Ty Cobb, one of the greatest base runners of all time, says Archdeacon is the fastest man that ever wore spiked shoes.

Other noted baseball experts have made similar statements to that of Cobb, yet, as a base runner, Archdeacon hasn't shone in the International League.

Last year it was reported that the Detroit club had acquired the services of Archdeacon. Manager Cobb practically admitted the deal had been put over. Apparently some hitch developed, because Archdeacon never joined the Tigers.

One rumor was that Manager Stallings, peeved because Detroit had recalled Outfielder Fothergill at a critical stage of the International race, called of all negotiations fort Archdeacon on the par of the Tigers.

Archdeacon possesses great speed, but as yet he has not learned the art of getting a commanding lead off first base, also getting the break with the pitchers' delivery.

The best base runners in the majors are not always the fastest men. Good base running largely hinges on getting the break as the pitcher delivers the ball.

Most pitchers have a certain mannerism that always goes with the delivery of the ball to the batter. Heady base runners always familiarize themselves with such mannerisms.

No doubt had Archdeacon joined Detroit he would have made rapid advances as a base runner. As things stand his International League record is anything but brilliant from a base running standpoint.

TRENT RIVER NEWS

TRENT RIVER, Aug. 15.—Mr. and Mrs Thompson, who have been guests at the Cook cottage for the past week, returned to Toronto today.

Mrs. L. McCleary, Misses Lillian and Faye of Norwood, with a party of friends, spent Sunday at Healy Falls.

Chickens.

It takes four chickens to furnish eggs for each American. Uncle Sam's count shows 428 million chickens in the United States. They furnish us with the eggs we need and an additional 500 millions a year for export, which latter is about three-fifths offset by the eggs we import from China and elsewhere. Talking about wasted effort, what do you think of the proposition of importing 300 million eggs a year and cancelling the transactiin by shipping back an equivalent amount? Logically our exports should be 200 million eggs, with no imports.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Agitation For a Radial Railway Through Campbellford. — Personal Mention.

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 15. — The agitation for a radial from Havelock through Campbellford, to Brighton or some other town on the front, is not to be allowed to drop. The town council has appointed a committee consisting of Mayor Meyers, Reeve Anderson and Councillor Allan to take the matter up with the Chamber of Commerce. A public meeting of delegates from all the municipalities interested will be called, and Sir Adam Beck, Hon. J. R. Cooke, M.L.A., the new member of the Hydro Commission, J. F. B. Belford, M.L.A., and Wesley Montgomery, ex-M.L.A., will be invited to come to Campbellford to look over the power possibilities of this district.

The Steps Required.

Town Solicitor Humphries has explained to the council the steps that are required to get the Hydro Commission interested in such an undertaking as a radial lines. All the municipalities through which the proposed road will pass must join in a petition that a survey be made, the municipalities to bear the cost of this work.

When the survey is completed the Commission must be satisfied that the proposed road will pay before anything further is done. The basis on which this is computed is the estimated cost of construction as shown by the survey, plus a certain amount for maintenance. In addiion the receipts from the road must be sufficient to meet the annual debenture payments, principal and interest. Each of the municipalities are required on a majority vote of the people to issue bonds, these to be guaranteed by the province.

The Road That Never Came.

About twenty years ago Campbellford had an alluring prospect for another railway, a steam road, to run from the C. P. R. diamond near Springbrook, by way of Warkworth and Campbellford, to the town of Cobourg. The road, which was to be built by the C.P.R., was actually surveyed, but the railway company secured a change of charter and the project was abandoned.

The surveyors ran their line right through the school grounds in this town. The late James Buchanan, who was caretaker of the schools at that time, objected to having the premises intersected by a railway. He pulled up the surveyors' stakes and threw them over the fence into the street.

Asked For Radial.

This is the second time that an agitation has been started in Campbellford for a radial line to link up the town with the lake front. The old Board of Trade, which has been succeeded by the Chamber of Commerce, started the movement, and all the municipalities interested petitioned the government to make the preliminary survey. For some reason or other this work was never undertaken.

Debentures Were Issued.

The town of Campbellford was so certain that the C.P.R. steam branch referred to above would be built, that debentures were issued. The money so raised was later used to erect the second power house put up by the municipality. When Campbellford first acquired municipal ownership of the light and power facilities it began in a modest way, the water pumping apparatus and the power outfit both being located in the fire hall which is now used for the pumping plant alone.

That Spur Line.

Town Solicitor Humphries has reported to the Council the result of a conference which he had with Industrial Commissioner Fitzsimmons of the C.N.R. system with regard to resuming the operation of the spur line in Campbellford. The railway people ask for a guarantee that the gross business on this line be not less than $20,000 a year, the town to pay $600 a year toward the cost of maintenance.

Mr. Humphries submitted a counter proposition to Mr. Fitzsimons, that provided the annual business fell short of the guarantee asked for that the town pay a proportionate share of the maintenance. Mr. Fitzsimons promised to take up this proposal with the board.

Personals.

Rev. Russell and Mr. McGillivary, of Burlington, formerly of Warkworth, are visiting Mrs. McGillivary's brother, T. S. Baker, of town.

W. J. Baker of Warkworth, is visiting his son, T. S. Baker.

Miss Reta Baker is in Montreal, the guest of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Summerby.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Cassan, of Peterborough, spent the week end with friends and relatives here. Mr. and Mrs. Cassan removed to Peterborough last spring after disposing of their farm on the English line, a community in which they had resided for years. Mr. Cassan was a member of the board of directors of the Seymour Agricultural Society. Before they left their home in the township friends and neighbors presented them with many valuable gifts as tokens of the esteem in which they were held during their long residence.

GOVERNMENT BOATS WILL CARRY GRAIN

OTTAWA, August 15 (Canadian Press). — Ten vessels of the Canadian Merchant Marine now on the Great Lakes may be used in the grain carrying trade this season, it was announced last night by the Hon. George P. Graham, Minister of Railways and Canals.

Use of the Government boats to assist in solving the problem presented by the refusal of the United States shopowners to comply with the new grain rates regulations has been under consideration for several days.

It is expected that Sir Henry Thornton will be called into consultation in the matter, and should the United States concerns persist in their refusal toi file tariffs, the Government vessels will be utilised.

Asked whether the Government boats were of a type which would lend themselves to use in the grain traffic, Mr. Graham replied that, while not specially built for that purpose, they could be satisfactorily employed to carry a portion of the Western crop.

LOVE WITH HORSEMEAT.

BERLIN.—(By Mail to United Press).—Prison life irked Robert Lange, noted for breaking into houses and out of jails. Besides that, Lange was in love.

So, he broke out of jail in Sonneburg, hastened to the girl of his choice, the pretty daughter of a gardener here, asked her to wed, got her "yes," and then set about to get his housekeeping necessaries together.

Aided by another convict friend, temporarily also free, Lange singled out a huge van of furniture, drove it off, hid the furniture, took the wagon apart and sold the pieces and—

Then he killed the horses to get a horsemeat banquet for his bride.

The feast was interrupted by the police, who rudely ticketed Lange for Sonneburg.

LABOR SITUATION CAUSING CONCERN

Work in Ontario for Every Able-Bodied Man Unemployed.

TORONTO, August 15 (Canadian Press). — Briefly summing up the situation created through the departures of harvesters for Western Canada, Superintendent William Meath, of the Government Employment Service, said yesterday that the situation created by the response from the East to the Western appeal for labour could not be worse.

"It was bad before labour went West. Now it could not be worse. This accurately describes the situation," he said. "There is a great shortage in Ontario to-day of farm labour. Farmers are offering from $50.00 a month for farm workers, and securing them with extreme difficulty. In addition to this, lumber companies, railroads, construction companies, and road construction firms are taking men as fast as we can supply them."

Superintendent Meath said there was work in Ontario to-day for every able-bodied man who happened to be unemployed.

Claims Lloyd George Will Talk Prohibition.

EDMONTON, Aug. 15.— (Canadian Press.)—H. H. Hull, secretary of the Alberta Social Service League, is authority for the statement that Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George will visit Alberta during the course of his Canadian trip, delivering speeches at Edmonton and Calgary under the auspices of the Alberta Prohibition League.

Mr. Hull claims to have definite news from Toronto as to the authority of the report.

INDICATIONS POINT TO A MEDIUM APPLE CROP

OTTAWA, Aug. 15. —(Canadian Press.) — The report of the fruit branch of the Department of Agriculture for August, 1923, which has just been issued, states that reports from Ontario indicate that the total apple crop in the province will be slightly less than that of last year. In Western Ontario a survey shows that apple crop exceeds that of last year by about fifty per cent. and is practically free from scab. The crop in Eastern Ontario, which previously showed prospects of exceeding that of last year, has now been considerably reduced, the cause being ascribed to a very considerable amount of apple scab which has developed in that part of the province. Throughout the province as a whole indications are that Spy, Baldwin, Wagner and Russels will be a good crop, but the major portion of the earlier varieties will be but a medium one.

Bitter Quarrels Resulted in Bride and Groom Sleeping With Revolvers at Hand--Must Face Harsh English Law.

(By LYLE C. WILSON)

LONDON, Aug. 15 (United Press).—Young Fahmy arrived in Cairo, but obtaining the consent of his female relatives to his marriage was a difficult matter.

The women pleaded and Fahmy raged. Finally the young man invoked the traditional rights of the Mohammedan male and won a grudging consent.

To please Fahmy's family, there were two ceremonies. The civil marriage took place in December. The Mohammedan ritual was celebrated in February of this year.

With the Mohammedan ceremony the Princess was reported to have embraced the faith of her husband. Her conversion was not apparent. She never relinquished her chic Parisian gowns for the veil and robe of a Mohammedan woman.

There followed a hurried order for a palace on the Nile. It was to be the home of the happy bride and groom. It is almost finished now and the groom is dead—the bride on trial for her life.

A gorgeous houseboat was purchases for the season of Lord Carnarvon's Tutankhamen discoveries. The parties on board the floating tinseled beauty spot were only one phase of the domedtic life of the Prince and Princess.

Fought in Hotels

The unbridled jealousy of both had begun to get in its work. From heated arguments the couple went to blows. Hotels in Cairo, Paris and London were the scenes of their open and disgusting combat.

The Prince and Princess, both whimsically generous but rarely constant, were drifting toward trouble.

The Prince, outwardly, was a cultivated young man of fashion possessed of a beautiful wife. He gave thousands of dollars for the education of young Egyptians, but not a penny for study for himself

Actually the young fellow was a vain disciple of freedom He brooked no interference His jealousy inflicted hardship on his wife He often locked her in her room He vowed she should not escape him

The Princess protested that she had no desire to escape, but chided her Prince for his amorous intentions toward other women That, she declared, should stop Things went from quarrel to quarrel The two began to go about armed

Even their bed was not a safe place On the side of the Prince was always a small chambered revolver, close to his hand

By the head of the Princess was a table As she slept there lay there a vicious automatic pistol, ready for the test that was finally put to it

On the night of July 19, London was visited by a terrific thunder storm Shrieking wind, and crashes of lightning disturbed the entire city

Fought During Storm

On that night Fahmy Bey elected to leave his Princess, who was ill and scheduled to enter a hospital the following day He left her side at a few minutes past midnight Within an hour and a half he had returned The Princess had not gone to bed They argued They exchanged blows A night porter saw them berating each other in the hallway and implored them to return to their rooms They refused.

The porter went his way down the lightning illuminated hall As he turned a corner fifteen yards from the entrance to the Prince's suite three shots flashed in the momentary darkness

He rushed back Vivid lightning showed the Prince sprawled in the corridor Above him bent his Princess, gushing a torrent of French into his unresponsive ear

The woman bent lower

"Did she kiss him?"

On the witness stand the porter said he did not know, but that she was very close

On the cooling cheeks of the Prince there were tear-drops They were not the tears of the dead boy

The life of the Princess depends on the cold mercy of an English court The charge against her is wilful murder In England convicted murderers pay for their crimes on the gallows—even though they be women

DIVORCE HABIT NOW MENACE TO NATIONAL LIFE.

Divorces Are Granted in America at the Rate of One Every Four Minutes in the Year.

WINONA LAKE, Ind., Aug 15 (Associated Press) —Divorces are granted in America at the rate of one every four minutes throughout the year, and are more numerous here annually in proportion to total population than in any other country which records marriage statistics The annual total of decrees for the 48 states is in the neighborhood of 160,000 and is increasing three times as fast as the population Such are the conclusions of Judge W H Thomas of Santa Ana, California, former associate justice of the California District Court of Appeals, drawn from a world survey of marriage and divorce figures in preparation for an American campaign for a national code governing marital relations

Judge Thomas' survey included 54 countries, and the summary of his study, made public here, reaches back into the domestic relations of ancient Rome, Greece, and Babylon In his conclusions is the suggestion that our national life is seriously threatened by the present status of our family relationships Much of our trouble, he believes, is chargeable to the chaotic state of our marriage laws, and his recommendation is a uniform law, applicable to all American territory, based on wisdom and experience

"In contrast with our records, one divorce for every nine marriages," Judge Thomas said, "those of France and Germany, our closest competitors, dwindle into insignificance We have only one rival, Japan Until recently that nation has been grinding out divorce, the United States Census Bureau discloses a rapidly mounting table of divorce which far outstrips the ratio of increase in population Our rate of increase in divorces between 1870 and 1917, was for the entire country, exactly 400 per cent" In 1870, he said, we had 28 divorces for every 100,000 of population; in 1916 the figure was 112 for each 100,000

"Our country heads the list among the nations of the world in this downward procession In 1890 there were 33,107 divorces here; in 1916 there were 112,000 In Canada in the whole year of 1913 there were 59 divorces"

Judge Thomas came here recently to present his findings to officers of the National Reform Association at the organization's International Conference on Christian Citizenship

Seventeen states in the Union fix no marriageable age, he pointed out in commenting on our present varied law In nine of these states—Florida, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Missouri, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Tennessee, and Vermont, the common law ages of 12 for girls, and 14 for boys have been formally recognized by the courts In 19 states there is no law restraining feeble-minded persons from marrying, and only three states forbid miscegentic unions, or marriages between people of different races

There are now in the United States more than 12,000 married girls under 15 years of age Approximately 100,000 girls 17 years or younger are married

"The need of a uniform divorce law is apparent," Judge Thomas declares "Disregard for the sanctity of marriage, over-emphasis of sex, under-emphasis of domestic responsibilities, lack of uniformity in the law were among the chief contributing causes that led to the downfall of Rome, of Greece, of Babylon We cannot allow the rate of divorce in the United States to continue at three times the rate of population increase

"No logical and sound-thinking person any longer denies that, in certain circumstances, men and women who cannot live harmoniously together should be allowed to reconstruct their happiness No one now argues against the necessity for marriage laws which will make it impossible for the immature and unfit to marry and reproduce

"Everyone is satisfied that these laws must be uniform Hence the time for action has come And because men have dilly-dallied about it, and because, too, the integrity of the family is woman's quest, upon the women of the country must be laid the business of bringing about reform

"But legislation will not usher in an era of wisely planned marriages The real hope of the world lies in putting as much painstaking and progressive thought into the great business of mating as we do into the other big businesses of our day, and in bringing to bear upon marriage the advanced ideas of science, religion and law, so that we shall be able to offer to young men and women a sensible presentation of the subject that will convince them of the necessity of permanent family relations and assure them of the happiness to be found in a wholesome, family life

"Unification of marriage and divorce laws is only a partial solution of the problem There must be early training for marriage and parenthood, and this cannot be provided for by law"

THE JUNK MAN

In New York the Waste Paper Dealers' Association, unable to compete with the Salvation Army on prices, petition the attorney general to take a hand They claim that the Salvation Army, by conducting a big waste paper business, is violating the provisions of the act under which it was created as a religious and charitable corporation

For instance, in one case, the Army bid $1.37 per 100 pounds for old paper, while the next highest bid, by commercial competitor, was only 65 cents per 100 pounds

The average reader will not be interested in the technicalities of this squabble But it will be both interesting and astonishing, that the collection of waste paper in New York City alone is a 15-million dollar industry

* * *

The Salvation Army is reconstructing a seven-story building in New York City to house and provide working facilities for 80 down-and-outers, also to include a store where the poor can buy salvaged and repaired clothing and household goods at very low prices

The money for this construction job—$30,000—was obtained by collecting waste paper at the back doors of New York households

* * *

Look at your waste basket It is a symbol of one of the chief ways by which big fortunes will be made in the future

We have been so blessed with rich natural resources that we have gone along carelessly for generations and are only beginning to open our eyes to the route

This is true of all industries, in varying degrees

For instance, the early farmers in America mined the soil rather than farmed it They sapped the very life from wonderfully rich and fertile earth drained it of the best part of its vitality—and it is only within comparatively few years that there has been any widespread movement to replenish the soil's richness by commercial fertilizer

There's a saying that Europe could live on the food we Americans waste in our garbage pails An exaggeration, yes; but it illustrates a true principle Slowly, however, we are learning to economize with food, though a period of prosperity quickly starts the garbage pails overflowing

The cream has been skimmed from our natural resources Scientific economy is becoming compulsory And economy on a big scale will be worked out in the laboratories A tremendous start has already been made in that direction

Our future gold mines will be in the waste basket, the garbage pail, the ash heap and the trash pile

Household Suggestions

BLUING WATER.

A little common table salt or a little soda added to the bluing water will distribute the bluing evenly and keep your white clothes from looking streaked.

TABLECLOTH MONOGRAM.

The monogram of a tablecloth should be placed so it will be on the table and near one corner. If two monograms are used they are placed diagonally so as to balance.

CREPE DE CHINE.

Wrap your crepe de chine blouses in a Turkish towel after washing them and in a short time they will be just damp enough to be ironed easily.

PAINT SPOTS.

Remove paint spots with turpentine or benzine. If the spot is old, soften it first with cottonseed oil or lard.

IMMIGRANTS ROBBED BY COUNTERFEIT PASSPORTS

Swindlers Even Imitate the Seal Used By United States Officials — Many Immigrants Turned Back

NEW YORK, Aug. 15 (United Press).—Wholesale counterfeiting of passports for travel to the United States, by a group of conspirators centering about Naples and with confederates apparently residing in New York, was disclosed by activity of the Italian police during June and July.

The thoroughgoing nature of these swindlers is shown in the fact that they embellished their fraudulent documents with facsimiles of the seal and signature of the king's attorney and the seals of the American embassy and consulate at Rome and Naples.

As early as May, this year, the liner "Patria," en route to New York, reached Naples with fifty persons among her passengers, whose passports the authorities found to be counterfeit. Investigation by the Italian police disclosed traces of a general conspiracy and brought about the arrest of two suspects on whose person were found blank passports certificates, already stamped with the official seal and signature. Further inquiry lead to the seizure, on July 2, of fifteen additional prisoners, among them men of prominence and evident wealth according to advices to the Foreign Language Information Service.

Early in July the steamer "Conte Verde" was found upon her arrival in New York to have aboard five passengers whose papers were false, although adorned with good imitations of the seals used by American embassy and consulate officials. Deportation of these immigrants coincided with vigorous activity by the Italian police and the arrest of those who it is said organized the conspiracy.

Robbed by Swindlers

Investigation has been aided by the disappointment of those in Southern Italy who have been rendered penniless by the swindlers and subjected to long and painful return trips across the Atlantic. The alleged organizer of the group, now in custody, is a man who lived for several years in New York and is said to have grown rich in the "bootleg" liquor traffic before retiring to Naples.

"Persons who seemed to be above suspicion," says Il Corriere D'America (New York), "were at the head of the organization—millionaires who frequented the best hotels, professional men who carried on their criminal operations in every region of Italy. It seems that the false passports were made in New York, sent to Naples via Marseilles and from there distributed throughout Italy. Tens of thousands have been robbed in this way."

Closely associated with the passport fraud is an incident, lately revealed, concerning a voyage made some months ago by a well known liner, out of Naples for New York. Attention was first drawn to the steamer by the fact that she was obliged to ship a new crew at Naples, the old crew having disappeared. Although police inspection discovered nothing wrong at the time, when she was three days at sea, no fewer than 160 clandestine immigrants were found to be aboard. All were sent back to Italy, following their arrival in New York.

Confessed to Authorities

Many of them confessed to the authorities in Naples that they had paid as much as ten thousand liras each to an illegal agency which pledged them safe conduct and free admission to the United States. Incidentally, after demanding extra cash payments from the helpless steerage passengers during the trip from Naples and threatening their victims if they dared protest, the strange crew deserted en masse when the boat reached New York.

Even at the present rate of exchange, the initial payment of ten thousand liras comes to more than the most favored passengers pay for first class accommodations on the same voyage. All that these miserable dupes received was a round trip in steerage, broken hearts and bankruptcy.

EFFICIENT STEERING

When steering sharply to avoid hitting something, always apply the brake at the same time. Steering can be used as a safety measure, but never depend upon it. Stopping and steering will produce best results.

EXHAUST MONOXIDE PUT AT 7 PER CENT

Poor Ventilation in Garage Will Cause Fatal Accumulation

The average of tests on 101 cars of all types, conducted by the U. S. Bureau of Mines, showed 7 per cent carbon monoxide by volume in the automobile exhaust gas. The inquiry showed that cases of poisoning from carbon monoxide occurred in garages from accumulation of automobile exhaust gases due to poor ventilation.

The bureau found that inhalations for a period of 20 to 30 minutes of oxygen, or a 5 per cent mixture of carbon dioxide, if available, will, when given immediately, greatly lessen the number and severity of symptoms of carbon monoxide poisoning. All industries in which this type of poisoning commonly exist should provide apparatus (inhalers) for the efficient administration of these treatments. This apparatus should be placed at points more convenient for treating carbon monoxide poisoning, and employes trained in its use so that resusciattion may be effected immediately.

Garage owners and others interested in this problem are advised to notify their employees that in an emergency the most important thing is to get the gas out of the blood as quickly as possible by removing the victim out in the fresh air and to induce breathing by artificial respiration if necessary.

When the brakes chatter or squeak when applied, it is a sign that the linings are glazed or the surface gritty.

Canadian Stock Exchange — And Mines — | New York Stock Exchange — and Curb Prices —

Today's Quotations and Opinions and Reviews of the Markets.

NEW YORK, August 15. United Press. — Although the rally in Tuesday's late dealings on the stock exchange was helped along by favorable news developments, it was primarily based on the scarcity of stocks available for short covering. This demonstration of the market's strong technical position created further uneasiness among the shorts in the early dealings to-day, and prices were generally strong despite the uncertainty aroused by Germany's determination to maintain her policy of passive resistance in the Ruhr.

Steel common opened at the highest level reached on the current recovery and other speculative leaders held around the best prices seen in two weeks. Leading industrials continued to gain in the first hour in the face of further unsettlement in the oils. Mexican seaboard sank to a low of six against a high of 11 1-2 in the previous session, reflecting suspension of the dividend; Sinclair made a new 1923 low at 19½, and other oils were heavy in response to gasoline cuts in the east and south by the Standard Oil of New Jersey to meet the Standard Oil of Indiana's reductions in the West.

Despite this disturbance however, Can. Studebaker, Baldwin and Steel made further progress on the rally, favorable Washington developments seem to be more than offsetting the adverse European developments, the gasoline price war and the current recession in business, the announced policies of President Coolidge have gone a long way toward strengthening public confidence.

Standard Oil of New Jersey to-day declared the regular quarterly dividends of 25c on the common stock and $1.74 on the preferred.

Wall street had a well founded report in the late morning that operators prominent in bear side since March had reversed their position and were prepared to make a play on the side of rising prices, using such leaders as Studebaker, Amer. Can. and Baldwin as their principal vehicles.

DEMAGOGUES CURSE OF DEMOCRACIES

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—(By Canadian Press).—Declaring that "democracies are cursed with demagogues who convert every divergence of interest among nations into a bar-room squabble," the Wall Street Journal deprecates the custom which prevails in the United States of "newspaper conduct of the country's diplomacy," and points to the relations between Canada and the United States as a case in point.

"Fool politicians on both sides of the line have provided plenty of chance for friction," the Wall Street Journal says. "But the good sense of two great peoples, with nothing in the way of frontier between them over a line of three thousand miles but a geographical expression, has kept the peace for over a century. It was not because of the newspapers but in spite of them. Our tariff imposes a tax of thirty cents a bushel on Canadian wheat coming into this country. Most of us can see now that it was not a wise tax, but equally it was nothing for Canada to go to war about.

"Protective tariffs are, however, a round game in which anybody can join and there are all sorts of variants permissible under the rules. Warned by our own profligate waste, Canada to save her forests restricts, and finally forbids, the export of wood pulp. It is true that she also desired to protect Canadian paper mills, even as we are protecting American industries against her in the Fordney-McCumber tariff. Now the believers in bar-room diplomacy, helped out by three-inch headlines, talk of an embargo on the export of coal to Canada in the coming winter.

"Here is where expert adjustment of a nation's foreign affairs differ so widely from the conception of the crossroads grocery politician out of the woolly west and the circulation-at-any-price newspaper proprietor. In the wood-pulp-embargo-wheat-duty problem ordinary business would see no cause for quarrel but a basis of mutual concessions. The last thing it would do would be to talk of blacking the other's eye with a lump of anthracite. But that seems to be the first editorial idea of newspapers that should know better. There is nothing angelic about any democracy, but it can always count upon a plentiful supply of the fools who rush in where angels fear to tread."

BANS AMPLIFIERS FROM THE ALTAR

NEW YORK, Aug. 15—(By Canadian Press).—Bishop William T. Manning, has ordered removed from the high altar of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine a receiver for a system of amplifiers.

"Nothing of a worldly nature should be in this sacred place," he said. "Besides, communicants should know their service by heart and it should not be necessary for them to hear the words of the celebrant."

The altar receiver was a part of a system recently installed at a cost of $9,000. There are nine amplifiers throughout the cathedral and now even the choir and clergy can hear every word of the sermon. The Bishop, himself seated on his throne, can "listen in."

No objection to the amplifier system as a whole was made by the Bishop. He merely held that the placing of a receiver on the altar was carrying "modernism" a bit too far.

ELECTRICITY IS HERE TO STAY, SO BOOST

Has Had Its Detractors From the Beginning and Will Have to the End.

By SUSAN ELLEN DODGE

The man who advanced the theory that the world was round and that if you sailed to the west you would reach the east practically took his life in his hands. Ridiculous! the world was flat. Everyone knew it. Everyone knew too (though no one had been found with the courage to attempt to prove it) that there was a "jumping off place" which when reached would plunge you forthwith into eternity.

Chains prison loss of position and estates and even physical torture has been the reward meted out to the few courageous souls who have dared to defy the "they say" of the mob mind.

Even if the public by and large has not resorted to violence it has invariably and inevitably fallen back upon an attitude of supreme disbelief. Even so recently as 1793 crowds congregated upon the shore of the Hudson River to hoot and howl at Robert Fulton because he was such an idiot as to imagine a boat could be run by steam! Why it simply could not be done. Everyone (again!) knew that.

The automobile inventors backers and enthusiasts the Wright Brothers and their faction met with the same reception from the public. Added to all else decreed the masses even if these two feats motoring and aeroplaning could be accomplished they were absolutely unsafe and none would ever live through a ride. Least of all would such modes of transportation really become popular.

Today as we look back down the years such an attitude towards the March of Progress seems childlike and absurd.

Yet how many persons right among your own friends can you recall remarking that a vacuum cleaner would never be accepted by the general public for cleaning rooms; that there was no method of laundering clothes so good as the old-fashioned washtub and that electric dishwashing was merely a "fad" that had no foundation in actual usage?

Go back still a little further. As late as 1879 when many folks were coming to believe in the commercial possibility of electric lighting (the method in which the vanguard of modern "electric service" generally was introduced to us) so learned a man as one of the Fellows of the Royal Academy of Science of Great Britain came out in [illegible] following sweeping denunciation:

"During the intervening thirty years I have abstained from further meddling with electric light because all I had seen then and have heard since has convinced me that though as a scientific achievement the electric light is a splendid success its practical application to all purposes where cost is a matter of serious consideration is a complete and hopeless failure and must of necessity CONTINUE TO BE SO!"

The modern world today with its maze and blaze of electric lights on every hand refutes those last four words beyond the shadow of a doubt. Had inventors and experimentors rested upon the statement of the scientist just quoted we would not have the marvellous lighting system that we know today. Similarly the detractors of electrical service in general and of such devices as the dishwasher electric refrigerator and electric range in particular may have cause within the next ten years to eat their words just as would the learned British gentleman of the eighteenth century were he to come back to earth tomorrow.

Electrical development is still obviously in its infancy. But electrical service both domestic and commercial is here to stay. Boosts will give this service greater headway than knocks. Why not start your bit of electrical "rooting" today?

K. OF C. CHALLENGES THE KU KLUX KLAN

Invite a Single Fact on Which to Base Their Opposition.

MONTREAL, Aug. 15 (United Press)—Declaring that the Knights of Columbus would stand in whatever country they operated, against all societies or combines that sought to inject religious and racial bias into governments and social life, Supreme Knight James A. Flaherty, of Philadelphia, in his address to the Forty-first Supreme International Convention of the Knights of Columbus today, challenged the Ku Klux Klan or any other opponents or critics of the K. of C. to produce a single fact on which to base their opposition or criticism.

Spent 40,000,000

"We can tolerate any reasonable difference of opinion," he stated, "but we shall not tolerate reflections upon our integrity. The Knights of Columbus have expended forty million dollars entrusted to them bo them American public, with the exception of some millions now being devoted to educational and hospitalization work. In Canada the Knights have spent many hundreds of thousands on welfare work. Every dollar has been devoted to its right purpose.

"Every remaining dollar is being devoted to that purpose, as tens of thousands of ex-service men of all denominations receiving education under K. of C. auspices can prove, and as any inquirer may see for himself by visiting any of 400 hospitals throughout the country where the Knights of Columbus maintain hospitalization service free for war veterans regardless of creed.

"Any man who challenges the record must prove his case or abandon it. We have been over patient with our slanderers. We shall not be so in the future; The laws can be invoked to curb malicious lying."

Three Big Problems

The K. of C. chief declared that the three most important tasks now before the Knights were the satisfactory solution of the Catholic boy problem, connected with which there is a special committee report on the probable formation of a junior K. of C. movement; next, the extension of the K. of C. national correspondence school into a great mail-system university for the 800,000 members of the order, and then the continuance of the hospital and educational work for disabled men.

"Not until the last dollar of our war fund is expended," Flaherty declared, "will the Knights of Columbus cease their ministrations to the disabled men in the hospitals. There are more than thirty thousand of these men now and the end is not yet. We shall remain with them to the finish."

K. of C. and Radicals

The Supreme Knight advocated a strong stand by the Knights against the forces of extreme radicalism. "Where radicalism is healthy, it does constructive work; where it is unhealthy, it will be found to consist mostly of violent talk and violent deeds. The K. of C. stand, every man of us, against intemperance of all kinds, political, economic or social."

He condemned strongly the movement against the parochial schools, as exemplified in the Oregon anti-parochial school amendment.

"We shall fight for our constitutional rights," he said, "to the highest tribunal in the land, for we are fighting for religious freedom, without which this nation or any other cannot be free."

The Supreme Knight's report was the first business following organization of the convention at the Mount Royal. The convention is the largest [illegible] by the Knights. Archbishop Gauthier delivered an address of welcome from the altar of the Cathedral of Notre Dame at the solemn mass opening the convention. A mammoth parade, in which more than twenty thousand local and visiting Knights marched, preceded the mass. The convention will continue through Tuesday night until Thursday afternoon.

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY

Terence Desmond (Terry) Exquisite and convent-reared, unbelievably innocent, is forced to work as a cashier in her father's roadhouse while

Juliet Divine, the stage name of her beautiful half-sister, whom Terry has not seen for years, lives like a princess and talks vaguely of a millionaire.

Terrence Desmond, their father, moody and selfish, formerly caretaker of an estate, is now the proprietor of the Blue Moon, a roadhouse. He is anxious to get Terry married and off his hands.

Mrs. Parmalee owns Silverwood, the estate of which Desmond was caretaker.

Betty Sheridan, her grand-daughter, whose rudeness to Terry the latter will never forget, is the wife of

Miles Sheridan, handsome and likable, who when Terry was a child furnished the money to send her to the Convent, partly to atone for his wife's rudeness. To Terry, he is always 'The Prince.'

Eustace Nazlo, a wealthy Greek, unscrupulous with women, is impressed by Terry's beauty and her resemblance to Juliet Divine, the famous stage beauty. He invites her to go for an auto ride and on the way to New York, he kisses her.

While Nazlo is arranging for a private dining room at the Hotel, Terry slips away. Nazlo is furious.

Terry takes a taxi to her sister's apartment and begs the maid to let her see Julia.

CHAPTER XV.

A Favor For 'The Prince'

"Well, she told me she wouldn't be home to anyone, no matter who, while that gentleman was here," explained the maid.

"They've got important business. That's what she said. But if you want to wait in the hall till I find out—or, no, maybe you'd better sit in the dining room."

The woman stood aside, half reluctantly, and let the girl—"the picture of Miss Divine"—cross the threshold.

It seemed to Terry that Julia's description of her apartment had fallen short of the reality. The square hall, from which several doors opened, had white walls with painted pictures set in panels. The doors were made of mirrors, with many small, square panes. On the polished floor was a rug of lovely pale tints, and immense vases held long-stemmed roses.

The dining room was white too, but it was panelled with rose-colored brocade framed in narrow lines of gold, and there was a crimson carpet so thick it felt like moss to the girl's feet. The chairs drawn round the table had carved backs and arms. There was gilding about them, too.

Terry thought it was like an apartment in the palace of a king, but she felt, dimly, that she would choose simpler things for herself.

The maid, who was of Indian type rather than negroid in appearance, was paid high wages for tact and intelligence—often needed. She had quickly decided upon the dining-room instead of the hall, for the visitor to wait.

The door of Miss Divine's "den," where she had received her caller, opened into the hall. There, the girl must be within earshot, perhaps might even catch a glimpse of Miss Divine, and try to "rush" her if she heard a refusal. Shut up in the dining room she could do no mischief.

The mulatto woman tapped discreetly at the door of the room named by Miss Divine her "den." "Come in!" cried the sweet, husky voice which was one of Julia's charms.

The maid obeyed only so far as to open the door halfway. "Would you kindly step into the hall a second, Madam?" she suggested. (Miss Divine was always called "Madam" by her servants.)

Julia was surprised, but she trusted Emmeline's tact and flew out, in a diaphanous rest gown, softly closing the door behind her. "What is it? Senor Fernandez hasn't come?" she asked anxiously, under her breath.

"No, Madam, it ain't as bad as that," Emmeline replied, with an odd mingling of affection and impertinence in her tone. "There's a young lady. She says she's your sister but you didn't expect her, so I wasn't sure if I ought to let her in.

"But she's the image of you. I thought she couldn't be a fraud. So I put her in the dining room."

"My goodness gracious!" Julia gasped. "It must be Terry."

"She didn't say her name. You never told me you had a sister, Madam."

"It wasn't worth while. Is she alone?"

"Yes, Madam."

"How did she come, I wonder?"

"She arrived in a taxi. She wants to borrow money to settle with the chauffeur and send him away. I would have arranged with Joe, in the elevator, to pay whatever it was. But I thought, if you didn't want her to stay——"

"Oh, I suppose she'll have to stay. I must manage somehow. Give Joe the money. Did she seem upset about anything?"

"No, Madam, she was real quiet, but begged awful hard to see you."

"Well, she can't see me yet," Julia decided. "Mr. Phillips won't stop long. If the child seems all right she can wait till we finish talking. And it's better they shouldn't meet. Gee! it's rather complicated to have a sister!"

"It must be, Madam," agreed Emmeline.

"Ask her if she wants anything to eat," Julia flung over her shoulder, as she opened the door again, and slipping through, closed it quickly.

In the "den," she flung herself down once more on a huge divan, crossed her feet, admired them, helped herself to a cigarette from a gold box on a low table, struck a match, and said—"Well, I'm half dead with curiosity to know why the great Mr. Hartley Phillips has honored poor little me with a call for the first time in his life. Isn't it about time we came to the point?"

As she spoke, Julia produced a perfect smoke ring, so large that, as it floated away from her lips, it made a vanishing frame for her bright hair and brilliant face.

The man who sat in an easy chair at some distance from the divan smiled at the picture. But there are smiles and smiles.

Juliet Divine knew all kinds of smiles on men's faces; how much they meant, or how little. This smile meant cool, slightly contemptuous appreciation of a physically admirable woman.

"It isn't my fault that we've been some time working up to the point," he said. "You were kind enough to insist on my having a cocktail—and I'd heard you were famous for your cocktails—among other things. In fact, I've called on you this evening because you're famous."

"Thank you!" Julia nodded to him with gaiety, real or affected. He was a good looking man, not more than forty years old, and was high up in what she would have called the "Four Hundred"—a phrase never forgotten by outsiders. But you could see by the thin features, narrowing eyes, and the skin which shaded into the same grey as the hair at his temples, that the man was cold as a December frost.

Julia was not inclined to help him. She saw that Mr. Hartley Phillips was not quite at ease, and when she had almost forced a cocktail and later a cigarette upon him, he had tried to excuse himself by saying he hadn't long to stay.

But it pleased her that somehow she had disconcerted such a man. She didn't like to think that a male type existed over which she had no power.

"When I 'phoned and inquired if you'd be at home, I said I wanted to ask a favor," Phillips began.

"Yes, you did," Julia shortly admitted. "I couldn't think what sort of favor you might want from me."

"And you'd never be likely to guess. But it's—er—a little difficult to explain at the opening—sounds rather bald."

Julia laughed a hard laugh. "I'm duse to bald men!"

Phillips took no notice of this sally, though it did not pass over his head. In fact, it was aimed at the top of it.

"I shan't ask the favor for nothing," he went on. "And it isn't for me, personally. It's for a friend. I don't know if you've heard of him: Mr. Sheridan—Miles Sheridan."

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

They Found King Snookums Sitting under a Toadstool.

PEE WEE LAND

The Pee Wees are first cousins to the Little Peezers and live in Pee Wee Land, under the burdocks.

One day the Fairy Queen received a letter. It said:

"Dear Queen:

"Could you and would you please to help me.

"My subjects have learned to ride on lightning bugs and since then I haven't had one peaceful minute.

"They say uneasy lies the head that wears a crown,' and I'll have you know, Queen, that although I wear my crown day and night, I never get a chance to lay my head anywhere, with all my worries.

"I never know where any of my subjects are at night. The only place I know is where they are not That place is Pee Wee Land.

"As soon as night comes they jump on lightning bugs and ride away, the whole kaboodle of them.

"And the trouble they get into is something fierce.

"Tiny Toe fell into a custard pie sitting on Mrs. Browns window sill to cool. And although he's a good swimmer, the custard set and he did, too!

"Wee Willie got stuck on some fly paper —or his clothes did— and the only way to peel him out of his clothes and bring him home the way he was.

"Could you—and would you please to help me?

"Your faithful subject,

"SNOOKUMS,

"King of the Pee Wees.'

"Nancy and Nick!" called the Fairy Queen, smiling. "It seems to me that this is a job for you and your magic shoes."

WhatSnookums Said

"Sure, we'll help to find the lost Pee Wees!" said Nick when the Fairy Queen told the Twins that she had had a letter from Snookums, the tiny king of the Pee Wees, asking her help.

"That's fine!' nodded her majesty, smiling. "I knew you would do it. But remember, you and Nancy will have to wish yourselves as small as the Pee Wees themselves if you are going to hunt for them."

"Oh, we don't mind that!' said Nancy. "We'll have lots of fun.'

"All right!" nodded the good queen. "You may start right away. Pee Wee Land is under the burdock patch just beyond Farmer Brown's sass-patch garden."

"Goodby!" called Nancy.

"Goodby!" cried Nick.

And away they went on their new adventure.

Pretty soon they came to the burdock patch and without any trouble found Pee Wee Land at once.

They found King Snookums sitting under a toad-stool, looking as sad as a fallen cake. His crown was on one side of his head and his robes looked terrible.

"Oh, I'm so worried,' he groaned. "I've lost 20 of my subjects since last Sunday a week!'

"We'll find them for you," cried Nick. "Don't worry any more. We're here! We're Nancy and Nick, the Twins, you know. The Fairy Queen sent us."

"You don't say so!" cried King Snookums, brightening at once. "I'm much obliged to meet you. Sit down and well go over everything. I'll give you a description of my missing subjects. It will help you to hunt."

Peat Fuel

(Contributed.)

On Friday, the 10th inst., the Examiner printed an article from the Canadian Mining Journal on the peat situation which strongly urged the Ontario Government to save the large sum which had been spent in the experimental work at Alfred.

On the same day a report appeared in the Globe that "the Ferguson administration will spend no more money on the Alfred peat manufacturing experimental plant. . . ."

It appears from the evidence of the Senate Committee and Fuel Board, backed up as they are by the final report of the Peat Committee, that it is decidedly in Ontario's interests to save the experimental expenditures already made, and help with the further sum necessary that, it is claimed, will put the commercial possibilities of peat beyond doubt.

The Government knows the facts. The general public are almost completely unaware of these things and are charry of putting money into a proposition that heretofore has been a loosing proposition. Therefore, it is up to the Government to see the thing through. It is poor business to start to accomplish anything and then just when the goal is in sight to quit.

It was never conceded that Mr. Ferguson was a quitter. He started this work, his successor fell down, and he appears to have now the opportunity of a life-time to vindicate his judgment and benefit his native Province.

He must remember that if the $50,000 worth of equipment at Alfred is allowed to be idle for another year before private capital comes to the rescue its value will be vastly deteriorated and the loss to the public will be correspondingly increased.

PROPER HOUSE WIRING YOUR SAFEGUARD.

In the early days of electricity when even its uses were an "unknown quantity" a hue and cry was raised about the many dangers connected with its harnessing for domestic and commercial purposes. As a matter of actual fact nothing is further from the real truth than denunciations of such a nature for electricity is by far and away the safest known force of energy for the distribution of heat light and power.

Before the advent of electricity we had to all intents and purposes to depend upon a burning fire for supplying our light and power. No equipment that can be called fool-proof has yet been found for the production of light that is evolved from any form of blaze or of power that depends upon a steam engine.

Electricity on the other hand produces a flameless light. No fire can result from this form of lighting. The wires that carry the electricity are so tiny they can be covered with fire resisting material which makes for absolute safety.

When you read that fires are of "electrical origin" you may be positive that like the farmer who saw his first giraffe at the circus and exclaimed "There ain't no sech animal" rarely is a fire of such inception. It is caused either by downright carelessness or by indifferent inefficient wiring.

The importance of having a first-class wiring job can thus readily be understood. If skilled labor and high grade materials are employed in the wiring of your home you will not have to worry about your electrical service.

In the kitchen where cooking by fuel often results disastrously the same cannot be said when the cooking is done electrically. Children cannot tamper with it with possible death as a result. In the household where there are youngsters electrical service is without a peer for supplying the members with light heat and power.

Emphasis should also be laid upon the importance of the use of switches throughout the home wherever possible. These will materially augment your comfort safety and the maximum service rendered by your various appliances.

FRESH AIR FOR ALL

One of the many problems introduced by the enormous buildings used for offices in modern cities is that of maintaining an adequate supply of fresh air in all parts of the structure. Neither in the large public halls nor in the mazes of smaller rooms is it possible to rely on the old-fashioned expedient of "opening the window." Provision must be made for fresh air in every part of the building whether the whim of the occupants or the climatic conditions outside cause the windows to be opened or closed. In one of the principal commercial buildings in the country a firm of British specialists have solved this problem by installing an electrically-driven air-washing and circulating plant in conjunction with an air-heating equipment. Nearly 10 million cubic feet (285,000 cubic metres) of air per hour are drawn in at a point far above the street level. This air is thoroughly washed and incidentally cooled. In summer it is distributed in its cool state but in winter it is warmed before being delivered through ducts to various parts of the building. In order that there may be no doubt about the throughness of the ventilation the clean air is driven in at the top of each room where foul air would otherwise accumulate and the foul air is drawn out through another set of ducts near the floor level. This system which is employed in other important British installations has the advantage of infinitely taking foul air away as fast as pure air is admitted; also a pressure balance is maintained and there is no draught through an open door or window.

50,000 MEN WANTED

To Harvest Western Canada's Crops.

Latest reports from the grain fields of the West indicate a record yield: 50,000 men are wanted from Eastern Canada to help harvest this crop. To meet this demand, special Harvesters' Excursions will be operated by the Canadian National Railway.

Through solid trains will be operated to Winnipeg without change, consisting of convertible (berth) Colonist cars of latest design. Lunch counter cars will be attached to trains serving food and refreshments at reasonable prices. For fares, train service, etc., apply to nearest Canadian National Agent.

Mrs. Ogglesby "Happiest Woman in London" Now

"Tanlac helped me the very day I commenced taking it, over a year ago, and I regained all my health and strength and fourteen pounds in weight," declared Mrs. Alice Ogglesby, 132 Maitland St., London, Ont.

"At the time I got Tanlac my health had been poor for four years. Sometimes I would go all day and eat nothing but tea and toast. I couldn't walk more than a hundred yards without becoming so short of breath my heart palpitated until I thought sure it would stop beating. I just dreaded to see night come, for I was so nervous I couldn't sleep.

"Well, I feel fine now, although it's been fully a year since Tanlac restored my health and built me up so wonderfully. I can walk for miles with no discomfort. My appetite is better than ever, and it's a pleasure to retire, for I sleep like a child every night. I am the happiest woman in London."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

Tanlac Vegetable Pills are Nature's own remedy for constipation. For sale everywhere.

PRICES.

Steel prices continue their "softening" tendency. Pig iron, at $28.27 a ton f. o. b. Pittsburgh, is $7.50 a ton cheaper than it was last September 30. Prices of the eight leading steel products are averaging $2.56 a ton less than they were at the beginning of May.

Steel and wheat prices are the leaders of general prices. The situation resembles a train with the cars going uphill and the double-header locomotives over the crest and started downhill. The engines, of course, may back up.

FLAT IRONS.

All flat irons are better for being greased once in a while with warm mutton tallow or sweet oil. Let them stand a few days after the grease has been applied, then wash in strong soap suds, rinse in hot soda water and wipe dry.

QUIZ CORNER

RADIO IN CANADA.

Q—To what extent is radio being developed in Canada?

A—The development of radio in Canada, radio broadcast, has a greater significance for Canada than perhaps any other country in the world. At least half a million square miles of territory now regarded as isolated will soon become an attractive territory to prospective settlers, to whom life would be impossible if they were entirely out of touch with the culture of civilization which to so many is expressed in terms of news and music.

SIR CHARLES TUPPER.

Q—Who was Sir Charles Tupper?

A—Sir Charles Tupper was born in Amherst, N.S. on July 2, 1821, of a United Empire Loyalist family, connected with Sir Isaac Brock. He studied medicine, and practised first as a doctor, and then as a politician in Nova Scotia, making his name as one of the "Fathers of Confederation," and later as a member and leader of the Dominion Government. He died Oct. 1915, still vigorous in mind and body, in spite of his ninety odd years.

If It Were Not for Women and Children—

The "guardian angel" of life insurance is today standing watch over thousands of Canadian homes. It is the great protector and friend of the women and children. It stands ready with three billion dollars to care for the dependents of the vast army of those insured,----to provide rent, food, clothing, education, and the other things that become even more necessary when the breadwinner is removed.

Take stock of your provision for those whom you love and who are entrusted to you for protection, not for so long as you live, but for as long as they live. Let it not be said: "He provided so well for himself, his wife and children, that he entirely forgot his widow and orphans."

Consult any life insurance representative, and you will be surprised to learn what adequate provision can be made through life insurance, and how simply it can be done.

One of the reasons why the good Maxwell continues to sweep forward into public favor at an unprecedented rate is because thousands of men and women who selected it as a remarkable example of value report it to be the most economical car to maintain they have ever known.

O.B.A.A. Play Off Dates Announced--Belleville Here Saturday

OXFORD-CAMBRIDGE LACROSSE TEAM WAS BEATEN IN HAVELOCK

Visitors Went Down By A Score of 11 To 5 In Battle at Havelock On Monday.

CLEAN PLAYERS.

Monday was a feature occasion for lacrosse in Havelock when the touring Oxford-Cambridge twelve, making their first appearance in that part of Ontario, met a team representing Havelock, composed of a wide assortment of players, andwere defeated 11 to 5 after a fairly interesting match. A crowd of nearly 2,000 journeyed in from Campbellford, Hastings and the neighboring points to see the Englishmen in action, and also to take a look at Lionel Conacher, who was sporting a Havelock sweater. The Big Train performed up to expectations and featured the match with his dashes, while the University men found favor with the fans who pulled hard for them to score against their more experienced opponents.

Amongst the player representing Havelock were Conacher, Maitlands; Sutherland, Riversides; Houghton, Mimico; Reeve, Maitlands; Magee, Torontos; McKay, McGill, Clapper and Brinkman of Leasides; Weir, University of Toronto; Dad Clapper, Hastings, and a number of good men from the locality. The tourists will not be asked to meet much better teams than that on their journey, and considering their hard game of last Saturday in Cornwall they made a fairly creditable showing. Tenman lacrosse was played as the visitors were shorthanded.

Keeps Sticks Off Body.

Oxford-Cambridge play a peculiar style which is much different from anything seen around these parts. In the English rules body checking is allowed but checking the body with the stick is illegal and the "square check" used so extensively by our defencemen is missing entirely from their play, as is swinging at body and arms. This makes for very clean lacrosse, all right, but it would seem to give the home men too much leeway for playing the stick so much instead of the man leaves the defenceman wide open. If two opposing teams, however, were playing the Oxford-Cambridge style, a fast interesting match would probably result with open play predominating.

The tourists' strong point is their midfield work. They have plenty of speed and lose little time in getting the ball up the field to their home. In close to the nets, however, they fall down for the lack of an experienced inside or outside home player. They are handicapped in this respect by the absence of Pearson, a Canadian, their star goal-scorer, and two others, rated amongst their strongest players, who as yet have failed to report for duty, but will probably join them further west. Their defence looks as though it could be made pretty formidable if coached into the Canadian methods of checking, as they are of average weight and fast. In stickhandling, again, they are good in midfield, but lack the sure, quick finish when in close to shooting distance.

Wear No Pads.

The English lacrosse uniform also differs from ours. The players sport long, thick blue stockings, turned down at the knee, as in soccer. They wear no pads, and in their deep blue jerseys with the light blue stripe running aslant from shoulder to hip they have much the appearance of an English Rugby team. The Canadians in their heavy pads looked very bulky in comparison.

Havelock's picked squad quickly assumed the lead after the start, and, led by Conacher, had all the better of the earlier part of the match, but as the contest progressed the visitors settled away, and in the second half, with their goalie making many clever saves and their home passing much better, had their fair share of the play. Conacher was the problem they could not solve. It was clear that they had never been up against anyone quite like him before, and they were very much impressed with his play. After some of his best efforts they congratulated him heartily, for when it comes to playing the game in a sporting way these Englishmen are in a class by themselves.

Orillia is their next stop where they will play the intermediates of that town, and after a match with Bradford they will arrive in Toronto next week for their game on the twentieth with Varsity.

Communists Stormed A German Town Hall.

LONDON, August 15. — A Central News despatch from Berlin says the Communists stormed the town hall at Alsdörf, eight miles north of Aix-La-Chapelle, with hand grenades and that 100 persons were killed or wounded.

Aledorf has a population of about 3000. Its industries consist mainly of iron mines and smelting furnaces.

Five Animals Killed In Electrical Storm.

LINDSAY, Aug. 15.—Duroing the severe electric storm which passed over sections of Victoria county on Sunday, Mr. Joseph Taylor, who resides on the Lindsay road, near Bobcaygeon, lost four valuable milch cows and a horse. The animals had taken shelter under a tree when they were struck by lightning.

Marmora—St. Simons Game For To-Morrow.

The St. Simons' Lacrosse Club of Toronto, and Marmora Lacrosse Club, have been ordered to meet in the next round for the Junior Lacrosse championship of Ontario. Owing to the great distance between these two points a sudden death game will take place at the Riverside Park on Thursday, at 3.15 p.m.

Marmora having cleaned up all the junior teams in Eastern Ontario certainly has a classy little team. St. Simons in order to win their group had to put away last year's junior champions, Brampton, which was no mean achievement. The Saints have this year got together one of the nittiest junior teams in years, it being a treat to watch them play. In Marmora however they are meeting a junior team that the East ought to be proud of, and if they do go down to defeat it will only be after a grim hard battle.

Unodubtedly a big crowd of Peterboro fans will take this opportunity to see what should be the best game of lacrosse to be staged locally in years.

PRUETT LACKS A FAST DELIVERY

Would Be Greatest Southpaw In The Game If He Only Had a Good Fast Ball.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—"If Pruett of the St. Louis Browns had a good fast ball, he would be one of the greatest southpaws in the history of the game," says Babe Ruth.

The Babe doesn't hand out such a line of dope as an alibi to explain his inability to hit Pruett. Pruett's specialty is striking out the Babe. The big fellow is practically helpless against "Shuck's" slow curve and fast-breaking fadeaway.

Ruth's remarks relative to Pruett goes for a score of other major league pitchers. While pitchers who rely entirely on a fast ball have no chance with the "rabbit ball" now in use, a pitcher to become a star must have a fast ball in his assortment.

Pruett has everything except a fast ball. He has two types of curves, a puzzling fadeaway and a nice change of pace. The slender youngster, however, lacks a fast ball. Pruett's best fast ball is of medium speed, just the hittable sort of delivery.

Pruett boasts a fadeaway that is as hard to hit as was the fadeaway delivery used by Mathewson. Few left handers have ever used the fadeaway delivery, which naturally makes that style all the more effective for Pruett.

But the fast ball is lacking, and the opposing batters know it. Consequently when Pruett pitches, the opposing batters hug the plate, knowing they have nothing to fear from the fast one. If Pruett had a good fast ball, such a practice would be dangerous and wouldn't be indulged in.

Such a stance makes it easier to hit Pruett's slow offerings, since the batters know just what to expect. A good fast ball would serve to act as a threat for Pruett.

Lack of a fast ball keeps him from becoming a star.

TORONTO LEAFS HAVE WON AGAIN

Victory Yesterday Made Two In A Row Over Jersay City Skeeters.

JERSEY CITY, Aug. 15.—(Canadian Press.)— The Toronto Maple Leafs squeezed through a light hitting game yesterday afternoon with a second victory over the Skeeters, the score being 2 to 0. Dean Barnhardt, the Jerseys' veteran right-hander, and Reynolds for the Leafs, fought it out on the hurling hill to an even break with six hits each way. Each gunner issued two passes and Barnhardt fanned three men. Toronto went right after the victory at the start and landed it with a run in the first inning, the only tally needed to sew it up. There will be a double-header here to-day, Thursday's game being brought forward. Score:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Toronto | 100 | 100 | 000—2 6 0 |
| Jersey City | 000 | 000 | 000—0 6 0 |

Divided a Double Header.

NEWARK, N.J., Aug. 15.—(Canadian Press.)— The Newark Bears yesterday divided a double-header with Buffalo. After the Bears lost the first game in 12 innings, by a 3 to 2 score, they won the second, 5 to 2, in seven innings. Ellis and Lepard had an old-fashioned pitching duel in the first game. Scores:

First Game:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Buffalo | 011 | 000 | 000 001—3 10 0 |
| Newark | 002 | 000 | 000 000—2 5 3 |

Rochester 7, Baltimore 2.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 15.—(Canadian Press.)—Rochester evened up the most important series of the season yesterday with the Orioles when the Colts were the victors over the four time champions by the score of 7 to 2. Big Bill Moore, on the slab for the visitors, was a complete puzzle to the Birds after the first two innings, holding them to six hits, three of which were made by Max Bishop. The score:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Rochester | 100 | 021 | 012—7 11 0 |
| Baltimore | 110 | 000 | 000—2 6 3 |

THE FIRST DRAW IN O.B.A.A. SERIES

Dates For First Round Of Semi-Final Games To Begin Shortly.

Guelph, August 15. — Canadian Press. — At a recent meeting of the Executive Committee of the O.B.A.A the first draw was made in the various series for the first round of the semi-final games which will begin inside of a few days.

In the senior series, the first draw brings the winners of the Kent County League against the winners of the Southern Ontario League, the dates to be Aug. 25, Sept. 1 and September 3, should three games be necessary.

Inter-County v. Lake Shore — August 25. Sept. 1 and Sept. 3.

H.A.B.A. v Niagara District—Sept 3, 5 and 8.

Eastern Ontario v. Central Ontario — Aug 25, Sept. 1 and 3.

The winners of the Central Ontario-Eastern Ontario series will play off with the winners of the Niagara district-H.A.B.A. series; and the winners of the Kent County-Southern Ontario series will play off with the winners of the Inter-County-Lake Shore series in the second round, leaving two winners for the finals.

Should the T.A.B.A. become re-affiliated, or the Riverdale League be taken in, as is the present intention there may be a change in the second round.

In the Intermediate section Eastern Division, the draw is Kingston v. Bay of Quinte; Frontenac v. Lennox and Addington; Durham and Ontario v. Cobourg town; Trent Valley v. East Northumberland; Tri-County v. York-Simcoe; East Peterborough v. East Durham; Peterboro City v. East Peterborough, or East Durham.

Eastern Ontario with several groups, has three weeks' additional in which to produce a winner. All series must be started on Aug. 18.

Junior Series—Kingston City vs. Oshawa; H.A.B.A. vs. Niagara District; Southern Counties vs Brantford; Peterboro vs. Kingston or Oshawa; North Wellington has three weeks to produce a winner.

Juvenile Series — Hamilton vs. Niagara District; Brantford vs. Guelph; Oshawa vs. Peterborough; Oshawa or Peterborough vs. Cobourg.

Hamilton and Brantford play-off in the Midget Series, the winner to play Niagara District. Lindsay plays Peterborough and the semi-finals are yet to be arranged.

There may be changes in several of these draws if the T.A.B.A. decides to affiliate.

Draw Made for O.B.A.A. Play offs

The following draw has been made for the O.B.A.A. play offs in the Intermediate, Junior and Midget series. The C.G.E. team drew a bye in the Intermediate section. The draw is:

Kingston City vs Bay of Quinte.

Frontenac vs Lennox and Addington.

Trent Valley vs East Northumberland.

Cobourg Town vs Durham-Ontario.

Tri County vs North Simcoe.

East Peterboro vs East Durham.

Peterboro City, bye.

These games will be played this week and next week and the final winners will play off with Ottawa for the honors of the Eastern Ontario section. The winners of this series will play off with the western section for the championship.

In the Junior series the draw is: Peterboro vs Oshawa.

Kingston vs Belleville.

The winners will play off and the final winners will be pitted against the winners of the Western section.

In the midget series the Peterboro winners will be matched with Lindsay.

THISTLES LEADING GAME WAS CALLED

Only Six of The Vets Appeared for the Game Last Evening. — Darkness Stopped Game.

The Vets and Thistles met last evening in a league game at the Oval. Scots scored two goals during the game but was not finished owing to darkness and will have to be played at a latter date.

The Scots had a full team out while the Vets had only six men at the kick off. After five minutes play Williams beat Burrows on his own. It was a matter of shooting for goal but the Vets players put up a sterling defence. Half-time arrived with the Scots only one goal in the lead.

On resuming, Jack Peel arrived and went into goal, Burrows going to the left wing to make the Thistles' full eleven wake up. This added some excitement although the play was farcial. The game was spoiled completely by offsides being played by the full-backs. After 15 minutes play Richmond scored from long range to make it two up. Darkness set in making the game hard to follow and compelling Referee Clark to call the play twelve minutes before the finish.

The players were:

Thistles — Rickards, goal; Rae and Hall, full-backs; Jackson, Richmond and Anderson, half-backs; Melville, Hutton, Mackay, Williams and Burgess, forwards.

G.W.V.A. Peel, goal; Crowe and Dyer, backs; J. Wade, C. Griffine, Chambers and Burrows.

Referee—J. Clark.

Hitting Of Cobb Was Feature Of The Game.

DETROIT, Aug. 15.—(Canadian Press.) — Detroit hit Naylor and Walberg hard yesterday and took the first game of the series from the Athletics, 7 to 2. Cobb hit three doubles in three successive trips to the plate. Pillette was effective in the pinches. Hale was hit in the side by a pitched ball in the eighth inning and was assisted off the field. Score:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Philadelphia | 000 | 010 | 010—2 9 2 |
| Detroit | 102 | 211 | 00x—7 14 3 |

TROUBLE WITH SHELL.

MONTREAL, August 15 (Canadian Press). — Great trouble was experienced in transporting the Leander Rowing Club shell from the boat to the train when the British team left for the Queen City.

It took two waggons to support it so that it would not buckle, and only certain of the streets of Montreal could be traversed.

CHICAGO GRABBED TWO FROM BOSTON

Batting of Adams Was a Feature Of The Game. Homer In Each Game.

BOSTON, Aug. 15.— (Canadian Press.)— Chicago took both games from Boston yesterday, 6 to 1 and 5 to 4. The batting of Adams, who made a homer in each game, scoring Statz ahead of him each time, and the general play of the latter were features. Statz knocked out a triple in the seventh and this, followed by Adams' home run to right centre, gave Chicago the tieing and winning runs in the second game. Scores:

First Game:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Chicago | 030 | 200 | 010—6 13 1 |
| Boston | 000 | 000 | 100—1 7 1 |

New York 3, Brooklyn 2.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.— (Canadian Press.)—The New York Giants returned from a successful road trip yesterday and defeated Brooklyn in a one-game series, 3 to 2. Henry pitched well for Brooklyn, but was very poorly supported, Bancroft scoring one run while Johnston was chasing Frisch back to first on an attempted double steal. Scott was knocked out in the seventh, Bentley stopping a Brooklyn rally with two strikeouts. Dave Bancroft, captain of the Giants, returned to the New York line-up after an absence of seven weeks and played second base. Score:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Brooklyn | 001 | 000 | 100—2 8 5 |
| New York | 002 | 010 | 00x—3 9 2 |

Henry and Deberry; Scott, Bentley and Snyder.

Philadelphia 16, Pittsburgh 10.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 15. — (Canadian Press.) — Philadelphia took a slugging match from Pittsburgh yesterday, 16 to 10, after the lead had see-sawed throughout the contest. Seven runs in the eighth gave the locals the game after Pittsburgh had batted Couch for five runs in their half of the inning, tying the score.

Traynor and Lee divided batting honors, the former having two doubles, a triple and a single, while Lee hit a home run and two doubles. Score:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Pittsburgh | 200 | 020 | 051—10 17 2 |
| Philadelphia | 100 | 112 | 47x—16 17 0 |

OSHAWA JUNIORS TO PLAY PETERBORO

Meets Lakeviews Here on Friday Afternoon in the Championship Play-Off

OSHAWA, August 15 (Special to The Examiner). — Oshawa St. George's, champions of the local Junior League, received word to-day that they were drawn with the Peterborough Lakeviews in the first round of the Ontario Baseball Amateur Association junior play-offs.

The St. George's won the right to go into the Ontario play-offs after four games in seven playing days.

On Saturday afternoon, 4th August, they won the final game of the League scheduled, and evened up with the Christian Church nine for first place.

On Monday morning, 6th August (Civic Holiday), they were beaten by the C. C. boys, 13-12 On Thursday evening they won a five-innings fixture by 4-2, and in the play-off on Saturday afternoon last they carried off the championship by winning the odd game, 13-6.

The local kids will leave for Peterborough at 1.30 on Friday afternoon, and the following will be their line-up:

Broad, c; Turner, lf; Boneham, cf; Atkinson, 3b; S. Locelock, b; Cardinal, 1b; Scero rf; Claus, ss; and P. Gower, p. Shein, spare.

HOUSES ARE SUBMERGED.

TOKIO, August 15 (Canadian Press). — Tidal waves, combined with severe storms, have submerged 25,000 houses along the Yalu River and on the West Coast of Korea.

No estimate of the loss of life has yet been received, but it is said that the damage to crops and the lumber industry will be heavy.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORT

The Juveniles have a snappy game scheduled for this evening when the Maple Leaf and Sacred Heart teams meet at Riverside Park. A victory for the Sacred Heart means the winning of the second half. If the Leafs pull out with a win they will still be in the running for the honors of the second half.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

BRANTFORD-VETERANS FOOTBALL GAME.

Editor Examiner.

Dear Sir,—The writer is not of that breed which is unable to acknowledge defeat or applaud its victors on the field of sport. Neither do I claim allegiance to those showing any animosity to the Scots, but I must confess that my faith in these sturdy people was sorely shaken by the attitude adopted by many of their compatriots in the crowd witnessing the Brantford-Veterans football game on Saturday last.

It is inconceivable to those with normal sporting instinct that because the local Thistles went down to defeat at the hands of the G.W.V.A. team many of the Thistles supporters allowed their bitterness to carry them so far as to yell cries of derision at the Vets whilst they were struggling with the Brantford team and to cheer the visitors each time they registered in the Peterborough goal.

It is, of course, appreciated that true football lovers will applaud good play whichever side it may be, but the unsportsmanlike conduct of those Scots on Saturday gave one a bad impression.

Possibly the Thistles will be the contestants next year, but one thing is certain, they need have no fear regarding moral support, for I am sure that the supporters of the Veterans' organization will cheer for Peterborough regardless of which team has the honor to represent this district.

Why all this enmity? I cannot convince myself that it is the wish of the players of the Thistles team, and it is certainly not consistent with the spirit which characterizes the Highland games of Scotland.

To a casual observer, unfortunately, it was quite plain to see that the chief delinquents were to be found amongst those Scots who have "recently arrived."

It is, therefore, hoped that this letter, written as it is in a kindly spirit, will not fall on barren ground but that those participants in last Saturday's incident will forget the past and endeavor to uphold the splendid traditions of their countrymen on the field of sport, remembering that Peterborough considers them her citizens, and whilst in her midst they should encourage clean, healthy sport—not defeat its purposes.

All honor to the Vets for the game manner in which they tackled the visitors under such trying conditions.

With plenty of practice and encouragement, Peterborough will win that cup yet.

Yours very truly,
D G. MELTON,
569 George street.

WON WITH EASE.

The C.G.E. girls defeated the Tigers in a one-sided game last evening by a score of 55 to 5. The Electrical girls took an early lead and held it throughout.

Owing to the growing shortness of the evenings the management of the league will in future be forced to penalise any team arriving late to the extent of one run for every five minutes of lateness. All games are scheduled to start promptly at 6.30 and this rule will be enforced in the future.

Games scheduled for the remainder of the week are:

Wednesday— Colonials vs DeLaval.

Thursday—Tigers vs Woollen.

Friday—C.G.E. vs DeLaval.

Saturday—Quakers vs Colonials.

Monday—Tigers vs DeLaval.

NEW SCHEME TO TRAIN RUGBY TEAM

tMembers Of The Spuad Will Be Given A Few Weeks Trip To The Mountains.

MONTREAL ,August 15 (Canadian Press). — A novel scheme is being considered by the McGill football authorities in connection with the early season training of the candidates for the intercollegiate team this year. It is proposed that the players should be taken to a camp up in the Laurentian Mountains for the few weeks' training preparatory to the opening of the University and the football season in order to get them in shape for the strenuous period ahead of them, and, at the same time, allow more concentration on the plans for moulding the team into shape.

Under the guidance of Coach Frank Shaughnessy and his squad of assistants, work with the team will get under way on 15th September.

There will be no less than six coaches on hand to help the senior mentor along with the work, all of them having played under the tuition of Shaughnessy in past years at McGill.

The assistant coaches will be Dr. Joe Donnelly Jack Lewis, Dr. "Dud" Ross, Dr. Cyril Flanagan, and Doug. Ambridge.

DINGHY SAILING RACE ONE OF THE SEASON'S BEST

One of the best dinghy sailing races of this season took place on Clear Lake on Saturday afternoon when a contest for the Peterborough Canoe Company's Challenge Cup took place. The race was run off under the auspices of the Kawartha Park Cottagers' Association. The boats taking part were the B.V.D. of Stoney Lake, owned and sailed by W. Willonghby, and winner of the cup last year; the Sunbeam of Chemong, owned and sailed by Reg. Dixon; the Humbug of Chemong, owned and sailed by Ross Thompson; the Sampan of Chemong, owned and sailed by V. Eastwood; and the Cumberland Dinghy, sailed by Mr. Van Natta.

The course was twice over a triangle about two and a half miles long. A good wind was blowing, and on the first leg of the triangle a keen contest developed for position. Finally the Sunbeam led off, and having obtained the lead, held that position to the finish. The B. V. D finished second, about one minute behind the winner. Mr. Reg. Dixon will hold the cup until the regatta at Kawartha Park in 1924, or until challenged to defend it, in accordance with the regulations laid down by the Peterborough Canoe Company.

The regulations governing the race are in the hands of Dr. M. A. Morrison, trustee of the cup. Mr. E. I. Brock acted as starter and referee of the race on Saturday, and Dr. A. Gilchrist of Toronto as judge.

BABE RUTH AFTER BATTING HONORS

Goal This Year Is to Lead American League In Batting. Not After Homers.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Babe Ruth seeks to attain several baseball honors this year. Babe's ambition is no longer merely confined to the making of home runs.

Ruth's greatest goal this year is to lead the American League in batting. Babe wants to prove to the world that he is something more as a batsman than merely a slugger.

This year, instead of swinging for a home run every time he came to bat. Ruth has mixed 'em up on the opposition. He has laid down and beat out many a bunt.

When pitchers have insisted in slowing up on him and making him hit a ball on the outside, the Babe has choked up on his bat and dropped a Texas leaguer into left fleid.

At other times he has taken the old-time healthy cut that caused him to drive out 59 home runs during the 1921 season, one of the most remarkable records ever compiled in baseball.

Ruth has slowly but surely cut down the commanding lead once held by Harry Heilman of Detroit and feels sure that he will top all the American League batters at the finish.

Ruth also feels that he will win back his home run crown. It looked for a time as if Cy Williams of the Phillies had a walkaway, but the Babe has cut down the big lead and is now tied with Williams.

Battering Babe also feel positive that if the pitchers continue to walk him with reckless abandom he will hang up a base on balls record that will never be touched.

Incidentally Babe yearns for another chance to deliver in a world series, and the way the Yankees are going it looks as if he was certain to get it.

Truly this is a big year for the Babe.

Puzzling Plays

THE PLAY

Ground rules often create trouble. That is one reason why spectators are never allowed on the field during a world series.

With the ropes stretched in right field, all hits in a minor league games last summer that went into that territory were limited to two bases.

One one occasion the right fielder backed up against the ropes, caught the ball and fell over the ropes into the two-base territory.

In another case he jumped over the rope and made a catch of the ball at about the same spot. What decision would have been correct in each case?

THE INTERPRETATION

The batsman should have been declared out on the first play made by the right fielder. He caught the ball in playing territory, completing a legal catch, and the batsman was out regardless of the fact that he fell over the ropes, landing in restricted territory.

In the other case the batsman was entitled to two bases. The fielder had no right to jump over the ropes and make a play in restricted territory.

THE PLAY

What constitutes interference by the batsman when his bat is the weapon of interference? Must it be intentional to be penalized?

Thre is a runner on first. The batsman attempts to sacrifice the runner to second. His effort is a bunt down the third-base line.

The catcher dashes out to make a play. As he is about to pick up the ball and make a play on the runner, the batsman, so throws his bat that it hits the ball, making it impossible for the catcher to complete the play. The runner on first went to third and the batsman reached first.

When the batsman threw his bat he had his back to the play and probably had no intention of interfering. Should that fact receive any consideration?

What is the proper ruling?

THE INTERPRETATION

The batsman should be declared out for interference.

When his bat came into contact with the ball, preventing the catcher from picking it up and making a play, he created an intereference.

No consideration can be given to the fact that he had his back to the play, and had no idea his bat would prevent a play by the catcher.

If serious consideration was given to the intent, the umpire would always be in trouble on an interference play. The player would invariably contend there was no intent to interfere.

Th batsman should have been declared out, and the runner who went from first to third sent back to first, as no runners can advance on such an interference.

MANUSH WILL BE A GREAT BATTER

Ty Cobb Says He Will Be The Greatest Batter In The Majors In a Couple Of Years.

DETROIT, Aug. 15.—"A natural hitter who inside of a couple of years should be one of the most talked of batters in the major leagues, if he continues to improve and learn as rapidly as he has since the opening of the season."

There you have Ty Cobb's opinion of Heinie Manush, recruit outfielder of the Detroit Tigers. Cobb, premier batsman, certainly should know.

Manush in his first year as a big leaguer is causing all kinds of trouble for the twirlers in the Johnsonian organization. Standing well over six feet and weighing about 190 pounds, Manush takes a cut at the ball that reminds you of Nap Lajoie, Hans Wagner, Sam Crawford or some of the other great hitters of ye olden days.

As yet American League pitchers haven't been able to discover any weakness in Manush's style. Because he is a free swinger it was believed a change of pace would bother him. But the pitchers slow up and make him look foolish on a certain style ball only to have him come back and whale the next ball delivered in the same way.

"I threw him everything I had in my bag of tricks, including the waste ball," remarked Eddie Rommel, star pitcher of the Athletics, after a recent game. "He hit them all, including the waste ball, reaching out and swatting that one."

Using wireless amplifiers and a loud speaker to magnify, the sound of heart beats is surgery's latest development.

OSHAWA PLAY THE LAKEVIEWS

First Semi-Final O.B.A.A. Junior Game Here Friday Evening.

On Friday evening, at Riverside Park, St. George's of Oshawa, winners of the Oshawa Junior baseball series, will play here to open the O.B.A.A campaign with Lakeviews, champions of the local Junior series. It will be a battle of southpaws—Gower, a clever portsider with the Oshawas, opposing Frank Whitehouse. The second game will be played at Oshawa next Wednesday. The winner of this round will meet the victor of the Belleville-Kingston series.

Lakeviews set up an enviable record during the league season winning all games played. Their only loss was a one-run defeat by C.G.E. Intermediate champions the score being 5 to 4 in an exhibition contest. Much of the success of the club is due to the sterling work of Whitehouse and Collins this pair being conceded to be one of the strongest Junior batteries in Ontario. They get good fielding support, and right now Lakeviews are a very dangerous hitting team.

Baseball fans should remember that winning teams are not made over night. Men behind such clubs spend a lot of money and time, and in the case of the Lakeviews, it has taken a long time to produce a winner The fans should give Manager LeBarr and his champions a bumper crowd on Friday evening. The game will start at five o'clock.

BOXING TITLE IS ONLY A BOTHER

So Says Leo Flynn, Manager of a Big String of Fighters.

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—(United Press)—Just recently, Jimmy Jones, a young welterweight from Youngstown, won a referee's decision in Boston from Dave Shade. The New York Boxing Commission, which had previously awarded the welterweight championship to Shade because Mickey Walker, the official champion, would not fight, was then put under the job of setting up a new champion.

Leo Flynn, manager of Shade, was called before the commission and asked if he could produce any reasons to show why his fighter had not lost the title.

Flynn is as crafty a manager as there is in the business, rather surprised the commissioners when he, with little fuss, said:

"If Shade had any claim to any kind of a title he certainly blew it when he blew that decision. Jimmy Jones is the champion."

Considering that the main idea of practically every boxer and every manager is to get a title and then hold it, the attitude taken by Flynn in passing away a championship without an argument was surprising.

Flynn has the largest string of boxers in the country and his earning are said to average of $200,000 a year. He has to have some ideas to have made such a success of his business and some of his theories are unique.

"What did that title means to us?" he asked, in explaining his ideas.

"There are only two titles that have any great value, the heavyweight and the lightweight championships. The others are mainly a bother and they cause a lot of trouble.

"There may be some glory and fame in being a champion or the manager of a champion, but there is a lot of grief with it. Say as they may, boxers and their managers are in the game purely as a business proposition. If not, why are they not amateurs? Smart boxers know that the fame they get out of championships is short lived and that they are soon forgotten when they drop out of sight. Consider how many great fighters there have been in the past and how many of them are remembered today.

"Take the case of Dave Shade. He is the greatest drawing card in ring outside Dempsey and Leonard. He has had forty fights in the last two years, and because he fought often for good purses he finds himself at the age of twenty-one fixed for the rest of his days. In two more years he can retire for the rest of his days, if he wants to.

"Shade gets a lot of work because he draws better as a fighter who could beat the champion if he got a chance, than the champion who is always being held up by other managers as dodging their fighters.

"With no title to worry about, we can send Shade in any place with any referee, in any kind of a decision fight, as often and as for as much money as we want. If he loses a decision, it is forgotten after he has his next fight.

"With a title we would have to argue and fight about referee, weight forfeits, and a hundred other things and just as soon as he lost the title or was jobbed out it, he would cease to be such a drawing card. Former champions have little lustre.

"Since Shade is considered all over as the next man to the welterweight championship, we got more offers than we can handle with out services so much in demand, we can raise our bid to a champion's price. Other managers, with "hopes," figure: "If we can beat Shade we can make our fighter.' It all makes business for us."

LOCK WORKS PICNIC DELIGHTFUL OUTING

Seventh Annual Event an Unqualified Success—Happy Time at South Beach.

(By Frank Russell.)

The Lock Works' picnic on Saturday, per Steamer Stoney Lake, over the Lift Lock, and through the canal—where pretty, ever-changing scenery meets the eye- to South Beach. proved a really delightful outing for employees and friends.

After a pleasant trip through the canal. past Lakefield, through Clear Lake to Young's Point, and thence on through Stoney Lake, the party reached the wharf at South Beach. Here Mr. Brooks, the genial proprietor of the hotel had placed his nice shady grounds at the disposal of the "trippers" equally with the visitors to the hotel.

Arriving at midday, dinner was naturally the first consideration. Some brought their picnic baskets ashore, some consumed their comestibles on board.

Sports Programme.

At about 2 o'clock running off the following attractive programme of sports started:

Men's race (backwards)—1 B. Masterson; 2 S. Thorndyke.

Horseshoe game — Thos. O'Brien and William Kelly winners.

Pie-eating contest — 1 Rube Brady, 2 Mike O'Brien.

Music Ashore.

During the four hour wait at South Beach the dance orchestra, consisting of Messrs Tucker (violin) Tom Taylor (piano), and G. Chambers, drums, etc., (assisted by a cornettist and a clarinet player from the band) arrived on shore, and was located in the hotel dance hall, where dance music was liberally played for the benefit of the hotel visitors and excursionists generally; while the members of the 57th band, under the conductorship of Mr. Dyer played many selections on the lawn. A cornet solo by Mr. Gallagher was a noteworthy item.

Bathing. swimming and fishing were also largely indulged in

The Departure Homeward.

At four o'clock all were once more on board. As on the upward journey so it was on the downward. The 57th Band played on the upper deck, while the dance orchestra was very busy on the main deck. Dancing had been going on from start to finish, alternated at times by comic songs, Highland flings, breakdowns, etc. Mr. Tom Cockerille kept the crowd bursting with laughter over his comic songs, recitations, step dances, breakdowns, and a peculiar dance he called a "Skip-Jack." A Highland fling and other characteristic dances were given by a charming little ten-year-old girl, Clare Killoran. Not the least taking part of this performance was the naturalness and entire absence of self-consciousness evidenced by the little dancer—a lovable little kid.

Around 5.30 and 6 p.m. teas were the order of the day for a short interval when dancing was again resumed until the Lift Lock being once more negotiated the party entered the Little Lake.

Before getting alongside the wharf a hearty vote of thanks was proposed and carried to the directors of the Lockworks for their liberality, which appreciation Mr. E. Howson was deputed to convey. A hearty vote of thanks was also passed to the committee for their untiring zeal, which had caused the day to be an unqualified success, and to the Captain, officers, crew and stewardess of the Stoney Lake.

The Committee.

In charge of this most highly successful outing were Mr. T. Burke (chairman), Messrs P. O'Toole, F. Guerin, J. Clancy, E. Gibson, S. Thorndyke, H. Archambault, H. Hill, J. Burke, T. McIntee, F. J. Whaley and Miss Brady.

The directors generously provided the boat, Mr. Howson donated cigars for the men and the chocolates for the ladies, which were distributed gratis and freely to all comers. The members of the 57th band volunteered their services.

Twenty five dollars had been donoted by the committee in the form of strips, each containing four vouchers of the face value of five cents each. These strips were given to the kiddies gratis, and were redeemable at the booth. so that each child was well provided with candies, soft drinks, ice cream or whatever its favourite comestible might happen to be. The booth was under the management of Messrs. J. J. Burke and C. Checetti. Mr. Parsons officiated as "caller off" in the dances.

The weather was simply perfect from every point of view.

TURF EXPLOITS OF CANADIANS

Many of World's Records Established in U. S. A. Made By Dominion Drivers.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—(By Canadian Press).—The exploits of Canadian drivers on the trotting circuits of the United States are told in a special article published by the New York Herald. The paper recalls that many of the records established in this country were made by reinsmen from the Dominion and cities a long list of expert horsemen who came from across the line to win fame on the tracks of this country. The Herald says:

"Victor Fleming, who topped the list of winning drivers up to the close of the Cleveland meeting, is one of the many Canadian reinsmen who cross the border every year or who have remained on this side to train and drive. Fleming hails from Calgary, Alberta. Ben White, the driver of Lee Axworthy, 1:58 1-4, Lee Worthy, 2:03 1-4, and Jane Revere, 2.06 3-4, grew up at Whitevale, Ontario. Dave McClary, the first man to drive a harness horse in 2:00 or better, was born at London, Ontario. W. H. Cocher, secretary of the National Trotting Association and himself a Canadian, claims the late Any McDowell, driver of Alix, 2:03 3-4, for the nation to the north, though it has been said that he was born in western New York. Nat Ray, of Peter Earl and Peter the Brewer fame, certainly comes from Canada. Others now active are W. T. Crozier, one of the big winners in the Bay State Circuit; Harry Stinson of Brantford, who drives The Toddler, 2:03; Dave Warman, the trainer of Penrod, 2:13 1-4, and William Hodson, the trainer of Shawnee, 2:03 1-4.

"Old time horsemen will recall such other successful Canadians as Chas. Wagner, who invaded the Grand Circuit with his big brown mare Phyllis, 2:15 1-2, forty years ago this summer and "downed the gang" at Pittsburgh, Buffalo and Boston; George Langs, who devastated Detroit and Cleveland some ten years later with that deceptive looking pot-bellied stallion Alvin, 2:13 1-4; Cope Stinson, the father of Harry, who developed Patron, 2:14 1-4, the great three-year-old trotter of 1885; Ike Hodgins, of Little Billy (alias Monitor) notoriety in the late '70s; David B. Herrington, long the superintendent and trainer of Jacob Ruppert's stud and stable; Havelock James, who swept the Central New York Circuit with Fides Stanton, 2:15 1-4, about thirty years ago; William Fleming, who made a telling trip through the Grand Circuit with the pacer Joe Patchen II., and George McPherson, who came out of the fastnesses of Canada with the great pacer Angus Pointer some twenty years ago."

LACROSSE GAME AT RIVERSIDE

Junior Semi-Final Between Marmora and a Toronto Team Here on Thursday Afternoon.

The junior semi-final lacrosse game at Riverside Park to-morrow will bring Marmora and St. Simons of Toronto together to decide the winner of their round. It is a sudden death game, and should attract all the lovers of the game in the city and district who can possibly attend it.

Marmora have been well coached, and although they are a young and comparatively inexperienced team, they have shown great improvement during the two years in which they have played in the O.A.L.A. The district naturally hoped for a win for Marmora.

CAP EXPLODED.

SARNIA, Ont., Aug. 15.—(Canadian Press)—Clayton Graham, aged 15, of Wanstead, Ontario, may die as the result of injuries received by explosion of a dynamite cap which he drew out of his pocket to show to another boy. He sustained a deep wound in his abdomen and tore his hand so badly that amputeation may be necessary.

TABLET UNVEILED

one in the church's nave, is mainly of burnished bronze, and oblong in shape, with edging, and beautifully designed oak leaf inner border surrounding the superscription, also in bronze. Bronze lettering standing in bold relief from a black background reads as follows:

"Erected by Citizens of Peterborough in Memory of Ferman Richardson Yokome, Journalist. Born 1842. Died 1918.

"With good will doing service."

This tablet hangs on the south-east wall of the nave, just right of the door as one enters the church.

A Warm Eulogy.

In his touching address, Archdeacon Davidson paid a glowing tribute to the late F. R. Yokome, his life's work, and his exemplary citizenship, and he expressed confidence that the sympathetic feelings which animated those who had assembled to honour the departed's memory would contribute to a spiritual atmosphere which would prove more effective in strengthening them individually for labour in the interests of the city than any words of his.

Continuing, the reverend gentleman said he would not speak of Mr. Yokome as a writer of political articles, nor hold him up as a perfect man in any sense. In writing political articles, Mr. Yokome considered himself a pen in the hands of a political leader, simply doing his duty and not catering to a pleasure. Neither did the speaker wish to bring Mr. Yokome before his audience in the character of a churchman, although he lauded him for having loved his church, to which he was devoted with all his heart, and for desiring and advocating that all churches unite for accomplishing more and more work in community interest.

Exemplary Citizen.

Speaking of Mr. Yokome as a citizen, his admirable qualities, in which aspect he stressed, and referring to him as reticent and in some respects living a life apart, content with a place in the background of life, so to speak, the Archdeacon extolled his work in the newspaper field, and held him up as an example to many men who, while like him not widely known, can yet play a part as worthy citizens. He lived an exemplary and wholesome life, labouring skilfully and faithfully, and working unsefishly for work's sake and not for money. Loving his duty, he, like our soldiers in the Great War who did their part for the Empire, also worked for the job's sake ,and in the interests of his fellow-man city and country.

The City Beautiful.

Referring to Mr. Yokome's love of nature and his efforts for a city beautiful, the speaker could see his glowing, clever articles in that behalf bearing fruit these days in our citizens' pride in their lawns and home surroundings and in their earnest endeavour to accomplish what he so enthusiastically advocated—Peterborough beautified.

The Archdeacon, turning to the community quality of Peterborough, found in Mr. Yokome's writings thought and advocacy for a kind, merciful, generous city; and during his life no call for the uplift or help of mankind lacked that departed editor's cheerful co-operation, actively where practicable and through the press. Mr. Davidson was pleased to note that, stimulated in part at least by Mr . Yokome's articles, this city is making commendable progress along those lines, for which its people are to be warmly congratulated.

Patriotic Peterboro.

Here, the speaker showered eulogy upon the late Mr. Yokame's insistent striving for a Patrioic Peterboro, being himself the embodiment of true patriotism. And he asserted, his fiery, timely articles, calling on men to enlist and do their bit in the great war, to throw themselves into the service of the Empire, he was proud to say he had elicited so magnificent a response from Peterborough that all hearts thrilled. Through that paper, of which he was editor-in- chief, there came into being in Peterborough and district a robust Canadianism that found effect and achievement abroad and at home. In very truth, Mr. Yokome was an eEmpire man through and through, ever keeping before the public the needs of the Empire.

Pay Off The Debt.

Archdeacon Davidson at this juncture turned his thoughts to Ontarios financial condition, urging that "we know her enormous debt is not being paid; then why not strive as individuals and as a province to wipe out that debt, making such efforts as will reduce the amount substantially year by year." He spoke for self-denial and sacrifice to that end, everybody working in unity to satisfy their country's obligations. Opining that the people appeared asleep and not actively aroused to the financial situation he warned his hearers that "we are in grave danger and simply floating down the stream of difficulties instead of girding ourselves and rowing vigorously against it."

Emphasing the power exercised by a small city like Peterborough for the welfare of the nation, the reverend gentleman spoke for public support of its leaders. Do not allow narrow jealousies to deprive them of that cooperation leaders consider their due, he urged, "but let all Peterborough citizens back up the man or men who has and have the courage to come out and blaze the trail and enterprize. You have live members of parliament; see to it that by your support they are encouraged and strengthened to succeed where perhaps they would otherwise fail."

Extraordinary Man.

Once more reverting to the subject of his discourse; the Archdeacon characterized the late Mr. Yokome as a man who accomplished extraordinary achievements and led an extraordinary useful life—comparatively unseen, quiet, reticent, but effective.

Millbrock News

Mr. J. L. Fair, was a visitor in town this week, coming out to attend the funeral of a former neighbor, the late Mr. Isaac Larmer, which took place on Monday.

Messrs. D. Hall, W. Howden, Davis Brothers, Cecil Failis, J. Hassard, W. T. A. Deyell, W. Dudd, A. Dunn were among those from Millbrook and vicinity who left for the West this week on the Harvesters' excursion.

Owing to the wet weather, the Lawn Social, under the auspices of Mr. R. Stone's class, which was to have been held on Tuesday on the church lawn (St. Thomas), has been postponed until Thursday, August 16th, at 6 p.m.

Mr. Lloyd Byam, of Beaverton, with his cousins, Misses Irene and Francis, and Mr. T. Worsley, of Cambray, motored to Millbrook on Saturday and spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Byam.

Miss May Cooney, of Peterboro, who has been holidaying at "Upland," with Mr. and Mrs. J. H. George, has returned home.

Messrs. W. Howden and George Houston left for the West on Monday, the former going to the home of his uncle, Mr. George Fletcher, at Minnedosa, Man., for the harvest season, and intending to visit other points before his return home. Mr. Houston has gone to Benholme, Sask.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Preston, of Lakefield, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Roseborough, also of Lakefield, motored over on Sunday and were guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. George, at "Uplands," Fallis Line.

The Millbrook Royal Black Preceptory, No. 945, about forty strong went to Peterboro on Monday for the Black Knights big gathering. Millbrook band, under the leadership, accompanied the local lodge adding not only to their appearance, but to the enjoyment of the day's programme as well.

Epic Entertainment

"THE LOVE PIKER."

The Cosmopolitan production, "The Love Piker," a delightful melodrama featuring Anita Stewart, is booked for a three day showing at the Capitol theatre, beginning Thursday.

The picture is an adaptation of a story by Frank R. Adams and has been directed by E. Mason Hopper. Included in the supporting cast are Robert Frazer, playing opposite Miss Stewart, William Norris, Carl Gerrard, Arthur Hoyt, Betty Francisco and others. It treats of the love affair of Hope Warner, a wealthy though snobbish society girl, and Martin Van Huisen, a self-made construction engineer to whom prosperity has come after the death of his mother and who does not have the courage to uproot his father from the old home in the tenement district of the city made dear by many fond memories. Hope's loyalty to Martin is put to a great test on meeting the old man, which encounter almost results in the breaking of the engagement. Hope's better self, however, comes to the fore and Martin's father is an honored guest at the wedding.

There is much heart interest in the story and pathos, while there is much cleverly interwoven comedy. The background of the production is two-fold in that the picture is laid in both the residential section of the city and in the slums. The photography by George Barnes is worthy of praise; Frances Marion wrote the scenario.

WEDDING BELLS

DUGAN—HARRISON.

A quiet wedding was solemnized in Toronto, Aug. 13, by the Rev. L. S. Allright, pastor of Sherbourne street Methodist church, when Miss Helen Harrison and Mr. Edwin Dugan ,of Peterborough, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony. The young couple will reside in Peterborough.

IVISON—CUMMINGS.

A quiet wedding took place at Park street Baptist church on Saturday, August 11th, when Florence L. Cummings became the bride of Stanley B. Ivison, both of Peterborough. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. W. Morrow. Mr. and Mrs. Ivison will reside in Peterborough.

OBITUARY

ELIZABETH BREIGEL.

A dear little life was taken to-day when Elizabeth, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter O. Breigel, Montreal West, died at the home of her grandfather, Mr. M. Mowry, 588 Charlotte Street, after an illness of about six weeks.

"Bubsie," as she was familiarly called by old and young, was just past four two months ago, and on that occasion gave a birthday party to her little girl friends; shortly after she was taken ill while in Toronto.

Having the sweetest of dispositions and of a most kindly nature, "Bubsie" will leave a gap that her parents, her relatives, and little chums will find harder to bridge than is very often the case when one so young has been taken.

Interment will take place in Little Lake Cemetery on Friday afternoon.

BIRTH.

KIERAN.—On August 10, 1923, at St Joseph's Hospital, to Mr. and Mrs. Arthur P. Kieran, a daughter.

WORTH.—To Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Worth, Aug. 13, Pasadena Hospital, California, a son.

HUYCKE.— At Nicholls Hospital, Aug. 14th, to Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Huycke, a son.

DIED

BRIEGEL.—At the residence of her grandfather, Mr. M. Mowry, 588 Charlotte street, on Wednesday, August 15th, 1923, Elizabeth, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter O. Briegel, of Montreal West.

Interment Little Lake cemetery, Peterborough, Friday afternoon.

RED CHIFFON.

A gown of bright tomato red chiffon is closely pleated and trimmed with wide bands of ecru lace which form the front panel, collars and cuffs.

ATTITUDE OF U.S. ON REPARATIONS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—(Canadian Press.) — Any impression abroad that there has been modification in the American government's attitude on reparations was said on high authority here to-day to be wholly unwarranted.

Surprise was expressed that unusual notice had been taken in London of the outline of this government's position as given to the public from the White House. It was pointed out that the White House spokesmen had reaffirmed completely the position to which the United States had held since the reparations problem first became acute, and had asserted categorically that the policies of President Harding will be the policies of President Coolidge.

Special Limitation.

Furthermore, the White House assurance that the United States would give "ready response" to proposals from Europe looking to United States' aid was coupled with a specific limitation that it would be the first business of the new administration to see that any course adopted served United States' interests.

PERSONALS NORTH MONAGHAN

Mrs. Herbert Barnes and children of Mount Dennis are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Barnes Sr., Orpington Road.

Masters Herbert and Raymond McDonnell have returned home after a pleasant visit with Mr. and Mrs. Feeley, Cameron street.

Mr. and Mrs. Stevenson, and family motored to Chemong, and spent the holiday.

Mr. Stephen McCall and Mr. Charles Harris of Apsley, visited Mr. and Mrs. J. McCall, Cameron street over the week end.

M. D. Rummings of East City, was a visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Patterson on Sunday.

Miss Mary McCall spent Saturday with Mr. and Mrs. McCall.

Mr. John McCall and Mr. Bruce Johnson of North Monaghan, visited Jack's Lake, on Monday, and were successful in securing a nice haul of fish.

Messrs. Jack and Frank Patterson of Peterboro, visited their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Patterson on Sunday.

Most of the residents of this district divided their attention on Monday between the features offered at Braundport and the Exhibition Grounds.

COLORED FABRICS.

ENNISMORE SOCIAL.

To-morrow the Ennismore social takes place. An annual event, which always proves a drawing card for city and country dwellers alike, it is expected that this year's social will be as well patronised as heretofore. The main item on the programme is the fowl supper, with plenty of home-made cooking, for which Ennismore housewives are famous. There is a fancy work booth, a fish pond, and the numerous attractions which help to pass the time pleasantly.

FRENCH WORKERS ASKED TO PROTECT GERMANS

PARIS, Aug. 15—(United Press)—The Communist sections of the Unions of metallurgists and railways workers to-day issued a proclamation appealing to French workers not to permit French troops to intervene against German workers, the proclamation was widely circulated among labor organizations.

FRANCE CREEPS SLOWLY

PARIS, Aug. 15.—France has 17 universities, counting the one at Algiers, with 50,000 students, 45,000 of them young men. Yet not a single university possesses a foot ball team, or a track team. There is no such thing as inter-collegiate athletics. The University of Paris is not concerned about the awarding of a "P"; and it does not clutter up the Seine with eight-oared boats. Its students study Greek, Latin, history, law, medicine and science; they do not get their lessons to maintain their athletic standing but to get diplomas.

It is true this backward condition may not last. There has been legislation making physical education compulsory from 6 years old until military training has been finished, and it may be that this law will result in the appointment of athletic directors in the universities, the building of gymnasia, and the organization o competitions in sport But it will take time to work this out, and so far there is no indication that the British and American scheme of university athletics is to be adopted.

In the organization of industry France also is far behind the times. In manufacturing, she is in the stage that America passed through before the organization of the big trusts—a stage in which there are trade agreements and associations or mutua protection, but in which there is no attempt by a handful of men completely to control an industry. Large-scale product on is therefore still foreign to France. It is a country of small factories and limited production. There is much individual efficiency, but less mass efficiency. Products are good, as a rule; but the fact that large-scale machine production has not made the strides here that it has made in America forces France to maintain a protective tariff, and even then keeps wages low.

Report on Tobacco

An illustration: a recent report to the French Senate showed that in the national tobacco workshops—tobacco being a government monopoly in France—an eighth of the machinery is not being operated. A machine can turn out 90,000 cigarets a day but while this machinery is idle, the state is employing hand-workers who turn out only 1,500 cigarets a day. That is one reason why the price of tobacco in France is high, and why the government does not get as much revenue from its monopoly as many people think it should.

The small shop, worked by a single family, with perhaps a few hired assistants, is the most important economic unit in France. This fact explains many things. It explains why the labor unions in France have not achieved the importance of the labor unions o Great Britain; for when a shop or factory is run by a man and his wife, with their children and relatives as employees, the hired hands can not enforce any union rules, and union membership is of little advantage to them.

And as industry s thus organized, and the petty bourgeoisie is the controlling factor in politics, the state can not pass laws governing industry which these people consider harmful to their interests. An eight-hour day has been adopted, but it does not effect the small shop to any extent. There is nothing to prevent the proprietor and his wife and family from working 16 hours a day if they choose. And choose, in fact, to work as long as there is a franc in sight. The little shops are open 12 hours a day and more. Many of them work a seven-day week. The eight-hour laws affects a relatively small percentage of the French people.

Organization Is Lacking

There is individual efficiency in the shops, but efficient organization is lacking. For instance, even the big stores of Paris are without cash-conveyors. The clerk who waits on you wraps your package and then conducts you to a cashier and personally superintends the payment. On a busy afternoon you may pick out your purchase in three minutes, but it will take you a quarter of an hour or longer to pay your bill. All this time the clerk is idle, waiting her turn at the cash window instead of attending to other customers. The staff of one of the big shops is thus at least double what it might be, so of course wages are low.

Another instance: A trivial repair was required for a hot-water heater in a bath-room. Application was made to the factory. Instead of sending a man with a bag of tools to overhaul the heater, it commissioned an employe to remove the heater from the house and lug it to the factory. A job which might have been done in half an hour took a week.

That is not an exceptional example; it is typical.

France is dreadfully concerned about her low birth-rate, and very little apparently, about her high death-rate, which is higher than that of Great Britain and much higher than that of pre-war Germany. For though France produced Pasteur, she does not pasteurize her milk, and germ-carrying insects hold daily circuses in her food-shops.

Fly-screens are even scarcer than refrigerators. French cleanliness is opposed only to the grosser forms of dirt; little attention is paid to the invisible microbe.

France wants children; France is particularly good to children, providing well for their education and their amusement; yet the infant death-rate is extremely high because the majority of the people pay slight attention to what would be considered by an American family the primary safeguards of health.

During the wet, often freezing, weather of winter, French children run about shivering in low socks; it is almost impossible to find long stockings in a French store—there is no demand for them. A few children become hardy under this treatment; the others get pneumonia.

Pretty Only In Youth

French women have a certain reputation for beauty in their youth, which they lose before they are 30. One reason is that they eat too much; and take too little exercise. They become fat-legged, broad and lazy; if they have to walk half a mile, they are killed; and yet they eat enormous luncheons and dinners, and between times go in for sweets and pastry.

The consumption of sugar in France is enormous; cooks sugar their vegetables—even their roasts. It is true that little butter is eaten at table, but a great deal is employed in cooking.

The athletic movement is beginning to make progress, however; young women in increasing numbers are taking up tennis, golf and dancing, and the effect on the nations' health and looks ought to be beneficial—some day.

They Need Ideas

Curious as it may seem, France, an old country with institutions rooted in the past, is still open to development. Its frugal, industrious and in many ways intelligent people could easily produce more and live more comfortably at the expense of less exertion.

What France needs is a new idea or two. A country where thousands of farmers still plow with oxen in an age of tractors is under a severe handicap, especially when she can not produce enough food for her people, but must buy it abroad and pay for its transportation. A team of oxen traveling at a mile an hour is quaint and picturesque—at a loss.

France still is a country of great possibilities, but she needs waking up. She might lose some of that charm which travelers profess to see in houses without sanitary plumbing, but she would be able to support 60 000,000 people and get rid of her fear of Germany.

They like to tell the story of the American tourist who visited Notre Dame and climbed the towers. As he looked down on the gargoyles and the roof of the ancient edifice his guide said:

"Think of it This cathedral is nearly 700 years old "

"Yes," replied the musing American, "it would be better if it were a little more modern, wouldn't it?"

That is the difference between European and the American attitude, and the joke is by no means entirely on the American.

COMPOSITE MIXTURE FRENCH NATIONAL FUEL ON MARKET

PARIS, Aug.15 (Associated Press).—Alcohol and gasoline, mixed in equal quantities will be put on the market as the French "national fuel" in October.

'Long tests and a multitude of scientific sessions finally evolved this mixture as better than straight gasoline and a great forward step in "freeing France from foreign petroleum domination," a phrase often used in parliament.

France produces much alcohol, used largely in poor country homes for their limited cooking, and in industry. This production, it is held, can be increased many fold, so the country need no longer be dependent upon the heavy importations of petroleum that became a serious problem during the war and is blamed now for helping to keep down the franc.

Scientific commissions have decided half alcohol and half gasoline will not injure an automobile motor, will not increase the consumption, and will give greater flexibility with some increase in power. The cost of the new fuel is a matter of controversy. It is contended by its friends that competition will settle the question of price satisfactorily.

Many other combinations of alcohol, gasoline, kerosene and crude oil have been tried. A test made by a government car recently gave good results with 70% alcohol-and 30% kerosene.

Gasoline, however, will remain the fuel for army airplanes for the present. The government hopes eventually to find a suitable fuel for its big air force, but the aviation service prefers to watch the work of the new fuel on dry land before running any new risk of stalled motors in the clouds.

ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

TORONTO, Aug 15.—(Canadian Press). — Gordon Lycett, aged 25, who was yesterday sentenced to three years' imprisonment on bigamy charge, almost succeeded in his effort to hang himself with a sheet, tied to the top of iron door of his cell in Toronto jail last night. Shortly after he had been locked up for the night guards heard strange noises coming from his cell, and on investigation found Lycett suspended and in an unconscious state and cut him down. Jail physician worked on him throughout the night and it was hours before he regained consciousness.

REICHSTAG TO PURSUE POLICY OF AGGRESSION

Authorizes Govrnent to Confiscate Foreign Currencies Extant in German Empire.

NEW INCOME TAX

BERLIN, Aug. 16. — (United Press)—Backing the aggressive policies of the Stresemann administration the Reichstag has authorized the government to confiscate foreign currencies extent in Germany if the projected national loan of 200,000,000 gold marks "about $40,000,000" is not subscribed, it is hoped that this plan will compel industrialists and exporters to support the loan, which is imperative if the German budget is to be balanced.

With Bare Knuckles

The new government is tackling it's job with bare knuckles, Tuesday it announced the first effective post war tax program, taxes are now an average of 400 times their 1922 figure with an additional assessment for passive resistance in the Ruhr, the new income tax is 1200 times the previous figure, and is practically confiscatory of large incomes.

Optimism prevails at the manner in which Stresemann is handling the situation the Socialist newspapers Vorwaerts declares that there is nothing to imped negotiations "even with the French."

Tax Hits Foreigners

The new law hits Americans and other foreigners with particular force. Non-residents sojourning for three months in Germany will be permitted to leave Germany only after showing a receipt for the new income tax.

Dusseldorf despatches reported that the French had prohibited all circulation of street cars, autos and other vehicles throughout the Dusseldorf area until further notice, the step was taken in reprisal for anti-French outrages.

Shooting and Hunting Stoney Lake District

J. C. Strickland Will Keep Victoria House Open for the Season.

LAKEFIELD, Aug. 16—The idea that the season on Stoney Lake is all over within the last week in August is a delusion, and each year brings an increasing number of cottages and tourists who remain through September and into October and even later. Duck shooting, always a popular sport, opens September 1st and has at least as many devotees as fishing. Many unrivalled opportunities for hunting and shooting in the Stoney Lake region.

In order to promote interest in these fascinating past times, Mr. J. C. Strickland of the Victoria House McCracken's Landing, has arranged to keep his hotel open for the hunting and shooting season. Besides the heating system which has been in force in the past, Mr. Strickland has had a huge stove fire place constructed in the living room and it suggests happy evenings "after the days' sport is o'er." It invites one to make oneself comfortable with a pipe and either a good pal or next best, a good book one can visualize many happy days and nights in that cosy room with a roaring fire and almost hear the fascinating tales of wood lore and the wild creatures of the great forests. Nothing has the compelling charm of the great outdoors and the woods and lakes of the Stoney Lake district are among the wonders of our country.

Most of Albert Wheat Will Go To The Pool

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., Aug 16. — (Canadian Press)—"I believe that seventy five per cent. of this year's wheat crop in Alberta will be handled by the wheat pool," declared Premier Herbert Greenfield, addressing the Board of Trade members at luncheon here yesterday.

The Premier was of the opinion that a man trained in all details of handling grain should head the pool and appealed to all classes for support in establishing the pool and making it a success.

IRISH PEOPLE CLAIM RIGHTS

Labor Party Programme Declares for Ownership of Country and Control of Destinies.

DUBLIN, August 16 (Canadian Press). — The programme of the Irish Labour Party ,made public today, proclaims the right of the Irish people to ownership of their country and to complete control of their destinies Sovereignty of the people, asserts the programme, embraces every man and woman in the nation, as well as all its material wealth and resources and all processes of producing wealth.

The platform also demands that work and a living wage be guaranteed to every person who is willing to labour, and declares in favour of peace and emonomic freedom.

"Republic Lives."

Patrick Ruttledge, who was appointed "Deputy and Acting President of the Republic" by Eamonn De Valera, Republican Chief, before he departed for Ennis yesterday, has issued the following statement in connection with the arrest and detention of De Valera:

"The action of Cosgrave's Government in arresting President De Valera and preventing him from addressing his constituents in Clare, shows that their pretence for free speech and free elctions is as hollow as the pretence that they represent the people of Ireland, in whose name they have dragged Ireland in the mire.

"The people will not be daunted. They will show that not England, nor any of the tools of England, will deter them from asserting before the whole world their God-given right to freedom.

"Peope of Ireland ,stand fast. Let your watchword be patience and perseverance. The Republic of Ireland lives."

DIED FROM SHOCK

TORONTO, Aug. 16.—(Canadian Press). — Gordon Lycett, who was addicted to use of dope and was under sentence for bigamy, died today as result of shock yesterday when he attempted to hang himself.

FOUR CURIOUS DEATHS ARE REPORTED FROM CONTINENT

Mother Wished She Could Join Her Dead Daughter and Stone Cross at Head of Grave Fell, Killing the Supplicant

LONDON, August 16 (United Press) — Here are four curious deaths, reported from the Continent to have occurred within a few hours of each other:

Pastor Reuss, completing a sermon at the grave of Bismarck at Friedrichsruhe, Germany, suddenly collapsed, dying instantly.

Madame Planchenault uttered a prayer after placing flowers on the grave of her daughter at Laval, near Paris, saying, according to those nearby, "I would that I could join you, my daughter," when the stone cross at the head of the grave fell, killing the mother instantly.

At Nyrehyhaza, Hungary, lightning struck the pastor as he stood at his altar, killing him and two members of the congregation, in the midst of a song service.

Dr. Marquard, just after winning a motor cycle race at the famous Swinemunde sea resort, started leisurely home with a laurel wreath of victory suspended from his handlebars. He crashed into an obstruction, and broke his neck.

TROOPS GUARD HARVEST WORK GERMAN FARMS

Terrorists Reported Stealing Crops- Communists Burning Wheat and Stealing Food Supplies

SITUATION DARK

BERLIN, Aug. 16. — (United Press). — Although Communist strikes in Berlin have ended, situation elsewhere is precarious according to reports reaching capital. Eighty arrests were made at Halle following fight between Nationalist and Communist factions. Situation in province of Saxony is reported as threatening.

The Communist sections of the Metal workers and Railway Unions issued a proclamation Wednesday appealing to French workers not to permit French troops to intervene against German workers.

Drastic Measures Taken.

One man killed and twelve Communists and 65 Monarchists arrested early to-day as a result of bitter rioting in Arnstadt when Monarchsts attempted to prevent printing of a Communists newspaper, other minor disorders were reported from many districts but on the whole the internal situation seemed to be clearing as Chancellor Stresemann's new government began in earnest its work of pacifying the republican and building its defense against France, in the "Halle and Red Saxon dstricts, however, it was indicated drastic measures might be necessary before complete order was restored.

Communists near Halle were reported driving workers from the fields, seizing food supplies and burning growing wheat crops, similar disorders occured in other sections of Saxony, farmers organizations following granting of their demand for police protection were digging potatoes and harvesting grain under guard of soldiers with fixed bayonets, food deliveries into the cities were made under military guard, Cologne dispatches said terrorists were stealing the entire crops of many rye fields in that section, some disorders also were reported from the Rhur. At Horne and Recklnghausen, representatives of the workers and shop workers of the Mengede region met and decided to requisition food stuffs from the peasants by force, police and workers clashed at Eilendorff and Brand, two police were killed and a dozen workers injured.

TO CONFINE DE VALERA IN MOUNT JOY JAIL

DUBLIN, Aug. 16.— (Canadian Press).—Eamon De Valera arrested under dramatic circumstances at Ennis yesterday when he appeared to deliver speech in election campaign, will probably be brought from Limerick, where he is imprisoned at present, to Mount Joy jail within the next few days. Public safety act gives the Government power to detain him and it is considered likely that he will be kept in jail until the condition of country is more peaceful.

Events in the Free State during the next fortnight will probably influence the government's action with regard to the Republican leader, whose arrest has created a profound impression in County Clare and throughout Munster.

Prettiest in Canada

This new Mormon Temple at Cardston, Alberta, is considered by many the most beautiful in Canada, and is the first temple of this sect on British soil. The building follows somewhat the Egyption architecture, and its interior is rich in murals, mosaics and inlays. Herber J. Grant, president of the Mormon Church, will go up from Salt Lake next month to dedicate it.

CHARGES UNDER BETTING LAW ARE DISMISSED

Judge Denton Rules That Act is Ultra Vires of the Ontario Legislature.

TO HIGHER COURT

TORONTO, August 16. Canadian Press. — Judge Denton in the County Police Court this morning, ruled that the Ontario Betting Act was ultra vires of the Ontario Legislature, and dismissed the charges against Samuel Litchman of illegally selling racing forms and other sheets with betting information.

While it is practically certain that the Ontario Government will take the case to a higher court, the absence of Attorney-General Nickle from the city prevented the obtaining of a definite statement from the government in this regard.

In some quarters it was pointed out that the Ferguson Government might have a different policy to follow than the Drury Government, which introduced the bill drafted by Hon. W. E. Raney, then Attorney-General, into the Legislature.

Local Crown Attorney M. C. Ruer announced that in view of the decision of Judge Denton the summonses issued to ten other newsdealers would be withdrawn.

While the Ontario Act is held to be ultra vires the judgment does not affect the common law prohibiting importation of sheets containing purely racing information. Ontario newspapers may, under decision, resume the practice of publishing prices paid on competing horses and other racing information. American daily and weekly papers containing similar news may also be sold in the province.

The Field Covered.

Judge Denton said: "Parliament having dealt with the publication of betting information as a matter of criminal law, can the Provincial Legislature deal with the same subject in an attempt to improve the law? I think not. This is not a case of the Dominion occupying part of the field, leaving another part open to the province to occupy. It is rather a case of the Dominion dealing fully with the subject but requiring proof of intention before conviction can be had, and the Legislature saying in effect by their act that proof of such intention shall not be required. The field has I think been covered and the Dominion Legislation must prevail."

APPEAL DECISION.

KINGSTON, Aug. 16. — Attorney General Nickle to-day stated that he would appeal the decision of Judge Denton who declared the Ontario Betting Act to be ultra vires of the Ontario Legislature.

A GIRL CLERK

What the Old Man Found when he went to Pay an Insurance Premium.

He was an old man, with the grand manner of another day. He had come into the insurance office to pay his premium. Once a year he looked after business like this.

The girl clerk was busy. She was holding an animated conversation over the telephone, a nd she looked impatiently at the old man, waiting at the wicket. Another girl tapped noisily on a typewriter. It wasn't her business to wait on customers, so she didn't bother looking up.

The man waited. Finally the girl finished and came over to him. She flipped his cheque back through the opening.

"No stamp on it," she said coldly. The old gentleman fumbled in his pockets. "I'm afraid I haven't one," he said mildly. "Could you oblige me? Two cents, is it not?"

"We don't keep them here," she said languidly. "You can get them over at the bank across the street."

He went out. When he returned the clerk was talking to a caller, another girl whose bobbed head rested against the wicket as they conversed. They blocked the opening, and the old man waited patiently.

Finally, "Wait a minute until I get rid of this old guy," whispered the young lady. She turned to the customer, and took his cheque. After a lengthy wait he got his receipt. In careful fashion he looked it over. The two girls shuffled impatiently.

"It says it should be countersigned," he remarked, peering at the small slip of paper.

"Right at the top. Can't you see it?" said the girl.

The old man turned to go out. His elbow brushed the counter, and knocked to the floor a large piece of pasteboard that stood there.

He picked it up and examined it carefully.

"Ah, merely a piece of waste paper," he said gently, and went out.

Face down the card which proclaimed "Courteous and Efficient Service is our Motto." lay neglected as the two girls chatted briskly.

STATES FAILED TO CONFIRM PLEDGES

This Added in Part to Confusion of British Government.

LONDON, Aug. 16.— (Canadian Press).—Recurring editorially to the recent British note to France, the Times to-day argues at length in favour of a communication setting forth opinion that it is not only in accordance with British interests, but also with the broader interests of peace.

The newspaper contends that difficulties of the present Government are due "to a series of grave blunders and misunderstandings," for which Lloyd George's ministry was responsible. The article then adds, "It would, however, be wrong to fix the blame on them alone. It must never be forgotten that a large part of our present confusion is due to failure of the United States to confirm pledges given by its representatives at the Peace Conference."

LABOR REPRESENTATIVES OBSTRUCTING BUSINESS

MELBOURNE, Australia, Aug. 16 —(Canadian Press). — While the Government is anxious to conclude business of the House of Representatives by August 24 in order to enable Premier M. Bruce to sail for London to attend the Imperial Conference, Labour Members of the House are obstructing business, and a good deal of disorderliness has resulted. One member has been suspended because of disorderliness.

FRANCE INSISTS THAT SHE HAVE FIXED SECURITY

Finds Herself Unable to Place Any Dependence Upon German Promises Not Guaranteed.

FINAL PLEADING

PARIS, Aug. 16. — (Canadian Press).— Premier Poincare's reply to the latest British note will stoutly re-affirm French position on the reparations issued, it was forecasted to-day. It will reject British proposals for submission of legality of occupation of the Ruhr to a permanent court of international justice and for an international commission of experts to re-estimate the paying capacity of Germany.

The reply, which probably will be ready by the end of this week, will be communicated to the Belgian Government before being handed to Downing street.

Must Have Security

The reply will take up the arguments of Lord Curzon, British secretary of Foreign Affairs dealing with them point by point, it is indicated. Then the French Premier, in a sort of final pleading will set forth once more reasons why France considers herself unable to place any dependence upon German promises that are not backed by tangible, absolute security.

NO SYMPATHY FOR REPUBLICAN CHIEF

But London Press Does Not Congratulate Irish Free State on Capture

LONDON, Aug. 16. — (Canadian Press).—While Irish Free State has many friends in Great Britain same cannot be said of Eamon De Valera, hence London press wastes no sympathy on Republican leader in his loss of liberty. On other hand there is no tendency to congratulate men who captured him yesterday at Ennis, for by arrest of De Valera's captors are regarded as having set for themselves problem solution of which may cost them dearly. Opinion is very general here that Republican chieftain was less dangerous to Free State as a fugitive than prisoner. It is believed that this detention will surely provoke reprisals and will strengthen his election campaign.

'We don't envy Irish Government its problem and are glad its not ours," is tenor of several newspaper editorials.

DIED AS RESULT OF CAR ACCIDENT

Automobile Plunged Over An Embankment—Others Escaped.

TORONTO, Aug. 16.—(Canadian Press). — Frank Morden aged 25, died this morning as result of injuries received last night, when the automobile he was driving plunged over embankment at Wilcox Lake, some miles north of this city. In statement made this morning Mrs. Ada Stutt sister of Morden's, expressed opinion that her brother, who has been in ill health deliberately drove car over embankment. With her little girl and male friend of family, Mrs. Stutt had been riding with Morden and when they came to descent, he ordered them all out of car saying "if I ever go down that hill I shall never come back alive."

GASOLINE LIKELY TO TAKE A DROP

Oil Barons Will Wait Until the Present Stocks Are Exhausted.

MONTREAL, Aug. 16.—(Canadian Press). —A drop in price of gasoline in Canada following cuts in United States was forcasted to-day by Mr. Donnelly, manager of one of largest oil companies in Dominion. Mr. Donnelly set ten days (when present stocks are exhausted), as the date when the cut might be expected but did not state what reduction might be expected.

Permits in August Indicate Briskness In Building Trade

Building permits issued during the first two weeks in August indicate that the month's total will be well sustained, more than one-third of last month's total being already passed.

In July, the $31,000 electric distributing station bulked large in the total amount.

In August, so far, permits have been taken out for $19,900. The principal items are: Repairs to the J. C. Turnbull building, $12,000; construction of a dwelling-house at 562 Homewood Avenue, $4,000; and a planing mill at the corner of Bethune and McDonnel Streets, $3,000.

Three garages have been commenced this month.

HARVEST HANDS GET $50 MONTH

But British Papers Exaggerate Wages Paid Harvesters in Western Provinces of Canada.

Announcements being made in the English and Irish papers state that harvesters are wanted for Western Canada at rates of 16 and 17s. a day with board and lodging. This is roughly $3.74, at the present rate of exchange.

Enquiry at the Government Employment Bureau here to-day elicited the information that the latest knowledge at hand in that office gives the rate being paid at $40 to $50 a month with board. There is, therefore, a great discrepancy between the rates advertised in the Old Country and those actually being paid.

At the rate announced in the overseas papers, a man could earn by working two months ot 26 days each $194.48. Harvest cannot ordinarily be expected to last more than two months. The passage out is quoted at 12 pounds and the return trip at 17 pounds, a total of $135.72. A man, therefore, who comes to Canada, pays his passage, works two months without spending anything while here, and pays his passage back to England, will have $58.76 remaining. What his family is to do in the meantime is not announced.

This is computed at the most favorable rate—the rate which the news papers on the other side declare is the prevailing rate. According to Mr. Hugh Robertson, superintendent of the local branch of the Government Employment Bureau the rate is only $50 in the best paying parts of the country. At this rate the farmer coming from the Old Country would be short of his return fare by $35, again without spending anything in Canada. Mr. Robertson also declared that last year the farmers who paid $4 and $5 a day did not supply board.

It s the Superintendent's opinion that men should not be lured to Canada by these promises which are not borne out by the facts. It will mean, he said, that the cities will be burdened by unemployed men during the winter and the only solution of the difficulty will be Government doles.

THE WEATHER.

The temperature was down to 40 degrees last night, and I was told that white frost was visible in some places. I did not see it myself, but Jack Frost was certainly just around the corner. He is usually due to make his first appearance about ten days from now.—W.P.

FOWLER'S OPTICAL PARLORS.

HOLIDAY JAUNT MAY SURPRISE THE HARVESTER

Thirty Went From Peterboro to Harvest Fields in West — Majority Intend to Return.

SOME GO FOR SPORT

With good wishes, smiles, tears and kisses, thirty resident of Peterborough and vicinitiy boarded special cars on the railroads this week and started on their way toward the golden fields of the west. To many who went "for the sport of it" the experience was novel, but one or two old timers started on the adventure without a thrill.

Most of the men who embarked on the harvesting expedition said they would return at the end of the season, but a few affirmed their intention of remaining if the prospects were bright. Several women accompanied their husbands, hoping to find work in the cook wagons and at other suitable employment. One woman said she had not had a holiday in five years, and this was the only way she could see her way to get out of the city. She had always been eager to see the prairie, and in a confidental aside she confessed she "didn't like to let Charlie go off alone." A Mrs. Thompson, whose husband had sold his farm near Peterborough and hoped to settle in the west, had her baby boy with her. He was a fine sturdy looking child of nine months and reflected none of the hardships his mother described during her years on a farm in the North country.

The holiday looked forward to by Ernie Davis is likely to be a strenuous one. His first stop will be in the vicinity of Regina where he has booked a job, but he 'may end up in Vancouver." James Metcalf, born in Dummer and "a wanderer ever since" as he described his life, said things are pretty dull around Peterborough and can't be much worse out west. He had been on harvesters' excursions before but thinks this time of settling down.

A school boy, who did not want his name made public, is going for the experience. "I believe I can learn more by mixing with the men for a couple of months than I can learn in two years in school," he declared.

Cameron McCormack, who recently came here from Toronto, and only a few months ago arrived in Canada from Glasgow, Scotland, in a broad Scotch declared "he should worry," about the hard work and the prospect for winter work. "It's no verra likely I'll be lang here onyhow," he said. "Mistress Cameron wrrote t' me t' tell me there's a job for me in th' locomotive worrks."

One man who operated an engine on a threshing crew near Castor, Alberta, two years ago said he made $14 a day. He does not expect that amount this year, but say the renumeration will be worth the trip.

PEAT IS PLENTIFUL WHERE COAL SCARCE

Fuel Board Says Supplies Can Be Used As Auxiliary

Canada's fuel situation, which was given wery wide conside ration during the recent session of Parliament, both by Senate and Commons committees and by discussions in the House of Commons is still engaging the attention of the Dominion Fuel Board. In the Board's interim report the peat resources of the Dominion are enlarged upon, and in this connection it is to be remarked that there is comment on the fact that the plant at Alfred, Ont., is now lying idle. The cost of experiments at Alfred, which resulted in the production of sun-dried peat which, although bulky, had a definite market value, has been in the neighborhood of $300,000. The attitude of the Government, however, is that peat production, having passed the expensive stages of experiment, is now a matter for private commercial interests.

The Fuel Board estimates that Canada has an area of 37,000 square miles of peat bog, of which 12,000 square miles are located in the provinces which produce little or no coal, namely Ontario, Manitoba, Quebec and New Brunswick. This 12,000 square miles would produce an equivalent in heating value of 5,400,000,000 tons of good coal.

The board expresses its conviction that peat should be utilized to supply a part of Canada's fuel needs, especially for the periods of spring and fall when the maximum of sustained heat is not required. It is valuable also, it is claimed for use in grates and cook stoves at all times; and, the report continues, if the results at Alfred are not sufficient to attract capital, further encouragement should be given to the industry by the Governments concerned.

PREMIER SMUTS GIVEN AN OVATION

First Appearance Since Recent Illness. — Calls For Empire To Support Britain in Crisis.

BLOEMFONTEIN, South Africa, August 16. Canadian Press Cable.—Premier Jan Christian Smuts was given an ovation upon his appearance at the South African party congress after his recent indisposition. It was noticeable that he walked briskly up the hill and looked fresh and well as a result of his recent rest.

In an address to the Congress Premier Smuts appealed for South Africa to stand in sympathy with Great Britain, in her effort to save Europe from destruction. He exhorted all the nations in Europe, great and small, to rally round Great Britain and avert a world wide disaster. The position to-day was grave beyond words, the Premier said, and if the United States saw the European nations supporting Great Britain he had faith that the United States would again rush in to the rescue and save the break-up of Europe, the consequences of which might not be wiped out for a century.

If all the nations acted together, Premier Smuts continued, there was still a possibility that France would see her danger before it was too late. The dissolution of Germany would be a far more serious thing than the fall of Russia. If Germany broke up civilization would be put back a century or more. Whether Europe would stand the shock it would be difficult to say, as there was even a prospect of a break-up of the whole world.

Premier Smuts said that he did not know whether the British government would consult the League of Nations or call a special conference of the nations interested to take action.

"South Africa," declared Premier Smuts, "cannot cut adrift from Europe, because she is a small outpost with dangerous surroundings, a small outpost in a black continent, and if Europe went under we could not foresee the consequences, and could not disassociate ourselves from European disasters."

Canadian Foresters Are To Tour Minnesota.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 16. Canadian Press. — Roland C. Craig, the Chief Forester for the Dominion of Canada, together with Fraser Story, member of the British Forestry Commission. are coming to Minnesota the latter part of August, to make a tour of the forests of the state, according to a telegram received yesterday morning from Mr. Craig, by W. T. Cox, Minnesota State Forester.

Mr. Cox has made plans to meet the British party somewhere in the northern part of the state, probably at Detroit, on August 22nd and pilot them through several sections of the Minnesota north woods; he also wired the Government forestry officials at Washington asking that some official of that department accompany the party on the trip.

Western Wheat Will Be Graded Very High.

CALGARY, August 16. Canadian Press. — If the first sample of matured wheat grown in Alberta this year and brought to the office of the government grain inspector. G. E. Hill, is indicative of the crop that will be taken off the land in this province in 1923, the grade will be excellent.

The first 1923 grown Alberta wheat in a matured condition that has been brought to the inspector, came yesterday morning from the Beiseker district. Not only were the kernels fully matured and of good color but they were plump, fine looking seeds which will grade No. 1 any time.

GOOD YIELD IN MANITOBA

WINNIPEG, Aug. 16.—(Canadian Press).—Wheat yields in Manitoba will average 15 bushels an acre this year, according to an estimate compiled yesterday by George Batho statistician for the Department of Agriculture. The crop in the central western and northern parts of the province is reported best, while the eastern and southern areas average will be around 12 bushels.

The coarse grains and potato crops are reported as being very good.

STOWAWAYS WILL REMAIN IN CANADA

Arrangements Being made To Prevent Deportation of Seven Scotchmen Who Arrived Without Tickets. Will Be Sent To The West.

MONTREAL, August 16. (Canadian Press.) — The seven young Scotsmen who stowed themselves away on the Steamship Cassandra, and who on arrival at Quebec were turned over to the authorities, and sentenced by Judge Choquette to a term of imprisonment, may yet realize their ambition and get to the western harvest fields if the efforts put forward on their behalf by the Holy Family Council of the St. Vincent de Paul Society of Montreal bear fruit.

The fine bearing and obvious qualities of the young Old Countrymen impressed his Honour when they were brought to him for trial and instead of sentencing them to deportation he committed them to prison informing them that he would endeavor to find out from the immigration department if means could be effected to have them retained in Canada

Judge Choquette's statement appealed to the St Vincent de Paul Society here and yesterday afternoon they held an emergency meeting the result of which was an offer to arrange the transportation of these young Scotsmen to whatever place they wished to go in the west, and to give them a little pocket money to see them through the journey A communication to this effect was sent to Judge Choquette and also to W J Slack, Deputy Minister of Immigration at Ottawa asking that they be retained in Canada A similar wire was also despatched to the governor of the jail at Quebec

"We do not wish to establish any precedent," said James A Whittaker, chairman of the emergency committee to the Canadian Press "but we feel that the endorsement given by Judge Choquette justifies us in using our offices to try and keep those youthful Scotsmen in Canada. No matter whether they are Catholic or Protestant, they are evidently good citizens and that is what Canada wants They are not Bolsheviks or anything like that."

The telegram sent to the governor of the jail in Quebec and signed by Thomas J Ryan Hon. Secretary of the Society, reads as follows:

"Please inform the seven Scotsmen ex-steamer Cassandra, held under judgment of his Honor Judge Choquette that the Holy Family Council of the St Vincent de Paul Society of Montreal, are pleading for their speedy release and are arranging for their passage to the west for the harvest We wish them good luck and happiness in Canada."

DROP OF 25 CENTS ON PRICES SUGAR

Decrease Affects Canadian Refined Products And May Continue.

TORONTO, August 16. — Canadian Press. — A further drop of 25 cents per hundredweight was recorded yesterday in the wholesale prices of Canadian refined sugar.

This is now offered to the trade, Toronto basis, granulated $9.84; No. 1 yellow $9.44; No. 2 yellow $9.34, and No. 3 yellow $9.24. These prices are figured on a Montreal basis of $9.50, allowing 34 cents for freight.

Wholesalers yesterday seemed to be rather of the opinion that the decline in prices would be continued until sugar was nearer the prices quoted on American refined. Dropping of prices is explained as due to competition afforded by American sugar, which is of a beautiful quality, and large shipments of which entered Canada a few weeks ago.

Even as it is this sugar can undersell the Canadian product by as much as 30 cents a hundredweight. Fluctuations are tending to diminish the former large difference in prices of refined sugar in American and Canadian markets. One wholesaler yesterday predicted that prices would very soon reach a $9 level.

The present price of granulated is exactly $2 in excess of the price asked one year ago.

Will Accept Verdict Campbellford School.

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 16.—As noted in the Examiner, Tuesday, Councillor H. W. Carter was not at the Council meeting Monday night when it was decided by a vote of 6 to 2 to give the Board of Education the $28,800 require to complete the High School.

Councillor Carter asks the Examiner to state that he was kept away because he was busily engaged in packing his household goods for shipment to Toronto. Had he been at the meeting he would have voted against the grant. He was the mover of the resolution, adopted some time ago, which provided for the recent plebecite. As the people decided against additional expenditure by a majority of five, Councillor Carter said he could not conscientiously go against their verdict.

Black Two Cent Stamp As A Token Mourning.

WASHINGTON, Aug 16.—(Canadian Press).—Black two cent postage stamps will be issued by Post Office Department a a token of national mourning and respect for late President Harding.

Announcement of this was made yesterday by Postmaster General New, following a conference with President Coolidge. Stamps will be similar in size to those in use at present, but will bear a likeness of late President. They will be ready for general distribution in several weeks and issue will continue for an indefinite period. They will not in any way affect validity of existing two cents stamps, which will be continued in use at same time.

Price Of Gasoline Is Raised To 20 Cents.

PIERRE, South Dakota, August 16. Canadian Press. — Governor W. H. McMaster. who precipitated the present gasoline price "war" more than a week ago, when he instructed the State Highway Commission's supply depot at Mitchell to sell gasoline to the public at 16 cents a gallon, yesterday consented to increasing the price to 20 cents, at a conference with a committee representing independent oil jobbers.

ARNPRIOR DISPUTE HINGES ON APOLOGY

Teachers' Federation Has Suggested a Form for It To Take.

TORONTO, August 16. — The Arnprior school situation, where an alleged boycott by the Teachers' Federation is in progress over the dismissal of Principal Ross, was the subject of a conference between Premier Ferguson and H. R. H. Kenner, Principal of Peterborough Collegiate Institute, and F. H. Henry, respectively president and secretary of the Federation.

The discussion, it is understood, partook of the nature of a general reviewing of the details of the trouble, and no definite settlement was reached.

The crux of the dispute at present, according to President Kenner, is the wording of an apology which it is desired that the Arnprior Board shall make.

The Board has intimated, he stated, that it has been rather hasty in the matter of Principal Ross' dismissal, and has tendered an apology which, however, is not acceptable in its terms ,to the Federation

A suggested form of apology has been drafted by the Federation and sent to the Arnprior Board. If the Board will adopt it, the trouble will end.

Premier Ferguson has made no comment upon the conference which he held with the Federation officials. It is understood, however, that the Government takes the stand that it is not concerned in the details of the settlement of the dispute, but that the public must have its interests in the matter protected, and that some arrangement must be made which will enable the school to be efficiently conducted in the fall.

20,000 Harvesters Pour Into Winnipeg.

WINNIPEG, August 16 (Canadian Press). — Approximately 20,000 harvesters, representing practically every district in Eastern Provinces, and including hundreds coming from various parts of Great Britain, have reached Winnipeg to assist in the garnering of the 1923 grain crop of Western Canada.

While the influx of farm help has been pouring in for the last two weeks, the bulk of the harvesters have passed through Winnipeg in the last two or three days.

The incoming workers have been about equally divided between the Canadian National and the Canadian Pacific Railways, coming by special trains and in extra coaches attached to the regular trains on both lines.

Harvesters On The Way To The Prairie.

TORONTO, August 16 (Canadian Press). — In one hundred and thirty colonist coaches, drawn by the finest engines which the two great railway systems could provide for the long journey to the Prairie Provinces, approximately ten thousand harvesters, a number of whom were accompanied by their wives and children, left Ontario through Toronto yesterday on harvest excursions offered by the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways.

Six thousand wage-earners, who hope to make a stake in the Western wheat fields, left the city on Sunday night.

TIRED OF LIFE

SASKATOON, Sask., Aug. 16.—(Canadian Press).— "I'm tired of life," said Alfred Hickson, aged 80 years, a farmer of the Laura, Sask., district, Tuesday night as he raised a bottle of strychnine to his lips and drained the contents. He died in a few minutes.

LITTLE CHANGE IN CROP SITUATION

Threshing Has Been Started In Southern Manitoba Good Crop In The Northern Section.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 16.—(Canadian Press).—There has been very little change in the crop situation throughout the Prairie provinces during the past week, states a report issued by the Canadian National Rail ways here yesterday.

Wheat cutting has been nearly completed in the southern part of Manitoba and threshing is now under way but the yield has been considerably decreased by rust and saw-fly. Warm, dry weather is badly needed in the northern section of Manitoba, where the crop is doing good and fairly heavy with very few districts reporting rust damage. Wheat cutting will be general about August 18. Rye cutting is almost completed in Saskatchewan. Some damage from rust and saw-fly is reported in the southern section of the province but generally speaking a good yield of wheat is expected. The cool weather has checked the development of rust. Cutting has commenced in many districts and should be general by August 15. The districts north of the North Saskatchewan River report bright prospects for a fine crop with cutting general about August 20.

Alberta has experienced cool and showery weather, which has been general over the whole province. A few places report slight damage from rust. The crops are ripening slowly. Warm, dry weather is badly needed and cutting will be later than in Saskatchewan.

QUIZ CORNER

CANADA'S WATER POWERS.

Q—What is the development of Canada's water powers?

A—The water power now developed in Canada represent an investment of over $62,000,000. In 1940, should the rate of growth during the last fifteen years in installation be continued, this investment will have grown to over $1,100,000,000. The present development represents an annual equivalent of 26,700,000 tons of coal, which valued at $10 per ton, represents $267,000,000. In 1940 these annual figures with the foregoing assumption, will have become 50,000,000 tons in quantity, and $500,000,000 in value.

ELEVATOR ACCOMODATION

Q—What is being done to add to the elevator accomodation in Canada?

A—An extensive grain elevator building programme has been planned for Western Canada this year. It is estimated that fully 200 elevators will be erected in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta before this years' crop begins to move from the farms. Leading milling companies have also announced proposed extensions of their manufacturing plants and grain storing facilities. New elevators and extensions at Fort William and Port Arthur, at the head of Lake Superior, will increase the storage capacity at those important grain shipping ports by at least six million bushels, bringing the total storage capacity to more than sixty-two million bushels, the greatest of any terminal grain shipping port in the world.

Controller Ellis Is Still On The Throne.

TORONTO, August 16 (Canadian Press). — Fuel Controller Ellis has not been re-appointed by the Ferguson Government. Such is the emphatic rejoinder made yesterday by the Premier to the statements which have appeared recently criticising his administration for this supposed action, and claiming that much dissatisfaction existed in Toronto over methods employed last year by Mr. Ellis.

"We have made no appointment ed by the late Government, and since whatever," stated Mr. Ferguson.

"Fuel Controller Ellis was selected that time there has been no further action taken in the matter. Mr. Ellis automatically continues in his present office."

Whether or not the Government anticipates any change in the appointment the Premier refused to disclose

AUTUMN COLORS.

Prominent colors for this fall will be smoke grey, seal brown, beaver, sailor blue, camel's haid and terra-cotta.

HE'LL BE HOME FOR DINNER NOW.

John Muirhead, aged 11, of Long Beach, Calif., can't resist a train whistle's call. He's run away from home just 44 times in his young life. So his parents are trying to hold him down with shackles. If he does get away they figure it won't be hard for policemen to identify him —that is if the chain will hold.

TWO MEN KILLED AT BOWMANVILLE

Roof of New Building Fell In With Disastrous Results.

BOWMANVILLE, August 16. — While several men were working at a flax factory owned by R. R. Waddell and Company, in Orono yesterday, the building suddenly collapsed with the result that two men lost their lives and others are more or less injured. A new building in the course of erection was built of cement blocks, and the carpenters were at work putting on a circular roof. It was thought that the walls were not sufficiently set or were too green so that the weight of the roof caused the walls to spread.

Garnet Woodcock of Haliburton was instantly killed. A. Turner, a masonry contractor of Bowmanville, died later in the hospital, and W. J. Fowler of Orono and George Keys and Allan Clayton of this city, were also injured, the former seriously. All four were brought to Bowmanville Hospital. Robert Johnston and Wilbur Scott of Orono were also injured but it is thought not seriously and were taken to their homes. Albert Living. Bowmanville, W. W. Delahey and Roy Thornton, were also employed on the building, but fortunately escaped.

POST'S BED BUG POISON

Post's Bed Bug Poison is composed of carbolic acid, Methyl Hydrate and Corrosive sublimate. When this preparation is used according to directions, it is sure death to bed bugs, cockroaches and insects of all descriptions. Two or three applications are all that is necessary, but as it is very poisonous this preparation should be kept out of the reach of children.

DE VALERA WILL SECURE ELECTION

Such Is General Opinion In Ireland. No Surprise At Arrest.

DUBLIN, Aug. 16.— (Canadian Press.)—News of the arrest of Eamonn De Valera at Ennis, reached Dublin to-day, when the city was crowded with visitors who had come to attend the horse show. The newspapers recording the arrest of the leaders of the Republicans were eagerly bought up, but everybody took the news calmly.

No real surprise seemed to have been caused by the taking of De Valera into custody, although it had been anticipatd that once parliament was dissolved the government would withhold its hand. Public appearance of De Valera possibly may have been due to the fact that Professor John Macneill, Minister of Education, who is being opposed by De Valera for Macneill's seat in Clare, recently has been challenging the President of the Republic to answer his challenges on the platform. In some quarters belief prevails that the decision to arrest De Valera was due to the military wing of the government. Apprehension of De Valera, it is believed, will not affect his candidature for Clare, and it is generally anticipated that he cannot fail under proportional representation to secure election to one of Clare's five seats. Though general opinion is that yesterday's event will not turn votes either way, there are some who express belief that De Valera as a martyr will be a great gainer at the polls.

SMALL AIR-FLIVVER.

ROME, Aug. 15.— (Associated Press)—The small airplane is claiming the interested attention of aviators in Italy, who are experimenting in this field as are their colleagues in England, France and the United States.

Italian airmen have produced the "Swallow," said to be the smallest plane in the world, with an engine of three horse power. So pleased are they that 100 machines are in course of construction.

WARKWORTH WON FIRST PLAY-OFF

Campbellford Went Down to Defeat by a Score of 15-3.

WARKWORTH, August 16. — Going to Warkworth with three of their regular players out of the line-up and two playing out of position, Campbellford lost the first of the play-off games with the veterans by by a score of 15 to 3. The absentees were Cowell, Nesbitt, and Shillinglaw. McGuire and Smith, neither of whom has played a game of baseball this season before substituting yesterday, were placed in centre and at third respectively. Holmes was called on to catch instead of Nesbitt, the regular man, and Brady took Holmes' place at second base. West pitched the first six innings, and was relieved by Eagleson, this change calling for another shift in the line-up, West going to second base, and Brady to short.

The batting of Poole, A. Zufelt, Mulhall, Beaty, K. Zufelt, and Englis was heavy and regular enough to win any ordinary ball game. A. Zufelt in the box, had the Campbellford players at his mercy, making the best showing against them of any pitcher this season, and the fielders gave him excellent support. Three of the Campbellford batters were hit by Zufelt and two of the veterans reached first by the same route

Poole made a home run in the sixth, a triple in the fifth, and two singles in his other times at bat. A. Zufelt made a double in the fifth, Mulhall got three singles in five times up, Beatty a double in the sixth K. Zufelt a double in the same inning, Englis a triple and two singles. Such a batting orgy as that explains why Campbellford lost by so wide a margin.

Warkworth scored in every inning except the second and fourth while Campbellford failed to get a runner across the plate in every frame but the eighth when they made their three runs, saving themselves from what looked like a shut-out. In that inning Eagleson got a base on balls, Hume was hit by the pitcher Holmes advanced them a base by a sacrifice, Weston, Brady and West singled. The two latter were left on bases when McGuire went out on a roller to the pitcher and Smith fanned.

The best play made by the visitors as a double in the second. After Wilson had struck out, English tripled to left. McGregor flied out to Brady who shot the ball to Smith at third, catching Englis who had head ed for home.

The Campbellford fielders were handicapped by the wire fence which separates the diamond from the race track.

The second game will be played at Campbellford Friday afternoon, when, it is hoped the regular men will be in their places. The line-up as follows:—

Campbellford—Eagleson, ss and p; Hume, rf; Holmes, c; Weston, 1b; Brady, 2b and ss; West, p and 2b; McGuire, cf; Smith, 3b; Blakely, lf.

Warkworth—McGregor, cf; Poole, 2b; A. Zufelt, p; Mulhall, ss; Beatty rf; Carr rf; K. Zufelt, 1b; Dick 3b; Wilson, c; Englis, lf.

THE CABOTS PRIZE THEIR FAMILY TREE.

The right to change one's name by process of law, has been contested in Philadelphia by representatives of the genealogy to which the applicant desired to graft himself.

Harry H. Kabotchnik and his wife were born in the United States, but they found their name cumbersome, a hardship and an inconvenience; hence for the sake of convenience, to lighten the load the husband's lineage had burdened them with, they proposed to adopt the surname of Cabot, famous in American history from its earliest years down to the present.

Compassion might have moved the members of the Cabot family to consent to this appeal, not an unusual one in the courts of the country, especially in the clipping of syllables from foreign names, which in their recast intimated an Americanization corresponding to the change in citizenship.

But the Cabots object to artifical acquisitions to their pedigree, and if there are any graftings they are to follow with their consent only the accepted method of marriage. At that, the metaphorical melting pot that isn't mentioned so often across the border since the war turned out Smiths without changing the ideals and prepossessions of the former Schmidts. The jeopard's spots were still there.

The Cabots evidently feel that however worthy the Kabotchniks may be as citizens a family name is something to be preserved beyond even the consideration of mere sentiment. They are unwilling to be burdenbearers for the encumbered Kabotchniks. The incident is an unusual one and raises an interesting legal point.

THOSE WHISPERS OF DEATH.

Jonah, the prophet of old, was a temperamental individual, cantankerous, self-willed, given to sulk when he imagined he was getting the worst of it, and so obsessed with racial pride that it was impossible for him to see anything of good in those of alien birth. He was ungrateful for blessings, even for miraculous favors, disobedient to the call of disagreeable duty and so jealous of his own professional reputation that he deemed it of more moment than the peace and safety of a city.

Human nature has not changed much since the Biblical period referred to. Jonah is a prototype of those who in Canada today assume the role of prophet. For example, that Montreal paper with an ear so finely attuned that it could discern the sound of a "whisper of death," while all others were deaf to the ghostly message. This alleged forecast of national disaster is a false alarm. Canada will yet be spared to work out the high destiny which its patriotic people and a beneficient nature have planned for it.

It is bad enough to predict disaster when there is no warrant for such eldritch mutterings, but it is infinitely worse to persist in error in the face of existing facts. The safety of the penitent sinners in Nineveh was of greater account than the withering of Jonah's gourd; the averting of the doom that was pronounced against that city was an act of outstanding mercy even if the prophet suffered somewhat in reputation. Canada's welfare is of more moment than the reputation of any newspaper that deals in sensation when the palbable object is to gratify racial and party animosity.

As an alternative for national bankruptcy the paper in question hints darkly at annexation with the United States. It is difficult to see how such a fate would free Canada from any part of her present liabilities. The Montreal paper may rest assured that if it ever lives to see a political union of the two countries the Canadian debt will not be assumed by the Federal Government at Washington, but that the new annex to the Republic will be left to carry it alone, just as she is doing under present conditions.

THE TEACHING PROFESSION ARRIVES.

The teaching profession in Ontario has apparently come into its own at last. If its ambitions have not yet been fully attained they must at least be enlarging out of the mists of hope and desire into the clearer light of actuality.

Teachers are no longer poor relations among the learned professions. From the fledglings booked for rural schools to the specialists in the Collegiate Institutes, there is a new range, probably a new basis, of salaries beyond the aim and scope of the influences of deflation.

Where there were lack of funds and opposition in poorer school sections the Government stepped in fixing a minimum salary that must be paid, with assistance from the Province, in order that the children in the remote and sparsely settled townships should have qualified teachers. And in many such sections today the salaries may be $900 or $1,000, as compared with $300 or a lavish $350 only a few years ago.

And toward the other end of the scale are salaries of from $3,000 to $5,000 that were the dreams of the teachers of fifteen years ago, to whom $2,000 was independence and $2,500 affluence.

The "teachers wanted" columns of the newspapers attest to the demand and opportunities for teachers, and also to the larger remuneration which school trustees must provide. And with this economic advancement there are evidences of a "class consciousness" to employ in its broad sense a proletarian phrase.

School teachers are organized today in their local, Provincial and Dominion associations, contemplating even a world federation. There is new wine in the old bottle, and one result of the new and better order in the teaching profession should be the attraction of more young men to its ranks, and the retention of others who in the past regarded it as simply a preparation for business, a temporary job until opportunity beckoned them elsewhere.

Undoubtedly this splendid profession has achieved a new dignity, for the factor of reward and earnings weigh heavily in the social aspect of occupation: in this age. Beyond the element of recompense is the question of working conditions, and in addition, to the current range of salaries young men to whom teaching naturally appeals may be further influenced by the fact that their year's work will be rounded by about two hundred days.

The advanced salaries and the general working conditions will probably readjust the balance of supply and demand of men in the teaching profession to the permanent gain of education in this Province.

At the same time experience has proved that occupational associations may breed defects which in the teaching profession would have very serious consequences. They presuppose mutual interests and support, and the reported incident at Arnprior suggests extremes to which any local organization of teachers might be carried.

Attempts to defend members whom the trustees considered incapable and incompetent appear to be possible even to the extent of a walkout of the entire staff of a school with resulting resort to the tactics of a common strike. It is not inconceivable that the mathematical professor, the classics specialist and the physical culture instructor would be taking turns in picket duty while the students and their rights were neglected and ignored.

Such situations are altogether unlikely to occur. The public realizes that the teaching profession has been too long underpaid, and may expect only beneficient results from the teachers' associations.

BARTER FOR MOVIE TICKETS.

One of the Berlin theatres has achieved something that approaches a solution of the problems created by a worthless currency. The management fixes the price of tickets, not in marks, but in butter and eggs. They are not accepted at the box office, indeed, but whatever a fixed number of eggs or a fixed weight of butter will fetch on a given day, is what must be paid for admission that day.

But while the real or food value of butter and eggs can be called invariable, that is not true of their prices, and what will it profit the managers who have invented the scheme when the marks they accepted in the evening are worth not nearly so much the next morning?

They should have had the courage of their ingenuity. When money is only scraps of paper, the one safe recourse is direct barter of what one person has for what another person wants. That is next to impossible in modern conditions, even in the country, but it gives the one chance of safety—at the cost of vast trouble and inconvenience.—New York Times.

PROF. SKELTON'S SELECTION.

It is a very distinct compliment paid to Prof. O. D. Skelton of Queen's University that he has been selected to accompany Premier King to the Imperial Conference in an advisory capacity. Prof. Skelton is without doubt the foremost authority on economics in Canada today, and he has a profound as well as a vast knowledge of trade and financial matters generally which cannot but be most helpful to Premier King and the Government.

The war has brought about many changes in governmental and administrative matters, but perhaps none is more significant than the recognition by all Governments of the necessity of associating with them the most expert technical advisers available, whether in trade and commerce, in finance or in other lines. Thus it was that in the Peace and Reparations Conferences following the Armistice all the Great Powers had, in addition to their statesmen, great financiers, captains of industry and economists to guide and counsel them in the several technical aspects of the negotiations; thus, no doubt, that taking a leaf out of the book of these World Powers, Canada is now following their lead.

There will be quite general unanimity of opinion that in choosing Prof. Skelton as expert technical adviser to attend the Imperial Conference with the Premier the Canadian Government has made not only a wise but a happy choice and one that will prove of distinct benefit to the country.—Kingston Standard.

SEEMS QUITE COMMERCIAL.

About a century ago, Escamillo, a toreador of great renown in Spain, is supposed to have entered an arena at Seville and to have stabbed a bull to death. Without the circus, one Don Jose is said to have inflicted mortal wounds on Carmen, lady love of Escamillo. In this and other peppery adventures of the trio, Bizet found inspiration for his opera, "Carmen," which has been of great assistance to guitar manufacturers and second-rate tenors for 53 years.

Today the glory that was Seville's in 1820 is apparently on the wane. At least the solution of triangle love affairs against the colorful background of the corrida de toros becomes more unlikely day by day. The bull fight is falling under a cloud in Spain—a little cloud, but a cloud. And in Seville the unionized picadors and matadors and chulos, not to mention the banderilleros, are on strike for more money, and possibly longer swords and weaker bulls.

The process of commercializing sport seems to have insinuated itself into many lands. Senor Firpo, fresh from the Argentine, proceeds to make our sordid athletes look very bad indeed by managing his own affairs, thus dispensing with the necessity for the 50-50 split customary between the boxer and his Warwick. In Britain the cry goes up, as it has for several seasons, that commercialism is ruining league football. Players are traded as freely as is the case in organized baseball, and enjoy the same notable lack of any patriotism for the city they represent.

The difficulty in Seville appears to be that the best toreadors are lured to South America by higher fees; the lads who remain in Seville are bush leaguers who are periodically rendered quite dead by bulls. There is no sign that the bulls have deteriorated. That, indeed, is the burden of the toreador's complaint. He seeks recompense for the added risk.

Thus we have an anomaly in which strikers seek higher wages because their work is less efficient.

Could anything be more commercial?—Detroit News.

TORONTO CATTLE.

TORONTO, August 16. — Yesterday morning's run of 760 together with Tuesday's leftovers made an offering of about 1,400 cattle on the market yesterday. Butcher cattle were strong, a lot of 5 choice steers weighing 1,108 pounds, sold at $8.00 cwt. Good butcher cattle sold at $6.75 to $7.25. The receipts of Western cattle are very small, and common Ontario are selling more easily at about the same price, $4.50 to $5.50. Cows and bulls continue steady. There were a few loads brought for export yesterday at $7.50 to $7.60.

The light run of calves was cleaned up at a steady price $10.00 to $11.00, one lot of six calves weighing 1,110 pounds sold at $11.50.

Good lambs sold 50 cents higher at $12.00 to $12.50, and sheep sold up to $6.50. It was announced yesterday morning that on and after 27th August there will be a cut of $1.50 on bucks.

Hogs were stronger again yesterday at $10.35, fed and watered, and outsiders paid as high as $10.60.

CHICAGO WHEAT.

CHICAGO, August 16 (Canadian Press). — General and correct assumption beforehand that the Government report yesterday afternoon as to prospective winter wheat acreage would prove bullish led to a decided upturn yesterday in the price of wheat. The market closed firm, 1c to 1 1-2c net higher, September $1.00 7-8 to $1.01 and December $1.04 1-2 to $1.04 5-8.

Corn finished 1-4c to 5-8c up, and oats at 1-4c to 3-8c to 3-8c to 1-2c gain, with provisions showing 20c to 22c advance.

EGG MARKETS.

OTTAWA, August 16 (Canadian Press). — The market continues to advance for specials and extras and in a jobbing way specials moved yesterday in Montreal at 40. The export demand continues, but no reports have as yet been received as to business done. Markets generally throughout the country are steady, and inclined to higher levels for the better grades.

Toronto steady, jobbing prices unchanged.

Montreal stronger and higher, specials 39 to 40, extras 34 to 35, firsts 29 to 30

Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta markets unchanged.

British Columbia local's fresh higher extras 34, firsts 30, at country points jobbing extras 37, firsts 35, seconds and pullets 25.

St. John N.B., retail extras 40, firsts 35, wholesale P.E.I. extras 35, firsts 32, fresh killed chicken 55, and fowl 40.

WINNIPEG CATTLE.

WINNIPEG, August 16 (Canadian Press). — Receipts, 1,751 cattle and calves, 1,007 hogs, and 228 sheep.

Trading was slow on the market yesterday morning but the best grades of all classes were selling steady, with common grades moving at weak prices.

Good calves are in demand around $7.00 to $8.00, with the heavy and plain kinds from $4.00 to $5.00.

The hog market opened unsettled. Prospects are, however, that thicksmooths will sell from $10.00 to $10.25.

The sheep and lamb market was steady to strong, with top lambs up to $11.00, an advance of about $1.00 from the opening of the week.

CASH GRAIN.

MONTREAL, August 16 (Canadian Press). — A fair business was done in the local grain market yesterday at firm prices. There was no important change in the flour situation. Demand for millfeed continues good, but the rolled oats market was quiet. There is nothing new in the baled hay market. The tone of the egg market is very firm. Prices of butter are up 1 cent per pound

The feeling in cheese is firm.

BRAUNDPORT HAD A BIG SPORT DAY

BRAUNDPORT, Aug. 16. — Braundport wore quite a festive air on Monday for the occasion of the annual Civic Holiday programme. The bus service which was provided did much to attract a record crowd to the grounds, and once there, the various amusements made the day one of pleasure. The day was ideal in all respects, being not too hot for the races, and not too cold to interfere with the sale of ice cream and soft drinks.

The Races.

The races, which were run under the capable and kindly supervision of Mr. R. C. Braund, resulted in the following awards:

Swimming Races.

Boys 11 12 and 13—1st, Robert Taylor; 2nd, Clifford Pearcy; 3rd, Eldon Braund

Boys 14 and over—1st, Roy Gibson; 2nd, Harold Bannon.

Girls under 10—1st, Phyliss Braund; 2nd, Nelda Routly.

Canoe Race.

Small boys—1st, Eldon Braund; 2nd, Ronald Routly.

Tub Race.

1st, Earl Waterman; 2nd, Gordon Braund.

Diving Competition.

1st, Robert Taylor; 2nd, Ronald Routly.

Foot Races.

Boys aged 5, 6 and 7.—1st, Reginald Routly; 2nd, Fred. Williams; 3rd, George Fairs.

Boys aged 8, 9 and 10—1st, Kenneth Cristo; 2nd, Fred. Fairs; 3rd, Albert Evans.

Boys aged 11, 12 and 13—1st, Clifford Pearcy; 2nd, Harold Porter; 3rd, James Shaw.

Girls aged 6, 7 and 8—1st, Florence Fairs; 2nd, Edna Millard; 3rd, Annie Williams

Girls aged 10, 11 and 12—1st, Addie Newman; 2nd, Viola Doig; 3rd, Nellie Shaw.

Girls aged 13, 14 and 15—1st, Margaret Simpson; 2nd, Aileen Morley; 3rd, Gladys Birdginaw.

Young Men's Race.

The five competitors came in on the same award, by mutual consent.

The diving and tub races afforded much amusement to the bystanders, and the competitors themselves enjoyed their own efforts. After the picnickers had partaken of their supper, they engaged in several lively tugs-of-war, old and young, grown-ups and children enjoying their part in the tustle.

Croquet and baseball were the centre of interest to many, and others preferred boating or fishing as their pastimes.

Huge Bonfire.

Eight-fifteen saw the lighting of the huge bonfire, which was looked upon as the crowning glory of the event. As the crowd gathered, watching the leaping flames, R. C. Braund wielded his baton, and the social singing began. After the opening chorus of "God Save the King," followed choruses of other well-known songs and hymns, accompanied by the concertina. Miss Phyliss Braund recited "My Dolly."

Reminiscent of the days of old was the war dance around the fire executed by two blanket-clad "Indians" bearing gleaming axes.

About 9 o'clock the happy gathering broke up, the sound of "Three cheers for Braundport" ringing in their ears.

The booth, which was gaily decorated with Japanese lanterns, did a brisk business under the able management of Mesdames J. Weir, J. T. Braund, W. Routly, R. Routly, Mrs. Ben. Smith and Misses Barrett and Patterson. Ice cream, candy and the fancy-work were much in demand, and Mrs. J. Weir, who acted in the capacity of fortune-teller, destined the most fortunate to long life and happiness.

Guests were present from Brooklin, Oshawa, Toronto, Peterborough, North Monaghan and Crawford's Grove.

A single banyan tree has been known to shelter 7000 men at one time.

Best Decorated Car.

A number of Colborne citizens attended the celebration in connection with "Old Home Week" at Trenton and enjoyed the doings very much. There were many entries in the competition for the best decorated car, and the parade was a wonderful one. The judges did not have an easy task in reaching a decision. But the prize eventually went to Mrs. J. Graham's car, with Mr. Cory and Mr. G. Aziz in close competition. The car which won the prize was a perfect mess of leave, cedar boughs, ferns, roses and wild flowers, and certainly presented a beautiful appearance. From the front of the hood to the roof of the car was covered with white canvas and streamers of yellow and white ribbon.

FRECKLE-FACE

Sun and Wind Bring Out Ugly Spots, How to Remove Easily.

Here's a chance, Miss Freckleface, to try a remedy for freckles with the guarantee of a reliable concern that it will not cost you a penny unless it removes the freckles; while if it does give you a clear complexion the expense is trifling.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from any druggist and a few applications should show you how easy it is to rid yourself of the homely freckles and get a beautiful complexion. Rarely is more than one ounce needed for the worst case.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength Othine as this strength is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

STORED CLOTHES.

If you will put light washable covers over your dresses that hang in the clothes closet, they will be saved much dirt and dust and will need cleaning less frequently.

For New Styles and Pretty Arms

(Beauty Notes)

Women are fast learning the value of the use of delatone for removing hair or fuzz from face, neck or arms. A paste is made with some powdered delatone and water and spread on the hairy surface. In 2 or 3 minutes it is rubbed off, the skin washed and every bit of hair has disappeared. No failure will result if you are careful to buy genuine delatone and mix fresh as wanted.

Petal-shaped trimmings of white organdie are introduced about the neck and below the belt of a smart frock of black satin.

FANCY LININGS.

There seems to be a sudden fad for reversing the general order of things and wearing one's linings outside. Cloaks of white fur lined with black velvet and a soft turnback collar of the velvet are flattering as well as stunning.

REGULAR SESSION MONAGHAN COUNCIL

John Whitfield Appointed Tax Collector. — Treasurer Resigns. — Accounts Passed.

BROWNTON, Aug. 16.— The regular monthly meeting of the Council of the Township of North Monaghan was held at the Court House on Tuesday, all the members being present.

Mr. John Whitfield, last year's tax collector, was present, and made application for the position for the current year. He asked the council for a salary of $200 a year and his expenses. A motion was passed, appointing Mr. Whtifield tax collector for the year 1923, at a salary of $200, the township to pay the tax on receipts, the tax collector to pay his own expenses.

A petition was received from Mrs. Mary E. Stewart and others, asking the council to construct a sidewalk on the west side of High street, from old Chamberlain Street, as a local improvement. A petition was also received from Harold G. Smith and others, for a water main on the west side of Grandview avenue and on the east side of Kenneth avenue, as a local improvment. The clerk was instructed to examine both petitions and to report to the council forthwith.

Treasurer Resigns.

W.H. Bradburn, M.P.P. tendered his resignation as township treasurer, an office which he has held for a number of years. The Council referred to Mr. Bradburn's able conduct of its affairs in the position of treasurer, expressed regret at his loss, and congratulated him on his elevation to a higher position.

Mr. H. G. Webber was appointed auditor at the usual salary of $50 per annum, to make an audit of the treasurer's books up to date, and to give Mr. Bradburn a clearance certificate at the conclusion of the audit, if satisfactory.

Mr. D. J. Lawrie applied for the position of treasurer.

The reeve and council considered a number of public nuisances, including the following; the question of peddlers and vendors invading the townships without licenses; of boys and young men acting as public nuisances on the boundaries of the township and city; and of the stealing lanterns placed in dangerous spots by Contractor Gordon. The Council intends to have its sanitary inspector and the police officials take care of the various nuisances, and offenders will be prosecuted according to law.

The clerk was instructed to notify the Suburban Area Commission that the township will not be responsible for the construction or maintenance of the present bridge or culvert at the end of Erskine avenue.

A resolution was passed by the Council that the offices of clerk and treasurer from now on shall be combined and that the present clerk be given time until the next special meeting to decided whether he will accept the combined position of clerk and treasurer.

Deputy Reeve Lillico reported that Mr. Darcey Dunlap had made application to him for the townships of North Monaghan and Cavan to be supplied with fence wire for the erection of a wire fence to keep the snow in winter from blocking the road thus necessitating diversion of traffic through his fields. Mr. Dunlap objects very strenuously to having his fences taken down by people who drive through his fields during the winter and spring.

To Pay Accounts.

The following bills were passed and ordered to be paid: Peterboro Hardware Company, supplies, $2.55; N. L. Patterson, grocer, (charity), to June 15th $6.85; Kingan Hardware Company, hardware supplies for Road Division, No. 4, $17.85; Richard Moncrief, sheep killed by dogs, $8.00; A. McDonald Lumber Company, plank for culvert, corner Park and Lansdowne streets (half by city), $32.60; the Municipal World, supplies, $3.19.

The meeting then adjourned until the special meeting which will take place at the Court House at 7.30 p.m. on Thursday.

CROP REPORTS

The following is a summary of returns made by the Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

The grain still standing is ripening very rapidly, as the weather has been dry and hot—in many cases the ripening being too fast for the best quality. On account of the comparatively heavy hay crop, and the scarcity of labor, a great deal of grain will be threshed in the field.

The drouth and very warm weather have been very trying to live stock, and dairy cattle are still falling off in their milk supply.

Owing to the dry, hard condition of many fields, plowing is difficult, and it is now almost certain that the area of fall plowing and the acreage of fall wheat sown, will be considerably less than that of the last few years.

Tomatoes have been shipped from Kent since the first week of July, and many shipments are now being made. The yield has been very satisfactory. Corn, beans, beets and tobacco are looking well, despite the comperative drouth. The second cut of alfalfa was started about a week ago.

Elgin: The corn borer is quite numerous, but the general opinion of the farmers is that it will not damage the crop as much as other years, as it is growing rapidly and will ripen early Lambton: Considerable new wheat has been marketed, and millers report a good sample, although in some sections it is not as plump as it would have been under more favorable moisture conditions prior to harvesting.

Lennox and Addington: A large quantity of alsike seed was harvested in the county this year. A great percentage of it has been stacked and will not be threshed for a while yet. Part of the crop has been stored in the barn, and reports from farmers who have threshed their seed indicate a yield of about five to six bushels per acre and seed of very good quality.

Huron: There are no good apples in the county, except in sprayed orchards, as scab developed very rapidly in the last month or so. One prominent dealer states that he would not give $200 for all the apples in a certain township from which he used to take quite a large amount of fruit. This dealer claims that the crop in this county will run around 10,000 to 12,000 barrels of good apples. There will be quite a lot of No. 3's, domestics, and other low grade apples over and above this.

Leeds: Sweet clover is the only pasture crop worth while at present and those having a field of it are fortunate indeed. The late honey flow has been extra good and is now being harvested, but buckwheat honey is likely to be scarce.

Halton: Labor has been eased considerable by a number of boys received through the Salvation Army on basis from $100 to $150 yearly.

Huron: A noticeable feature of the harvest operations is the amount of grain that is not being stooked. Field after field is lying in the windrov.

Haldimand: A local drover recently bought eight steers weighing 1,600 pounds which were stabled as feeders two years ago and then held on account of low prices

Kent: Five carloads of cattle were shipped on Saturday from this county. This is the last of the lot of cattle contracted for through Mr. Massey, a local buyer. Several carloads of hogs have been shipped in the past week. The top price has been nine cents. The majority of the hogs in the county are bought on a flat rate.

Frontenac: The demand for lambs is good and prices running around $10 apiece. The local supply of beef, however, is poor. Hogs are bringing around $9 a cwt. Few lots of small pigs are appearing on the market for $10 a pair.

Lennox and Addington: Several good decks of hogs were shipped from various points in the county last week at prices ranging from $8.75 to $9.25 per cwt. The cattle market is dull, farmers receiving $25 to $5 per head.

NEWS ENNISMORE AND DISTRICT.

Farmers Around Gannons' Narrows Had Narrow Escape From Fire. Personals.

ENNISMORE, Aug. 16—The farmers around Gannons Narrows had a close call last week when fire broke out in Mr. Belcher's cottage, the cottage being surrounded by woods, thus making it no easy task for the fire-fighters. The people from the surrounding township turned out with a bucket brigade and worked all night, finally quenching the flames.

News Briefs.

Miss Grace Shannahon and Agnes Killen are visiting friends in Burleigh Falls.

Miss Leona Killen and Mr. Leo Killen were visitors to Lakefield on Sunday.

Mr. Dan Shannahon of Buffalo is home after spending his vacation in and around the surrounding district.

The farmers are very busy at the present time, but say the harvest is small, owing to such little rain.

Mrs. Peter Galvin is recovering from her serious illness.

Dr. Brick and family of Windsor are visiting friends here.

Dr. Young and family of Windsor are visiting Mr. Frank Young here.

Mr Michael Crough, who has been teaching in New Ontario, is home for holidays.

The annual social will be held on Thursday evening, August 16, and great preparations are being made to make it a success.

The new St. Martin's Church is progressing very rapidly.

BUSY TIME FOR LOCAL MOTHERS

Innovation of Undeveloped Children at Coming Babies' Show Here Stimulates Increased Interest.

Mothers and babies of Peterborough are going to have a busy time of it during coming Fair week in Peterborough. From Sept. 12th to 15th all the babies who have been primping up for the Baby Show will be there with best bibs and tuckers on, to compete with infants from miles around for the prizes offered and the honor of being adjudged the prize baby or the baby who has gained the most since entry was made.

Although Peterborough's exhibition has seen baby shows in the past, they have been allowed to lapse for some years and the innovation of this year which promises to attract the most attention is the section which is devoted to undeveloped children.

The boy and girl children who show the most improvement in condition since their names were entered in the contest will get the prize.

Even, as in some instances, if it was under weight when entered, as long as its improvement shows the most rapid advance in the specified time, that baby gets the prize One little entry weighs only a little over ten pounds at the age of fifteen months. These are the infants whose progress is being watched with keen interest.

At the Well Babies' Clinic, where the registration has been going on, the attendance in the last three weeks has broken all records. The first week after the contest was announced, 42 babies were examined, the second week there were 83, and the third week 102. There are over a hundred entries already made, with a total of 42 babies in the under-developed section, with which the Clinic is most concerned.

The contest during fair week is open to entries from any part of the city, district or neighboring counties, the Well Babies' Clinic simply offering a registration service for those mothers who were anxious to enter their children at once, or place them in the section devoted to undeveloped infants.

If the general atmosphere at the Clinic is an earnest of conditions at the Baby Show, it will be a popular place. There seems to be something about a baby that levels all barriers. Class consciousness or financial snobbishness or pride of dress doesn't seem to exist between women who have babies to talk about and exhibit. Absolute strangers exchange confidences with regard to feedings and general care. They come in motors and by rail and on foot and they fraternize at the Clinic. The baby is the greatest democrat there is.

The Clinic is a place of smiles and weeps. Tears well in large heavy drops from the eyes of the pretty thing in the mauve frock and tight blue bonnet. Down her rosy cheeks they drip, as she sobs over the weighing basket. The placid child who has just gone through the ordeal of the scales regards her in surprise over her mother's shoulder, sucking a small thumb in rotating fashion that gives it a generous lick all over its surface.

A golden-haired doll baby with large blue eyes and pink cheeks, white embroidered ducks on her pale blue linen frock, smiles at a quiet infant, sleeping heavily on a chair. Its tiny chest hardly moves as the breath comes faintly through pale lips, and its little white face lifts languidly against its mother's arm. Two other children, like steps of stairs, tug fretfully at the tired-looking woman.

Reggie is active. He is a small child, but very busy. His mother, occupied with his small sister's bottle, clutches vainly at his elusive skirts. He darts into the examining room explores on hands and knees the space beneath the weighing basket, clutches hold of one of the black note- books on the table, and subsides only on a threat of being put to bed instantly on reaching home.

Jenny is a tiny love, a tight little bright blue green jacket encasing her rounded tummy, eyes of the same shade looking out from under a vertical row of curls. Here is a little golden top, with a double crown discernible on its soft little head. "It will eat bread in two nations," declares the neighboring lady who holds a quiet infant, whose history includes a fractious six months when it refused to take milk, and had to be fed on butter soup.

An auburn baby with red cheeks and a white frock protests vigorously over measurements. Its bright head looks as though it had been cut with a bowl, and a small bowl at that. Up to above its little ears its head is shaved clean, the red fuzz standing out in startling effect above the high water level.

They come and go through a long afternoon, all intent on one thing; the health and care of the tiny tots who form the nucleus of a coming generation.

The Baby Show at the Fall Fair has aroused keen interest among the baby welfare organizations of the city. The spirit which is behind contest of this sort; encouragement to parents in giving their children the best possible attention and care, and competition with others in the same laudable efforts is enhanced by the value of the prizes offered, totalling about a hundred and fifty dollars.

It is anticipated that entries during Fair week from the city and neighboring counties will make this year's Baby Show a record-breaker in attendance and interest both. Already entries have been made by people who drive in to the Clinic weekly from Fraserville and other outlying districts.

CUTICURA HEALS LARGE PIMPLES

On Face, Itched and Burned. Caused Loss of Sleep.

"I was troubled awfully with pimples on my face. Little white spots formed at first which later broke out in large, red pimples that festered and scaled over. They itched and burned causing loss of sleep, and my face was disfigured.

"Other remedies were used without success. A friend recommended Cuticura Soap and Ointment so I purchased some, and after using them about a week I got relief. I continued using them and in a month was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Lilian Warner, Williamsburg, Ontario.

Daily use of Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum helps to prevent skin troubles.

Sample Each Free by Mail. Address: "Cuticura, Limited, 344 St. Paul St., W., Montreal." Sold everywhere. Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. Cuticura Soap shaves without mug.

SALVATION ARMY BAND IS PRAISED

Delighted Lindsay Crowd On Monday Night.

(From the Lindsay Post)

Lindsay citizens were afforded a delightful musical treat Monday evening when the crack Salvation army band from Peterboro rendered a choice programme in Victoria Park. Hundreds gathered at the park to hear the superb musical organization, and the different numbers were heartily applauded.

The band is a credit to the Army and to the city of Peterboro and its playing was a revelation to the citizens. It is a splendidly balanced organization with every efficient instrumentation The different numbers were characterized by harmony, evenness and a unison which left nothing to be desired. The blending of the different sections was admirable and pleasing to the ear.

The band has a number of very clever soloists, their numbers with band accompaniment being admirably rendered. The vocal numbers during the evening added variety to a very meritorious programme. Peterboro Salvation Army band will always be assured of a warm welcome when it visits Lindsay.

CHOLERA INFANTUM

A FATAL DISEASE OF CHILDREN

Cholera Infantum or summer complaint of children is one of the most dangerous bowel complaints during the summer months.

It begins with a profuse diarrhoea, the stomach becomes irritated, very often accompanied by vomiting and purging and the matter excreted from the stomach has a bilious appearance. The child rapidly loses flesh, is soon reduced to languor and prostration, and in a great many cases death ensues.

Mothers, if any of your children become sick with cholera infantum do not endanger their health, perhaps their life, by experimenting with some new and untried remedy; get one that has stood the test of time; one that will quickly offset the vomiting, purging and the diarrhoea. This you will find in Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, a remedy that has been on the market for the past 78 years.

Mrs. W. A. Harrison, 10 Elevator Court, Halifax, N.S., writes:—"Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry saved the lives of three of my children when all other remedies failed. It stopped the vomiting and terrible diarrhoea with which they were troubled. I always keep a bottle of it on hand in case of emergency."

"Dr. Fowler's" is 50c. a bottle; put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

MASQUE VEIL.

Among the great and varied vogue of veils is the masque veil, with two almond-shaped openings for the eyes to peer through. But the wearer's eyes must be beautiful to make the effect attractive.

MASQUERADE JUNIPER ISLAND

STONEY LAKE, Aug. 16.—The annual masquerade dance was held at Juniper Island pavilion on Saturday evening and it was the largest and best ever held there and the success fully justified the endeavors of the committee to make it the "best ever," a gala night in the gala week. The pavilion was decorated with greens and colored paper which made the ideal background for the multitude of costumes which were of every variety. The music was provided by Roberts' orchestra of Peterborough, and a crowd of two hundred masked figures tripped the light fantastic till the midnight hour. It would be difficult to estimate the crowd which thronged the pavilion but it was certainly well over four hundred, including the spectators. At half past ten the judging took place by a committee of ladies who found it very difficult to choose the best among so many splendid costumes. The prizes were awarded as follows: Special prize, "Spark Plug," Vaughn Finlay and Clyde Jackson; 1st lady, Mrs. Fairbairn-Smith as "Fair Rosamund"; 1st gentleman, Fred Collins as a "Zulu Chief"; 2nd lady, Mrs. Thomas, a "Balloon Girl"; 2nd gentleman, Dr. B. Barnes as a Japanese gentleman; 3rd lady, Miss Ruth Knapman as a "Bacchante"; 3rd gentleman, Mr. Crossley as "Shiek"; 3rd lady, Miss Cecile Harwood as a Hawaian girl.

The vogue of Valentino was apparent as there were quite a number of gentlemen dressed to represent the popular star. "Spark Plug" was perhaps the greatest sensation of the evening whichl was full of sensations and the steed of. "Barney Google" led the parade with a skittish wag of his tail which fascinated the children. "The Departed Spirits" made a decided hit and were sad reminders of other and more convivial days. One amiable gentleman spent a merry evening in a barrel and danced untiringly from first to last of the programme. An unknown but very popular figure was bound in a patchwork quilt and must have spent a warm evening. Mr. Gouinlock, as Harry Lauder, was one of the real hits of the evening. "Uncle Sam" carried off his part with a dignity befitting his calling and remained a puzzle to most of the spectators for a good part of the evening.

Among the many in costume were: Miss Phyllis Cumberland, Turkish lady; Miss Florence Mackenzie, Ballet Girl; Mrs. J. M. Gouinlock, Night; Miss Elizabeth Hedley, Pierrette; Miss Mary Heintt, Italian Street Singer; Miss Mary Leeming, Gypsy; Miss Dorothy Leeming, Jockey; Miss Phyllis Atwood, Colonial Maid; Miss Florence Hewitt, Indian Maid; Miss Pat. Hall, Geisha Girl; Miss Mollie Wood, Dick Turpin; Mrs. Elmsley, Red Riding Hood; Miss Dorothy Byers, Army Nurse; Miss Cecile Harwood, Hawaian Girl; Mrs. Fairbairn-Smith, Fair Rosamond; Miss Barnes, Pierrette; Mrs. B. Barnes, Japanese lady; Mrs. Swayne, Red Cross Nurse; Mrs. Thomas, Baloon Girl; Mrs. G. H. Grahame, Humming Bird; Miss Isabel Fairbairn, Mrs. Valentino; Mrs. Wadds, Gipsy; Miss Marion Peticolas, Queen of Hearts; Miss Grace Leeming, Hula Girl; Mrs. V. R. Andrews, Old-fashioned Girl; Mrs. Andrews, Sr., Japanese lady; Miss Ruth Knapman, Bacchante; Miss Glendenning, Newspaper Girl; Miss M. Myers and Norton Buell, Departed Spirits; Stanley Dodworth, Colored Gentleman; Jack Ridpath, S. Ripper, Toonerville Trolley; J. M. Gouinlock, Harry Lauder; J. C. Strickland, Rancher; K. Tate, Spanish Minstrel; Fred Collins, Zulu; Stan. R. Andrews, Oriental; Clayton Ridpath, Merry Christmas; Kenneth Mackenzie, Highlander; Gordon Hill Grahame, Topsy; Gordon Mudge, Rajah; George Wadds, Pierrot; Vaughn Finlay and Clyde Jackson, Spark Plug; Mr. Crossley, Shiek; Dr. B. Barnes, Japanese gentleman; Mr. Thomas, God Knows; Chas. Fairbairn, Matador; Dr. Leeming, Uncle Sam; Jack Fairbairn, Rudolph Valentino; Jack Langley, Cowboy; Hugh Mackenzie, "Miss Undie"; Bert Chapman, Vamp; Richard Stubbs, Rudolph Valentino; Jim Bartlett, Girl; Jack Gimlett, Soldier; Mr. Napier, Robin Hood; Dick Barnes, Pierrot; Edward Bailey, Merry Christmas; Mr. Davis, Wounded Soldier; J. A. Creasor, Gipsy.

The committee in charge of the gala week at Stoney Lake are: Chairman, J. R. Dodworth; Mesdames J. S. Knapman, W. MacAllister Sym, L. N. Grahame and J. Fairbairn, H. F. Foote, G. L. Guillett, J. H. Renwick, George MacLeod, Gordon Hill Grahame, Dr. P. Goldsmith, J. O. McCarthy, W. G. Morrow; Secretary, J. M. Ginlock.ou

Juniper Island, Stoney Lake

The first annual children's regatta was held here on Saturday, August 11, and judging from the number of entries, the crowds of spectators and the good sporting spirit displayed, it will be one of the most popular of the annual events in Stoney Lake for it will surely be an annual event. The races, of which there were fourteen, were open only to boys and girls under fourteen and the skill and the spirit of fair play shown means that the future of the adult regattas is assured for these boys and girls of today are the men and women of future regattas. Motor boats, canoes, skiffs brought their quota to swell the crowd, which have have been at least 150 people, to cheer the young people and so closely were the races contested that the interest never flagged throughout the afternoon. Gordon Hill Grahame, who acted as starter, was compelled to run off a good many of the races in heats owing to the number of entries. Several motor boats caused some confusion by crossing the course in a purposeless fashion that could easily result in an accident if not in a fatality. This has been always a regrettable feature of regattas, (less this year than usual though), that apparent inability of some of the motor boat or their occupants to "stay put." The prizes were very fine and not at all inferior to those given to the adults, several silver cups were presented as well as paddles, cushions, lazy backs, etc., all useful to campers, both young and old. Mrs. J. S. Knapman, convenor of the ladies' committee, presented the prizes at the close of the events. The judges were J. O. McCarthy, Dr. Geo. Zimmerman, Major H.C.Swotherspoon, J. W. Williamson; J.M. Gouinlock was the secretary-treasurer.

If the list of prizes had contained a points prize it would have been won by Jim Pierdon of Kawartha Park who captured five first prizes.

The following is the list of the events and their winners: Girls' Single Canoe, 12 years and under—1, Billy Mackenzie, 2, Phyllis Mackenzie; Girls' Sincle Canoe, 14 years and under—1, Joan Mudge, 2, Patsy Hedley; Girls' Swimming, 10 years and under—1, Mollie Wood, 2, Clara Mackenzie; Girls' Swimming, 14 years and under—1, Edith Killaly, 2, Patsy Hedley; Girls' Single Skiff, 14 years and under—1, Doris Budreo, 2, A. Brewin; Boys' Single Canoe, 12 years and under—1, Ralph Hendren, 2, Dick Mudge; Boys' Single Canoe, 14 years and under—1, Jim Pierdon, 2, Gerald Sherin; Boys' Swimming, 10 years and under—1, Paul Hedley, 2, Kenneth Roszel; Boys' Swimming, 14 years and under—1, Jim Pierdon, 2, Gordon Wotherspoon; Boys' Single Skiff, 14 years and under—1, Jim Pierdon, 2, Fred Sym; Mixed Tandem Canoe, 12 years and under—1, Nancy Cookson and Kenneth Roszel, 2, Mollie Wood and Douglas Hall; Mixed Tandem Canoe, 14 years and under—1, Edith Killaly and Jim Pierdon, 2, A. Brewin and "Spud" Johnson; Mixed Tandem Skiff, 12 years and under—1, Phyllis Mackenzie and Stuart Wotherspoon, 2, Minnie Pierdon and Harry Edmison; Mixed Tandem Skiff, 14 years and under—1, Doris Budreo and Jim Pierdon, 2, Doreen Sheehy and Fred Sym.

Gordon Grahame Cup Race

At four o'clock on Saturday afternoon the open race around Juniper (about two and a half miles) was run off. This race was a single canoe race and open to all entries complying with the requirements regarding boats. There were nine entries and all got away to a good start. The length of the course meant a test of endurance combined with speed and the race was closely watched and when the news was received at the dock that the winners were in sight there was tremendous excitement. The winner, Don Fitzgerald, won easily over Eldred Cumberland, who was second. George Wadds, who took third place, was the youngest entry and paddled remarkably well throughout. This will be an annual event and the trophy, which is a magnificent silver cup, with two smaller cups as 1st and 2nd prizes, is well worth winning. This is rather a departure from the usual races which are merely a test of speed over a short course. The The competitors were allowed to go either way but the unanimous choice of the young men was from west to east. The trophy will be presented after the regatta on Monday with the other prizes.

MRS. COFFMAN ILL SEVEN YEARS

Saved from an Operation by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Sidell, Ill.—"I was a nervous wreck. I was suffering from a pain in my left side, which was almost unbearable, and I could not even let the bed clothing rest on my body at night. I had been sick for seven years, but not so bad until the last eighteen months, and had become so rundown that I cared for nobody, and would rather have died than live. I couldn't do my work without help, and the doctors told me that an operation was all there was left. I would not consent to that, so my husband brought me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and begged me to take it. I have taken fourteen bottles of it and I feel ten years younger. Life is full of hope, I do all my housework and had a large garden this year. I never will be without the Vegetable Compound in the house, and when my two little girls reach womanhood I intend to teach them to take it. I am never too busy to tell some suffering sister of my help, and you can use my name and letter to spread the good news of Lydia E. Pinkham's medicines."—Mrs. IDA M. COFFMAN, R. R. 2, Sidell, Ill.

ALBERTA COAL ON ONTARIO MARKET

Hundred Thousand Tons Proposed by a Western Deputation.

TORONTO, August 16 (Canadian Press). — One hundred thousand tons of Alberta coal placed on the Ontario market at prices which will compete with American anthracite is the proposition put forward by a deputation from the Western Province, which called upon Premier Ferguson yesterday.

Attractive prices which will enable this competition are to be secured by the shipment by rail as far as Fort William and by the Lake route thereafter to Ontario ports

While the deputation which is interested in the development of the Drumheller coal deposits in Alberta is not making a direct attempt to secure active co-operation on the part of the Ontario Government, the aim of this visit was to assure the Premier of the feasibility of providing an adequate supply of coal for Ontario in order to prevent any recurrence of the shortage of recent years.

The mission of the Albertans to Toronto is to appeal directly to the people of this Province and to demonstrate that obstacles which lie in the way of securing of Alberta coal are easily surmountable

THEY CALLED HIM AN "OLD PILL"

THAT was years ago when he packed a terrible grouch, a mighty irritable stomach and a liver that refused to do the things that all good livers should. No wonder his friends called him an "old pill" and stayed away.

But that was years ago—long before he discovered Beecham's Pills and learned that two at bedtime can bring sunshine into a man's life. Today, he's an optimist, a hero to his wife, and a staunch believer in Beecham's Pills.

The cheer that Beecham's Pills bring into a man's disposition, is the incomparable cheer of sound digestion, active liver, and the regular habits that make good health.

Decided Improvement Quickly Noticeable

Dreco proves wonderful help to Mr. Simpson, who feels very much encouraged as a result.

"For several years I have suffered from stomach trouble," says Mr. E. A. Simpson, of 184 Williard Ave., Toronto. "I had bilious attacks and it seemed as though something was lying in my stomach. My food didn't seem to digest properly. My system in general was in fairly good condition until one of these gastric spells came on and then I was unable to eat but very little for several weeks and had to be extremely careful of what little I did eat.

"It seemed impossible to get a stomach remedy that would give me very much help. However, I read of Dreco doing so many people good that I decided to give it a trial. Much to my surprise, it has, in only one week's time, given me a great benefit. My food digests better and that heavy feeling in my stomach has already improved. I am continuing the Dreco treatment, as I feel very much encouraged by the results obtained thus far."

Dreco's action on the organs of digestion is quick and sure. It gets right to the root of the trouble at once. Dreco contains no mercury, potash or habit forming drugs, but is made solely from herbs, roots, bark and leaves. It has put thousands on the highroad to better health. Let it help you too.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Peterboro by Bond's Drug Store. It is also sold in Lakefield by E. H. Northey, and by a good druggist everywhere.

FREE—10 Much Finer Shaves!

Cleaner Shaves—Quicker

with no skin irritation!

If you were paid for putting into words the perfect shave, you would probably define it as . . . "the cleanest, quickest, easiest on skin."

Because that's what 1000 men told us a really good shave should be.

Now we ask you to judge how well we've put those three requisites into a shaving cream. At our expense.

We've put it up to millions of men. And, having tried it, they refuse to use any other cream or soap.

There are 5 distinct superiorities, shaving edvantages, in Palmolive Shaving Cream. It cost us 18 months' work, 130 laboratory experiments, to perfect them. Now judge our work.

You'll find cream multiplying itself 250 times in luxurious lather.

You'll find that lather softens the most unruly beard in one minute—without any irritating "rubbing in."

You'll find the lather remains rich and creamy for 10 minutes on your face, if necessary.

You'll find cutting easier, cleaner, because bubbles of extra strength hold each hair erect. This is important. Finally, you'll marvel at the cool, soothed "after feel"—a result of the carefully blended palm and olive oils.

We ask your judgment on these points as a favor. Failing, the loss would be all ours. Send along the coupon for your ten free shaves.

HASTINGS DEFEAT HAVELOCK BY 18-2

Large Crowd Witnessed Lacrosse Match Argued at Norwood

NORWOOD, August 16. — A big crowd was present yesterday to witness the lacrosse matcl here, when the fast travelling Hastings team defeated the Havelock boys by a one sided score of 18 to 2.

Failure of Havelock home men to solve the Hastings defence explains the black and white team's defeat.

Plunkett, Buchanan and Co., very seldom got through the opposing team's defence, and when they did they came face to face with Lambert, who invariably turned their wicked shots aside. On the other hand the Red and Green attack caught the loser's defence flatfooted time after time, and when the man with the bell managed to get around to check he had clear sailing right to the goal mouth. Davidson also played a great game in the net and at times he blocked what appeared to be sure goals.

In the first period Hastings notched three goals. while Havelock was unable to score. In the second quarter the red and green ran in four more goals.

In the third period the Hastings boys played Havelock off their feet, and made sure of District No. 2.

The fourth period was very tame as Hastings had the game on ice and not not exert themselves.

The line-ups follow:

Havelock — Jacks, Ketchen, Buchanan, Lang, Plunkett, Wilde, Greenly, Davidson, Barlow, Buchanan, Wright. Thompson, Levy, Grenville.

Hastings — Lambert, Cochrane, Saunders, Archer, Flint, Cruickshanks, Gould, Cowell, Baker, Walsh McArthur, Way White, Scriver.

Referee — W. Parkinson. Toronto.

FIRE TOOK TOLL OF 14 ANIMALS

Barn And Contents Destroyed As Result Of Children Playing With Matches.

OMEMEE, August 16.—(Special)—The barn owned by Thomas O'Neill is this morning a heap of smouldering ashes following a fire which, started by children's matches, took toll of 14 animals and the summer yield of farm produce.

The barn was a frame structure on a stone foundation, and contained a fanning mill, separator and other farm machinery besides the hay and wheat crop, harness, 11 pigs, 3 head of cattle and a number of hens. All were lost.

It is believed that the fire originated through children playing with matches. Mr. O'Neill was away at the time the fire started, and only good work by his neighbours saved the other building. The barn and contents were covered by insurance.

To Adjudicate Appeals By Returned Soldiers.

OTTAWA, Aug. 16.— (Canadian Press.)—The appeal board authorized by legislation approved by Parliament last session, to adjudicate upon appeals entered by returned soldiers upon decisions of the Board of Pensions Commissioners, has been appointed by Federal Government. The personnel of the Board, which includes a leading Montreal barrister, who will act as chairman, two doctors, a nationally known engineer, and representative of Labor, will be announced within the next forty-eight hours.

The chairman of the Appeal Board will receive a salary of $7,000 a year and each of the members $6,000. Half the personnel hold office for two years and half for three years, with the chairman retaining his position at pleasure of Parliament.

Boy Had Remarkable Escape During Storm.

SAULT STE. MARIE, August 16 (Canadian Press). — During a severe electrical storm which hit this district, the house of Mr. George Brodie, barrister, was struck by lightning and the chimney demolished.

Mr. Brodie's son had a very remarkable escape, when he was not even awakened by the bolt, which ripped the spring and mattress of the bed on which he was sleeping. The bolt then passed through the room occupied by Mr. Brodie's daughter, who was awakened, and saw the ball of fire flash past her.

PARASITE.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—(Associated Press.)—If the silent signal of the mistletoe hanging from the chandelier means anything to you next Christmas, remember for an instant that in the south-west it is a commerciali pest, and that for 12 years scientists have been studying its depredations and how best to exterminate it.

Mistletoe fastens on the yellow pine tree, checks growth, and finally causes the tree to die. By the Department of Agriculture it is called an "insidious and destructive disease, and its eradication is an important problem.

About the only way to get rid of this parasite is to cut down the tree on which it has fastened. The mistletoe dies with his host, the yellow pine.

Your Health

By DR. CLIFFORD C. ROBINSON
Fellow American College of Surgeons

THE STOMACH AND HEALTH

Perhaps you may remember the old story of how the different games organs of the body decided to go on strike against the stomach, which was always giving them too much work to do. After a short strike they became alarmed. Something must be done at once. They were beginning to get weak from nourishment. Much to their surprise they found out that they all depended on the stomach. The business agent calld all the workers back on the job and the body building was resumed.

Hot weather is with us and common sense in eating may mean all the difference in the world to your future growth and condition of health. I have known one summer to decide the health happiness of a whole life time. In this day of freedom from old-time ideas and conventionalities try and do your stomach a good turn by finding out what real food values are and the proper amout you require. Don't overload your stomach in the hot season or any other season for that matter. An occasional fast for a few meals will do you a world of good. Your stomach will enjoy the rest.

A Personal Equation.

Sometimes we find a person who will tell you that he eats whenever he is hungry. He appears strong and healthy and it never hurts him to take food at any time. Again, another person will eat only a regular intervals, giving strict attention to proper eating and careful chewing of his food.

But in spite of this he is thin and appears undernourished. In the first case, the person was probably blessed with a strong stomach, like a horse, as the expression is, and his general physical condition is strong in resistance. In spite of his greatly increased amount of food above the normal he was not fat. His selection of food with the proper amount of calories was not good and his waste was high.

In the second case the food selection was probabl ythe same day after day and not sufficiently body building. Too much of the same kind and in spite of the proper habits, no real gain resulted. In fact there was a loss, as his vitality was undoubtedly poor and he was low in disease resistance.

Watch Your Diet.

Meats often have a bad effect on the stomach if taken too often during the summer. Eggs and fish are much better and can be prepared in many tempting ways. Vegetables and fruit are the best of all things for summer diet. They make up into delicious salads and combine well with milk one of the best hot weather foods. Cool water, milk and lemonade, not sweet, are the best drinks for the hot season.

When you are hungry, it does not signify that the general body craves food. The stomach which is of different types in different individuals, becomes empty in some persons more rapidly than in others. Contraction of the empty stomach is what produces hunger. Don't eat too much or too often, give your stomach a rest. It is all right now but you will have to use it a long time.

RANCH LAND AND BUSH BURNED OVER

Fires in Victoria County Are Reported Now Under Control.

LINDSAY, August 6.—Bush fires which seriously menaced sections of Victoria county, are now under control, thanks to the splendid work of the fire fighters, as well as to the recent rainfalls.

The fires raged fiercely for several days in Carden township, where fully three hundred people fought the flames, which had spread to sections around Bolsover and Balsam Lake. No loss of life or buildings occurred, but 3,000 acres of ranch land and bush were burned over. In Carden township for miles there is not a fence left standing, and ranchers are having a difficult time separating the many herds of cattle which are all mixed together, having been driven out ahead of the flames.

Consolation.

After all, a low price for wheat does not pinch the farmer as much as a crop failure. Two bushels of wheat at $1 a bushel are practically equivalent to one bushel at $2. What the farmer wants is a bumper crop and a record price. That's human nature, the rest of us have the same hankering. Cheer up, farmers, wheat prices eventually regulate all other prices, according to some of the most able economists. If the law of many centuries works out as in the past, the city man can get a picture of what he is headed for later by contemplating the farmer's predicament in 1923.

PROMINENT FARMER OF SEYMOUR DEAD

Thomas Fox Passes at the Age of 64—Born in Haldimand.

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 16. — Thomas Fox, one of Seymour's best-known and most successful farmers, died at his home on the Fourth Concession, early Wednesday morning, aged 64 year. He had been ailing all summer and sank gradually until the end came.

The late Mr. Fox. was born in the township of Haldimand. His early life he lived for a short time in Cobourg and while yet a boy moved with his parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. John Fox to the farm on which he died and where he had resided up to the time of his death. The farm, which consisted of 150 acres, was mostly forest when the family settled upon it but it is now regarded as one of the best in the township, being in a high state of cultivation and with a modern home and outbuildings upon it. The arrangement of the entire property show the taste and industry of the late owner who spent all the years of his long working life to its development.

The late Mr. Fox was a liberal but took no active part in politics and never aspired to public office. In religion he was a Presbyterian, a consistent member of St. Andrews Church in Campbellford.

The deceased is survived by his wife, whose maiden name was Catherine McCook and to whom he was married about 30 years ago, and by one daughter, Mrs. Albert Stephens, who resides with her husband on a farm a short distance from the homestead, on which she was raised. There are two sons, David and Robert Fox, town foreman of Campbellford, is a brother and Mrs. Thomas Atkinson of Campbellford is a sister of the deceased. A brother, John died at the home of Mrs. Atkinson in January of last year, after returning from the West, where he had taken ill.

The funeral will be held on Friday afternoon to Mount Pleasant Cemetery. Rev. C. F. McIntosh, the pastor of St. Andrew's church, will conduct religious services in the home at 2 o'clock.

HAS SOME BANANAS.

LOS ANGELES, (United Press) —"An American ship just passed through here, and from one of the crew I learned that in America you have no bananas now. Hence I am sending you some."

This was the note accompanying a bunch of bananas received by Edwad Martindale, film star, from a film fan in a town on the west coast of South America.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Will you kindly publish the following article in your esteemed paper:

Thomas, Dear Friend, I am taking the privilege of this paper to answer your letter, which appeared in last night's issue.

You placed two paragraphs in your letter that read as follows:

1. But God did a bad day's work when He provided nature's chemistry for making alcohol and drugs, etc.

2. The Saviour could not have, etc., for He was not a Prohibitionist.

Dear Friend, do you not consider that you are an extremist in several ways.

First you are putting the wisdom of man before the wisdom of the Almighty. Can you forget that He was the creator of all things and that you are one of his creations. Yet you would turn to the God who made you and think you can decide for Him.

Secondly you forget, or at least seem ignorant of the fact that alcohol and drugs were sent into this world for use and not abuse.

Many lives have been saved with alcoholic liquors on this earth and many people have been relieved of terrible pain by drugs. Because some abuse why condemn the whole.

Thirdly, you mention that our Lord Jesus was not a prohibitionist. No, dear friend, Christ was a man of wisdom. He would be a good example for you to try and follow. I do my utmost to follow Him and find it is the best way. He left others to follow their own way or follow Him. God the Father is the same. Then why should we try to force others to do what we want them to do.

So, friend, consider things around yourself and then try and give advice and not force advice by prohibition.

Yours truly,
GEE GEE.

THE SOFT ANSWER IS NEW RAILROAD POLICY

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—(Associated Press).—A "policy of friendliness" designed to increase railroad efficiency through good-will, and a soft answer to every turn is the newly announced policy of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railway Company.

"Every patron a friend of the road through a policy of friendliness toward the public on the part of every employee," is the slogan.

The move is regarded by President J. E. Gorman of the Rock Island, as one which may do much toward the dissipation of the vexing "railroad problem" of the day. The problem, Mr. Gorman believes, is largely accounted for by the fact that through the years thousands of citizens have acquired prejudices against railroads because of the actions of "hard boiled" station agents, conductors, claim adjusters and track workers. The new order will be aimed "to make a friend at every contact."

With minor sources of irritation removed, Mr. Gorman believes, much criticism of the railroads will vanish. "No one spikes his friend" is the axiom on which the railway chief founds his new program. It is hoped through public friendships to give the road the status of a human being in the public mind, thereby to promote a more sympathetic appreciation of railroad problems.

"Often," Mr Gorman declared, in placing the new policy before the 40,000 employees of the road, "railroads are summarily classed as 'undesirable citizens' because of a sharp answer to the hapless traveller seeking to learn whether his town is on railroad or city time; or the vague 'we'll look 'er up' to the perplexed farmer who has lost a pig enroute.

"And once we have lost a friend," he explained, "there is no end to the damage we suffer for our penalty. Persons thus displeased harbor their recollections against railroads generally, are willing ears for the worst that may be said of us in every regard, and add their own story in passing on the terrible picture.

"All this may be overcome merely by showing good humor and courtesy at all times. We never need worry about the treatment we will experience at the hands of our friends —and the public is the only friend we may have."

EFFORTS TO REDUCE THE COST OF DYING

OKLAHOMA CITY, (United Press).—A group of residents of Oklahoma City have banded together to reduce the cost of funeral expenses, adopting as their motto: "It costs too much to live and you can't afford to die."

Twenty attended the organization meeting where it was voted to form the "Sensible Burying Club" which will endeavor to have members leave their wordly wealth to relatives instead of paying for costly funerals.

"We expect one member to start co-operative undertaking establishment," said Mrs. Kate Stafford, organizer. "Another will make coffins and sell them at a reasonable price and we may obtain a burying ground later where lots may be had at cost."

PAJAMAS ARE "OUT."

PARIS (United Press).—They're thinking of carting all the pajamas in Paris up to the Louvre, so that posterity may see what we men used to wear. Men have suddenly become old-fashioned and refuse to hobble into a pair of pajamas, according to the complaint of shopkeepers. "Give us the old nightshirt that grandfather used to wear," is the demand.

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY

Terence Desmond (Terry) Exquisite and convent-reared, unbelievably innocent, is forced to work as a cashier in her father's roadhouse while

Juliet Divine, the stage name of her beautiful half-sister, whom Terry has not seen for years, lives like a princess and talks vaguely of a millionaire.

Terrence Desmond, their father, moody and selfish, formerly caretaker of an estate, is now the proprietor of the Blue Moon, a roadhouse. He is anxious to get Terry married and off his hands.

Mrs. Parmalee owns Silverwood, the estate of which Desmond was caretaker.

Betty Sheridan, her grand-daughter, whose rudeness to Terry the latter will never forget, is the wife of

Miles Sheridan, handsome and likable, who when Terry was a child furnished the money to send her to the Convent, partly to atone for his wife's rudeness. To Terry, he is always 'The Prince.'

Eustace Nazlo, a wealthy Greek, unscrupulous with women, is impressed by Terry's beauty and her resemblance to Juliet Divine, the famous stage beauty. He invites her to go for an auto ride and on the way to New York, he kisses her.

While Nazlo is arranging for a private dining room at the Hotel, Terry slips away. Nazlo is furious.

Terry takes a taxi to her sister's apartment and begs the maid to let her see Julia.

Hartley Phillips, a member of New York's Four Hundred, is calling on Julia and Terry has to wait. Phillips announces that he wants Julia to do a favor for Miles Sheridan.

CHAPTER XVI.

A Doubtful Compliment

"Oh!" breathed Julia. She sat up straighter among her cushions. But she had spent enough time on the stage to call herself an actress, and she didn't show her slighter emotions unless she chose.

Her thoughts travelled back upon a road seven years long. She had heard all about the adventure of the broken down motor car, and the "Prince's" generosity to "Cinderella," his name for Terry. Also she had often seen Mrs. Miles Sheridan's name in the Society columns since the wedding before the war.

She had been interested because of the link with old Mrs. Parmalee and Silverwood. But "Oh!" was the only word she spoke.

"Sheridan and his wife haven't hit it off very well together," Phillips continued. "I'd like to tell you a few things in that connection, Miss Divine, if I can do so in strict confidence. I must say I've always heard you spoken of as a—a thoroughly good sport, a person with whom one could be—er—safe.

"By giving up a few weeks of your valuable time to—a scheme I want to propose for my friend, you would earn—become possessed of—a large sum of money."

Julia smiled faintly. She had the secret pleasure of knowing that she would very soon "become possessed" (as this man put it, in his floundering attempt to save her feelings) of so very large a sum that never need she trouble about earning another dollar.

She meant to spring this fact upon Hartley Phillips by and by, but—even though poor little Terry awaited her—she was enjoying the situation too much to end it quite yet. "How large a sum?" she asked lazily.

"What do you call large?" Phillips hedged.

"A hundred thousand dollars isn't—to be sneezed at."

"Good Heavens! I should think not!" The man stiffened. "I'm not talking in any such figures as that, my dear pretty lady. Ten thousand dollars, or —" (seeing the beautiful face harden) "possible twice that sum—would be the limit."

"And what am I to do for you, or your friend, for twenty thousand dollars?" Julia coolly wanted to know.

Phillips hesitated. "The money's absolutely yours for the taking," he prefaced. Then added sharply, "Will you treat what I said as strictly confidential?"

"I will," promised Julia, her intense curiosity triumphing over the temptation to snub the "grand gentleman."

"Very well, then, I'll trust you. My great friend Miles Sheridan—whom I've known since I was a big boy and he was a little one—is in heavy trouble. He's the best fellow in the world, and his wife ought to be devoted to him.

"But she's been spoiled—had too much of her own way all her life, and since her marriage she's lost her head."

"Deceived her hubby?" Julia drawled. It pleased her to hear of women in a world apart from hers, who "went wrong," "kicked over the traces."

"Well, yes. I'm afraid she did."

"Was it that Italian, Prince di Salvano, who came over on some military mission after he got wounded in the war, and liked America so much he's been playing around ever since?"

Hartley Phillips dared not order the impertinent minx to mind her own business. "I dare say you've heard some gossip," he admitted. "But Mrs. Sheridan's conduct is neither here nor there—between us. It's Sheridan I came to talk about. He——"

"I've happened to meet the Prince, that's all," Julia broke in, looking reminiscent. "Awfully handsome fellow. Rather fascinating. I don't much blame Mrs. Sheridan."

"Sheridan is handsome and fascinating, too, in his different way," Phillips hurried on.

"Ah, but a husband!"

"Yes,"—drily. "That was against him. Anyhow, he doesn't want his wife talked about more than she has been, if he can help it.

"Her grandmother, Mrs. Parmalee, who brought her up, was good to him when he was a boy and he promised the old lady on her death-bed, I believe, that he'd always stand between the girl and trouble. What he wants is, to give Mrs. Sheridan cause to get a divorce from him."

"I begin to see light!" said Julia. "The big idea is for me to flirt with him. Well, that might have appealed to me once, but it doesn't now. I have my own reasons. I'm not taking any, thanks!"

"You don't understand what I mean yet," Phillips argued with flattering eagerness. "I'll tell you exactly what I do mean, without beating round the bush. Sheridan has a steam yacht. She's named after the old place where he used to stay as a boy—Mrs. Parmalee's place—'Silverwood.' He bought her to please his wife who thought she'd fancy yachting, but she hates it like poison.

"All the same Silverwood's a fine craft, warranted not to make the worst sailor sea-sick. If you'll make a trip with Miles Sheridan, stopping at several well known ports en route, where there'll be plenty of people who know you both by sight, not only will you be paid twenty thousand dollars, half in advance if you like, but you'll be safe from—from what you called "flirtation.'

"Mr. Sheridan wants to have everyone talk about the trip, and he wants to be seen about with you. But apart from appearances, he won't have anything to do with you, Miss Divine. Frankly, the less he sees of you the better."

"Oh, indeed!" Julia said. She had enhanced her complexion a little—a very little—with powder and rouge for the last four or five years, but she flushed so hotly at Mr. Phillips' "frankness" that her natural color burned through the false roses.

"Oh, indeed! Mr. Miles Sheridan pays me a beautiful compliment! I wonder you had the cheek to come and make such a proposition! And I don't wonder he didn't care to come himself."

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

AT MRS. THINGUMADADGER'S HOUSE

And there stood a large cake with white icing and a lump in the middle!

"The first person I wish you would look for," said King Snookums to the Twins, "is my lord high chancellor. His name is Codger. Mister Lord High Chancellor Codger. Like the rest of my silly subjects, he got the craze for riding lightning bugs. And now he's plumb disappeared. We can't find him anywhere in Pee Wee Land. And I need him sadly as I have to make a new law and need him to write it out for me."

"Oh, we'll find him, never fear," comforted Nancy. "Can you tell us anything about him that might help?"

King Snookums pushed his crown from one side to the other and pushed it back again.

"Nothing much!" he said. "All that I know is that he had a sweet tooth in his head. No! Two sweet teeth, or perhaps three. I greatly fear it has been his undoing."

"All right," said Nick. "We'll find him. With our magic shoes we can go anywhere, and we'll hunt in all the kitchens and pantries and cake boxes and pastry shops and candy stores."

Away they went then and it wasn't two minutes till they came to Mrs. Thingamudager's house.

Mrs. Thingumadger has been baking. Anyone could in four blocks tell that. Such a smell you never smelled.

So the Twins went straight for her panty shelf.

And there stood a large cake with white icing and a lump in the middle!

"Help! Help!" the lump was calling and moving ever so little. "The icing has got hard and I can't get out! Help!"

Sure enough, it was the lord high chancellor of Pee Wee Land.

The Twins got him out of that and hustled him home in a jiffy.

LAST OF LLOYD GEORGE'S LAND CLAUSES DEAD

LONDON, Aug. 16.—The last of the land clauses of the Budget of 1909, introduced by Lloyd George when he was Chancellor of the Exchequer in the Asquithian Government, is dead. The funeral rites have just been celebrated in the House of Commons, and the principal mourners were not members of the Conservative Party.

It is the Labor Party the forces of progression have got to thank for the set-back, yet those who realize the advantage the government gained do not thank these champions of the workers on the achievement. They drove the government to a trail it would not have ventured to tread on its own initiative, a road, in fact, it sought at the last moment to avoid, but Labor would have none of it. Then to Labor's amazement the government took its whips off, leaving the issue to the free vote of the House, and the Conservatives, rank and file, were in the preponderance. It was enough. The decision through, the government hailed it with delight; it was not to blame.

Listing of Tax Values

The Finance Bill was being considered by the House in committee. The Finance Act of 1909-10, when Lloyd George was bringing his taxation campaign to a head, provided that land and property owners, on any sale or transfer, had to lodge full particulars, including details about money, with a special registration department set up at Somerset House.

Thus the government obtained a values list of all properties changing hands on a free market. The value of this for tax assessment, obtaining the true valuation of all property for which an inflated price is immediately demanded directly it becomes known that it may be required by a municipality for improvement purposes, or for any other national purpose, is obvious. The register was resolving itself into an important state asset. Knowledge of this began to make the landed proprietors and land monopolies quake. Forseeing the possibility of a Labor Party government, the Registration Department became a bugbear; knew too much; must be got rid of, and its records, if possible, destroyed before Labor could get at them.

How It Was Worked

The very persons they were afraid of brought them salvation. It was this way:

Sir William Bull, the member for the Hammersmith Division, London, declared that the Registration Department was a white elephant, that it was costing a lot to maintain it when it was necessary to economize, and that it was relieving the "landed gentry" of $2,500,000 a year which did not find its way into the treasury, but to lawyers engaged to do the conveyancing and fill up the necessary government forms because the people did not understand them.

He said that this was quite unfair, that it was hitting a class of the community who already paid heavy taxes unnecessarily. Therefore Sir William moved that the provision of the Act of 1909-10 imposing this tax on the "landed gentry" should be repealed as and from the commencement of the present act.

This bold move was indorsed by all Conservatives, who are mainly the big property holders, but the Financial Secretary to the Treasury, Sir W. Joynson-Hicks, was afraid to commit the government to the proposal. He agreed with it, truly, but held that it would be improper for him, having only been in office such a short time, you see, to back it, so he appealed to Sir William to withdraw it. Sir William apparently saw the way the wind was blowing so he asked the leave of the House to withdraw his proposition.

Usual Tactics Fail

At this, the Labor Party thought it had the government in a quandary. It thought it would force the government to put the whips on in division against the ambitions of members of its own party—ambitions, incidentally, which it possessed itself—and, may be, create friction within the government ranks. So it set out to force the government to register its vote against the principle.

Then the government called off the whips. A free vote of the House can never register a defeat atainst the government, and right merrily the minister-ialists and rank and file of the Conservative Party fell over each other in their haste to escape into the division lobby. Labor and Liberal stood dismayed at the flight. This they had not bargained for. Outwitted, they returned to the House dejected.

Did the committee stage terminate the drama? No, it was merely the beginning of it. Once the scheme received the indorsement of Commons in committee it required the spontaneosh backing of Mr. Baldwin and the ministers. They took full advantage of the unique position, and in the succeeding stages of the fight, when Labor endeavored to retrive the position, the Conservatives went out to consolidate the ground gained, and this time no member of the party was allowed to escape the vigilance of his whip.

Toryism at Its Best

From the committee stage the bill had to pass on to the House for report and third reading, its final phase in Commons when it was noticed that not only J. Ramsey McDonald, but Mr. Lloyd George, H. H. Asquith, Sir J. Simon and all the leaders of the forces of progression were brought back to their respective benches in the House in their determination, if they could, to save the situation. Their efforts were futile. Sir G. Collins, Labor representative for Greenock, moved the deletion of the "Bull" clause, and he received the unqualified support of Mr. Lloyd George, who declared, amid Labor cheers, that the time would yet come when his original scheme would be introduced in the House.

Austen Chamberlain came down on the side of Lloyd George, and appealed to his friends in the government benches "not to shelter misdeeds which brought property into contempt." The reply was ironical cheering which disclosed more vividly, perhaps, than any pen pictures in the world the Conservative government at its best.

Clearly, conservativism of the brand of 50 years ago would come back—if it dared.

The government, in the division, recorded virtually its full weight, 260, in its determination to prevent the secrets of the property and land owning class being listed at Somerset House. What more striking demonstration of fear could one desire?

A CREED

I Believe that work is a blessing.

I Believe that the work I am doing is worth while.

I Believe that the interests of mankind are mutual, and that business is simply organized service.

I Believe that the only way life can be made happier and living cheaper is for everyone to do his full duty.

I Believe that incompetence, laziness, or greed in an employee is not only unfair to the employer but a sin against the whole body of society.

I Believe that if I fail to do my fair share of the world's work I shall only make life just that much harder for some other fellow who perhaps has greater handicaps than I.

I Believe that the Creator gave me talents in the expectation that I would use them in the service of my fellow man. Even if unmindful of my own interests, I have no right to cheat others.

I Believe that every piece of goods I help to manufacture represents a part of myself when it goes out into the world. Whether I write letters or file them, whether I work at a desk or in a factory, or in a store, I believe in the thing I am doing, and will put my best thought and effort into it.

I Believe in myself and in my friends. I believe in my company. I believe in humanity in general, and that the good in the world far outweighs the bad. I believe that I shall receive justice and a square deal. I believe that if I do my best, if I study to improve myself, and look cheerfully upon life and its tasks, whatever rewards may be justly due me I shall receive.

—Harry A. Earnshaw.

HAVE NEW STARS IN 1923 SEASON.

Leading French Tenor Will Make American Debut With Civic Opera Compand, Chicago.

CHICAGO, Aug. 9 (Associated Press)—Fernand Ansseau, leading tenor in French opera, will make his American debut with the Chicago Civic Opera, which opens here November 8, according to the announcement made by the company. Arrangements are being made for the appearance of other brilliant guest artists, which will include Mme. Louise Homer. She will appear in a limited number of performances including "Samson and Delilah."

Other stars included in the regular personnel of the company for the coming season will be Mary Garden, Amelita Galli Curci, Florence MacBeth, Mary McCormic, Cyrena Van Gordon, Georges Baklanoff, Tito Schipa, Edith Mason and Feodor Chaliapin, with Giorgio Palacco again present as musical director.

"Boris Godunoff" and "L'Africana," the latter by Meyerbeer, are announced as novelties in the 1923-24 season, because they never before have been given by the Civic Opera Company. The role of Boris is said by critics to be one of Chaliapin's greatest. Among the revivals announced is that of "Zaza," with Mary Garden in the title role. Miss Garden also will appear in the revival of Massenet's "Cleopatre."

Harry W. Beatty, technical director, is spending the summer in Europe visiting the more famous opera houses of France, Germany and Italy in search of new ideas. He is said to be making a special study of proposed settings in Moussorgsky's "Boris Godunoff," which has become popular with American audiences.

The opening of the operatic season November 8 is a departure from custom, as the season will open Thursday instead of the usual Monday and will run one and one-half weeks longer than the usual season of ten weeks.

Announcement also was made that Adolph Bohm will be in charge of the ballet and that Miss Anna Ludmila would return as premiere danseuse.

THE PRESS TRIUMPHANT

Behold the village crier that once a week
Quavered stale news—to what dimensions grown!
This giant bugler with distended cheek
That hath for breath the four winds as his own—

"The Press"—a hand-bill once, a lonely sheet
Sold by some starving scribbler; so began
This parliament in which all nations meet,
This omnipresent eye of man on man.

Such might was in the seed by Caxton sown.
The scepter and the sword alike bend down
Before the printing press—the People's Throne,
The axe of evil, and of fame the crown.

EAT MORE HOME-GROWN PRODUCE

WE IMPORT TOO MUCH FOREIGN AGRICULTURAL PRODUCTS

Canadians Use a Good Deal of Imported Fruit, Vegetables and Grain—Thei Value Estimated at Nearly .109,000,000—The Mystery of Nitrogen—No Alcohol in Silage Milk.

Are Canadian farmers getting the full advantage of their home market? A study of the import figures for the fiscal year ending March 31st last reveals the amazing extent to which the food stuffs we most pride ourselves in producing are imported for consumption in Canada.

Take fruits for instance. Of apples we imported 155,201 barrels worth $775,819. They weren't all early apples either, for 30,028 barrels were brought in during March. During the year we imported: Berries, $114,892; cherries, $83,349; cranberries, $212,894; grapes, $661,443; peaches, $403,312; pears, $536,729; plums, $303,495, and strawberries, $785,150; a total of $3,907,083. Add to this $1,786,522 for dried apples, apricots, peaches, plums and prunes, and $492,828 for canned peaches, jellies and jams and imported fruits and fruit juices being $26,409,235, be sides an item of $3,728,475 for nuts. Much of this was, of course, for sub-tropical fruits, but some of these might be substituted, to our financial and gustatory advantage, by home grown products. For instance, we might eat more roast apples and fewer oranges. While dealing with matters horticultural a bill for $1,064,311 for plants, shrubs, trees and vines might be mentioned.

Coming to vegetables, our total bill for the fresh article was $3,575,070, of which cabbage accounted for $187,689, onions for $487,009, potatoes for $537,291 and tomatoes for $965,941, a total for these four commonly grown articles of $2,177,930. Of canned vegetables we imported $626,210 worth; of sauces, catsups and pickles, $518,660. Our total products reached the considerable sum of nearly $5,000,000.

We have a great dairying country in Canada, yet we purchased abroad during the year $1,844,212 worth of milk and its products. This included $1,349,819 for 3,767,573 lbs. of butter, $327,022 for 916,517 lbs. of cheese, $46,387 for condensed milk, $92,710 for casein, and even $28,274 for sweet milk and cream. Our butter importations were supplemented by 1,165,440 lbs. of imported oleomargarine.

Our foreign grain bill amounted to 11,275682, though this included $7 695,280 for feed corn, and $2,020,596 for rice, of which 18,000,000 lbs. came from China. Milled products cost us $685,895, and prepared foods and bakery products another $500,000.

Our total imports under the head Agricultural and Vegetable Products, Mainly Food, came to the rather startling total of $108,701,762. We could hardly be expected, however, to produce our own tea, coffee and spices, though we might considerably reduce our sugar bill, which now amounts to approximately $40;000,000 a year, by growing more beets.

We also imported $20,935,298 worth of alcoholic beverages, which, as we all know, are mostly derived from the products of the farm. It may be, however, that some of our exported grains and fruits returned to us in this highly manufactured form.—R. D. Colquette, Dept. of Agricultural Economics, O.A.C., Guelph.

OUR WORLD FOR AUGUST

"Our World" for August devotes several of its leading articles to the discussion of the relations between Mexico and the United States. The social and economic problems of Mexico are presented in a friendly spirit by both Mexicans and Americans. Some of the features of the issue are:

"Civilizing World Commerce" by Arthur Bullard; "Behind the Scenes in the Oil War" by Charles Merz; "Mexico Molding a New Citizenship" by Jose Vasconcelos, Mexican Minister of Education; "What America Owes to the Negro," by James Weldon Johnson; in the series "America Still in the Making"; "Movies as Interpreters," by O. R. Geyer, a discussion of the influence of pictures in world understanding; "How a Vanished Race Lived," a picturesque account of the life of the Maya Indians; "America's Overseas Writers," by Frederic William Wile; "Neighbors Across the Rio Grande," by John Barr.

World Fiction for the month includes:

"The Man Who Couldn't Learn," by Ferenc Molmar, author of the stage success "Liliom"; "The Guest," by Paul Bourget; "An Adventure of My Wife's," by F. d'Amora; and "To Her Advantage," an Irish story by Florence Hackett.

WHEN your haunts on a summer day must be hot paved streets and a breathless office, instead of shady green lanes, or breeze-swept water stretches,—and you reach home after the day's work, jaded and exhausted,—a refreshing cup of delicious "Ovaltine" will quickly restore your drooping energies.

Nothing so pleasantly recruits Nature's forces as "Ovaltine", supplying as it does the concentrated nourishment of ripe barley malt, creamy milk and fresh eggs, delicately flavored with cocoa. Easy to prepare—delicious to take.

THE MYSTERY OF NITROGEN

Since animal life must depend upon plant life for its support, we must first learn how nitrogen gets from the air into the plant. Every farm boy has seen the grain turn yellow at times in the very early spring and especially that which was growing in the dead furrows of the fields. This occurs largely because there isn't enough nitrogen in the right form for the plants to get at this time of the year. As a single element existing alone, neither animals nor the green plants can use nitrogen, and yet the air is the source of the entire supply for all life.

If we go back into history of Roman agriculture, we will find that even the farmers of that time knew enough to grow legumes. Even though all of this was known, it was not until 1887 that the reason for it was discovered. Then it was that the little swellings always found on the roots of legumes were discovered to contain countless numbers of minute forms of life, now known as bacteria. Later it was learned that these little workers had a great deal to do with keeping the soil in fit condition for the growing of crops, for they, in their magic way of living, are capable of taking the nitrogen out of the air that is in the soil and making it become a part of the soil compounds. In this way we have the cheapest means of keeping up the nitrogen supply of the soil.—Hoard's Dairyman.

An acre of tobacco plant yields about 700 tons of tobacco.

NO ALCOHOL IN SILAGE MILK.

Satisfactory evidence has been adduced to show that by the feeding of corn silage alcohol is transferred to the milk. While it is true that silage does have traces of alcohol in it, yet it is altogether probable that the alcohol as well as the acids of silage, are completely burned up in the cow and never passes even in minute traces into the milk.

The poultry house should be built as low as possible without danger of the attendants bumping their heads against the ceiling. A low house is more easily warmed than a high one.

How the RETINOSCOPE REVEALS That LYING INJURES the EYES

"LOOK me in the eye!" This is the command the detective makes when he is putting a suspect through the sweating process known as the third degree, in his efforts to learn if the truth is being told him. The criminal lawyer also utters it in cross-examining a witness for the same purpose. Both these investigators of crime have long relied to a great degree upon their "hunch" as to whether they were being told the truth or lies. But now science has come to their aid by a surer method.

Recently the discovery was announced that an injection of scopolamin into the veins of the most confirmed liar would lead him into the path of truth, from which he could not possibly stray while under the influence of this powerful drug.

While many scientists and police officials are still questioning the efficacy of thus using scopolamin hypodermically, Dr. W. H. Bates, of New York City, says that he has perfected a small mechanical device that will detect lies in the simplest manner. Dr. Bates calls his invention a "retinoscope," which is of a size that conveniently fits in the pocket.

Dr. Bates's system of detecting lies is also based upon the eyes. In fact, the theory is said to be an elaboration of that practiced by many a wife when she demands of a suspected husband, "Say that again and look me in the eye."

According to Dr. Bates, every time a person lies the strain is such that for the fraction of a second that person becomes near-sighted. The retinoscope is designed to catch that fraction of a second. In this manner the retinoscope reduces the detection of lies to a scientific basis.

The retinoscope is a simple device, consisting of a long metal handle in which is installed a tiny electric bulb. The bulb radiates its reflection into a small plane mirror set at a 45-degree angle on a disc pierced by a small hole.

The cross-examiner peers through the small hole at the eye of the person examined, the pupil of which reflects the light from the mirror. By moving the retinoscope to and fro a shadow is produced upon the pupil.

It is the shadow that tells the tale. As long as it moves in the same direction as the reflected light the eye is normal. As soon as it moves in the opposite direction it is an indication of near-sightedness. Up to that point the retinoscope is merely a recording instrument.

It is when it is combined with Dr. Bates' theory that lying causes a strain on the muscles on the outside of the eyeball which squeezes the eye itself so as to elongate it that it becomes a menace to those who trifle with the truth. This theory, Dr. Bates says, he has proved by ten years of application. He has even tried it on prisoners in Sing Sing with success.

Dr. Bates' experience has led him to the belief that much of the near-sightedness in the world is caused by lying. Many a man, he says, could have dodged near blindness by truthfulness.

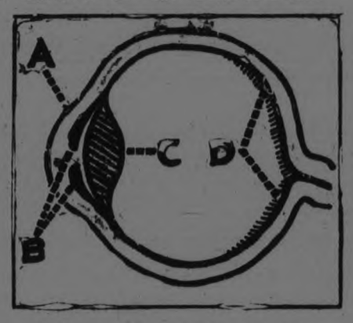
"Telling lies unquestionably is bad for the sight," says Dr. Bates. "Whatever bearing this circumstance may have had on the universality of defects of vision, it can easily be demonstrated that it is impossible to say what is not true even with no intent to deceive or even to imagine a falsehood without producing an error of refraction.

"If a patient can read all the small letters on the bottom line of the test card, and either deliberately or carelessly miscalls any of them, the retinoscope will indicate an error of refraction.

"In numerous cases patients have been asked to state their ages incorrectly or to try to imagine that they were a year older or a year younger than they actually were, and in every case when they did this the retinoscope indicated an error of refraction.

"A patient twenty-five years old had no error of refraction when he looked at a blank wall without trying to see; but if he said he was twenty-six, or if some one else said he was twenty-six, or if he tried to imagine that he was twenty-six, he became near-sighted.

"The same thing happened when he stated or tried to imagine that he was twenty-four. When he stated or remembered the truth his vision was normal, but when he stated or imagined an error he had an error of refraction."



A—The Cornea, or "White" of the Eye.

B—The Iris, or Circle of Blue, Gray, Brown or Tawny Color.

C—The Lens, a Small Part of Which Is Seen Through the Center of the Iris as a Black Spot, Called the "Pupil."

D—The Retina, the Part of the Eye Which Actually Does the Seeing.

Using the Retinoscope to Reveal the Peculiar Strain Lying Is Said to Put on the Muscles of the Eyeball.

'Morning After' Feeling, as a Cause of Many Suicides

Is the "early morning feeling" responsible for suicides? That is the question that is vexing leading physicians, brain specialists and coroners at the present time.

At a London inquest Dr. Edwin Smith remarked that suicides were much more frequent in the morning than later in the day. "This fact is no doubt due to early morning depression, which causes people to feel their troubles much more acutely," he added.

"The early morning feeling is growing," said another physician. "Late suppers, which are superfluous after any kind of dinner; closed windows, uncomfortable beds, the omission of the cold tub—these are all contributory causes to early morning depression.

"People who live busy, healthful lives in the country seldom feel unable to meet each other at breakfast. But I know many families whose members feel incapable of meeting at breakfast.

"Another cause of the early morning depression is the unattractiveness of so many of our bedrooms. The best rooms of the house should always be made into bedrooms, and they should not be crowded with furniture. Waking up in a sunny room, with bright walls and curtains, is in itself a tonic."

The underlying reasons for the epidemic of suicide that broke out in the German armies during the World War has just been brought to light, according to information secured from the secret archives of the German War Ministry. It was noticed that the funeral honors given to the dead of the war aroused the masses to a frenzy of patriotism, and these events which glittered with all the pomp and glory circumstance made possible were always followed by a great number of suicides, especially among the cadets and subalterns who, seemingly, could not wait for a chance to sacrifice their lives for their country on the field of battle.

FOOD IDIOSYNCRASIES That PUZZLE DIETICIANS

MANY persons cannot eat strawberries without breaking out in a rash or suffering other distressing symptoms. Others dare not eat shellfish, some must pass up bananas, and some pay dearly even for eating potatoes. Some are poisoned by eggs and some by milk. A great many other foods that the majority of folks find wholesome, palatable and nutritious invariably cause more or less serious disturbances when eaten by certain individuals.

Just why it is that certain articles of diet are actual poisons to some and wholesome foods to others is not known. About the best explanation that science so far is able to give is that people differ greatly in constitution, in nervous temperament and in reaction to physical and chemical stimuli. Some have idiosyncrasies—constitutional peculiarities or odd conditions of cell protoplasm—by reason of which some foods which are perfectly harmless to others are active poisons to them.

Writing on this subject in the People's Home Journal, C. H. Goudiss observes that since no one is exactly "average," the only way we can determine which foods agree with us and which poison us is by actual personal experience. A certain man, the article continues in part, had from childhood what he called an antipathy to milk.

One day a medical friend induced him to drink a glass of ice-cold milk. He found it agreeable in taste and it produced no bad effect whatever. He continued drinking cold milk and became quite fond of it. One day he drank a glass at ordinary temperature, and shortly afterward became violently ill.

Definite antipathies for certain food are not mere "notions"; usually they indicate some grave trouble, and for that reason competent medical advice should be sought when children balk at foods which are regarded as good for them. Babies a few weeks old cannot well be accused of having "notions," yet some of them are not able to digest any kind of milk or any food made with milk. Such infants literally starve to death in the midst of plenty because there is nothing that will take the place of milk as a source of body building materials for very young children.

Eggs in some instances poison children as well as adults. They sometimes cause swellings and serious irritations of the skin similar to eczema.

Occasionally tomatoes cause swelling of the joints, mouth ulcers and skin troubles. Indeed, they are so prolific of joint troubles that certain ailments are known to physicians as "tomato joints." Even potatoes are poisonous to some people. A doctor who had suffered from neuralgia for years found complete relief when he quit eating them. Afterward, even the smallest quantity of potato would bring back neuralgia. A fourteen-year-old boy, according to the report of the family physician, dared not eat oatmeal porridge. Within twenty minutes after he had partaken of this food his face would begin to swell and this would continue until his eyes were swollen shut.

Rice and honey which ordinarily are admirable food cause unexpected and distressing symptoms in some people, these effects being remarkably uniform in any person susceptible to the poisoning. Coffee with cream sometimes disagrees when either coffee or cream alone causes no bad effects whatever. Such idiosyncrasies are sometimes hereditary and may affect members of the same family.

Strawberries rank as the greatest offenders among fruits and vegetables, causing rashes and other acute and painful disturbances. Partially decomposed food which is poisonous to every one often causes rashes on the skin. Ptomaine poisoning, for instance, is frequently accompanied by itching eruption which is difficult to cure. Mussels, crabs, pork, mushrooms and other foods cause violent toxic eruptions in some individuals.

Where an idiosyncrasy is purely nervous it is more difficult to trace and less possible to eradicate than peculiarities which relate to foods or drugs. A case is recorded of a girl who at the age of three years witnessed the killing of a chicken. She was greatly excited at the time, and for years thereafter displayed an extraordinary antipathy for all flesh foods.

Scientists no longer treat such antipathies as "notions," but are disposed rather to consider them as warnings sounded by nature. They are trying to get at the real fact back of the stomach's refusal to accept certain foods. Until they succeed the only thing for susceptible people to do is to stop eating foods that do not agree with them. If you suspect a food, make careful observation as to the time when you ate it, the conditions, etc., also whether you were fatigued, hurried or worried. If the disturbance occurs more than once under normal conditions drop the offending food from your list. There are so many foods from which to choose that it is worse than foolish to persist in eating one that doesn't agree with you.

WEIGHING the Earth's ATMOSPHERE

AIR has weight and even a liter of it—a measure equalling about one quart—weighs about 1-3.10 grams. A cubic foot possesses a weight of about 1-3,10 ounce. Taking this approximate weight of 1-3.10 ounces per cubic foot, a space having capacity of one cubic mile would contain about 191,857,357,600 ounces, inasmuch as there are 147,197,952,000 cubic feet in a cubic mile. Or, divided by 16 and then by 2,000 it gives approximately 5,980,000 tons of air.

If, therefore, one cubic mile of the atmosphere is so exceedingly heavy, how very great must be the total weight of air surrounding the earth?

It is known that the terrestrial surface contains about 197,000,000 square miles. Therefore, at first thought, it seems easy to compute the total capacity and total weight of the atmosphere. All it is necessary to do is to find the atmospheric height. This atmospheric height has been estimated at about 300 miles.

"There are several methods whereby the atmospheric weight may be satisfactorily approximated," writes Charles Nevers Holmes, in Science and Invention. "Scientists have computed that our atmosphere's total volume possesses a weight of about 1.1,200,000 that of the earth. According to this computation, since the earth's weight is approximately 6,000,000,000,000,000,000,000 tons, the atmospheric weight would be about 5,000,000,000,000,000 tons.

"But this estimate seems much too low. The barometer proves that air at sea-level possesses a pressure of 14-7.10 pounds per square inch. Inasmuch as all of our atmosphere's weight presses upon the terrestrial surface, then its 197,000,000 square miles, or 790,854,451,200,000,000 square inches, multiplied by 14⅛ pounds (the average pressure upon ocean, valley and mountain), will approximate the weight of the atmosphere—5,733,694,771,200,000 tons.

"Moreover, calculations indicate that were the whole atmosphere concentrated to sea-level density, it would be only about 25,835 feet, instead of 300 miles in height. This concentrated atmosphere would contain about 141,886,977,408,000,000,000 cubic feet. If we multiply this sum by 1-293.1000 ounces (a cubic foot of air), the result is 133,434,001,788,544,000,000 ounces, our atmosphere's total weight. And this atmospheric weight in ounces, divided by 16 ounces and then by 2,000 pounds, approximates 5,782,812,500,000,000 tons."

HOW the SPIDER Satisfies HIS APPETITE for FISH

IT IS a fact well known to naturalists in general and to fish culturists in particular that many insects, either in the larval or the adult stage, feed on young fishes. This habit is common to some of the larval forms of the dragon flies, or darning needles. It is also known that water beetles and water bugs are prone to enrich their diet with young fish. But that spiders catch and presumably devour little fishes is certainly a little known phenomenon. At any rate it would be a hidden or relatively unknown fact were it not for the fact that in the vast literature of fishes and fishing brought together in the Bibliography of Fishes, of which E. W. Gudger for three years was associate editor with Dr. Bashford Dean, there are references to this phenomenon. The first account led to the finding of others which are mentioned in a recent number of the Journal of Natural History.

The first account is from the pen of Professor Edward T. Spring, of Eaglewood, New Jersey, and dates back to 1859.

Doctor Henry C. McCook, in his American Spiders and Their Spinning Work, after discussing the general untrustworthiness of the commonly printed and circulated accounts of the attacks by spiders on such small vertebrate animals as birds, rats, snakes, etc., reprints Professor Spring's account in Volume I of his work, giving it his full credence. Furthermore, he had Professor Spring's sketch worked up by an artist and reproduced it in connection with the account. In this sketch, which is herewith reproduced, the spider and the fish seem rather large in comparison with the size of the nearby lilypads.

Doctor McCook's rendition of Professor Spring's most interesting observation, is referred to in J. H. Comstock's Spider Book.

In the third volume of Doctor McCook's work is a corroboratory account of the above incident. This account seems to have escaped the attention of most students. Doctor McCook says:

"The case (above cited) has excited much interest, and it is gratifying to have it supported by a like well-authenticated instance. Mr. Francis R. Welsh, of Philadelphia, writes me that a spider once killed two sunfish, each about two inches long, that he had in a basin in his room. After having attacked the first fish it ran over the water and fastened upon the second, which was also at the time apparently well and vigorous. Mr. Welsh drove the spider off, but the fishes died in a few hours."

Another account comes from Mr. William T. Davis, of Staten Island, New York. Mr. Davis, who is a member of the New York Entomological Society, says:

"While rambling among the innumerable little hills near Grasmere station on Staten Island, I came to a small wood-shaded pond. Several moderately large spiders were on its surface, a few feet from the shore, and it so happened that while I was watching one of them, in particular, that rested quietly, it suddenly made a rapid motion and seized a little silvery fish over an inch in length. It held it firmly and remained as stationary as it had been before the capture. A number of water beetles (Gyrinidae) now came swimming about the spider, no doubt being anxious to share in the feast, but they quickly decamped upon the approach of the water-net that captured the Arachnid."

Mr. Davis positively identified the spider as a Dolomedes, and Mr. Gudger says that he understands that Mr. Davis has at the present writing both spider and fish in his collection.

Still another observation was made by Dr. Thomas Barbour, of the Museum of Comparative Zoology, Cambridge, Massachusetts, in southern Florida in the Spring of 1921. He was fishing in the upper St. Johns River in a very swampy region when the following incident occurred:

"The vegetation swarmed with Dolomedes, but then these spiders always seem to have a predilection for creeping about on the floating lettuce especially. The water, both beneath the plants and in the little open spaces between them, teemed with several species of cyprinodont fishes.

A tiny flash of silver caught my eye, and I looked again, to see a spider carrying a small dead fish, perhaps an inch long, across the wide leaf to the dark interior of a large lettuce cluster. I thought that probably the spider had found a dead fish by chance and I relit my pipe, when about six feet away in another direction the episode was repeated. This time the little fish was still struggling feebly in the spider's chelicerae. Later I saw a third fish being carried off which was dead and quite dry."

When Men Dressed Like the Women

GOWNS, robes, frocks, blouses and petticoats are looked upon entirely as belonging to woman's realm, yet these garments were once worn by men as every-day attire.

The gown, a thousand years ago, was a robe of fur worn mostly by monks who were feeble or in ill-health. To-day university students, clergymen and lawyers all wear gowns. Nowadays, when a parson is dismissed from the church he is said to be "unfrocked."

Frocks originally were big gowns with large, open sleeves, and were worn as an outside robe by monks and friars. The frock of to-day owes its origin to that first frock sported by the old friars and monks. So, too, does the smock-frock which countrymen once wore.

A man's short coat was once known as a petticoat, and that word survives to-day to describe the underskirt worn by women.

Knights of old wore a silk overall to protect their gleaming armor from rain and sun, and this was known as a blouse. When knights discarded it woman adopted it.

The jacket—or coat, when worn by woman—is a jack-et, or little "jack"; a garment which in ancient times was made of several folds of cloth, a stag's skin stitched to it affording extra protection against arrows and daggers. So the word jacket is not quite so meaningless as it seems.

CARBON as a CURE for Tuberculosis

THE dread disease tuberculosis, old as the plagues of Egypt, is going the way of smallpox and others. It was not until after 1860 that a man got on its trail. Villemin, a French army physician, demonstrated by animal experimentation that tuberculosis is an infectious and contagious disease, that the virus is contained in the discharges from tuberculous men and animals, and that the disease is transmitted from man to man and from animal to man by inhalation of infected dust or by the ingestion of contaminated food or drink. In 1882 the great German bacteriologist Koch demonstrated the presence of the specific virus of tuberculosis in the sputum and other discharges from tuberculous men and animals.

Now two different "cures" have been announced, which, following Dr. Wassermann's discovery, should give the final knockout blow to tuberculosis. Dr. William P. Nolan, of Jeannette, Pa., whose investigations cover 10 years, presents a cure by "inhalation of practically pure carbon in amorphous form and calcium in the form of carbonate, phosphate, chloride and lactate." He explains that carbon and other chemicals have a tendency in tuberculosis to break up the mucus, dry up tubercular sores on the lungs, and to build a wall around the infected centers, preventing the infection from spreading and at the same time eliminating it. It is said that the low death rate from tuberculosis in the smoke-laden Pittsburgh district led Dr. Nolan to investigate the effects of carbon on lung tissue. He claims he has cured 72 cases so far and more are being treated by his method.

Experimenters of the army medical corps of Edgewood, Md., claim that mustard gas as a specific for tuberculosis has been completely demonstrated. In tests guinea pigs inoculated with tuberculosis germs and with a certain concentration of mustard gas all failed to contract the disease, while an equal number of pigs inoculated with the disease germ and not given the mustard gas treatment all contracted the disease.

Why the Owl Is Supposed to Be Wise

THE owl, of course, is a night bird. When it is seen in the daytime, it presents a curious appearance. Though really sleepy, its huge eyes, almost sightless in the strong light, give it an air of extreme wide-awakeness; and their size, emphasized by the curious disc of feathers around them, is further magnified by their singular steadiness. The odd "chuckle" emitted adds to the general effect of solemnity.

These characteristics have from the very earliest times given the owl a half-sarcastic reputation for wisdom, and over two thousand years ago the ancient Greeks invariably pictured Athene, their Goddess of Wisdom, as accompanied by an owl.

The tradition has been handed down through the ages, till to-day this bird is still associated with a cleverness to which ornithologists say it is really quite a stranger.

SACRED HEART LOSE TO MAPLE LEAF CREW AS DARKNESS FALLS

Maple Leafs Victors In An Exciting Battle By 7 to 6 Score.

TIES SECOND HALF.

The Sacred Heart fell to the Maple Leafs last evening by the score of 7 to 6. The result of this game ties the second half of the Juvenile schedule, leaving last night's contestants the tied teams.

The game proved to be as full of thrills and excitement as a Wild West show. A riot nearly followed after the game was called. It was a hard pill for the Sacred Heart cohorts to swallow, but the south-end boys stil lhave a good chance to pull out and win.

Tom Kenneally did the gunning for the Sacred Heart and he got along nicely until the fifth, keeping the hits well scattered. In the fifth he loaded the bags, and then McDonough was called on. McDonough fooled the Leafs on a fast ball, but the darkness made every hit hall count.

"Chuck" Bradley pitched in good form for the Leafs He struck out eleven. "Ab" Delahaye turned in a great game behind the bat, getting all those who tried to steal and collecting three hits. Rishea also worked well on the receiving end of the Sacred Heart battery.

Vince O'Connell's boys took the lead at the start. Jones got on on Thirnbeck's error, but was out stealing second. Malloy walked. Roddy struck out. Griffin hit to left field, the sun making it impossible for Marchen to catch, and Griffin got two bases, Malloy coming in. Rishea got a hit, sending in Griffin. Masterson flied to Franks.

Maple Leafs got one in their half. Delahaye got a hit, stole second, going to third on a sacrifice by Hall and came home when Rishea was caught unawares.

The Sacred Heart retired in order on strikes in the second. The Maple Leafs failed to score in their half, although they had two on, with only one down.

The Sacred Heart also got a goose egg in the third, two going out on strikes.

The Maple Leafs evened the count and missed a big opportunity to get more. Snappy play by the south-end boys kept them back.

The Sacred Heart broke loose in the fourth with four hits and five runs, and held the Maple Leafs scoreless.

However, the Maple Leafs came back in the fifth with two runs and looked very dangerous. McDonough was sent in to relieve Kenneally in that frame. The Maple Leafs got two more in the sixth, while the Sacred Heart went fishing. The last innings supplied the excitement, the Sacred Heart failing to alter the score. The Maple Leafs came in. The first man, Corbett, sent a long fly to left field, but Griffin gathered it in. Franks got a hit and stole second. Johnston sent him across on a hit with the tying run. Johnston drew up at second. The Sacred Heart players came in to hold a powwow and Johnston rounded third and tore home for the winning run.

Big Games To-Day In Davis Cup Contests

BROOKLINE, Mass, Aug. 16.—(Canadian Press). — The golden fleece of lawn tennis for 1923 will be before the eyes of tennis players who have travelled thousands of miles to battle to-day for Davis Cup laurels on the neutral courts of the Longwood Cricket Club at Chestnut Hill in the first of the final round matches.

At 3 o'clock Rene Lacoste, 19 year old continental sensation, will carry the tricolor of France against James O. Anderson, veteran leader of the Australian forces, in the opening match of the final tie. Immediately after their encounter Jacques Brugnon, oldest of the French invaders, will oppose John B. Hawkes the Melbourne left hander, in another singles contest. On Friday the same players probably will figure in the doubles and the order of Thursday's singles will be reversed for the wind-up, of the series in the last two matches Saturday.

PITCHER FOR CHICAGO.

MUSKEGON, Mich., Aug. 16.—(Canadian Press)—Pitcher Claude Gillenwater, leading hurler of the local Michigan-Ontario League team, has been purchased by the Chicago Americans and will report to the White Sox to-day, it was announced here yesterday. The purchase price is said to have been $5,000.

Gillenwater has won 10 games and lost one for the Muskegon Club this season.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Comment on Season's Ball In Northumberland League.— New Club House for Bowlers.

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 16.—The nine teams in the Northumberland League have finished the season in the following order.

| | Won | Lost | P.C. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Trenton | 14 | 2 | .875 |
| Campbellford | 11 | 5 | .688 |
| Warkworth | 11 | 5 | .688 |
| Brighton | 10 | 6 | .630 |
| Hastings | 7 | 9 | .438 |
| Roseneath | 6 | 10 | .375 |
| Colborne | 6 | 10 | .375 |
| Harwood | 4 | 12 | .250 |
| Orland | 1 | 16 | .063 |

Orland's Hard Luck.

Orland is a striking example of a team which contains individual players that are second to none in the league and yet were unable to play well enough to win games. The members of the team are farmer boys and on account of the nature of their occupation were unable to get together for practice between the weekly games scheduled in the league. Belford, Samis, Houlihan and others that could be mentioned are natural ball players, who would strengthen any team to which they belong and Way's work in the box during the season was steady and effective.

The father of the Orland team is W. J. Latimer the well known merchant in that village. He organized the club in 1922 and piloted them to victory in their games with all the teams in the district. He outfitted the players at the start, purchasing all the supplies required and the Orland diamond is on his land.

This year nothing would satisfy these ambitious young players but a place in the Northumberland League. They fought fairly and earnestly every contest in which they took part and won the respect of the fans by their gentlemanly behavior on the field in every town on the circuit. The one team which they defeated was Brighton. They are not discouraged and will be in the league again next year.

Trenton The Leaders.

The two games lost by Trenton, the leaders of the league, were won by Warkworth and Colborne.

The Campbellford team go to Warkworth this afternoon to play the first game in the series to break the tie for second place. Warkworth will be here Friday. The winners of this series will play Trenton for the Clarke cup, the championship trophy.

Brady Injured.

It may be that Brady will be unable to pitch for Campbellford in the play off series and if he is out his loss will weaken the chance of the team to win. In the game with Orland Monday, Brady was hit on his pitching arm by the visiting twirler, Way, and yesterday the arm and hand were so badly swollen and so painful that medical attention was necessary. That arm, which has mowed down so many opposing batters during the season, has had a rugged experience. A few years ago it was pierced by a bullet when Brady's gun was accidntally discharged, during a hunting trip. He was in the hospital for some weeks as a result.

New Club House.

The bowlers have started work on a new club house which will be erected on the west side of theg reen. The building will be 60x16 feet and will be put up on the bank of the canal. There will be a verandah running the length of the building on the side next the green so that spectators can sit in comfort and watch the play.

Members of the club have been at tournaments in Peterboro, Kingston and Belleville this season but all agree that the home green is far ahead of any on which they have played so far.

Keene Girls Ball Team Defeat the Colonials.

KEENE, Aug. 16.—Keene girls ball team defeated the Colonials of Peterboro in a fast game on Tuesday evening by a score of 9-8. The Keene girls are playing good ball and ready to meet the sixth line and Harwood girls at the regatta on Thursday. The line ups follow:

Keene—Kate Shearer, Annie McIntyre, Alice Chapman, Mary Nelson, Irene Comrie, Isabelle Nelson, Jean McIntyre, Fern McCarthy, Vera Nelson, Olive Shearer.

Colonials—J. Bradshaw, M. Todd, D. Goadman, D. Saunders, T. Todd, E. Greenhouse, T. Wade, D. Saunders, H. Plunkett.

LEAFS DIVIDED TWO WITH THE SKEETERS

Skeeters Staked great Rally In the Ninth To Score Winning Run Of First Game.

JERSEY CITY, Aug. 16.—(Canadian Press.)—Jersey City and Toronto divided yesterday's doubleheader, the Skeeters winning the first game 7 to 6, and losing the second, 9 to 2. In the ninth inning of the first game, with Toronto leading by four runs, the Skeeters rallied and with three hits, following a base on balls, with a wild throw sandwiched in by Gonzales, the Skeeters squeezed out three runs and victory. ## OSHAWA VICTORS IN TEN INNINGS GAME

Defeat Leaside By 1-0 In First Home And Home Deciding Clash.

OSHAWA, Aug. 15.—(Special.)—Leaside and Oshawa staged the first of home and home games here this afternoon to decide which would go against the winner of the Peterborough-Belleville clash for the championship of Central Ontario Baseball League and the right to enter the Senior Ontario play-offs. A record mid-week attendance was out to see the two old rivals battle, many coming from outside points, and they were well repaid for the visit, as ten innings of the most exciting baseball were played before Oshawa were declared winners by a score of 1-0. Manager Henderson chose an old Oshawa Town League boy to work on the slab and he turned in a wonderful performance, only allowing 5 hits, issued one walk and struck out six. In the tenth frame, Reg. Fair, the second man up, got on when Hoose dropped his pop fly in front of the plate. Roddick singled, and with brotherly love, Walter Fair drove a Texas Leaguer over second and Brother Reg. trotted over the pan with the winning run. Southpaw Dainty, of Oshawa, also turned in one of his best games, allowing four hits, issued two passes, fanned nine, tightened up in pinches, and had perfect support behind him. The score by innings and line-ups were:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Leaside | .000 000 000 0 | 0 | 4 3 |
| Oshawa | 000 000 000 1 | 1 | 5 1 |

Leaside—Murray, 3b.; Hoose, c.; Curson, c.f.; Jones, l.f.; Mahoney, 2b.; Dillon, 1b.; Maguire, r.f.; Lennon, s.s.; Breckenbridge, p.

Oshawa— Rowden, 2b.; Roddick, l.f.; W. Fair, 3b.; Tyson, c.; Dainty, p.; Belding, r.f.; Morrison, s.s.; Wilson, 1b.; R. Fair, c.f.

Umpires—Collings, Belleville, at the plate; Sullivan, Kingston, on bases.

INVESTIGATE CHARGES

PETROLIA, Ont., Aug. 16. — (Canadian Press).—At a meeting of the Town Council last evening a committee was appointed to investigate a charge that Polic. Chief Ferguson had offered money to a man to burn a barn on the Blind Line, formerly used as a pest house.

PETES MADE IT THREE IN A STRING FROM TRUNKS IN BELLEVILLE

Locals Won First Of The Play Off Games in Belleville Yesterday.— Here On Saturday.

SCORE WAS 3 TO 2.

For the third consecutive time the Petes stepped into Belleville and handed the Grand Trunks a trimming on their own ball tot. The Solomonites landed on the dusky Williams yesterday for three runs in the first inning and though they were held scoreless from then on, these three looked big and were sufficient to win the game by the narrow margin of 3 to 2.

The Petes bunched all their heavy hitting in the first inning but from then on Williams turned in a remarkable game. He had the Petes completely baffled allowing but three scattered hits in the last eight frames and in six sessions only three men faced him. He fanned nine and went through to the last inning without issuing a walk, Heckman drawing a pass on his last trip to the plate.

In spite of the wonderful showing of Williams, Heckman had a slight edge on the game. The local mound artist turned in one of the best games he has had this season. He allowed but three hits in the whole nine innings and the only time he was in any trouble was in the sixth inning when an error behind him started the rally that gave the Trunks two runs. The Bellevillite got a man as far as second with but one out in the eighth but Peeney Mills whiffed and J. K. Williams sent an easy pop fly leaving the ex-Lindsay southpaw stranded at the keystone sack. Heckman fanned eight of his opponents and walked three.

Ansaldo was out of the game his left arm in a sling owing to an injury sustained in the scrimmage with the Oslers on Saturday. His place was taken by Collins who though he did not have very much work to do handled himself very well. Helson had a big day at third base accepting five chances without a slip.

Legon topped the list in batting with a double and a single in four trips to the plate. Swanston banged out a three bagger at an opportune moment sending in two runs.

The game was the best seen on the Belleville diamond this year and was not won until the last man had been retired in the ninth frame. One of the biggest crowds of the season turned out to see the battle and got their full money's worth.

The victory gives Peterboro a decided edge in the play off for the honors of the Big Four League. Belleville will be here on Saturday and if the Petes can pull out with another victory it will clinch matters for them.

First Inning.

Peterboro—Legon started by hitting to left center for two bases. Johnston singled but Legon was held at second. Casey galloped over an acre of ground to get Comolli's fly that looked like a two bagger. Heckman was safe when Brownscombe fell all over his grounder and Legon scored on the play. Helson grounded to second. Ross allowed Swanston's hard hit grounder to go between his legs and the Peterboro back stop ended up at third sending Johnston and Heckman home. Shaughnessey fanned. Three runs, three hits, one error.

Belleville— Ross fanned, Weir grounded to Helson. Brownscombe fanned. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Second Inning.

Peterboro—Wolfe was safe on J. K. Williams' error, but was caught trying to pilfer second. Collins fanned. Legon grounded to second. No runs, no hits, one error.

Belleville—H. Mills sent a fly to Legon. W. Mills singled to center. J. K. Williams flied to Wolfe. Casey flied to Comolli. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Third Inning.

Peterboro—Johnston fanned. Comolli grounded to first. Heckman grounded to short. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Belleville—Hagerman was safe when Legon lost his high fly in the sun and dropped the ball. J. H. Williams fanned. Ross sacrificed Hagerman to second, Heckman to Comolli. Weir drew a walk and Brownscomb grounded to Johnston. No runs, no hits, one error.

Fourth Inning.

Peterboro— Helson sent a fly to short stop. Swanston and Shaughnessey grounded to third. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Belleville—H. Mills flied to Helson. W. Mills drew a walk. J. K. Williams flied to Johnston and Casey fanned. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Fifth Inning.

Peterboro—Wolfe went out on a foul fly to third. Collins grounded to first. Legon singled to left but went out trying to steal second. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Belleville—Hagerman fanned, J. H. Williams flied out to Helson. Ross fanned. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Sixth Inning.

Peterboro—Johnston grounded to short. Comolli and Heckman fanned. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Belleville—Weir was safe on Johnston's error. Brownscomb singled sending Weir to third, and stole second, Helson elected to play the ball to home on W. Mills' grounder and the runners were safe all around. W. Mills grounded to short, Brownscomb scoring on the play. J. K. Williams flied to Legon and Casey fanned. Two runs, one hit, no errors.

Seventh Inning.

Peterboro—Helson singled to center but was forced at second on Swanstons' grounder to J. H. Williams. Shaughnessey fanned. Wolfe sent a fly to short. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Belleville—Hagerman grounded to Johnston. J. H. Williams flied to Legon. Ross singled but Weir flied to Helson. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Eighth Inning.

Peterboro—Collins fanned. Legon grounded to second. Johnston grounded to first. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Belleville—Brownscomb drew a walk and was sacrificed to second by H. Mills. W. Mills fanned and J. K. Williams flied to Collins. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Ninth Inning.

Peterboro—Comolli singled. Heckman walked. Helson and Swanston fanned and Shaughnessey grounded to J. H. Williams. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Belleville—Meagher, batting for Casey, grounded to Heckman. Smith batting for Hagerman put up an easy foul fly to Comolli. J. H. Williams grounded to Heckman. No runs, no hits, no errors.

JUNIORS TO PLAY TOMORROW NIGHT

Lakeviews And Oshawa Will Clash in First Of O. B. A. A. Play Off Games.

The Lakeviews will play Oshawa to-morrow evening at Riverside Park in the first of the play-off games for the Junior championship, and all indications are that the game will be one of the best.

The local Junior City champions have a smooth working team that should go a long way in the race for the O.B.A.A. championship, and the brand of ball which it has been playing is one which deserves every support from the local fans.

To-morrow's game was originally scheduled to be played in Oshawa yesterday, but had to be postponed to allow the Leaside-Oshawa Senior fixture to be played.

As both the Oshawa and Peterborough parks will be occupied with Senior games on Saturday, it was necessary to call this game for Friday.

The return game will be played in Oshawa on Wednesday.

NEW YORK LOST TWO TO THE REDS

Cincinnati Cut into Giants Lead By Taking a Double Header Yesterday.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—(Canadian Press)—Cincinnati cut into New York's lead here yesterday, winning a doubleheader 6 to 3, and 10 to 5. Luque, restored to good standing Tuesday, won his fourth victory of the season from New York. Besides pitching well, Luque hit a home run with Pinelli on base.

The second game was a pitchers' battle between Rixey and Ryan for seven innings, but Ryan was taken out for a pinch hitter, and with the score tied, Cincinnati fell on Jonnard and Barnes for six runs.

McGraw used five pitchers and seventeen players. Duncan collected a home run and five singles in the double-header. Scores:

First game:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Cincinnati | 100320000 | 6 | 11 1 |
| New York | 000100020 | 3 | 9 0 |

RUTH LEADS IN FOUR BASE HITS

New York Lost in Spite of His Heavy Hitting Yesterday.— Cleveland Objected.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 16. —(Canadian Press.)— Running up a lead in the third inning that New York was unable to overcome, St. Louis won yesterday's game, 5 to 3. It was Shocker's first victory of the five games he pitched against the League champions this season. All the visitors' scores were made on home runs. Ruth got his 30th of the season in the eigth inning, driving Witt, who had doubled, across the plate. The four bagger gave Ruth the major league home run lead. In the ninth Ward clouted a circuit drive. Score:

| | | | |

BELLEVILLE HERE NEXT SATURDAY

Victory For the Petes Will Mean The Winning Of The Big Four Section.

The big game with Belleville will be played at Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon. A victory for the Petes will mean the winning of the Big Four League honours, while if Belleville can get a win it will mean a new lease of life for the Trunks, and make a third game necessary.

The game in Belleville yesterday was one of the best seen in the Central League circuit for some time, and with the two teams travelling at top speed to grab the honours, the game on Saturday will be another top notcher.

The Petes have now taken five straight games from the Trunks, three of them right in Belleville, a fact which has been a sad blow to the Lake Shore crew, for in the old rivalry which has existed for years between these two teams, it has been seldom that either team has been able to take two games in a row. The Petes this time are out to smash all records and run the string to six.

The game on Saturday is scheduled for 3 o'clock, and will get under way sharp on time.

Galt Terrier Outfit Won First of Finals.

GUELPH, August 16. Canadian Press. — Galt Terriers, Ontario Senior Amateur Baseball Champions of 1922, got the jump on the Guelph Maple Leafs in the first of the home and home games, to decide the senior inter-county supremacy of 1923 here yesterday afternoon, the Terriers taking the long end of a 3 to 2 count that was always in doubt until the last of the ninth inning.

OUTFIELDER FOR BOSTON.

BOSTON, Aug. 16.—(Canadian Press)—The Boston National League Club announced yesterday that Robert Emmerich, outfielder, now with the Worcester Club of the Eastern League, has been purchased and will join the Boston Club immediately.

The Volley

The chief requisite of a good net player is, of course, a sharp eye. There are other essentials, however, such as a proper plan, correct grip and most of all, the nerve to stand up close.

The matter of grip has been dealt with before. For the volley it is essentially the same except that the grip may be shortened a bit and the weight of the racquet should always be carried in the left hand, when not actually in use. As the ball approaches the racquet grip very tightly and control the direction and speed with the wrist and forearm. It is easier to volley at the net on the backhand and most players manoeuvre to get the ball in that side.

When standing at the net waiting for the ball, have a definite plan as to what you will do with the ball when you get it. A badly placed volley is the worst kind of a "set-up" for your opponent. Also a short volley unless well out of reach is disastrous ,as any ball that pitches inside the service line while you are inside yours, is a lost point unless your opponent makes an error. Volleys should therefore be angled sharply off the sides or played fast to the back line, preferably the corners. A good plan is to observe the direction in which your opponent is going and then play the ball behind him.

Many players go up to the net, miss a few fast ones or foozle an easy one or two and decide they cannot play net. This is a great mistake, as volleying like everything else requires practice and confidence, which is a great factor, comes only with play. It is a mistake to abandon this position because you are passed a few times. By maintaining your position you will often draw shots just because you are an obvious target.

When playing the net in doubles, play close if your partner gets good length on service. If service pitches short play back toward the service line unless your eyes are exceptionally sharp. Study the set of your opponents feet and if they do not fortell his intentions accurately, watch his eyes. Just before striking the ball he will look in the direction he intends to hit it. This is worth at least a step. It is easier for most people to go to the left than to the right, which makes it good policy to stand a little to the right of an expected shot.

The stop volley is made by easing back the racquet at the moment of impact very much in the same manner as a ball is caught in the hand. A very small drawing motion in any direction will cause a ball so played to fall very dead.

The deep volley is a chancy shot and should only be used when caught out of position. It is then necessary to make it the best way you can and trust to luck.

The next article will be a series of notes on general topics.

A CLOSE FINISH.

ELMIRA, N.Y., Aug. 16.—(Canadian Press)—Gene Sarazen, former nation open champion, and Bobby Cruikshank, runner-up to Bobby Jones in this year's open tournament, narrowly escaped defeat on the local links yesterday afternoon at the fessional, and Fred F. Jewett, amahands of Tom Bonnard, local proteur record holder of the club.

The visiting stars won on the last two holes, finishing two up.

Puzzling Plays

THE PLAY

Is it possible to have two different rulings on plays that appear identical? This question is raised by the following conditions:

There is a runner on first base. The pitcher, while standing perhaps a foot in front of the rubber, delivers the ball to the batsman, who does not offer at it. What is the ruling?

In the other case the bases are empty when the pitcher, while standing a foot in front of the rubber delivers the ball to the batter. He does not offer at it. What is the proper ruling?

THE INTERPRETATION

If, with a runner on first, the pitcher delivers the ball to the batsman while in front of the rubber, and the batsman does not offer at the ball, that act by the pitcher constitutes a balk.

The runner on first should advance to second. The pitch has no bearing on the batsman.

If, with the bases empty, the pitcher delivers the ball to the batsman while in front of the rubber, and the batter does not offer at it such a pitch is called a "ball" whether it goes over the plate or not.

Thus, with a runner on the bases the act is a balk; with the bases empty it is a ball; provided the batter does not offer at the pitch.

SPORT GOSSIP

Lee Fohl's managerial career in the American League has moved with peculiar twists and turns. As head of the Cleveland Americans he gathered a crack outfit, and just when the time came for him to reap the benefits of his building he was dropped from the payroll. Tris Speaker, succeeding Fohl, took the club that Fohl collected and won a league championship and world title. Then, with the same outfit, he came within two games of repeating in the pennant race of the following year.

Going to St. Louis the discredited Fohl built another machine and finished third in 1911. Last season he came within one game of winning the pennant. That he did not win was certainly not the fault of Fohl. Sisler was knocked out in the series that decided the pennant and Sisler's injury can be blamed for the Browns' loss. Even then with any sort of baseball break, Fohl would have come through.

This season, without Sisler, Fohl took the Browns into third place, where, at the start of the season, no one gave St. Louis a chance of being in the first division at any time.

Still, Fohl is dropped. As manager of the Boston Red Sox (and he undoubtedly will lead that team next season) he gets a chance to start anew.

Arthur Duffey, one time a great sprinter and now an authority on track and field events, calls attention to the fact that Nurmi. Finland's great mile runner who covered the distance in 4.13 4-5 on one occasion, could not run a half-mile faster than 2.04. John Paul Jones, who ran the mile in 4.14 2-5, stepped a half-mile in 1.53. Joie Ray, Norman Taber and other great milers, could step the half-mile under 1.57. The conclusion is that Nurmi is not a speedy runner, rather one who has the stamina and endurance to keep an even pace.

Three British Stars Still In The Running

FOREST HILLS, N.Y., Aug. 16.—(Canadian Press). — Five United States and three British stars remained in the running for the National Women's Singles Championship yesterday when the third round was completed on the turf courts of the West Side Tennis Club. Competition for the national double a title was narrowed down to one British and seven United States pairs at the end of the second round.

Misfortune struck the ranks of the British invaders when the illness of Mrs. Geraldine Beamish obliged her to default to Miss Helen Hooker, of Greenwich, Conn., in the singles, and also contributed later to her defeat in the doubles, partnered with Mrs. R. C. Clayton by two youthful United States players, Miss Ceres Baker of Orange, N.J., and Miss Lillian Scharman of New York.

Will Attempt To Break Channel Record.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 16.—(Canadian Press)—An effort to break all records for swimming the English Channel will be made shortly by a Cleveland swimmer, Carbis A. Walker, who two weeks ago swam across Lake Erie from Point Pelee Light, Canada, to Lorain, Ohio a distance of approximately 32 miles in 20 hours and 15 minutes.

Walker has obtained passports here and left Washington Tuesday night to have them approved. He expects to sail from New York on Saturday.

On arriving at Dover he will go into training for a week, it is announced.

This attempt is being financed by a group of Cleveland business men.

OPENER A DRAW

GLASGOW, Aug. 16.—(Canadian Press Cable) — Scotland's 1923-1924 association football season was ushered in yesterday afternoon when Clyde entertained the Airdrieonians on their ground at Shawfield Park before a big attendance. An excellent opening game was witnessed and resulted in a draw:

Clyde 1 goal; Airdrieonians 1 goal.

BANTAM CONTEST TO THE CURLERS

With Sturgeon Pitching, Kiwanis Fail to Score.

Curlers gathered six runs and scored a shut out against Kiwanis in a Bantam game last evening. Sturgeon twirled a clever game for the winners and fanned thirteen. Second baseman Martin of the Curlers had a double play unassisted and clouted out a three basehit.

Lewis' support wobbled in the second and third when Curlers scored all their runs. The teams:—

Curlers—Walton, ss ;Elcombe, 1b; Sturgeon, p; Allen, cf; McFadden, rf; McGee, c; Martin 2b; Doughty, p, 3b; Freeman, lf.

Kiwanis— McDuffy, ss; Jennings, 3b; Nixon, cf; Lewis, p; Hutchison, 1b; Spencer c; Lucas lf; Dick, 2b; Cowan rf.

By innings:—

BASEBALL NEWS

Hillcrests and Maple Leafs will replay their tie score game of a week ago at Riverside Park, after the Belleville-Peterobrough contest on Saturday afternoon.

Sacred Heart and Curlers meet again this evening at King Edward School grounds to open the second half of the Midget series. The game will start at six o'clock.

Bantam League players are pulling hard for the Lakeviews to defeat Oshawa in the Junior O.B.A.A. semi-final game here to-morrow evening. As many of the youngsters wish to see the contest, the Belmont-Rotary game scheduled for Friday evening has been postponed to next Monday at King Edward School grounds.

ANOTHER FOR FIRPO.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—(Canadian Press)—Luis Angel Firpo, Challenger for the heavyweight boxing title, left last night for Indianapolis to meet Joe Downey in a 10-round contest Friday night.

LUCAN WON GAME

GODERICH, Ont., Aug. 16.—(Canadian Press).—In the second game of the home and home games to decide the winner of the District No. 4 of the North Wellington League, the Lucan Irish nine defeated the local team to-night, 10 2. A sudden death game is now necessary. Oshawa victors

PLAYERS DISCUSS PROTEST.

Sacred Heart Team has protested the game last night with the Maple Leafs, and a meeting has been called for to-morrow night in Lou Lebarr's store to discuss the protest. The meeting will be at 9 p.m. and all the members of the protest committee should be present.

ST. JAMES' AUXILIARY HAD SOCIAL EVENING

(Contributed.)—

One of the most enjoyable meetings of the St. James' Auxiliary was held at the home of Mrs. E. J. Wilgar, 105 Lock street, on Tuesday evening, with Mrs. J. N. Welbourn presiding. Yet, withal, the meeting was tinged with sadness, as our beloved associate, Mrs. Wagar, is soon removing to Toronto, in order that her young daughter might continue her studies at the University.

The Auxiliary members were out in full force, and their number was augmented by the presence of the Circle members and several life membrs gave their names to be added to the roll.

Rev. J. D. Richardson, M.A., who has recently taken the pastorate of St. James', gave a brief address, and a cordial welcome was extended to him and Mrs. Richardson by the president and members of the society.

During the meeting Miss May Ritchie and Mrs. B. Cutmore sang very acceptably, and Miss Jeane Hamilton gave a reading. A pleasant feature of the gathering was the presentation of "Circle life membership certificates" to the Misses Marion and Constance Wagar and Miss Jeane Hamilton. Mrs. J. K. Moore, district organizer, made the presentation,, speaking of the loss the society would sustain, in losing such efficient workers from Auxiliary and Circle, as Mrs. Wagar and her two daughters.

After the usual routine of the meeting, a social hour was enjoyed. A contest ,prepared by the "Circle," gave scope for the keen wits of the members, Mrs. Cutmore and Miss Hamilton obtaining the highest count.

After refreshments were served, the members dispersed, thanking the hostess for extending the hospitality of her home.

GROWTH FISHING CLUB AT BURLEIGH FALLS

A recent visitor to Burleigh Falls Sanitary Inspector A' G. Metheral, gives some interesting facts about the growth of the Burleigh Falls Fishing Club which is now in its third years tenancy of the 500 square feet the manager's own near Mr. Metheral's cottage. Messrs. Morgan and Wagner, both of Cleveland, organized the Club three years ago, and they are now instrumental in bringing hundreds of Americans across the line during the season. There were 72 American members registered at the Club last week.

Improvements are being made this year in the erection of two buildings, one of which houses a dance hall and dining room. Two Chinese chefs are employed, and at present upwards of twenty tents are in use by visitors. The majority of the visitors come by automobile, and add considerably to the number of tourists through this district.

Today's Quotations and Opinions and Reviews of the Markets.

New York, Aug. 16. (Special.) — No developments occurred overnight to encourage the resumption of bear operations, cables to the effect that danger of revolution in Germany had passed, also the anthracite strikes and the schedule for September had probably been favored, assertion of Secretary Smoot that the federal expenses would be cut $200,000,000 next year, and the prospects of the early recognition of Mexico were favorable factors offsetting further cuts in gasoline prices, and another weekly increase in crude oil production. Industrials gained additional ground in the early dealings. United States rubber made a new high on the movement at 93 3-8, Union Pac. and Southern Pacific reached their best prices on the current recovery. Vigorous continuance of the improving tendency among the industrials took place, in the first hour, shorts who had put additional lines in the first stages of the recovery showed signs of uneasiness, and impetus was given the rally by considerable short covering.

Can. went into new high ground on the movement at 93 3-4; ice at 94 3-4 and Baldwin at 118 3-4; Lima Loco., ex-dividend advanced to 63¼ up 1 3-4; notwithstanding the activity of Baldwin and American Locomotive not a share of Lima was dealt in Wednesday; it is estimated that Lima will earn close to $20 a share this year; its plants are operating and orders on the books assure activity well into next year. Announcement that the United States Steel was operating 90 per cent. and Independents 80 per cent. bears out the contention that steel will benefit in the long run through acceptance of future business on a non-premium basis. Independents made more money on their capitalization in the first half because they catered to the premium business.

IN THE BEST OF HEALTH DELORME AWAITS TRIAL

MONTREAL, August 16. Canadian Press. — Pending the re-opening of the Delorme murder trial with a new judge and a fresh jury, the accused man, Rev. Adelarde Delorme, is apparently taking in a philosophical mood his enforced retirement at Bordeaux jail.

An inquiry at the jail this morning elicited the information that the prisoner is in the best of health, smart, well-groomed as usual, eats well, sleeps well, reads and seems to find means of keeping himself from wearying.

"He never leaves his cell where he is treated as any other prisoner in like circumstances would be treated," declared Governor N. Segun, when questioned regarding the prisoner this morning.

MAY LICENSE EVERY BARBER

City Members of Confederation Hope This Will Be Done in General Interests.

Some of the city barbers interviewed to-day regarding the proposition of the Barbers' Confederation of Ontario to have every barber in the Province licensed expressed the hope that this would be done.

"A licensing law would be in the interests, not only of the barbers but of the public," Fred Sutcliffe said. "Some barbers only know enough to use the clippers and while they won't make a botch of the top hair they are afraid to cut it. It would be a good thing if apprenticeships to the barbering trade were compulsory."

It is expected that if this law were passed it would effect the graduates of barber schools. Most of these institutions turn out a graduate in six weeks, although old timers in trade maintain that a man cannot learn to lather properly in six months.

"A man can't learn to cut hair properly in less than a year," a local barber said. "He may be able to trim around the sides, but when it comes to thinning out the top he is lost."

Such a law as is sought would practically close the schools and compel the young men to learn their trade as apprentices as some are doing in the city at present.

PRISONERS PLAN A JAIL DELIVERY

Preparations Discovered Just in Time—Bars of Cell Sawn Through.

MILTON, August 16. Canadian Press. — Receiving a tip that William Brown, who is awaiting trial on a robbery charge, and two other prisoners, were preparing for a general escape from the jail here. Chief of Police Kerr investigated and discovered several bars sawn through and temporarily replaced with the aid of shoe blacking.

There was also a hole sawn in the ceiling and other evidences of preparations for escape, including heavy iron bars which apparently the prisoners intended to use as weapons.

It is believed that the discovery was made just in time to prevent a general jail delivery.

APPEAL DISMISSED

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 16. —An eight years' battle to break a will involving part possession of the rich Cornwall iron ore banks was lost when the appeal by Dr. Guido Henchel, of Freeburg, Germany, from the appraisement of the estate of Presalie Parent Coleman of Paris, widow of Robert Coleman, was dismissed.

This means that the effort of a strongly Patriotic French woman to punish her foster son for enlisting as a surgeon in the German army is successful long after her death. Except for $5,000 the son is reported to have accepted recently in New York, he has lost the whole of his mother's $1,000,000 interest in the iron mine.

The son's action, however, profited him in the long run, for his German father, the late Prince Guido Henchel von Donnersmarck, of Berlin, an industrial leader, left him his estate valued at as high as $100,000,000.

The estate now goes to those to whom Mrs. Coleman, by her codicil, sought to leave it. One is J. Coleman Drayton, New York and Philadelphia, who was divorced several years ago from a daughter of William Astor. Another is Ronald George de Reuter of Paris, 20 year-old son of the late Baron George de Reutre. The rest of the estate goes to the heirs of Mrs. Coleman's friend, Camille Besson.

Other property, already lost to Dr. Henchel by action of the French courts is said to run the value of the estate into several millions.

Mrs. Coleman adopted Dr. Guido Tauren, also known as Henchel, late in her life, after grieving deeply over the loss of her husband and her two sons. For several years they were together, mutually loved as mother and son. Then the World War started, and the woman's anger at her son's enlistment in the German army swept away her love for him and left bitterness in its place.

To the will, which she had already drawn, in which she left everything to Henchel, she added a codicil disinheriting him. Part of her estate was in France part in Spain and the rest the ore deposits at Lebanon. This was approximately a one-sixth share in the ore banks.

The French courts upheld the codicil's legality. The son then carried his fight to this country. The aid of many prominent Pennsylvania lawyers was enlisted.

Dr. Henchel's suit was brought against the Pennsylvania Company for Insurance on Lives and Granting Annuities of Philadelphia.

STONEY LAKE NEWS EVENTS

STONEY LAKE, Aug. 16.—The committee in charge of the Gala Week at Stoney Lake arranged for an illuminated flotilla for Friday night, August 10th. The committee made arrangements for giving of prizes for the best decorations in launches, skiffs and canoes and it was up to the cottagers and weather man to do the rest and so well did both fulfill their parts and co-operate with the committee that the result was one of the big nights on Stoney Lake. The night was starry and lent itself well as a background for the parade which was a very large one with many beautifully decorated boats. It was the prettiest event ever held on Stoney Lake, according to old inhabitants, who have seen many festal days and nights. The scene resembled the Venice of our dreams and of which we all delight to read and hear, and long to see. The judges had great difficulty in deciding on the best boats, as there were so many beautiful and original decorations. One launch, containing some of the musical talent of Stoney Lake, decorated with flags and greens and a stately Britannia in the prow, won loud applause as it passed the judges stand, the occupants singing "Rule Britannia, Britannia rules the waves."

A Unique Event

"Come and have a cup of tea," was the good old-fashioned message that gathered some sixty happy people of Stoney Lake at "Emerald Isle," on Friday afternoon, Aug. 10th. Nobody knew till after they arrived that it was the wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. McCarthy. Among those present were, the Hendersons of "Karwatha Lodge," Mrs. Knox, Mrs Sloan, the Sherrie's of "Kilkore," the Peck's of "Belle Chasse," the Knapman's of "Forest Home," the Ringel's, Bailey's, Coles, Hall's, Bell's, Harstone's, Wilson's, Choate's, Crawford's, Gouinlock's, Amy and Mairs, Mrs. J. M. Wilson of Rochester, and Mrs. J. S. Knapman of Toronto, poured tea and the wedding cake dated 1892-1923 was cut. The bride and groom were happy in the midst of their circle of friends, and everyone joined in wishing them many more such anniversaries.

A very delightful miniature regatta was held in the Mackenzie Bay on Friday afternoon, under the direction of Messrs. H. C. Wotherspoon and George Mackenzie. The regatta was informal and impromptu, the participants being the Mackenzies of "Gairloch" and "Lochend," the Pettits of "Point o' Rocks," the Griers of "Woodonge," the Hedleys of the clergy cottage, the Meyers of Kawana, the Buells of "The Shack," and the Wotherspoons. Lieut. K. A. Mackenzie and E. C. Cumberland assisted in judging the events which were all hotly contested. The prizes were presented at the close of the regatta and were unique rather than valuable and caused very great merriment which reached its height when the challenge cup for points was presented to Norton Buell. This cup is not on exhibition but is well worth winning according to Mr. Buell's own statement.

A full list of the events is not at present available.

The events of the coming week are the Juniper regatta and dance on Monday. The trip to Chemong on Thursday to attend the regatta there, and at night on August 16, the barn dance at Kawartha Park.

On Sunday morning Rev. Arthur Hale of Toronto, will take charge of the services and there will be several soloists which include such popular singers as Mrs. J. N. Renwick, soprano Miss Gwendolen Hale, contralto, and R. L. Crawford, baritone.

Flying.

Airplane travel is getting to be a reasonably safe venture, according to the viewpoint of some leading insurance officials. Frederick L. Allen says a professional aviator still is regarded as an extra-hazardous risk, but a policy holder no longer jeopardizes his protection by traveling over an established air route in an airplane piloted by a competent professional. As a matter of fact, the average person is safer in an airplane than in a canoe or on a high, slanted ladder.

FAREWELL PICNIC AND GIFT TO MRS. MESLEY

A very pleasant time was spent in Jackson Park on Wednesday afternoon, when the members of Queen Alexander Circle A. O. F., gave a farewell picnic to Companion Mrs. Mesley, who is leaving to reside in Vancouver.

After tea Mrs. Mesley was presented with a silver cake plate and an address, read by Mrs. Wm. Stevens. Mrs. G. Record made the presentation.

Mrs. Mesley, though taken by surprise, thanked the members in a few well chosen words.

WILL CLOSE THE ROAD THROUGH NICHOLLS OVAL

The roadway through Nicholl's Oval will be closed during the time the Hunter street Bridge is being paved, the Board of Directors of the Park announces.

This is necessitated by the fact that traffic is being diverted through the park and the soft roadway cut up. It is expected that "no traffic" sign will be up for two weeks.

THE ROUND TRIP WAS BIG SUCCESS

Steamer Stoney Lake Carried Another Good Passenger List on Lindsay Trip.

On Tuesday, the steamer "Stoney Lake" made her third trip of this season to Lindsay, the passengers returning by rail in the evening. From Lakefield on to Bobcaygeon, a shower of rain formed an interlude in otherwise fine weather. Meals were served on board, as usual. The orchestra was missing, owing to the company not having time to engage a new group of musicians to fill the places of the former players, whose jazz music had been made the cause of numerous unfavorable comments by passengers of the previous day. Among those on board who filled the gap voluntarily were Messrs. R. J. Devey and Cyril Devey and the Misses Lucille and Margaret Doris.

Another of these round trips will be made on Monday, August 27th.

FIRE PROTECTION IS A MATTER OF CONCERN

East City residents are apprehensive of fire during the period that Hunter street bridge will be impassible. Some of them, in talking the matter over last night expressed the opinion that something should be done to protect them in the event of a serious fire breaking out. They pointed out that the run around by Smith street bridge would take considerable time and might result in serious damage being done.

One suggestion put forward was that the Fire Department should place the new hose wagon, with some chemicals, in a barn or other building on the East City side of the river and leave three or four men there. In case of an outbreak of fire a great deal could be done by this apparatus while awaiting the hose wagon. The men, it was suggested, could be billeted.

WEDDING BELLS

HALL—DAVIS.

A quiet wedding was solemnised by Rev. F. J. Maxwell, in Oshawa, on 15th August, at 1 p.m. when Myrtle E. daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Davis of Peterborough, and George S. Hall, of Oshawa, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony.

The bride was becomingly attired in light blue satin with silver trimmings, and hat to match. She was accompanied by her friend, Miss Grace Flindall, of Peterborough, who also wore light blue satin, with hat to match.

Mr. and Mrs. Hall will make their future home at Oshawa.

OBITUARY

MRS. MARY SOPHIA KING.

The death took place in St. Joseph's Hospital this morning of an old and highly respected citizen of Peterborough in the person of Mary Sophia Morris, widow of the late Dr. Richard King, in her 68th year.

Mrs. King was born in Delaware, Ontario, the daughter of the late William Morris, M. D., and Mrs. Morris. She came to Peterborough in 1870 with her husband, who practiced in Bailieboro from 1867 until he entered practice here.

The deceased was a member of the Church of England.

There are left to mourn her loss, two sons, Dr. D. C. King of this city and Dr. R. L. King, Prince Albert, Sask. Two sisters also survive, Mrs. T. C. Quinn of Caro, Michigan and Mrs. L. J. Ladd, Santa Barbara, California

The funeral will take place privtely on Saturday at 3 p.m. from the residence of her son, Dr. D. C. King, 528 Gilmour Street.

He served in France throughout the war and was at Camp Borden a few months instructing before proceeding to Japan to do similar duty. He was a son of Dr. John and a grandson of Judge Waddington, of Burnly Lane. He had one brother killed at Gallipoli, and one sister Mrs. A. P. Miller.

HELD A RECEPTION FOR NEW MINISTER

Rev. J. D. and Mrs. Richardson Were the Guests of Honor.

A reception was held last evening by the congregation of St. James' Methodist church for their new minister Rev. J. D. Richardson, M.A., and family. The reception was held in the lecture hall of the church, which was beautifully decorated with gladioli for the occasion. Receiving with Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Richardson were Mr. and Mrs. W. Rose and Mrs. Wilson, president of the Ladies Aid. After the formality of introduction Mr. J. V. Fife took the chair and introduced a short programme. After prayer by Rev. Mr. Spence, the chairman emphasized the object of the gathering, which was to get better acquainted with their pastor and his family. After a chorus by little girls of the primary an address was given by Rev. Mr. Manning, who emphasized the duty of the congregation towards their pastor in giving him their cordial and sympathetic co-operation in all his work. The chairman then called on Rev. Mr. Richardson, who in a brief address thanked those who with kindly thoughtfulness had planned this meeting. He spoke of the splendid opportunity which St. James church presented, and asked for the cordial co-operation of all in taking up the task of pastorate in their midst.

A pleasant social hour, during which a dainty lunch of ice cream and cake was served, brought to a close a very interesting and enjoyable event, all joining in singing "Blest be the tie that binds" and the benediction being pronounced by Rev. Mr. Buckler.

WELCOME VISITORS AT REBEKAH LODGE MEET

Welcome visitors at the last regular meeting of the Golden Link Rebekah Lodge No. 1 were Mr. Norman Clements of Windsor, Grand Patriarch of the Grand Encampment, I.O.O.F. with his wife, Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Jackson, Charter members from Windsor, and Mr. and Mrs. Muir of Toronto.

Mrs. Clements was presented by the local lodge with a gold Eversharp pencil and Mrs. Clements with a bouquet of flowers, as tokens of appreciation of their visit. Short addresses were given by the visitors and by Mrs. W. Hartley, district deputy president. A social hour, with service of dainty refreshments, brought the evening to a close.

THE COAL MINERS STILL CONFERRING.

It Will be Some Time Before the Situation is Cleaned Up.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—(Canadian Press).— Miners Union officials and representatives of Anthracite Coal Operators of United States went into conference again to-day with United States Coal Commission, equipped with provisional agreement looking to continuation of anthracite coal mining after September first. There were still obstacles to be overcome, however, before assurances of averting another interruption in anthracite production appeared very early in course of discussion.

John L. Lewis, as president of United Mine Workers, notified commission that Union was prepared to accept operators agreement made last night to abandon "check off" system entirely, whether for collection of items of indebtedness held against miners by their employers, or for collection of union dues.

Funeral Tomorrow

To-morrow, the funeral of Elizabeth Breigel, four-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Breigel, will take place from the residence of her grandfather, Mr. M. Mowry, 588 Charlotte street, with service at half past two o'clock, conducted by Rev. J. R. Webb, of Kitchener, former pastor of Murray street Baptist church.

MAY ELEVATE MUSSOLINI TO THE PEERAGE

Italian Court Circles Report That Head of Fascisti is Shortly to Be Created Duke.

TITLE HEREDITARY

ROME, Aug. 17—(United Press) Benito Mussolini is to be created a duke, with the hereditary title of "Duke of Mussolini," according to reports in court circles.

The elevation of the fiery editor-premier to the Italian peerage will take place in October, it is said. King Victor Emmanuel will bestow the honor at the Quirinal on the anniversary of the "Black Shirt" march on Rome, which Mussolini led. In the event of his being granted the title it will become extinct with his death.

Was a Poor Boy

Mussolini is married, although the fact is not generally known; his wife has been a chronic invalid for years however. There are no children. Mussolini was born near Milan his parents being poor. As a boy he was forced to work at an early age to obtain money for his education. Visiting Switzerland in search of employment he was arrested for vagrancy at Lausanne, where later he was to arrive in splendor to attend the Lausanne Conference.

The sufferings of these early years turned him against the order of things and he became known as an active and violent Socialist. With the opening of the world war, he enlisted as a private, and served in non-commissioned ranks at the front, during this period he switched to a reactionary view point and on leaving service began to build up the Fascisti movement the organ of which was his newspaper, the Popolo D'Italia, of Milan. Two years Fascistism swept Italy culminating in the march on Rome, which resulted in his being made premier.

ROYAL ARTHUR MASONS ENTERTAIN OLD FOLKS

The old folks of the Protestant home were treated to an automobile ride by members of Royal Arthur Masonic Lodge, yesterday afternoon. Leaving town at 2 o'clock, the party reached South Beach, Clear Lake, at 3 o'clock, and joined the Royal Arthur Excursionists who had arrived at this lovely spot earlier in the day, and by whom the old people were entertained at a dainty supper at Brooks' Hotel.

Returning, the mason's elderly guests were driven home, at 7.30, by detour routes, thus acceptably prolonging what had been for them an outing of extreme pleasure.

CHARLES POGUE MAKES VISIT TO PETERBORO

Former Resident Known as a Winner of Dog Races.

Charles Pogue, who was born and brought up in Peterborough, is on his first visit here in fourteen years. He has been in business in Lindsay, Fenelon Falls, Toronto, and is now located in Rochester, N. Y.

Mr. Pogue was well known as the owner of "Ring," the dog which he drove on the streets and in races which were popular in Peterborough at that time. Ring served overseas as mascot with one of the Peterborough Battalions.

As with other recent visitors, Hunter Street bridge impressed Mr. Pogue as one of the greatest improvements made in the city. Besides its utility in linking East and West Peterborough, he says, it is as fine a piece of architecture as he has seen in his travels.

A SPECIAL MEETING OF THE EXECUTIVE OFFICERS OF THE PETERBORO BRANCH OF THE G.W.V.A. WILL BE HELD TO-MORROW EVENING AT 7.30 P.M. IN THE G.W.V.A. HALL. EVERY MEMBER IS ASKED TO BE PRESENT AS BUSINESS OF IMPORTANCE IS TO BE TRANSACTED. 1d40

Active Steps For Bridge to Replace One at Chemong

The Chemong Bridge that is now costing an abnormal amount for maintenance, in the opinion of E. Corkery the Reeve Ennismore, should be replaced with a fill for the greater part of the distance and the balance with a substantial structure. With that object in view Mr. Corkery has succeeded in getting permission from the County Council and Highway Department to have sounding and measurements in order to determine the most feasible place to establish such bridge where the shortest, where there is least depth of water and mud and where the most convenient to material for such fill.

During the first half of this week Mr. Corkery, the County Engineer and the Highway Enineer have taken the necessary soundings, etc., and in a few days a report together with an estimate of the cost will be furnished Mr. Corkery by the engineers.

Conditions bid fair for such undertaking and no douth the travelling public will be gratified to ascertain that a move has been made in the right direction.

WHEN AUTOISTS PROVE NUISANCE

Impede Local Fire Brigade in Duties by Running Ahead of Fire Apparatus

A fire alarm from the C. G. E. at 8.35 last night, which had no serious results, demonstrated fully the nuisance of motorists and cyclists following, and in some cases running ahead of, the fire apparatus.

Scores of cyclists and dozens of cars swept out of side streets in the wake of the ladder wagon and several accidents were narrowly averted. Spectators gathered around the gate of the C. G. E. plant and had to be cleared away to admit the chief's own car.

It has been found necessary in most cities to provide a penaltye for this practice of following and obstructing the firemen in discharge of their duty, and similar protection will be given in Peterborough in accordance with new regulations introduced by Chief Newhall who anticipates that a little checking up on those who persist in racing the fire apparatus will put an end to the dangerous practice.

A NEW BUILDING FOR THE DELAVAL

Mr. T. C. Ephgrave Secures Contract for $20,000 Structure.

The contract has been let by the DeLaval Dairy Supply company for the erection of a new tinning and pickling room, to cost in the neighborhood of twenty-thousand dollars Mr. T. C. Ephgrave was the successful contractor and will commence work on the building at once. It will be a brick structure 42 by 114 and will include a brick smokestack.

ATTORNEY GENERAL TO APPEAL BETTING CASE

TORONTO, Aug. 17.—(Canadian Press)— On instructions of Premier Ferguson and Attorney General Nickle, officers of Attorney Generals Department to-day made arrangements to bring Lichtman betting case before Ontario Court of Appeal, to test the legality of Ontario Betting Information Act which yesterday was declared by Judge Denton to be ultra vires of Ontario legislature. This court convenes on September 17 and intention is to have issue brought before it immediately. On judgement of court of appeal, will depend whether question will be taken on to Privy Council, and whether further legislation along this line will be submitted to Ontario Legislature at its next session.

RENEW MINERS' WAGE PARLEY NEXT MONDAY

Agreement Was Reached at Conference Today Between Diggers and Anthracite Operators.

PUBLIC ALARMED

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—(Canadian Press).—Miners and anthracite coal operators meeting to-day in joint conference at the behest of United States Coal Commission, reached an agreement to-day to renew wage contract negotiations at Atlantic City next Monday.

A Joint Conference

At behest of United States Coal Committee, committees representing miners and operators went into final session to prevent a strike in hard coal fields of the United States, September first. The joint conference met after the commission had called before it, John L. Lewis, president of United Mine Workers of America, and S. D. Warring, chairman of General Policy Committee, of Anthracite Operators, and gave them a letter demanding a complete answer from both parties as to what each would do to prevent suspension of operations. The joint conference is scheduled to report to the committee by 8 p.m. The commission in its letter asserted that public was becoming alarmed at the prospect of another coal shortage, and declared it was imperative that uncertainty be quickly removed.

Could Be Averted

John L. Lewis, president of United Mine Workers of America to-day declared that an anthracite strike September first, still could be averted if operators would abandon the check off and enter a general conference called by United States Coal Commission. Mr. Lewis added that there was still plenty of time in which to reach a new wage agreement before August 31, if operators felt so inclined.

ENNISMORE SOCIAL SUCCESSFUL EVENT

Between Eight and Nine Hundred People Enjoyed Happy Time.

With splendid weather conditions and plenty of patronage from the surrounding district and the city, the Ennismore Social, held yesterday afternoon and evening, was a very successful event. Between eight and nine hundred people attended the affair, the majority going out for supper. Various refreshment booths and sales, centers of fun and amusement, and a splendid fowl supper, with home-made delicacies of all descriptions, formed the usual programme which kept the crowd interested during the late afternoon and evening.

Dainty Supper

The supper, served in the parish hall, at long tables garnished with flowers, was in charge of a committee, composed of the following ladies; Mesdames R. Hickson, Wm. Young Jas. Killen, M. Doran, D. Crough, Senior, and Mrs. Bruce McNeirney, (convenor).

The gaily decorated booths were ornamented with crepe paper fancies. At the lottery booth, where numerous pretty and useful things were on view, Miss Lillian Crough was in charge, Messrs. T. Deforge and G. McFadden assisting with the sale in the evening.

Ice cream and soft drinks were sold at two booths, supervised respectively by Miss Nellie Killen and Messrs. P. Calvin and W. F. Cavanagh.

The fish pond was managed by Miss Margaret McGuire, Messrs. F. Crowley, H. Flood, and V. Murphy had the amusement stand and Mr. R. Brady officiated at a ball throwing event in his invaluable capacity of target. Messrs. D. Crough and Jos. McGuire had charge of afiairs at this booth.

MISS TAYLOR RECIPIENT OF MANY USEFUL GIFTS

Friday evening last about thirty-five friends and associates of Miss Margaret Taylor gathered at the home of the Misses Wilson, McGill steet, where Miss Taylor was the recipient of some very pretty and useful articles in view of her coming marriage to Mr. Stanley Black, which takes place in August. A very enjoyable evening was spent by all.

Refreshments, games and dancing were the order of the evening.

ARE PREDICTING STRESEMANN'S ASSASSINATION

Comunists and Extreme Nationalists Continue Their Attacks on the Chancellor of Germany

FOOD MAIN ISSUE

LONDON, Aug. 17. — Special. — Communists and the extreme Nationalists continued their attacks on Chancellor Stresemann to-day, predicting the same fate for him that befell the assassinated leaders, Mathias Erzeberger and Walther Rathenau, according to a Central News despatch from Berlin.

Pan-Germans accused the new Chancellors of friendliness towards France, the correspondent said and did not hesitate to foretell his murder.

The Nationalist Deutsche Zeitung has been suspended for three days for attacking the government. These reports were received in London with considerable alarm, and taken to indicate the possible beginning of a strong opposition to the Stresemann regime just as light had begun to appear in the clouds of German trouble.

They followed despatches last night saying a rumor had been circulated throughout Germany declaring the Chancellor had been assassinated.

This rumor presumably was circulated by extremists who hoped that it would react in disturbances to their advantage. The rumor was denied immediately it reached London.

SMUTS INTERESTED.

Premier Smuts of the Union of South Africa, may raise the question of the legality of Franco-Belgium occupation of the Ruhr, of the assembly of London, to be held in Geneva next month, it was reported here to-day.

SAY POLITICS STABLE.

A despatch from Berlin says that the political situation continued stable to-day, despite the efforts of the enemies of the new Cabinet to cause trouble by dissemination of a rumour that Chancellor Stresemann had been assassinated.

The government turned its attention to the critical food situation, which seemed the chief obstacle to the restoration of internal order.

The Braunsschweig food demonstrators intimated the local government and forced the inauguration of a food control commission of 30 workers.

The government already had pledged itself to seize food on its own account if stocks were not obtainable otherwise, but the demonstrators insisted on the creation of the commission.

It also was understood the governments of Thuringia and Saxony might seize food unless the Central Government consented to aid their food administrations.

Thuringia mountain resorts were advising foreigners to leave within three days on account of the food shortage and some of the hotels had posted placards reading "We will not feed foreigners."

In the Ruhr, despatches said, labor officials threatened a strike because of the food shortage and the unsatisfactory conditions.

Meantime the French repressive measures in the Ruhr had caused renewed indignation.

Despatches from Dusseldorf announced that the French had decided that the frontier between occupied and unoccupied Germany would continue closed until Aug. 31.

The French reply to the British reparations note will be sent this evening to Brussels for the information of the Belgian government and will probably be delivered in London at the begining of next week

As soon as it is in the hands of the British Goverment it will be made public here and a new yellow book will be published including both the British and French notes.

MONTREAL MEN NOT THUGS OF TORONTO FAME

Bank Messengers Failed to Identify Three Men Being Held in Montreal.

VIEWED PICTURES

TORONTO, Aug. 17.(—Canadian Press). — Efforts to identify the three suspects held in Montreal in connection with the daylight hold-up of bank messengers in heart of financial district here on July 24, failed to-day when several witnesses and bank messengers who saw bandits viewed pictures of the trio, forwarded to local police head-quarters late yesterday by Montreal police

None of those who have seen pictures was ready to say that any of three fitted the description of the men whom they saw holding up the bank messengers and shooting down three of them.

LOCAL FARMERS CONCERNED OVER EXODUS OF HELP

Only Saving Factor So Far Has Been Prevailing Splendid Weather For Harvesting.

FIFTY SEEK HANDS

The exodus of farm hands from this district will probably have serious results for the local farmers, over fifty of whom, the Superintendent of the Peterborough Branch of the Government Employment Bureau says, have applied for help. The only saving factor so far has been the splendid weather which has enabled the farmers and their families to work steadily in harvesting. If uncertain weather shortened the time for harvest operations the situation might become serious.

Of the fifty farmeres who applied for help, about twenty five would give steady employment. The majority pay from $30 to $50 and board but one offer was received to pay a competent man $60.

It has been pointed out by officials that although the wages per day may be higher, in the aggregate a man who makes the trip west will not be much better off than those who stay on farms in the east. The men who go to the west will receive at the most $4 or $5 a day, although the only rates given the Employment Bureau here are monthly rates of $40 or $50. When it is considered that the average harvester loses a third of his time through rain, for which he is not paid, and considering the train fares going and returning, not to mention the high cost of living in the periods when not working, the man who goes west is not far ahead of those that remain in the east. And, in addition, more permanent positions are open in this district than are necessary to absorb all who left for the temporary work in the west.

Winter Employment.

It is contended that a man who can secure employment throughout the winter months, even at a lower rate, is far in advance, financially, of those who go west and make a stake only to lose it when out of employment in the winter. And, according to students of the employment situation throughout the province and in Peterborough, employment will be no more plentiful in the cities this fall and winter than it was in the corresponding periods of last year.

OIL TANK EXPLODES AND SHAKES A TOWN

SAN PEDRO, Calif., Aug. 17.—(Canadian Press). — Large underground oil tank, owned by General Petroleum Company, exploded here this morning. The blast was caused by spontaneous combustion and shook the entire city. Approximately one million barrels of oil is burning. Fears for safety of three adjoining tanks and number of nearby homes are felt, as tanks show signs of boiling over and running down the hillside. Early reports declare loss will reach several hundred thousand dollars.

CHARGES AGAINST MEN ARE LAID OVER AGAIN

Residents Shocked By the Spooning of Love-Sick Autoists

Residents along the gravel road object to the spooning that goes on at their doorsteps every night They say the motor parties that make the lanes and by-paths a rendezvous night after night are a positive nuisance.

One side-road in particular, about two miles from the city is nightly the scene of parking and sparking parties, and has the ivy-covered verandah of the city completely eclipsed. The spooning motor is is the latest pest that the rural community is praying may be extinguished by rain, one man said.

A parking law forbidding the stopping of cars between sundown and sunrise has been talked about but it was found that the township councils have no power to pass such a by-law. Another alternative is that parents may take hand in the effort to put a stop to these spooning parties.

THE NUT CROP BEING CACHED

Squirrels Preparing for a Long, Hard Winter and Lots of Snow.

Citizens in whose trees squirrels make their homes, and who believe that weather prophesies can be made from the actions of the little animals declare that next winter is to be a hard one.

It is said that these wise animals have been inspecting the nut crop and making extra accomodation in their homes to provide for an unusual large store for the winter.

Squirrels in the parks are also showing signs of fear that the winter is to be a severe one, and are gathering the scraps of sandwiches and lunches left by visitors In Chemong Park and other summer colonies the squirrels are invading the pantries and carrying off whatever food they can reach. One man told of a tin cup being carried away and suggested it might be for catching rain water to stow away. This would be a new departure even for the precocious squirrel. The preparations being made by the animals may be a sign of a long winter or it may be simply the result of hard experience last year.

FALSE ALARM THAT 2 BOYS ARE DROWNED

Police and Volunteers Seek in Vain the Recovery of Two Small Bodies From River.

MANY SPECTATORS

Hundreds of people lined the banks of the Otonabee at Sherbrooke street last night until a late hour, expecting momentarily the recovery of two small bodies. The two boys were reported drowned about 4.30, and although the police and civil assistants searched the bottom of the river at the point with grappling irons and poles until after darkness fell no sign of the bodies was found.

Martin Gahagan, aged 9, and Michael, his brother, aged 7, 494 Sherbrooke street, were standing on the old C. P. R. bridge at the foot of Sherbrooke street, when they saw two boys floating down the river on a log. The boys were "fooling" they said, and suddenly slipped into the river, threw up their hands and went under, shouting for help.

The Gahagan boys told a C.P.R. trainman, they say, who sent them to Brooks' grocery store to inform the police sttaion. Immediately on receipt of the alarm, Inspector J. Reid and Sergeant W. E. Wigg commenced a search with grappling irons. Others were speedily out in canoes with poles and the river in the vicinity pointed out by the boys who raised the alarm was thoroughly searched.

Many Spectators.

Automobilists, cyclists and pedestrians crowded the spot from 5 o'clock until 9, and continued there even after the search had ceased. A constable was necessary to keep them off th bridge, and was busily engaged until a fire at the C.G.E. provided a counter attraction which drew a number of motor cars and bicycles.

The boys who reported the accident are nephews of the caretaker of the Lake street swimming beach, T. Raymond, who was relieved from his duties at the beach that he might take the boys in his canoe to guide the searchers. The boys who are reported drowned are described as being 12 to 13 and dressed in bathing suits. Their clothes were not found and no children were reported missing this morning. Many false trails were followed by the police in endeavours to clear up the mystery, but as in the case of a report of missing children from the south end of the city, all ended in rumour.

Mrs. J. Heffernan, Rubidge street, reported two boys absent from supper last night, but it developed that they had visited an aunt. The search has been discontinued pending confirmation of the story.

LUCKY HE HEARD THE ALARM.

A guest n this room in a San Ber nardino (Cal:) hotel must be accustomed to waking up by an alarm clock. If he isn't he probably wouldn't have got out so quickly. On this par ticular morning strange rumblings roused him from his slumbers. A fe w minutes later a southern California earthquake sent a ton of rock coping and chimney brick down on his bed.

ERNEST RENAN

Critics, generally speaking, are not popular, for criticism, with its two cold, gleaming teeth, so often rends t pieces your best work and plays havoc with the results of your earnest efforts. But, then, there are critics, and critics. And when your critic is at the same time a writer of the first literary rank, a dauntless seeker after truth, an ardent lover of nature and a man of blameless character—well, then, you do not hesitate to give him a place in the Pantheon of letters. And what is why we are constrained to take a genuine interest in Ernest Renan—"probably the most influential man of letters since Voltaire"—whose birth took place exactly a hundred years ago in the quaint little Breton town of Trequier.

In this old-world town of fishermen, that girds the hill whereon stands the fine old cathedral, and in the neighbortown of Lannion, his boyhood was spent, while the Breton spirit permeated his thought and the fathers of his church trained his mind and moulded his character. And, though in after days he wandered far from Brittany and from the Catholic Faith, these early formative influences were always so strong upon him that he was found treading back in their direction before the sunset of his life.

It is intere ting to follow his career —to watch him as the eager student in Paris, the teacher of Hebrew, the aspirant for the priesthood, the professor of Semitics—and then the conscientious break with his early faith and the long devotion of scholarship and theological criticism. It was inevitable that such a man as Renan should himself be compelled to pass through the fires of adverse criticism and be ostracised by a world of thought which prized orthodoxy of the head and condoned heterodoxy of the heart. But, much as we may regret his wide wandering from the faith of Christendom, we cannot withhold a glowing tribute to his moral elevation and his intellectual candor. He was, doubtless, an iconoclast in the realm of cast-iron creeds and stereo-O typed theologies so uncomprising that he would inevitably stand out as the arch-heretic in the Christian world of last century. But, that process of the widening of the minds of men has carried us a long way in a hundred years; and Renan, who lived to receive the highest honors of France's Academy and the homage of the learned, is today esteemed as a man whose very rebellion against devitalized creeds has made for intellectual candor and moral sincerity and spiritual vitality.

Perhaps Renan is best known, and most adversely criticized for his "Life of Jesus"; and the work is certainly open to criticism. We who have given the homage of our hearts to the great Nazarene on the grounds of reason and of experience, must admit that Renan fails to understand Him. To write of Him as merely human and to treat His marvellous activity from the standpoint of Hume's assumption that miracle does not happen is neither a historic nor a scientific method of treatment. But Renan never fails in reverence or admiration for Jesus. And his "Life" simply glows with fine description and suggestive phrase, it is an intensely stimulating biography for the modern reader.

But Renan has gained wider knowledge and deeper insight when he writes of the Apostles and of St. Paul, though still hampered by that rationalism which prejudically tinged his works and biassed his judgment. It is when he turns to write of the great stoic emperor of the second century, Marcus Aurelius, that he appears as the truer historian. In his presentation of the pagan ruler who was almost Christian, Renan rises to the full height of genius.

Renan spent the closing years of his life amid the charm of his Breton home and the honors of his Parisian literary circle. And as we look back to the record of that life, we lay aside all theological rancour and admit that in brilliance of literary ability, historic acumen and intellectual passion for truth, Renan scarcely has a compeer in the nineteenth century.

Efficient Housekeeping

The modern idea of e... ...ncy extends into the household as well as into every branch of business. Most housewives pride themselves upon the fact that their homes are conducted in an efficient, business-like manner.

Every housewife knows, too, that the business of running a house, providing for the wants and needs of the different members of the family and meeting the almost daily emergencies is second to none.

The Want Ads. in the Examiner are a great boon to the efficient housewife. In securing helpers, in purchasing various articles of household equipment, disposing of discarded furniture, in fact in countless ways, the Want Ads. are the housewife's most valuable assistant.

Hot Spray for Garden

An Eldorado resident spent the greater part of Sunday forenoon watering his vegetable garden, flowers and lawn in which he takes a pardonable pride. When he had finished he went to the house to take his regular Sunday morning soapsuds bath. "Why, isn't there any hot water?" he shouted to his wife. "There is," she answered calmly. Didn't she light the gas under the water tank herself? But there wasn't. An investigation disclosed the fact that hubby had inadvertently at ached the hose o the wrong faucet and had given his beloved vegetation a hot shower bath

NEW APPEAL BOARD HAS BEEN APPOINTED UNDER PENSIONS ACT

Col. C. W. Belton of Toronto, Chairman of Central Appeal Board. Will Reconsider Pension Cases

THE PERSONNEL.

OTTAWA, Aug. 17. —(Canadian Press).—The personnel of the Central Board of Appeal, constituted under the Pensions Act amendments of last session was announced last night by Hon. Dr. H. S. Beland, Minister of Soldiers Civil Re-establishment in the absence of the Minister of Justice under whose jurisdiction the board will function. Col. C. W. Bolton M. D., Toronto, will act as permanent chairman and the members are C. B. Reilly, K. C., Montreal formerly of Calgary; Capt. C. W. E. Meath, at present in charge of the government employment service, Toronto, Lt. Col. John Roy, M.C. civil engineer of Quebec and Capt. Bruce Wickware M.D., of Ottawa formerly superintendent of the Moose Jaw General Hospital.

In making the announcement the minister said the personnel of the board has been very carefully selected by the government and he felt sure that it guarantees to returned men, that the review of all decisions of the Pension Commissioners will be carried out in the spirit of the legislation passed by Parliament in the last session, based upon recommendations of the Ralston Commission and that decisions will be absolutely free from any influence of the Pensions Commission or of "the so-called bureaucracy" at Ottawa to which so much exception was taken by the representatives of the veterans' association.

Col. Belton, chairman of the board, is a former practising physician of London, Ont., holding Toronto, Edinburgh and London, England, degrees in medicine and surgery. In 1897 he was appointed to the permanent staff of the Canadian Militia and at the outbreak of war was appointed A.D.M.S. of Military District No. 3 being subsequently transferred in the same capacity to Military District No. 10. In 1915 he was appointed to the Pensions and Claims Board becoming, next year medical adviser to the Board of Pensions Commissioners. He was later transferred from the headquarters staff at Ottawa to the Toronto unit as medical examiner where he has served since.

C. B. Reilly K.C., Montreal, was practising law in Calgary before the war. He was wounded at the Somme and as then attached to the French liason commission at Washington and New York. He has been intimately associated with Montreal veterans' association departmental officials say and is looked upon as a man with close knowledge of soldier problems.

Capt. Heath of Toronto, was prior to the war, a manufacturers' agent in Toronto. He enlisted in 1915 as a private and after nearly four years service was discharged with the rank of captain. For the last three years he has been director of employment service of Canada for the province of Ontario.

Lieut. Col. John Roy M. C. of Quebec is a prominent civil engineer who won the Military Cross with two bars, as head of the Twenty-second Battalion in France. He has served for two years on the Imperial War Graves Commission.

Capt. Bruce L. Wickware was, at the time war broke out, superintendent of the Moose Jaw General Hospital. He is a graduate of Queen's University and he had three years overseas service with Number 2 General Hospital.

The Board, it is stated by department heads will organize and begin work at once. Several hundred cases already await re-consideration. Appals from the Board of Pensions Commissioners will be dealt with in the light of recent amendments to the Pensions Act which restored the insurance principle of the original act whereby pensions may be granted for any disability incurred during the war service whether such disability was directly attributable to actual military operations or not. This principle disappeared by the amending act of 1920 which provided that the disability should be pensionable only when directly attributable to war service.

The board is given discretionary powers to deal with "special meritorious cases," for which no provision has been made in the act and which may be adjudicated by way of compassionate pension or allowance. Appeals may be heard by individual members of the board sitting at various places throughout the dominion but appellants, if dissatisfied, may carry a case to a quorum of the board sitting at Ottawa.

It has been estimated by the board of commissioners that the cost of the country for arrears of cases to be decided under the new insurance principle of the act will amount to approximately $450,000 with an additional $100,000 to cover annual payments for some years to come.

The special soldiers' advisers provided for in legislation last session, who will be charged with the duty of assisting all ex-members in matters pertaining to re-establishment, treatments and pensions, will be appointed as soon as nominations are received by the minister from the veterans' association it was stated.

Capt. J. F. Ellis To Have Place on Pension Board.

OTTAWA, Aug. 17.—(Canadian Press)—Announcement was made last night that Dr. James Fraser Ellis, Captain of the Canadian Army Medical Corps and Unit Director at Halifax, of the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment has been appointed to the Board of Pensions Commissioners to succeed Dr. E. J. Davis who resigned from the board a few days ago.

During the war, Dr. Ellis served with Number Seven Stationary Hospital in France and afterwards acted as heart specialist at the Bushby Park Hospital in London. He is a graduate of Western University, London, Ont., and since 1898 has lived in Halifax. He is a native of Nova Scotia.

BERLIN GOING BACK TO WORK NO DISORDERS

Improvement In Food Situation In The City But Riots Continue Throughout the Country Districts.

MEAT IMPORTED.

BERLIN, Aug. 17. — (Canadian Press.)— Greater Berlin is normal again, police headquarters reports, work at all the big plants having been resumed with full shifts. There have been no further disorders within the city limits or in the suburbs, since the Communists called off their strike.

Serious food rioting, however, is continuing throughout the occupied zone, where the looting of shops and pillaging of adjacent farms have become daily occurrences. Ruhr points are the worst sufferers, as the shutting down of the city shops has brought about a rush of men and women to the rural sections where potatoes are dug up and hauled away, despite the protests of the farmers.

In Berlin, according to the police, the gradual improvement in the food situation is contributing to the calming of the people.

Meat market operators are importing large quantities of frozen beef from Argentina. This beef, although considerably cheaper than the fresh product, is not finding ready buyers, owing to the consumers' prejudice against the iced commodity.

VISITED COBOCONK AND SEIZED GOOD BIG STILL.

LINDSAY, Aug. 17—Licens Inspector Thornbury and Provincial Officers Hartnett visited Coboconk on Wednesday and seized a still on the property of a man named Bartley. The still was the most complete and up-to-date of the many seized in this district by the authorities. It was located in a building in the woods built for the purpose of manufacturing liquor, and it had been doing a thriving business. Three barrels of liquid was also seized and destroyed. The owner of the outfit will be prosecuted.

PROSPECT OF A RIFT IN THE BLACK CLOUDS OF THE RUHR TROUBLE

Feeling In Germany That Chancellor Stresseman And Poincare May Open Negotiations.

CHANGE FOR BETTER.

BERLIN, Aug. 17. — (Canadian Press.)—If Dr. Gustav Stresemann, the new Chancellor, actually is seeking to get in touch with the French Premier M. Poincare, he very likely will find an "encouraging atmosphere for informal pourparlers awaiting him," is the opinion of the political leaders here. These leaders assert that the path to the French Premier already has been made tolerably passable for Dr. Stresemann through the "signalling back and forth" between groups of French and German unofficial personages, who, nevertheless, are not wholly without authority or prestige.

It is taken for granted in Reichstag circles that the German industrialists far from discouraging the new Chancellor from embarking on such an enterprise, would not hesitate to make use of their influence with the French industrialists and financial leaders with the purpose of actively furthering any German attempt which aims to seek a dignified way out of the Ruhr impasse for Germany.

There has been a marked change for the better in the character of the news brought in from Paris by th Berlin newspapers during the past 48 hours, and the instantaneous psychological effect of this on the popular mind has been to stimulate belief in an early rift in the black Ruhr clouds.

Just how Dr. Stresemann proposes to assume the initiative in the present deadlocked situation is not being revealed, although there is an impression he may attempt to approach it through the medium of private emissaries selected from among the Ruhr industrailists who are viewed as being the best situated persons to inaugurate overtures which later might be given a more formal character.

That the new government is eminently better situated to effect a solution of the Ruhr imbroglio which would not carry humiliation and political defeat with it, than was Chancellor Cuno's ministry, is now commonly taken for granted, if only for the reason that Cuno, by making an outspoken patriotic issue of the Ruhr situation, gradualy became ensnarled in a hopelessly deadlocked position from which he was unable to disentangle himself without prejudicing Germany's cause.

By studiously avoiding superfluous acerbities in his inaugural speech in the Reichstag, Dr. Stresemann is considered to have secured for himself a strategic advantage which the Reichstag leaders believe will enable him to effect a revival of the Ruhr debate without surrendering in advance German interests or the cumulative moral benefits of passive resistance.

WAT FATALLY INJURED AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

LINDSAY, Aug. 17.— Word has been received that a former resident of Scugog Island in the person of William Sanguine had been fatally injured in an automobile accident on Thursday, Aug. 9th, while driving to Helena. The car got out of control, supposedly from faulty brakes and upset, throwing Mr. Sanguine to the road. His son, Leonard, was pinned beneath the car, receiving minor injuries.

The deceased was 62 years of age. two of his daughters, Mrs. C. J. Hardy and Mrs. D. Hope reside on Scugog Island.

Russia Has Demanded Apology From Bulgaria

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Aug. 17.—(Canadian Press.)—The Bulgarian Government has received a sharply worded message from George Tchitcherin, the Russian Minister of Foreign Affairs, alleging persecutions or murder of Russians in Bulgaria who are being expelled by the Bulgarian Government on the pretext that they are trying to set up a Soviet Republic in Bulgaria.

Tchitcherin demands an unqualified apology and punishment of military authorities responsible for the alleged outrages. Failing the receipt of the apology, the Soviet Foreign Minister declares, he will apply severe reprisals to thousands of Bulgarians in Russia, who will be treated with the same severity as has been meted out to Soviet agents in Bulgaria.

The Bulgarian Government has not replied to the message.

WEDDING BELLS

NAPLES—CURRAN.

A quiet but pretty wedding was celebrated, August 7 at 2 o'clock in St. John's rectory, Bowmanville, when Mary Selina, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. Curran, Division street, became the bride of John Naples, Peterboro.

The bride wore her travelling dress of navy blue crepe de chene with grey trimmings and hat to match, and carrie da boquet of carnations and sweetheart roses. The bride was attended by her cousin, Miss Rosella Dean of Burkton, in a frock of sand canton crepe and a large picture hat of brown lace and carrying a boquet of carnations and sweetheart roses. The groom was attended by Archie Lunf. Rev. G. F. Postlethwaite, M.A. officiated.

The bridal party motored to the bride's mother's where friends of the parties were entertained at luncheon.

Among the presents were a number of beautiful and costly gifts. The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a [illegible] inset with pearls; to the groomsman a gold tie pin.

The happy couple left on the 8.20 train amid showers of confetti and rice, for points west. They will reside in Peterboro.

The groom, John Naples, is a popular member of the Peterboro police force.

Clynes Says Labor Should Keep Bargain.

LONDON, Aug. 17.—(Canadian Press Cable)—"Workmen must find a way of resisting wage reductions without revolting against agreements," declared J. R. Clynes, one of the labor leaders in the house of commons, in a speech today at the conference of the national federation of general workers. "If a bargain turns out bad it must still be kept," he continued.

"The gross unfitness, costly blindness and vanity of would-be leaders who try to attain the impossible should afford a lasting lesson to organized workers," Clynes declared. "At the same time," he said, "the dockers' strike involved a lesson also for the employers who regard wage reduction as a cure for industrial and economic troubles."

WAITING POTATOES.

If the potatoes must wait before serving, cover them with several folds of cheesecloth and let the stew pan stand on a warm part of the range. The cloth allows the moisture to escape but protects the vegetable from the cold air.

Annual Barn Dance Held At Kawartha.

LAKEFIELD, Aug. 17.—The annual Barn Dance, the last of the four annual events held by the Kawartha Park Cottagers' Association was held last evening in the Kawartha Pavilion. While owing to numerous other counter attractions the attendance was not quite as large as in former years there was nevertheless a large number present and an exceptionally good time was enjoyed.

Prizes were awarded for the best costumes of the dancers. The ladies prize was won by Miss Rita Rogers of Toronto, while Miss Lillian Rogers of Peterboro was also exceptionally good. Mr. Atkinson of Toronto won the gentleman's prize while the costumes of T. H. Glover and H. W. Morphet were also very good.

The pavilion was decorated for the occasion with flags and greens and lighted by the new gasoline lanterns which have just been installed.

AGRICULTURAL DEVELOPMENT IMPORTANT.

However offensive class legislation may be in its essence, there are fundamental reasons for recognizing the right of the agricultural portion of our population to primary consideration in the adjustment of our social and economic affairs. Substantially one-half of our population is included in this group. They feed and to a certain extent clothe, the remaining half of the country's inhabitants. The products of their toil cannot be dispensed with if we are to live. Their prosperity is a matter of greater importance than that of any other element in the community.

The farmer's income has never been fully commensurate with his real value to society. It is entirely inadequate today. The cost of everything which he must buy has risen out of all proportion to the price that he is able to obtain for that which he has to sell. High cost of production in cities is the cause. Under these circumstances it is not surprising that the farm population is complaining.

To earn his living the farmer is obliged to work laboriously often from fourteen to sixteen hours a day. Not only the farmer himself, but his entire family usually contribute their combined services for a meagre income in order that the wage worker in the shop and factory in the city might receive his so-called living wage and his eight-hour day, in addition to all the comforts and conveniences of city life; in order that the employing class should have adequate profits from their business ventures and in order that every other class of society could be well fed and comfortably clothed.

It is senseless to discuss the rights of the workers and their employers while ignoring the prior rights of this more important group. Common sense would seem to indicate the necessity for any reasonable sacrifice on the part of the industrial population of the country in order to afford the farmer needed relief.

The farmer demands financial assistance for the carrying of his crops. Can we afford to deny prompt relief of this nature? He asks for more adequate transportation facilities to aid in the prompt movement of his products to their markets. He seeks the elimination of a portion of the present spread in value between what he sells and what he buys and this is merely elemental justice. Equal value of service is entitled to equal reward whether rendered in the factory or in the field. Such has been the basis upon which Canada has developed and prospered.

The industrial interests of the Dominion, both laborer and employer, must find a method of reducing the cost of their own service to the farmer or otherwise divide a portion of their present income with him in the form of higher prices for his products.

MAKE IT A PUBLIC PRESERVE.

State-owned parks and preserves are so few in Ontario that farmers in Otonabee Township, especially those living in the vicinity of Keene, believe and are beginning to give insistent utterance to their beliefs, that the Provincial Government should acquire the Ashburn property on Rice Lake, west of the mouth of the Indian River.

These acres are steeped in historic interest. Before the whitemen came they were occupied, intermittently perhaps, by tribes of Indians, some of whom survive today in their descendants on the reserve at Hiawatha.

Before them, however, were the Mound Builders, who have left traces of their life and customs in the serpentine mounds that lie irregularly but in strongly defined conformation along the height of land on the Ashburn property above the shore of Rice Lake.

Archaeologists have examined this strange monument to an ancient people, almost a mythical race, whose history is shrouded in tenuous tradition, verified, it is asserted, by the evidences which were turned up in the official excavation of these symmetrical elevations.

One of them is round, representing an egg, it is said; another twists along above the level of the ground suggesting the shape of a snake, symbols of the worship of the Indians of Ontario's antiquity.

Such is the legend enveloping the material forms. People believe governmental investigation has acknowledged them, to some extent at any rate. Indian relics have been found in these mounds, but their true significance is not known to the public, nor is there any sign to give patent to the popular explanation of these mounds.

That is one reason why Otonabee's interest in this matter has taken on a new liveliness. Citizens of that township contend that some department of the Provincial Government should mark this work of the Mound Builders, assuming that there is no grave doubt about its authenticity, by an appropriate tablet fixing the ancient associations that are believed to be connected with this place.

It is also contended that the Government should set up a public preserve on Rice Lake and on the property surmounted by the Serpent Mounds because of its natural beauty and advantages, its accessibility to a large number of people—it is only a half an hour by automobile from Peterborough—and because of the increasing number of tourists who pass through this district and the Rice Lake waters every summer.

Requests have already been made to the Provincial members from the Peterborough constituencies, and although Premier Ferguson has declared upon a policy of economy he should be persuaded by the arguments that are being advanced for this purchase, involving an expense that cannot be heavy.

It might be pointed out that the Drury administration attempted to improve the financial asset they recognized in the tourist traffic into Ontario, although their Hotel Commission did not commend itself to many people. Tourists are interested, as every one knows from his own experience, in points and places of historic association and this reminder of the Mound Builders falls in that class.

From that consideration, and also because of the usefulness of these grounds with their water front to the people of this and the surrounding counties, it may be requested of the Government, without excuse or apology, that this proposal receive official attention.

A glance at the map of Michigan is arrested by the large number of State preserves. Ontario has too few. This district has none.

GETTING ABOARD THE FASCISTA EXPRESS.

Since Mussolini started to drive his Fascista express train over Italy last October several cars have attached themselves to it.

First, the Liberal Democratic "carronoso" with running gear much in need of repairs managed, after several false couplings, to secure a doubtful hold, while its passengers tried more or less successfully to invade the Pulmans ahead. Next was the "carraccio" of the Popular Party, which, having in vain tried to run on a converging line and narrowly escaped a wreck at the junction, lost its engineer, Don Sturzo, and just managed to attach itself through the efforts of its most aristocratic passengers. And now, at last, we have the Socialist "carropiezza." This, having been badly damaged in numerous collisions by which it had attempted to dispute the right of way, found itself so badly wrecked that, with repairs for the time impossible, it was left on a siding. But its more rational passengers quickly constructed a new car, which they have named the Gironda, and had it ready just in time as the express dashed by.

The adhesion of the Liberal Democrats was plainly a matter of expediency; they realized that their own car was doomed, but still hoped it would save them when the express should suffer derailment. The action of the aristocrats of the Popular Party is more difficult to understand. The only explanation appears to be that they had become apprehensive of Don Sturzo, and had really come to believe in the efficiency and honesty of those in charge of the express. As to the Socialists, who have deserted old friends as well as old policies and theories, their getting aboard is a matter of tardy conversion, if one reads correctly the banners which the Gironda displays:

The entire nation is with the Fascismo because it has faith in its deeds; the nation desires work; it desires to do this work in peace; the Fascismo has provided the way, and, "finally, whoever does not want to deceive and to be deceived must recognize another fact, that after the convulsions which followed the war had died down there was a deep and diffuse reflowering of national sentiment among Italian workers."

So the Fascista express and its formidable yet alert and careful engineer rushes on. The most dangerous parts of the road have been passed. There seems to be only one danger left: Will the engineer be able to stop the train when it reaches the terminal?—New York Times.

A WRONG TO BE RIGHTED.

An organization that has defied constituted authority in its own country and violated the comity of nations by diverting international waters without seeking the sanction of an international body created to deal with such questions cannot be allowed to determine what penalties shall be imposed on it or what compensation works, if any, shall be accepted as the price of the legalization of its activities.

The Chicago Drainage Board secured permission to divert 4,000 cubic feet per second from the Great Lakes system. It is doubtful that the Illinois body that granted the permission had the right to do so. The diversion should have had the sanction of the Governments at Washington and Ottawa through the International Joint Commission.

The board constructed its canal for a diversion of 14,000 cubic feet per second and apparently would like to increase the capacity to 16,000 cubic feet. It has been diverting much more water than received even a form of authorization, and has been ordered to reduce the quantity to 4,000 cubic feet. Instead, it insists that it must have the 10,000 cubic feet and offers to instal compensating dams in the Niagara and St. Lawrence Rivers at a cost of 2½ million dollars. And it is trying to get the port cities on the Great Lakes and the Canadian and American authorities to condone its outlawry.

The importance of the matter to Canadian interests is emphasized by Sir Adam Beck, the Chairman of a Hydro-electric municipal enterprise representing a capital of 250 million dollars, and one of the Ministers of the Ontario Government. Sir Adam points out that at Niagara Falls and in the St. Lawrence River the water diverted by Chicago would develop electric energy worth, in coal values, $35,000,000 per year. Canada's share alone would capitalize at $400,000,000, making the proposed compensation investment of 2½ millions look paltry.

One authority declares that while the plans for the compensation dams might restore the levels of lake harbors it would not add to the lowered flow of water passing by power works on the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence system. Moreover the dams, being of a removable character, might be so used in winter to get rid of ice as to make the water levels lowest in the period of greatest power consumption.

Both Canada and the United States have tremendous interests affected by the illegal diversion of water at Chicago. The toleration down to this time of the Drainage Board's highhandedness has been almost inexplicable. Now that the matter has been dragged to the forefront the offending interests should be made to restore the situation. First, they should be forced to cut their diversion down to the legal limit. Then the question whether in fairness to everybody conditions could be arranged which would permit of a larger diversion should be taken up on its merits.

Ontario looks to the Dominion Government to appreciate the magnitude of the issues involved and to join hands with the Provincial Government in protecting the interests of Canadian citizens.—Toronto Star.

TORONTO CATTLE.

TORONTO, Aug. 17.—Yesterday the run was very light at the Union stock yards and there was little activity in the market. No good cattle were received, common to medium cattle sold at steady prices. Thirteen loads of western stock came in, and this morning nine loads were sold at from $3 to $5.50 for killers, and a load of cows sold as high at 5.3-4. Stockers sold up to $5.50. There is a strong demand for milkers and for springers. Buyers would take more choice butcher cattle than have been offered this week.

Calves sold steady yesterday morning at $11 for tops.

Good lambs held firm at $8.50 and hogs sold at $10.35 to $10.60, fed and watered.

Germany Trying to Stop Emigration To Canada.

MUNICH, Aug. 17.— (Canadian Press.)—Bavarian papers are engaged in a heated discussion of proposed emigration of Bavarians to Canada. In April, the German press published statements that the Canadian Government had resolved to give free transportation to Germans, Austrians, Belgians and Turks, in an effort to promote emigration of farmers from Central Europe to the Dominion.

Recently the Bavarian papers alleged they have received letters from German farmers in Canada, warning Germans not to emigrate to Canada at present, because of the low price of grain and cattle and the impossibility of earning good wages under present conditions. The letters are also alleged to have stated that unemployment in Canada is more general than in Germany with little prospect of relief until Central Europe is opened for Canadian grain.

The Munich Neueste Nachrichten discusses "the great propaganda which Canada made in Germany before the war," and suggests that a resumption of this be not allowed unless there is a cessation of "Anti-German and war guilt propaganda in Canada."

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

John Nancarrow To Supervise High School Construction. Rain Helps Vegetables. Personals.

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 17.—The building committee of the Board of Education, acting on authority given them by resolution of the Board, have appointed John Nancarrow to supervise the construction of the new High School. Mr. Nancarrow is one of the most experienced builders in Campbellford and is familiar with all branches for construction, brick, iron and carpenter work. His appointment means that everything will be in accord with the specification and that only the best material will be used in the building. A certain percentage of the control price is held back by the Board to be paid only when the work has been approved by the architect and Mr. Nancarrow.

S. B. Coon and Son of Toronto are the supervising architects of the new High School. This firm has for years specialized in the building of High Schools and Collegiate Institutes and has designed and put up some of the best school buildings in Ontario. The firms reputation is at stake in this work and the tax payers of Campbellford can rest assured that where the architects pass upon and approve of a building that the people are getting the worth of their money. A member of the firm pays periodical visits to Campbellford and his expert services as a supervisor of construction is always at the disposal of the Board.

Cost of Addition.

The additional grant of $28,8000 voted by the Council at the meeting Monday night to enable the Board to complete the building by putting in a ventilation system as required by the Department, and to put up an auditorium and a gymnasium will really mean an increase in the tax rate of the town of less than one mill a year. Of the $28,800 the county, under the new regulation, will be required to pay its share of 80 per cent of the total, and 80 per cent of $28,800 is $23,040. The county is charged according to the number of students attending the school from the county outside the High School district.

Last term the attendance from the county was 55 per cent of the total. At the recent entrance examination 117 pupils were successful and it is now estimated that the High School students from the county will next year be fully 60 per cent.

Figured on this basis the county will pay $13,824 of the cost of completing the building, while the town's share will be $14,976. Campbellford will own a building, nearly half of the cost of which will be borne by outsiders, which arrangement is generally regarded as a good business proposition.

Campbellford's total assessment for High School purposes is $1,431,470. The town could wipe out its share of the cost of completing the High School in one payment by a levy of less than 10 mills. Spread over 30 years to pay debentures that carry 5½ per cent interest the increase in the tax rate will be less than one mill to complete the building. The total debenture issue to pay for the entire building is $96,800. Less than three mills on the dollar will meet this new liability.

Debentures Bring Premium.

Campbellford's financial reputation stands high with the bond dealers of Canada. When the $68,000 debentures were put on the market some time ago, there were a number of tenders and all offered a premium The bonus paid by the bidder whose offer was accepted amounted to $4,000.

These debentures bear interest at 6 per cent. The rate of interest on the new issue is 5½ per cent. This lessens the town's chances for securing a premium but the bonds will at least sell at par.

Among The Farmers.

Farmers coming in town report that the recent rains have helped the vegetables but these were not sufficient to revive the pastures that have been almost completey dried up by the protracted drought.

Threshing is in full swing and the yield of fall wheat is above the average. W. M. Stephens of West Seymour threshed 35 bushels to the acre and this is about the average throughout the district. The sample is excellent.

Mr. Stephens threshed five small loads of oats and secured 187 bushels. He estimates that his crop will average only 50 bushels to the acre. This grain, too, is well filled and weighs above the standard. Spring Wheat is reported as below the average. The intensely hot weather caught this crop at a crucial period and the grain is badly shrunken. Farm labor is scarce, the rate of wages, $3 a day, failing to attract workers to the land.

Dairy farmers note the sudden rise in the price of cheese on the British market and anticipate a corresponding increase when the cheese factories offer their produce for sale at the next meeting of the Board, Saturday afternoon. The supply of milk has fallen off owing to the burnt-up pasture fields.

Presentation To Mrs. W. H. Carter.

The regular meeting on Tuesday evening of the Ladies Mission Circle of the Baptist church took the form of a social evening when the members met to bid farewell to one of their members, Mrs. W. H. Carter who leaves shortly with her family to take up her residence in Toronto.

An excellent programme was rendered, following which Mrs. Carter who has always been one of its most active and willing workers, was presented with a "Life Membership" on the Baptist Foreign Missionary Society and also pin, the address being read by Mrs. W. Hall and the presentation made by the president, Mrs. Arthur Shore.

Mrs. Carter who was entirely taken by surprise made a very fitting reply, assuring the members of her continued interest in the work of Campbellford Baptist Missionary Society, even though separated by distance.

Very dainty refreshments were then served and a very pleasant social hour was spent.

Mrs. Carter's departure from Campbellford, will be regretted not only by the Baptist Church of which she has always been such a faithful member and worker in all its activities but she will also be missed from all the various social and religious organization of the town generally.

WARSAW VILLAGE AND THE DISTRICT

A Fire at Boys' Camp Alarms Neighbourhood —Fruit Scarce. News Paragraphs.

WARSAW, Aug. 17.—About noon on Monday phones were rung for every one to help at a fire at the Boys' Camp, near Bryson's. Practically every man from the fourth line Dummer north of Warsaw, to the third line Douro, responded. One company of boys had left on Saturday; their fire had not been wholly extinguished and by Monday noon, when another company of boys were to arrive the bush was in a blaze. The men soon won control over it and rain is likely to have drenched all smouldering flames.

The fires in Fitzgerald camp and further east were still raging until Tuesday's rain.

Farm Notes.

Eddie Payne took his new threshing outfit on the road last Tuesday. Sidney Whatley had his mill out last Monday. Several farmers are threshing peas in the field. Many farmers are nearly through harvest, but have considerable to cut yet.

Fruit, even apples seems to be scarce here.

Woman's Institute.

The regular meeting of the Womans' Institute was held in the Institute's rooms on Thursday last. A large number were present. After paying all expenses, the ladies cleared considerably over $60. A committee was appointed to select dishes to help replace some of those lost in the fire. Miss Ella Dewart gave a most interesting and instructive talk on the work of the "Home and School Association."

Tribute Of Respect.

If any person, not acquainted with the facts, had been standing near the home of Mr. Gordon Payne, Warsaw, on Tuesday, July 31, and had seen the funeral of Edward Merriott, he would have supposed that some beloved member of the family was being carried to his last resting place. He would have been much surprised to learn that it was the hired man. In a sense it was both, for Ed., as he was best known, had by his good nature and trustworthiness so won the affection and esteem of old and young that he was virtually a member of the family.

Edward Merriott came to Canada from Somerset, England, in 1912. Since that time he has lived in Warsaw, Ont. except for a few months of the winter 1921-22 spent in England where he returned to visit his people.

On Sunday, July 29, the whole countryside was shocked to hear that he had been drowned that afternoon at Healey Falls.

He was 28 years of age and leaves a mother and several brothers to whom his death is a sore bereavement. He was unmarried.

The number present at the funeral, the beautiful wreaths and the grief were abundant evidence of the place he held in the hearts of the people of the neighborhood, especially those of the homes where he had lived.

The letters and tokens that are being sent to the mother in Somerset will do much to comfort her in this distress and assure her and all her friends that in the land of strangers Ed. was laid to rest as affectionately, as reverently and respectfully as could be desired.

News Paragraphs.

HOME REMEDIES OF OUR ANCESTORS

Almost every man and woman in America can remember the botanic recipes of our mothers and grandmothers for the treatment of disease, and they were wonderfully dependable too. Every fall there were stored away in the attic thorough wort, pennyroyal, catnip, sage wormwood, rue, etc., for treating ills of the family during the winter months that followed. In 1873, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was first prepared from one of thees botanic recipes, and the demand for it has increased to such an extent that hundreds of tons of roots and herbs are now used annually in its preparation. It has recently been proved that 98 out of every 100 women who try it have been benefited by its us, which is a marvellous record for any medicine to hold.

NEWS OF BURLEIGH AND DISTRICT.

Forest Fires Will Render Control. Farmers Will Lose Marsh Hay.

BURLEIGH FALLS, Aug. 17.—The forest fires which have been raging in North Burleigh for the past few days are being kept pretty well under control through the strenuous efforts of the men who are fighting them.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Carnduff of Bobcaygeon were visiting their many friends in Harvey and Burleigh last week.

A few of the young men of South Burleigh have gone to the West for the harvest.

Some of the farmers in this vicinity are starting to cut some marsh hay.

Mr. Albert Bolton had the misfortune to have his knee cut the other day. He was helping fight a fire and fell on a scythe.

The work on the twin hills is nearly completed and makes a great improvement to the Burleigh road. Home remedies

Clergy Asked To Help Alberta Wheat Pool.

REGINA, Aug. 17.—(Canadian Press)—J. A. McPhail, general manager of the wheat pool campaign has prepared a letter which is being sent to all clergy in Saskatchewan asking them to devote their sermons Sunday, August 26, to the subject of the wheat pool. Mr. McPhail suggests that the following text might be used as a basis for the discourses:

"Is not this the word that we did tell thee in Egypt saying, let us alone that we may serve the Egyptians? For it had been better for us to serve the Egyptians than that we should die in the wilderness.

The above text is in Exodus XIV —V, 12.

German Frontier Is To Remain Closed.

DUESSELDORF, Aug. 17.—(Canadian Press)—The frontier between occupied and unoccupied Germany, closed for a week by order of the occupation authorities because of various disturbances in Essen and the surrounding district, will remain closed until the end of the month. Under the original order the closing should have terminated last night, but the occupation authorities decided to extend the penalty.

Will amaze and delight you

This offers you a ten-day test, to show the way to prettier teeth. To cleaner, safer teeth.

Millions now employ it. You see the results in whiter teeth wherever you look today. Now find out, for your own sake, what that way means to you.

Film—the great enemy

Dingy teeth and most tooth troubles come from film. From that viscous film you feel. Much of it resists the tooth brush, clings and stays.

Soon that film discolors. Then it forms dingy coats, and white teeth lose their luster.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. It breeds millions of germs, and they, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Very few people who brush teeth in old ways escape those film-caused troubles.

How to combat it

Dental science, after long research, has found ways to fight that film. One acts to disintegrate the film at all stages of formation. The other removes it without harmful scouring.

Protect the Enamel

Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

A new-type tooth paste has been created to apply those methods daily. The name is Pepsodent. Now leading dentists the world over advise it, and careful people of some 50 nations enjoy its benefits.

Natural, gentle ways

In other ways Pepsodent is bringing a new dental era. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva and multiplies its starch digestant.

Those are Nature's agents for fighting acids and starch deposits on the teeth. Every use of Pepsodent gives them manifold effect.

Thus Pepsodent acts to protect the enamel in natural, gentle ways, and without the grit that injures.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

WHEAT POOL TO HAVE CONTROL OF AT LEAST HALF WHEAT ACREAGE

...n of Agreement to be ...gned by Growers Was ...ade Yesterday.

29 CLAUSES.

CALGARY, Alta., Aug. 17. Canadian Press. — Providing for the co-operative marketing of wheat through a central selling agency to be known as the Alberta Co-operative Wheat Producers, Limited, the form of agreement between the wheat growers who are willing to join the pool and the association formed and controlled by the members of the pool themselves, was issued for publication yesterday. The form of agreement consists of twenty nine clauses, a number of which are divided into sub-sections, and fully outlined in legal formation the the covenant entered into by all consignees withr egard to the co-operative selling of wheat.

As has already been announced, the campaign for signatures to the contract will start next week. The contract provides that if by Sept. 5 signatures of wheat growers representing at least fifty per cent. of the total acreage in the province have not been secured under the contract any grower will have the right to withdraw from the pool during a stipulated period from September 8 to September 22; provision is made for the association to properly grade the grain delivered to it.

The purpose of the association is to promote, foster and encourage the business of growing and marketing cooperately; to eliminate speculation in wheat and to stabilize the wheat market; to cooperatively and collectively handle the problems of the growers who are members of every legitimate way the interest of growers in the Province.

According to the contract, the association will have the power to borrow money, using the wheat which has been delivered to it as collateral. It will then have the right to divide the money pro rata among the gorwers who are members of the pool. It will have the power to deduct from the gross returns when the wheat is sold, the amount of the expenses, and in addition, the Association will have the power to deduct an amount not to exceed one per cent. of the gross as a commercial reserve.

Provision is made in the contract so that if the required acreage is not secured that the pool may be operated with those as members who have not withdrawn. If this is not considered advisable the association has then the power to declare the agreement cancelled. This only provides in case the fifty per cent. is not secured through the signature of the wheat growers who join the pool.

The association is given full power in the contract to act as agent, factor, mercantile agent and attorney for the grower. In other words the association will handle wheat produced and delivered to it by its members. This will entail storage, transportation, and marketing.

As recommended by Aaron Sapiro when he was here the contract will remain in force for five years. The grower agrees to deliver to the association all of the wheat and the warehouse and storage receipts covering it, produced or acquired by him in Alberta, with the exception of seed wheat during the years 1923, 1924, 1925, 1926, and 1927.

Provision is made in the agreement for the deduction of an amount not to exceed two cents a bushel to provide elevator facilities for the pool. The agreement says that the elevators amy be acquired by erecting, purchasing or leasing.

Each grower who signs the contract is called upon to apply for one share of the ordinary shares of the capital stock of the association for which he pays one dollar. The grower is assessed another two dollars to defray expenses of organisell the wheat at any time after delivered and within or without the zation and other necessary work.

The association has the power to province and to millers, brokers or others. The association may, however, establish selling agencies in any place in the world and is given power to join with the provinces of Saskatchewan and Manitoba in the cooperative marketing of wheat.

The contract provides for certain penalties in case of a breach of any of its clauses. If a grower fails to deliver all his wheat he will be assessed the sum of 25 cents a bushel for all wheat delivered as damages.

The head office of the association will be in Calgary. The body has incorporated under the Cooperative Association Act.

The grower in signing the contract expresses a willingness to cooperate with others in the production of wheat in Alberta and in the marketing of the wheat.

A REGATTA HELD AT THE SERPENT MOUNDS

Otonabee Township's Civic Holiday Passed Its Third Milestone Yesterday Going Stronger Than Ever and Assured Of A high Place in District Celebrations.

A FINE PROGRAMME.

Otonabee township celebrated its own Civic Holiday yesterday at Ashburn's Point (the Serpent Mounds) Rice Lake.

The Otonabee people are comparatively new at the regatta business. This was their third annual event, and they have every reason to congratulate themselves upon what can be summed up in the rather trite expression, a perfect day.

They faced formidable opposition all around them, especially from attractions that drew the city crowd heavily in other directions, but many of their visitors were from Peterborough ,who went home delighted and confident that the Serpent Mounds regatta is well on the way to one of the premier summer carnivals in this district.

Their picnic grounds are literally ideal, a fairly level plateau that can be easily smoothed out into a first class ball diamond and athletic field, with a long sloping sward to the high bank overlooking a natural bay where their aquatic sports were run off. There is plenty of room for thousands on that slope facing the lake, and any place on it offers a box seat to watch the contestants and fun in the water. It is thrust well out into the lake, catching the lightest breezes, and the tip of this pleasant promontory is brightened by Mr. Reg. Turner's summer bungalow, "Serpent Mounds Villa."

If any place on the whole Kawartha chain is destined for popularity far exceeding its past and resulting from the easy access of countless motor cars it is this beautiful site of the Otonabee people's annual picnic. The weather yesterday was a big factor in the day's success beginning about ten o'clock in the morning and continuing, with intermission for lunch, until six o'clock through a long and varied programme that was replete with interesting incidents, and winding up with a dance in the town hall at Keene. All of which suggests a complete prescription for an enjoyable holiday.

Rice Lake was calm under a light breeze until about four o'clock, when the wind from the Harwood shore began to freshen and whip up the water but without the exuberance that produces white caps. A clear, blue sky and blue water, the deep green of the neighbouring islands duplicated in the mirror of the lake, the rice beds dissolving into saffron under the ripening sun, and the colour and animation of the crowded shore and bank, were all woven into a charming picture, touched with the gracefulness of gulls floating lazily overhead and sailboats idling down the lake.

And to this natural scenic beauty was added the hospitality of the regatta committee who had a large undertaking in hand and performed it thoroughly. The land and water sports and games were run off promptly and according to schedule with so many events that it is impossible to do justice to the outstanding ones.

Girls' Baseball Tournament.

The feature of the morning was the girls' softball tournament, with three teams in the fray, and the 6th Line girls of Otonabee emerging victors. Harwood and Keene were the two other teams.

Harwood drew a bye while the Sixth Liners were putting Keene away by the score of 14-7; and then they sailed into the damsels from across the lake and whaled the ball for the cricket score of 34 to Harwood's 4. By that time the Harwood fielders were groggy from chasing the ball over the lot, and the girls from up in the township were weary of the clouting.

The personnel was:

Sixth Line—Annie Clapham, s.s.; Mary Nelson, c.; Annie Reid, 2b.; Mary Hall, p. Lilah Hall, 1b.; Ethel Reynolds, Dorothy Chapman, l.f.; Jean Donaldson, s.s.; Leata Wood, 3b.; Louise Donaldson, m.f.; Jean Wood, sub.

Keene—Katie Shearer, s.s.; Annie McItnyre, c.; Ferne McCarthy, 3b.; Isabel Nelson, p.; Jean McIntyre, 1b.; Alice Chapman, s.s.; Olive Shearer, l.f.; Irene Comrie, 2b.; Vera Nelson, m.f.; Marian Nelson, r.f.

Harwood — Evelyn Young, 3b.; Amy Arthur, c.; Kathleen Fisher, 1b.; Cora Young, 2b.; Hilda Francis, s.s.; Sarah Young, l.f.; Kathleen Young, m.f.; Anna Corkery, r.f.; Dorothy Foster, 1, s.s.; Helen Fisher, p.

Girls' swimming, 12 and under—1 F. Wedlock, 2 Eleanor Wallace.

Keene Regained Cup.

The Harwood men's ball team, who are playing in the Northumberland county circuit, were no more successful than their sisters. The Keene team of the East Peterborough League, pried the regatta cup form them by the score of 7-3 after it had sojourned on the south shore of the lake during the last year. Yesterday's result gave Keene two wins in three starts since the Regatta Day was instituted.

The ball game went seven innings and wound up the long day's interesting programme. It was good baseball and indicated the strength of the East Peterborough league as compared with that in Northumberland. Jake Solomon was the umpire behind the plate and Leo Comolli on the bases.

The teams were:

Keene—Nelson, 3b.; O'Dette, s.s.; Hawkins, c.; I. Fletcher, l.f.; Robinson, 1b.; A. Fletcher, 2b.; Renwick, r.f.; M. Robertson, p.; M. McCarthy, c.f.

Harwood—Hogg, 3b. Curtis, r.f.; Williams, m.f.; Downs, C.; Halstead, l.f.; Lean, 2b.; Burrison, 1b.; Bowman, s.s.; Dunnett, p

Keene collected nine hits to Harwood's six. Two walks developed into runs in Keenes' first with Nelson and Ivan Fletcher scoring on a couple of wild pegs and Fletcher's single through the box.

A. Fletcer got them another in the second when he dropped one into centre, stole second and went to third on a fumble at short, and scored on McCarthy's out at first.

Blanked in the third they came back for two more in the fourth. Halstead dropped A. Fletcher's fly and the runner went to second. M. Robertson slammed the ball to left for two, scoring Fletcher. McCarthy doubled and scored on Nelson's single to left after Robertson had been thrown out at the plate.

In the fifth Hawkins was safe on a single to right, and stole. He went to third on Robinson's grounder to Dunnett and was brought home by A. Fletcher's drive through short. Fletcher himself was thrown out at third, leaving Renwick stranded after singling to right.

In the sixth McCarthy hammered out another into deep left for two and scored on O'Dette's fielder's choice to Lean. Nelson walked, but was out stealing, and O'Dette and Hawkins pulled a circus stunt off third and second respectively, both leading away down the paths, and O'Dette was an easyout half way down the line to the plate.

Harwood's Attempt.

Harwood got one in the fourth when Curtis dropped one in front of the plate and went to third on Downs' single to right, and scored on Nelson's error at third on Halstead's bounder. Halstead was caught stealing.

Bowman was handed a run in the fifth when, after lining into right, he was given a passport all the way round by a flock of heaves that were intended to head him off. It was Keene's only blow up and it all happened in a hurry.

Harwood had a chance in their half when they filled the bases. Forced plays and a strike-out cut their rally down to one run.

The most exciting race of the day was the professional single canoe for men. All the entrants were Indians who were bunched together all down the course, with Jack Simpson setting the pace, strenuously challenged by first one and then another of the competitors as they neared the finish line. He flashed across first, but with only half a length to the good, while most of the others were close up.

The Committee.

The committee in charge of the celebration was composed of the following: J. H. Cruickshank, president, G. Stanley Taylor, secretary, T. J. Wallace, Amos Shearer, G. T. Gall, W. H. Fletcher, D. Wallace, Reeve F. A. Eason, M. O'Keefe, E. H. Barnes, J. Ashburn, W. Bryce, Dr. Walsh, J. J. Moore, Gilbert Howson, E. V. McCarthy, G. Bolin, A. Doris, A. E. Fletcher and C. Nelson.

The officials in charge of the water events were: Starter, Amos Shearer; Clerk of the course, Mr. Fraser of Toronto; Judge, J. J. Moore. Announcers, W. H. Fletcher and T. J. Wallace.

NO PROGRESS IN CONFERENCE TO AVERT A STRIKE

Hopes For Peace Blasted By John L. Lewis. — Negotiations May Be Continued.

RENEW DEMANDS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.— (Canadian Press.) — The outlook for a peaceful settlement of the controversy between anthracite coal operators and miners is discouraging, it was declared last night by John Hays Hammond, chairman of the United States' Coal Commission, which met with both sides yesterday in an effort to avert a strike on September 1.

At the conclusion of yesterday's conference, Mr. Hammond said, "up to this time no progress has been made." He said, however, that the Government investigation would be continued to-day. He refused to elaborate on his statement that "frankly the outlook is discouraging."

Mr. Hammond's statement came at the close of a day that began full of hope for peace—hopes that were blasted when John L. Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers of America, denounced a peace plan proposed by the operators, as "misleading and confusing."

Mr. Lewis declared the operators were all wrong in assuming that the miners, in relinquishing the check-off, meant that they had thrown overboard their demand, No. 1, for "complete recognition" of the union and establishment of the closed shop throughout the anthracite industry.

The leader of the union delegation further made it plain the miners did not intend to give up the right to credit from the companies for household supplies, explosives and mining equipment, as the operators had interpreted the proposal that both sides abandon check-off practices.

That the negotiations had not reached the point of utter collapse was seen in the announcement of Mr. Lewis that "we will resume discussion immediately if the operators accept our original proposition of yesterday."

ALLADIN's LAMP OF THE PRESENT.

What It Means To Pool Radio Patents For The Common Good.

The Vacuum Tube is one of the scientific triumphs of the present day.

These tubes are used in connection with power machinery to control and rectify the electric current, by amplification they make telephone conversations possible over long distances and they are a fundamental part in radio outfits of which there are over two million in use on the American Continent alone.

An important step has recently been taken in Canada. The Canadian General Electric Co., The Marconi Wireless Telegraph Co. of Canada, The Canadian Westinghouse Co., The Bell Telephone Co., The Northern Electric Co. and the International Western Electric Co. have now agreed to pool all their patents for common good. Under the terms of the agreement each party agrees to license the other parties within their natural fields, that is, the Marconi Co. will have the use of all the patents derived under the agreement for the purpose of wireless telegraphy, the Telephone Company in the field of public telephone communication and the Manufacturing Companies which includes the Marconi Co. have the right to make and sell.

The importance of having the best and most efficient radio apparatus will appeal strongly to the ever growing number of people who listen in on the daily programmes sent out by broadcasting stations throughout Canada and United States and who will welcome every improvement in the art.

Many patents have been issued covering the use of these tubes and apparatus and systems involving their use in connection with wire telephony, guide-wave telephony, power apparatus, wireless telegraphy, wireless telephony and broadcasting. Certain large Companies hold a very substantial portion of these patents but no one concern could manufacture or use apparatus combining all the features covered by such patents without inviting litigation. For this reason the art was being held back as no one could manufacture the best and most complete apparatus.

At the suggestion of the Federal Government of the United States certain Companies in United States threw their patents into a common pool in the public interest in order that the art might progress unhampered by delay and litigation.

The Canadian agreement just announced is for the life of all existing patents and also covers future patents or applications for patents.

The Companies entered into the agreement in the broadcast spirit. It was impossible to estimate the value of each individual contribution as this would have involved litigation to determine the validity and scope of the patents held by each party, nor was it possible to foretell which party might produce the most valuable discoveries or inventions in the future. While each party owns valuable patents, each party also has the benefit of the research work carried on by the respective allied Companies in United States and England. The great research Departments of the Telephone Co., The General Electric Co., The Westinghouse Company and Marconi Company may be expected to produce many important and far-reaching improvements and all these will, by reason of this agreement, be utilized to progress the art in Canada.

The agreement also provides for a traffic arrangement between The Bell Telephone Co. and the Marconi Co. for mutual interchange of part wire and part wireless messages. By this combination, a Telephone Subscriber—when arrangements are completed—will be able to speak by wire to the nearest Land Station of the Marconi Co. and then by wireless to a Passenger on an Atlantic Liner, Lake Boat or even a Moving Train. In process of time Subscribers here may also be able to speak to Telephone Subscribers in England or on the Continent. Technical difficulties must be overcome and the Trans-Oceanic Telephone business must be placed upon a commercial basis but the decision of these Companies to pool their interest, should hasten advances in the art in regard to every purpose for which this wonderful Alladin's Lamp can be used.

JUDGE DENTON INVITES APPEAL

Keen Discussion In Toronto Over Recent Ruling That Betting Act Is Ultra Vires.

TORONTO, Aug. 17.—(Canadian Press.)— The action of Judge Denton in declaring the Ontario Act prohibiting the publication of race track odds and selections to be ultra vires, has given rise to considerable discussion as to the position of matters pending the appeal which, the Attorney General, Hon. W. F. Nickle, says, will certainly be made. Judge Denton made it clear in the presentation of his judgment that an appeal was invited and would be welcomed, and that a case would be stated if required.

It is understood, however, that no request for a stated case which would come before another County Court Judge, will be made, the simplest and most direct way of dealing with the question being by taking the case to the Applegate Division at Osgoode Hall, on the certificate of the Attorney General. Such action cannot be taken until September 17, when the court convenes.

In the meantime the question is being asked, could prosecutions be instituted pending an appeal. The answer to this is that legally the law must be looked upon as valid, but that it is extremely unlikely that any further information would be laid, or if they were, that any magistrate would deal with them. It was pointed out by one lawyer that in cases tried at Ottawa, the Act had been held to be intra vires and fines imposed. Opinions as to whether such fines would be remitted in case of Judge Denton's decision being upheld, differ. One authority stated that undoubtedly such fines would be recoverable, while another doubted whether any refund would be made, the fines having, so far, been nominal.

NEWS FROM CAVAN.

CAVAN, Aug. 17.—Manson Cathcart has returned home after a week spent in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Shortt and Master Ralph and Kenneth of Toronto motored down and spent the week-end with Miss Winona Cathcart.

Among those from here who left for the West on Monday were George Howson, Wm. Howden and J. Braithwaite.

Mrs. George Howden spent the week-end in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Fowler of Monaghan visited Cavan friends on Sunday.

Some of the farmers in this district expect to finish harvest this week.

The long dry spell has ruined the garden and root crops.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Cathcart and the Misses Jane, Mary and Master Robert Cathcart of Peterboro spent a few days with A. A. Cathcart last week.

Daniel Hill is holidaying in Peterboro.

Mrs. J. Swain went to Toronto on Wednesday last to be near her son Clark, who is ill in the General Hospital there, having been operated on for appendicitis.

SITUATION IN SUGAR IS APPARENTLY WEAK

TORONTO, August 17 (Canadian Press).—The prices of refined sugar on the Canadian market were again reduced 15 cents per hundredweight yesterday.

This brings the local quotation for granulated to $9.69 per hundredweight.

The general situation appears weak.

BETTING DECISION WILL NOT HAVE LOCAL EFFECT

OTTAWA, Aug. 17.— (Canadian Press.)—Decision of Judge Denton, of Toronto, in which he rules that Ontario Anti-Betting Act is ultra vires is not likely to have any local effect until it has been appealed to higher court and ruling of Supreme Court Judge secured, according to Crown Attorney J. A. Ritchine, K.C. Mr. Ritchie points out that Judge Denton was acting in the capacity of a magistrate when the decision was given and that his ruling need not affect opinion of another magistrate. If Judge Denton's ruling was upheld by a higher court it would then become law. Mr. Ritchie stated that there was little chance of local use being made of Judge Denton's ruling, as no cases under Ontario Statute were pending here.

Rain Has Helped To Check the Fires

LAKEFIELD, Aug. 17.—Rains in the past few days have done much to lessen the fire danger throughout the district just north of Peterboro. Many of the smaller fires have been extinguished while the larger ones have been checked and in some places brought under control. The rain has been sufficiently heavy to thoroughly moisten the ground which has gone a long way in helping the efforts of the fire fighters. The fires in Burleigh and Dummer which for a time looked very serious are now checked sufficiently so that they will soon be under control. The danger has not yet entirely passed and a large force of fire fighters is still hard at work.

Two Catholic Priests Kidnapped By Chinese.

HANKOW, China, Aug. 17.—(Canadian Press).—Two Irish Catholic priests, Rev. Michael Hugh and Daniel Ward of the Irish Catholic Mission were kidnapped when bandits pillaged the district near Sungho according to report received here.

The town of Tsaoshih was looted and the Catholic hospital burned. Eighty Chinese captives were taken.

New York Women Leap To Death From Window.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—(Canadian Press).—Mrs. A. M. Stern, sixty-year-old widow and her daughter, 35 years old, to-day jumped from the window of their sixth floor apartment in West 78th street, to the pavement below. They were instantly killed.

INTERNATIONAL COURT RULES AGAINST GERMANY

THE HAGUE, Aug. 17.—(Canadian Press.)—The Permanent Court of International Justice to-day handed down a decision against Germany in a case involving use of the Kiel Canal by foreign vessels. The Court decided the German authorities were not justified in preventing the British steamer Wimbledon from entering the canal in 1921 during the hostilities between Poland and Russia, and that Germany should make compensation.

SPORTING NUGGETS OF CAMPBELLFORD

Preparing For Second Annual Bowling Tourney. Play Off Ball Game To-Day.

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 17.—The second annual tournament of the Lawn Bowling Club will be held on Thursday and Friday, 23rd and 24th of August. By that time the new club house will be completed so that the members will be in a position to entertain the visitors suitably. Clubs from outside coming here to take part in the tournament can rest assured that the green is one of the best to be found anywhere in Ontario.

"Bamey" Eagleson of the local baseball team, whose regular position is at short, is equally good as a fielder, hitter and pitcher. In the two innings in which he worked against Warkworth on Wednesday, he allowed only two hits, passed one man and struck out five, including Mulhall, the heavy hitter on the Veterans' team.

Weston, the first baseman has played his position throughout the season without an error, and has struck out only once. He generally lands even when the opposing pitcher, bearing to risk an extra base hit, trys to pass him. Weston has made two home runs on the local diamond.

Blakely in left can cover as much ground as any of them and when he goes after a fly the umpire gets ready to call the batter out.

Warkworth will be here this afternoon for the second game of the play-off series. Brady will do the pitching for Campbellford, and his team mates, all the regular men likely to be in their places, will go into the contest with every chance to pull down another of their victories.

CURRENCY INCREASE OF REICHSBANK SOUNDS BIG

BERLIN, August 17 (Canadian Press) — Returns of the Reichsbank for the first week in August show a currency increase of 30,500,000,000,000 marks, its total 62,333,000,000,000 representing a doubling of paper circulation within the two weeks.

While the returns for the second week of the current month are still outstanding, it is believed they will outstrip by far the present inflation figures as the bank's unloading of new marks during the last week's crisis is said to have averaged ten trillions per day.

During the first seven day period, the Reichsbank increased its holdings of discounted treasury bills and private cheques and drafts by thirty-three trillions.

FERGUSON CABINET IS AWAY TO A GOOD START

TORONTO, August 17 (Canadian Press). — The final stage of the formal constitution of the Ferguson Cabinet was passed yesterday when all its member were returned by acclamation at ministerial nominations.

Nine ministers who hold portfolios, and who hence receive emoluments under the Crown, were required to seek again endorsation of their constituents.

Although the absence of any opposition had been almost unmistakably indicated prior to the nomination day, the Election Law had to take its course, and municipalities affected were forced consequently to endure the monotony, if not the suspense, between the hours of 12 noon and 2 o'clock, standard time.

By 4 o'clock the chief election officer, Alan Dymond, at the Parliament Buildings, was in receipt of communications which stated that the entire Cabinet had been returned without opposition.

FRENCH HAVE SEIZED 9,250,000,000 MARKS

DUESSELDORF, Aug. 17. Canadian Press. — The occupation authorities have confiscated 9,250,000,000 marks from the Reichsbank premises at Limburg. There is much unrest among the workers at Gross-Gerau, near Darmstadt, and Russellheim, in the same district. Many of the men are without work.

CAREFUL EXPERIMENTS MADE WITH CATTLE AND HOGS.

Communication and Destruction of Germs—Not Blown About Like Fog or Vapor—Kept Alive in Manure.

At a conference of veterinarians engaged in the eradication of tuberculosis in live stock, held in Chicago, a valuabl paper was read by Dr. Schroeder, Superintendent of the Bureau of Animal Industry at Bethesda, Md., who gave details of the results of experiments which he has conducted during many years on the subject of how tuberculosis is carried from one animal to another.

The first experiment he described was where two stables were used, designated T and H.

T. B. Germs Destroyed by Air and Sunlight.

Stable T held for six years a tuberculous herd of about 20 cattle ranging from cattle that were in the last stages of generalized tuberculosis. Healthy cattle put into this stable contracted the disease very quickly, and deaths were not uncommon. In stable H a herd of 20 to 30 cattle were kept during the same time, but no case of tuberculosis developed among them. Men employed in stable T were not allowed in stable H nor were utensils used in T ever taken into H. Dr. Schroeder believes that this experiment confirms the research of various investigators to the effect "that we have no satisfactory reasons to believe that tubercle bacilli can retain their virulence long enough in tuberculous sputum or other substances to become pulverized sufficiently to be carried about by currents of air, and even if this were possible the germs would be so exposed to light in the minute particles which can float in the air that they would speedily die."

Germs Not Blown About Like Fog or Vapor

Another experiment of a similar character was carried out on a two-acre field which had been divided into three inclosures, each containing a stable 16 feet square. The inclosures were designated A, B and C. A was separated from B by a woven wire fence. C was separated from B by two lines of woven wire fence eight feet apart. Several cattle and healthy brood sows were placed in A and C. At first each inclosure had its special attendant but later one man was given the care of all of them, with the injunction that he should attend to the stock in the order of C, A, B. If it was necessary to enter A or C after having been in B, he was required to clean his shoes of manure. This experiment continued with the one man in charge for seven years. Inclosure B proved to be a dangerous place for both hogs and cattle. A few hogs in A contracted tuberculosis, but none of the cattle, and both hogs and cattle in C remained free. As a comment on this experiment, Schroeder says, "Tuberculous infection is a concrete thing, which is not blown from place to place like a mass of vapor or fog. There are many ways in which it can be transported, but they are simple, easily comprehended ways." This he showed by a third experiment. He had two pastures separated by a small woodland and a cultivated field. A stream flowed from one field called I to the other called E. A herd of tuberculous cattle was placed in I and a healthy herd in E. Several of the cattle in E contracted tuberculosis.

Healthy Cattle Contract the Disease by Contact.

Experiments regarding the danger of allowing healthy cattle to come into contact with diseased ones are quite impressive. Calves which nursed a tuberculous udder only once or were fed just once on tuberculous milk from a pail invariably contracted the disease. Schroeder has two records of healthy bulls contracting the disease while serving tuberculous cows, but none of healthy cows contracting the disease during service by tuberculous bulls.

Schroeder's studies show that if healthy cattle are protected from direct contact with virulent tuberculous material or with diseased cattle, their chances of contracting the disease are slight, even nil. For eight years he has been alternating a healthy herd and a diseased herd from stable to stable. The stable in which the diseased cattle were kept is carefully cleaned, but not disinfected, especial care being taken to remove caked masses of manure. After a week or ten days the healthy cattle are put in, and the tuberculous cattle put in the stable formerly occupied by the healthy cattle. Both stables are frame structures with earth floors. No cases of tuberculosis have ever developed in the healthy herd.

Dr. Schroeder closed his paper with this significant statement, "Tubercle bacilli have been proved at the station to remain alive and virulent in a manure pile, some distance below its surface, for a period upwards of six months, but they will not stay alive, in stables or elsewhere unless they are protected by opaque masses of some kind against the action of the light."

LITTLE DIGNITY CHASER SAY

If you strolled into a restaurant of a cool morning,
AS I DID,
And thought that some wheat cakes and sausage would taste about right,
AS I DID,
And ordered them in a modest tone,
AS I DID,
And then the waiter turned and yelled through the window to the kitchen,
AS HE DID,
And shouted, "Stack with bulldogs,"
AS HE DID,
Would you wonder when a young lady at the next table looked amazed and inquired of her companions: "What's them?"
AS SHE DID.

Lead washers should always be used in the fuel line and similar locations. Fibre washers are of no use. The action of gasoline upon these washers has a tendency to make the motor run sluggishly by forming a deposit of minute particles from the fibre.

Dog Weeps Sadly, Refuses to Eat While Master is in Jail

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 17.—Jiggs, like many men and women, had but one real friend in the world. And to him Jiggs clung with a tenacity that surprised even his bull-dog nature.

"Bulldog nature" is no metaphor. Jiggs is a bulldog. An English bull, well-formed, thoroughbred.

And his one friend was "Bluebeard" McPool, a big, giaunt old man, grim and taciturn.

McPool, so the courts said, made bootleg whisky, and sold it. He was thrown into jail. And Jiggs, dimly understanding that disaster rapidly was overtaking him, was led away to the Humane Society kennel.

* * *

McPool didn't come that first night to feed him. And Jiggs wondered. He didn't eat what the kind officials of the society put before him. He wanted only the one person in all the world he knew was his friend.

For 16 days this continued. Jiggs refused to eat. A dull, melancholy, sinking sensation seized him. He suffered what so many humans suffer when they are inwardly hurt and have no loved one to give them comfort.

* * *

On the sixteenth day the society could stand it no longer. Jiggs' abject sorrow struck the minor scales of their heartstrings. They took the dog, now a bag of skin and bones, to call on McPool at the jail.

Jiggs saw his friend, and crept across the concrete floor. He snuggled into McPool's arms.

And he cried.

Jiggs shed real tears—and so did McPool, and others who stood about, not wanting to see, but fascinated by the sight of a dog weeping.

They brought Jiggs food, and he gulped it down.

The time to go came, and Jiggs had to be forced away from his loved one. But the dog will be taken into the home of an official of the Humane Society, and every few days will be allowed to visit McPool, who must serve at least 90 days and then work out a fine of $500, which may keep him in the better part of a year.

Which is being punished more—McPool or his best friend, Jiggs.

HIS LAST DOLLAR

The elder John D. Rockefeller's fir st business deal was unearthed in connection with his 84th birthday recently.

John D. was born four miles from the village of Richmond, N.Y. He was raised on a farm, tramped six miles to the little red schoolhouse, and slept in an attic through whose roof the snow sifted in winter. That old house still is standing, hewn from logs and fastened together by wooden pins, as was customary in the old days when iron nails were very expensive.

John D. saw a wild turkey hen in the woods. By patient stalking, he finally found her nest. He carried away her young ones, took them home and fattened them. Late in the year he drove his flock to the village and sold them.

The money? He put it in the bank, of course.

One day afterward, while digging potatoes, young John D. leaned on his hoe and began thinking. It occurred to him that he had to till the soil several days to get as much money as his "turkey fund" was paying him a year in interest, and for which interest he didn't have to work a stroke.

John D. withdrew his money from the bank and invested it in turkey hens.

After that, it was just a matter of multiplication.

From his turkey venture, the elder Rockefeller learned a lesson that shaped his entire business career. During his lifetime he probably has made, as profits, more than a billion dollars. He could not have made anything like this huge amount by his own personal direct efforts.

That he did accumulate a billion was principally due to his causing money and other men to work for him.

Too sensible to be jealous of having able supporters around him, he early acquired a reputation for hiring the most competent men available—and paying them so liberally that no other employer could lure them away except in relatively few cases.

If you work for money andt save i, money will work for you. If you work for money and save it, you will be able to hire other men to work for you—able to collect part of what they create, for your own personal holdings.

The Rockefeller fortune was built up mainly on these two simple principles.

The first $1,000 in the bank is the hardest—and we are apt to become discouraged while accumulating it. But, the more you save, the easier money comes.

THE NEED OF TO-DAY

The world today is looking for men who are not for sale; men who are honest, sound from center to circumference, true to the heart's core; men with consciences as steady as the needle to the pole; men who will stand for the right if the heavens totter and the earth reels; men who can tell the truth; men who neither brag nor run, men who never flag nor flinch; men who can have courage without shouting about it; men in whom the courage of everlasting life runs still, deep and strong; men who know their message and tell it; men who know their place and fill it; men who know their business and attend to it; men who will not lie, shirk or dodge; men who are not too lazy to work, nor too proud to be poor; men who are willing to eat what they have earned and wear what they have paid for; men who are not ashamed to say "No" with emphasis and who are not ashamed to say "I can't afford it."

TO OVERCOME RADIATOR SCALE

Scale in the radiator can be overcome by mixing a little glycerine with the cooling water. The glycerine should be used in proportions of half a pint to each five gallons of water.

THE SMALLEST MAN

The smallest matured man in the world is Peppino Magro. In the big circus the barker points him out as Baron Paucci, his show-business name.

Magro is 29 years old, but he is only 27 inches tall and weighs only 36 pounds.

Born in Sicily, at the age of 15 he went through the great Messina earthquake. They dug him out from under a pile of bricks and plaster that would have killed any normal man.

His small size saved him. Handicaps frequently are blessings at critical moments.

The man who is afraid of the water because he can't swim is not apt to be drowned. It is the accomplished swimmer, lured by overconfidence, who takes the dangerous chances.

We know a one-armed man who views his handicap so philosophically that in his bluest moments he cheers up and says: "O well, one thing, I can never get my right arm cut off."

---

Peppino Magro, world's smallest man, has about as great a handicap as any one living. And yet his very handicap is his means of livelihood, a sort of blessing in disguise. In September he will become an American citizen, and in applying for naturalization papers he gave his occupation as "exhibiting myself."

Few of us would care to trade places with him and be only 27 inches tall. Many of us consider a shortage of a few inches in our height a misfortune or even an outright handicap.

Peppino, however, takes life jovially. His latest observation—comparing himself with the world about him—is that he will fight Dempsey if Jack will train down to his weight.

Let's keep Peppino in mind and not take our troubles too seriously.

---

It would be, to most of us, a handicap to be the world's smallest man, Peppino Magro. And we would consider it a similar handicap to be Antonin, the French giant, 7 feet 4 inches tall in his bare feet.

In a world of midgets, Peppino would be on an equal footing with all. So would Antonin, in a world of giants.

Handicaps, physically, are handicaps only by comparison with the average of humanity.

It is so with intellect, to some extent. The extremes—genius and sub-normal mentality—simultaneously are of this world and yet not of it. Possibly life is happier when we are normal, just average people. Brilliancy, like inferiority, is born into miseries that the rank and file escape.

In a world of monkeys, better to be a monkey than a superman.

THE CAPITAL OF INTERNATIONALISM

Geneva, the seat of the League of Nations, is the most cosmopolitan city in the world. In the August "Our World" William Atherton Du Puy describes the social life of the thousands of foreigners gathered there. The International Club is the center of their activities.

"Geneva is—despite the tendency of the United States to ignore the fact—becoming the international capital. All the mandated areas are supervised from here. All the treaties come here to be recorded and given to the world. The international difficulties that are being actually worked out, such as the rehabilitation of Austria, the administration of Upper Silesia, the determination of ownership of the Aland Islands, have found their solution here. The attempt of the nations to establish a Permanent Court of International Justice at the Hague, unsuccessful for a generation, was accomplished here. The annual conference of the employers and workers of the world, steadily making progress toward amicable relations, is held here. The Council and the Assembly of the League of Nations, which are coming to be recognized as the most potent agencies—ever set up since time began, functions here.

"All these draw many men from many lands to Geneva. Such visitors have long felt the need of a common meeting place which would provide an opportunity for escaping the melancholy solitude of the four walls of a hotel room. A year ago the plan of a club crystalized.

"There are many American members. James Cox, who lives in Ohio, and sometimes runs for President, was here studying international organization last summer, and joined. Elliott H. Goodwin, Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, is interested in the International Labor Office, and has been here twice. Dr. Manley O. Hudson, who teaches law at Harvard, spends his summers in Geneva. Hamilton Holt often drops in. Dr. Royal Meeker, who used to be head of the Statistical Division of the Department of Labor in Washington, is a resident member."

WORLD COMMERCE PREFERS BOYCOTT TO BAYONET

Carrying out a contract is not as natural as we seem to think, says Arthur Bullard in the August number of "Our World." This respect for the pledged or written contract on which our complex business life is based is the product of an age-long evolution, he points out in "Civilizing World Commerce." It was the Merchants Guilds who forced emperors, kings, and barons to respect the promises they had given them. Unless world commerce can be given guarantees of reasonable security in countries like Mexico, China, Russia and Turkey, it may have to resort to the methods of these early guilds from which it takes its origin.

"If the rulers of Mexico, Russia Turkey and China do not want the commerce of foreigners, it is not only their right to refuse concessions, but they are also in an exceptionally strong position to enforce that right. For the time being at least the great Powers are too exhausted by the War to attempt to impose 'capitulations' on them.

"The controversy with Mexico arose over a clause in the new Mexican Constitution which authorized a repudiation of contracts. The Mexicans have a 'right,' as a sovereign nation, to violate contracts if they want to, but foreigners have just as good a right to make future investments elsewhere—in countries that assure the validity of contracts. There have never been formal capitulations in the case of Mexico, or any of the Latin-American Republics, because when they became nations they accepted the commercial code of the 'civilized' world. When Mexico abrogated that code by this new Constitution, we had to choose between using military force to make her live up to the agreement or resort to the old method of the Hansaetic League and Merchants' Guilds and apply a boycott.

"A tremendous amount of foreign capital has been withdrawn from Mexico since this dispute arose, and a great deal more, which would have gone in, has been deflected elsewhere. We have held the ring and prevented other nations, even if they had been so inclined, from going in with force and compelling respect for the contracts of their citizens. So Mexico is free to choose. She can make laws to suit herself and go her own way alone. Or she can adapt her legal system to that of other nations and travel in company."

GREEN PEPPERS

Sweet green peppers offer an excellent opportunity for the cook to use left-overs attractively and lighten the meat course in hot weather. Be it remembered that meat produces heat and any substitute in the way of milk and eggs is desirable.

Peppers have little food value except as a stimulant to the appetite. They are always acceptable in a vegetable salad as a garnish and to give a piquant touch to the taste.

There is a thin film over the outside of a pepper that is indigestible. This should be removed no matter how the pepper is to be served. Dip in scalding water and slip the skin.

There are many varieties of sweet peppers, but we see the green one oftenest in market. There is a big yellow sweet pepper that is delicious. The flesh is thicker than the green pepper. And the sweet red pepper has a rather spicy flavor lacking in the common green variety. All of these peppers are delicious canned for winter use.

CANNED PEPPERS

Cut slice from stem end of peppers. Remove seeds and white fibre. Cover with boiling water and let stand five minutes. Slip off the thin outer skin. Cover with cold water and let stand until cool. Pack in sterilized jars, add ½ teaspoon salt to a pint, fill jars with boiling water, half seal and boil two hours in hot water bath.

Peppers canned this way can be used during the winter months quite as satisfactorily as fresh ones in the following recipes. These rules are for immediate use in summer menus as meat substitutes.

PEPPERS STUFFED WITH R CE AND CHEESE

Four peppers, 2 tablespoons uncooked rice, ½ cup grated or finely chopped cheese, ¾ cup milk, 1 tablespoon flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon butter.

Let peppers stand in boiling water for five minutes and slip off outer skin. Chill in cold water. Cut slice from stem end and remove seeds and white ribs. Wash rice through several waters. Add slowly, without causing boiling to stop, one quart of rapidly boiling salted water. Boil twenty-five minutes. Drain and blanch in cold water. Melt butter, stir in flour and slowly add milk. Add salt and cook until thick and smooth. Add cheese and rice. Fill peppers with mixture. Stand in a deep baking dish. Surround with one-half nch of water and bake forty-five minutes in a moderate oven.

AND NUTS

Prepare peppers as in preceding rule.

One cup nut meats, 1 cup cooked rice, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 egg, milk.

Beat egg slightly. Add nuts, rice, salt and parsley. Mix thoroughly and add milk to make moist. Fill peppers with mixture. Bake as in preceding recipe. Left-over meat can be used in place of nuts and dried bread crumbs in place of rice.

MACARONI

Four peppers, 2 onions, 1 cup macaroni, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 tablespoon flour, 1½ cups milk, 1 teaspoon salt.

Cook macaroni in rapidly boiling salted water for twenty minutes. Drain and blanch in cold water. Parboil peppers and slip outer skin. Cut slice from stem end and remove seeds and white fiber. Cut in slices one-fourth inch thick. Make a white sauce of the butter, flour, milk and salt. Put a layer of macaroni in a buttered baking dish. Add a layer of peppers and sliced onions and cover with white sauce. Add another layer of macaroni, then a layer of peppers and onions and the remaining sauce. Cover with macaroni, dot with bits of butter and bake half an hour in a moderate oven.

CABBAGE

Cabbage is one of the best foods on the market. Use it often and reduce the high cost of living as well as the doctor's bill.

It is rich in iron and contains sulphur and phosphorus to a beneficial degree. Raw cabbage is not hard to digest.

After shredding or chopping cabbage let it stand in cold salt water for an hour or longer. Drain and rinse in clear cold water. Drain for half an your before seasoning.

CHOPPED CABBAGE

Two cups chopped cabbage, 2 sweet peppers, ½ teaspoon celery seed, ½ teaspoon mustard seed, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons brown sugar, 4 tablespoons vinegar.

Chop cabbage and peppers very fine. Mix and let stand in a covered dish on ice for an hour. At the same time mix remaining ingredients and let stand. When ready to serve combine mixtures and use at once.

OUR FAVORITE CABBAGE

Two cups shredded cabbage, 2 teaspoons celery seed, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon sugar, 3 rablespoons vinegar, 6 tablespoons oil, paprika.

Put cabbage in mixing bowl and mix well with dry seasoning. Add vinegar and oil and beat well. Sprinkle with paprika and serve.

COLD SLAW

One-half medium-sized head cabbage, 1 cup sour cream, 3 teaspoons sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup vinegar.

Shred cabbage very fine and put in mixing bowl. Sprinkle with sugar and salt and bruise slightly. Have cream and vinegar very cold. Add sugar and salt and beat until stiff, keeping very cold. Mix well with cabbage and serve at once.

CABBAGE SALAD

Two cups shredded cabbage, 1 sour apple, ¼ cup English walnut meats, 1 tablespoon powdered sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons vinegar, 4 tablespoons oil.

Mix cabbage and chop apple with sugar and salt. Add vinegar, mixing thoroughly. Add oil and beat well with a fork. Arrange on salad plates and sprinkle with chopped nuts.

MY ROAD

If I could find a little road,
A happy little, winding road,
Away up in the hills.
With hemlock trees o'ershadowing it,
And flecks of sunlight gladdening it,
And clear, brown, chuckling rills,
I'd give my very life to it,
The joyous, luring thrill of it,
Clean swept with fragrant air,
I'd break my bread with humble souls,
My creed the gypsy's glowing coals,
The evening star my prayer.

WORLD NO LONGER THRILLS TO TALES RUSSIAN CRITICS.

The Real Truth About Russia Does Not Now Attract Much Attention When Published.

RIGA, Aug. 14 (Associated Press).—Latvia has ceased to be the sole gateway to Russia for investigators from all over the world. Berlin is now the chief diving board for politicians, educators, concession chasers and relief workers who are about to plunge into red Russia. Many of them go by aeroplane. Some travel from Berlin to Moscow by way of Warsaw, and others enter through Finland and Esthonia. But most of the foreign visitors emerge from Russia through Riga. They are British, American and German, with a sprinkling of Italians, Czechs and Scandinavians.

Visitors coming out of Moscow in breathless haste to tell the world "the real truth" about Russia are much surprised, frequently, to find that their hurried observations do not attract much attention. Since the beginning of international relief work in famine-stricken Russia there has been such a large number of visitors that it is no novelty for Riga to have scores of passengers out of Russia in a single day, and diplomats and journalists are well-sated with the narratives of enthusiasts who expect the world to be surprised that they were not killed.

It is no longer novel to hear that the opera in Moscow is the most "wonderful in all the world"; that the soviet government is "more securely established than any in Europe;" that Moscow "is a safer place to be than New York City," and that "illiteracy has been stamped out in the red army." The statement that "perfectly clean sleeping cars are operated between Moscow and Petrograd and between Moscow and Riga," also has lost its novelty.

Correspondents who have been listening for two years to the tales of visitors to Russia, who have spent a few days in the great Russian cities, know exactly what most of them will say. If they disclosed their sympathy with Bolshevism before they entered, they generally come out with words of high praise. If they were critical before they went in, they are generally more critical when they come out. In other words, the week-enders in Russia generally have their minds made up before they go in, and their statements on emerging are about as monotonous as oft-repeated phonograph rolls.

Of course, there are many visitors to Russia who remain there for a considerable time and give thought and study to the situation. These usually have little to say when they go in and less when they come out. They generally are not in politics; they are not about to take the stump on the Russian question, and they are not rushing into print with their views on every phase of the Russian situation.

SAWDUST IN WOOD-TURNING FACTORY GAVE PLANT WIZARD TO WORLD.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17—Sawdust in a wood-turning factory where Luther Burbank was working, together with the death of his father, were responsible for the Plant Wizard's taking up plant breeding.

The dust in the factory impaired Burbank's health so that he had to give up that work and turn to gardening and fruit growing on his father's farm. He was twenty-one years of age at that time. Shortly afterwards he developed the Burbank potato.

Attracted by the reports of the great fertility of California soil and the mildness of the climate, Burbank sold his personal property and set out for the Pacific Coast with a small capital and ten Burbank potatoes. The soil and climate were all he hoped for, but his finances were low. It was necessary for him to work as a carpenter during the day so as to be able to devote the long evening house to the preparation of a small nursery on a few acres of rented land.

For the last sixty years, Burbank has worked on an average of ten hours a day. His labors have been well repaid. He has experimented with practically every tree, fruit and vegetable. He has made the cactus shed its spine; the prune to become larger and sweeter; the cherry to ripen earlier; the walnut to thin its shell, and the calla-lily to give forth fragrance.

In his unassuming way, Luther Burbank relates in The Mentor for August, the story of his life with fruits and flowers.

The poor politician has to endure it through life, and when he reads of his mistake and the use which is made of it he knows he will never hear the end of it."

ABRAHAM CAHAN, editor of the Jewish Daily Forward (New York) in an address to the Socialist Party of America convention: "The psychology of the people of the United States is different from that of the people of Europe. The American worker has no idea of the meaning of class consciousness. So we find that the British worker calls himself a member of the proletariat, while the American worker does not consider himself a proletarian. The American worker considers himself as good as his next door neighbor. He thinks he has a chance to become governor, or that he may make $5,000,000 out of some kind of graft. It's ingrained in them and you can't get it out of them."

FLOYD E. THOMPSON, Chief Justice of the Illinois Supreme Court, in a court decision: "History teaches that human liberty cannot be secured unless there is freedom to express grievances."

C. FRANK SCHWEP in Compressed Air Magazine: "It is difficul: to lay down any set rules for purchasing. 'How to buy' is an art that can not be taught. It must be learned by practice. Proficiency depends on experience, judgment and intuition. So many factors enter into purchasing problems that only by elimination can we find the element that carry weight."

W. R. INGE, Dean of St. Paul's, London, in an address: "The expectation of a 'new world' after the war' was one of the illusions which had to be dispelled. Human nature and inhuman nature both remain unchanged, and they are our masters."

J. GEORGE FREDERICK in Popular Finance: "In 1770 an Englishman, Priestly, made the trivial discovery that Heve (the name the French had given it) would erase pencil marks—and the great material of the century was christened rubber for life. Erasers were the only use that the clever European nations could think of for rubber for over a century."

JAMES HARVEY ROBINSON in the American Magazine: "Each of us is great in so far as we perceive and act on the infinite possibilities which lie undiscovered and unrecognized about us."

H. A. OVERSTREET, in the Standard: "There is a little book of Charles Francis Adams' which ought to be in the hands of every boy or girl who studies American history. It is the thin volume entitled: 'Massachusetts: Its Historians and Its History.' In this little volume Adams tears into shreds and tatters the veil of reverence that American historians before his time had woven for the purpose of covering up the cruel intolerances of the Puritan commonwealth. No better text could be used as a source book of historical examples of logical fallacies committed in all sincerity and in all tragic blindness."

OILY BRAKE BANDS REDUCE EFFICIENCY

Escape of Lubricant From Differential Housing Common Fault

It is important to prevent the escape of lubricant from the differential housing, because it will accumulate on the brakes and reduce their efficiency. While it is difficult to overcome leakage due to an excessive supply, if reasonable precaution is taken in reassembling the axle, the housing may be made leak-proof

Leakage is usually caused by worn felt washers in the stuffing box which is intended to form the lubricant seal. It is advisable, therefore, to replace the felt washers and other worn parts of the lubricant seal when differential repairs are being made.

Owing to the importance of this feature the slightest amount of wear evident will justify replacement of the parts. The shaft on which the parts bear should be smooth so that it will not wear the seal away and cause the leak to appear again.

The above covers the principal troubles which may arise in the differential; however, there are others which may also cause excessive wear in the gears and bearings. 'The most serious of these is a sprung axle housing, which has a tendency to cramp the bearings and distort the gears, causing rapid wear. Another trouble experienced with semi-floating axles is due to loose wheel bearings. When the car skids or strikes an obstacle in the road a severe end thrust is frequently transmitted to the differential and bearings. The same condition may also arise in this type of axle if the shafts do not abut at the centre of the axle. It is considered good practice with this type to so fit the shafts that shocks are transmitted from one wheel to the other through the middle of the axle without engaging the differential housing. Shafts of three-quarter or full floating axles are not supposed to abut.

Many People Report Big Gains In Weight

Thousands Of Thin, Frail People Are Restored To Health and Gain Rapidly in Weight by Taking Tanlac.

One of the most noteworthy features in connection with the introduction of Tanlac, and one that stands out more prominently than any other, perhaps, is the very large number of well-known men and women from all parts of the country who have recently reported an astonishing and rapid increase in weight as a result of its use.

When so many well-known people of unquestioned integrity make statement and statement, each corroborating the other, the truth of such statements can no longer be doubted.

Thousands have testified that this famous medicine has completely restored them to health and strength after other medicines have failed.

BAD HEALTH ENDED GAINS 37 POUNDS

"Tanlac not only ended seven years of nervous dyspepsia for me but built me up thirty-seven pounds and I never enjoyed better health than I do now," recently said Mrs. Gertrude Lupson, 286 Rideout St., London, Ont.

"When I began taking Tanlac I had suffered so much I was merely a skeleton of my former self. I trembled like a leaf and was so weak I had to have help in caring for my children. I took Tanlac on the recommendation of my druggist and four bottles restored me to splendid health. Although that was four years ago I have not spent a penny for medicine since."

MONTREAL CITIZEN GAINS 18 POUNDS

Armand Grenier, 250 Marquette St., Montreal, Que., says:

"Dyspepsia had me in such awful condition I scarcely dared eat at all. Once I thought the gas on my stomach was going to smother me in spite of everything I could do. Dieting and medicines seemed to do no good, but when I got hold of Tanlac it was no time before I was again in tip-top health. The medicine also built me up eighteen pounds."

HAMILTON RESIDENT GAINS 34 POUNDS

"I am enjoying good health for the first time in fifteen years," states Mrs. Bella Young, 98 Cathcart St., Hamilton, Ont. "The last year of my sickness I was near a nervous breakdown. I could hardly eat a thing, got so weak I could hardly stoop to lace my shoes and headaches and backache nearly drove me frantic. Tanlac built me up everywhere so that my friends all wonder at the change. I haven't a sign of my old troubles left, gained thirty-four pounds and am the picture of health."

ROY EDWARDS REPORTS GAIN

Roy Edwards, 295 Richmond St., London, Ont., said regarding his experience with Tanlac: "I was so thin, pale, weak and discouraged I lost all interest in life. Eating always caused me awful pains in my stomach and it seemed like I was growing worse at the time. Tanlac built me up sixteen pounds and now I eat anything on the table and feel fine. My wife also took Tanlac for stomach trouble with fine results."

LONDON RESIDENT GAINS 24 POUNDS

"I was on the verge of a complete breakdown," says Mrs. Alice Harbach 26 Dundas St. W., London, Ont. "Many days I could not eat a thing. I suffered from piercing headaches, and at night it seemed I heard the clock strike every hour. Tanlac restored my health completely and built me up 24 pounds. It should be in every home."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists. Take no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

No. 4—NIFTY NIPPER DISAPPEARS

Nifty Nipper was digging a hole.

"Oh, dear, my troubles are not at an end yet," said King Snookums of the Pee Wees.

'What's wrong now?' asked Nancy.

"Why, do you know," said Snookums wagging his finger at her, 'last night another Pee Wee disappeared. It was Nifty Nipper.

"Nifty Niper!" exclaimed Nick. "Well, I should think you'd be glad to get rid of him. All the Pee Wees were afraid of him and say he should be kept in jail."

'It's too late now," sighed Snookums. "And as you say, it certainly would be good riddance to bad rubbish to have him out of the road, but when he went something else went with him. The state treasury, consisting of three good pennies and one plugged nickel, has been robbed. Now we're bankrupt."

"How awful!" cried Nancy. "But he couldn't have gone on a fightning bug, could he? So much money could be too heavy for him to carry."

"No," said King Snookums. "We have evidence that he hitched it onto a brown, fuzzy caterpillar and drove off. We found the tracks and bits of fur. He went in the direction of the big mud bank beside the lily pond."

"Oh," don't you worry," comforted Nancy. "Nick 'n' I will find him. See how little we can make ourselves in these magic shoes. We'll follow him and he won't see us coming and we will find out all about him."

"Thank you," said King Snookums. "I hope you will. We need the money to pave some new roads.'

Away went the Twins over twigs and through weeds until they came to the mud bank. Then they crept along and along and along. Then they heard digging and then they saw something.

Nifty Nipper was digging a hole. Right beside him was the money.

"Hi there. Come on and help!" he called when he saw them.

'You're arrested,' said Nick, "for stealing."

Nifty looked awfully surprised "Why, I'm only putting it in a bank," he said. Isn't a bank the safest place for money?"

To this day nobody knows whether he meant it or not.

Mrs. Snookums.

"There's another of my subjects missing," said King Snookums to Nancy and Nick.

"Who is it now?" asked Nancy.

"It's my wife,' 'said King Snookums sadly. "Missus Snookums. I mean Queen Snookums. That is what we quarreled about. I wanted her to have Missus Snookums on her calling cards and she insisted on having Queen Snookums. I am sorry as anything that I didn't let her have her own way."

"But I didn't know queens ever called," said Nancy.

"They do," nodded King Snookums. 'On other queens. Well, anyway, she's gone."

"Oh, don't worry, we'll find her. Haven't we found all your other mising subjects?" Nancy wanted to know. "Didn't we find your lord high chancellor sticking in the icing on a cake and another Pee Wee sticking on the fly paper, and—"

"Yes, yes, yes!" said the king. "Oh, yes indeed! But they weren't my wife. When she gets insulted she stays insulted for six months and ten days and twenty-seven minutes. Why she was so cross she put on her best riding suit and sent to the stable for her fastest fly and off she rode. Oh, oh, I'll never see her again—at least for six months and ten days and twenty-seven minutes."

"Shucks!" said Nancy. 'Come on, Nick. We'll find her."

They looked everywhere, so they did, in every squirrel hole and in every bird nest but one.

That one had a robin on it—just sitting there—and when the Twins came along she called out:

"Someone tried to pluck one of my tail feathers. I'm sitting on her."

"Oh, please let me out," came a muffled voice. "I only wanted one feather for a hat."

"Why, it's Missus Snookums," said Nancy "If we let you out will you get over being insulted and go home"

"Yes, yes, yes!"

"You'd better get up," said Nick to the robin. "You're sitting on a queen."

SEEN ON THE SCREEN

(By ROBERT A. DONALDSON)

LOS ANGELES, Aug 17—Eric Von Stroheim, noted Austrian director, has completed more than two months work in San Francisco and vicinity on 'Greed,' the name under which Frank Norris' novel, "McTague" is being produced by Goldwyn's

Fidelity to detail has been carried out by Von Stroheim, many of the scenes having been filmed at spots where they were supposed to have occurred in the bay city

The story had been brought down to date as to time This was made necessary in order to take many of the scenes in San Francisco While the cable cars were stressed in the Norris story as a part of the local color, Van Stroheim has substituted electric cars, because he found it practically impossible to carry out the cable car scenes without reproducing them in the studio Although San Francisco still has her cable cars, street conditions along these lines have changed so greatly that the scenes could not be located along the same streets as in the story

The story centers around life on Polk street, but this street has built up greatly since Norris wrote the story in 1900, and is now a busy thoroughfare with an electric car line Hence the actual pictures of the Polk street scenes were taken about a mile further out in the city, in an old district with bay-windowed wooden houses of the kind indigenous to San Francisco The houses are of pre-fire and pre-earthquake origin Many of the scenes are with the bay, the [illegible], and the City Hall as background

Otherwise the story has practically not been changed at all Those who have seen pre-views of many of the scenes already taken predict it will be one of the most powerful pictures of the year

* * *

Rosemary Theby, an old time favorite who was going strong in the days when the movies were young, is setting a unique record with her present role in Jackie Cougan's "Long Live the King" It is her 500th characterization for the screen

None of the younger movie players will hope to touch this record for many years It was made possible through her membership, from 1911 to 1913, in the old Vitagraph and Lubin stock companies, in the days when a two-reeler was a feature production and every player on the lot worked in every picture made—as an extra, a bit player, a character actor, or a lead Two or three, or more pictures a week were made by the old stock companies

* * *

Betsy Ruth Miller, one of the younger favorites of filmdom, has been engaged to play the ingenue lead in Victor Seastrom's production of "The Master of Men" adapted from the Hall Caine novel The title has the same still be changed for the movie production

Mae Busch is to play the dramatic lead, and the talented Swedish actor, Joseph Schildkraut, will play the male lead

EVENTS OF INTEREST

SNOW

One steam shovel and three five-ton trucks remove as much snow as can be handled by 50 men and 10 teams, according to Engineering News-Record. The man-power method cost $265, the mechanical way $127, last winter in Hartford, Conn.

When machinery can do for $127 the work that costs $265 when performed chiefly by human labor, men naturally are out of jobs. But they soon find new ones.

Labor-saving machinery temporarily injures the people whose jobs it takes. But the man-power thus released becomes available for effort in new fields. This is the process by which our standard of living gradually rises.

GONE

Two bone harpoons, notched like saws, were lost 20,000 years ago in an English peat bog which preserved them until discovered recently.

These harpoons belonged to Maglemose men who walked from Denmark to England. In those days—according to the anthropological journal, Man—the North Sea was dry.

Since then, geography has changed and so have men. Some philosopher said that nothing is eternal except change. But let's forget the ancients. Pondering them too intently is apt to make us wonder if effort is futile. The only effort that is not futile is the improvement of self. That's our life purpose.

WALL PAPER

The Pullman car works in Chicago has been making dining cars decorated with wall paper. The idea is to give each car a little variety of personal touch. It's a reaction from the monotony of standardization.

A traveling salesman, writing us about one of these cars, says he found it more interesting than the World Court, the Harding trip to Alaska or the election of Magnavox Johnson. People are most interested in the simple details (routine equipment) of life.

NOW

Everything has its good side even a heat wave. A life insurance company finds that the death rate decreases almost a third in July, August and September.

These three are not the healthiest months of the year. Their death rate is low because people take better care of themselves in summer than in winter—eat less, dress properly and get fresh air. Health is nine-tenths up to ourselves, one-tenth controlled externally. Our death rate is highest in winter. But the healthiest people in the world are Eskimos, who spend most of their lives outdoors in winter.

FIRST

A factory in Strong, Maine, gets an order by radio from Japan for a carload of toothpicks. Few of us realize that the radio is primarily an invention of immense practical value, rather than a scientific toy for our entertainment. It is not improbable that at some future date radio will be the chief means of communication. It may even surpass speech when air planes scatter population.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

MERCY.

Editor Examiner: Dear Sir — I know that you will agree with me that the word "mercy" is a wonderful word, too full of meaning to be comprehended all at once. It is like a great ray of sunshine finding its way into a condemned heart shrouded in inky darkness, whose presence makes the tears fall like rain when it beams upon a sinner condemned to die. I was thinking of the power of the quality of mercy early this morning as my mind reflected on the sad and pathetic condition of the young lad, George King of whom I read in the Examiner last evening, who was found guilty of the murder of his sweetheart. In pleading for mercy towards this young man I do not forget the suffering and agony of the slain girl's parents; I only sense that the sufferings of the guilty one is greater than theirs. Guilty! yes, in the eyes of the law—a murderer, but let those of us who are without sin throw the first stone. I have known scores of folks more guilty than he, yet who have escaped the law by the skin of their teeth.

There is a great difference between those who commit crime because they are naturally hard-hearted and those who are provoked greatly, and whose sense of justice has been outraged, couple with this an undeveloped mind and an intense and passionate nature and you have the young man before mentioned.

Those of us who think at all know that we are all guilty creatures in the sight of God, every day, but looking up through it all we see the "Angel of Mercy," the man Christ Jesus, who died in our place, and whose love in that act appeals and saves us from dellberate sin, and now as the hymn says, "We are free from the law, Oh, happy condition. Jesus has died and htere is remission." Ma ythis truth reach every heart with its healing, redeeming power, and make us who have received mercy and been forgiven, much "merciful." What was it Paul said in one of his epistles in his persuasive eloquence. He ends up like this: "Oh, the depths of the riches, both of the wisdom and knowledge of God, how unsearchable are His judgments, and His ways are past finding out. He hath concluded us all in unbelief that he might have mercy on all." Oh angel with outspread wings, how much we owe thee! How thy presence has softened us and won one heart, and now we beseach thee to overspread they wings about the condemned head, and lift his guilt from off him, that weighs him down like lead.

I send this little letter forth thro' the press, hoping it will make its own appeal to those in authorty.

Thanking you in ati ipation of your favor, yours very truly.

M. BURTON.

"THE PRINCE OF LIARS"

Of all the imposters who had duped the world the most famous are probably Count Cagliostro, "The Prince of Liars," and the mysterious nameless personage to whom historical records refer simply as "Psalmanazar"—a strange character who blazed across the European firmament during the early part of the eighteenth century and then disappeared before the world had succeeded in solving the riddle of his identity.

Psalmanazar's first appearance was at Landau, France, where his unusual conduct led to his imprisonment as a spy, the authorities being unable to account for his actions on any other ground save that he was in the pay of some foreign government. But, after giving satisfactory proofs of his innocence, Psalmanazar continued his travels, informing all who would listen that he was a native of the south of France, educated at a university which he would not mention and travelling under a name which was palpably assumed. At various times he posed as an Irish theological student, a Japanese who had been converted to Christianity, a persecuted Irish Catholic, a pagan Japanese who lived on roots and herbs to which he attributed his magic powers and, finally, the native of an unknown Eastern country with a strange language which read from right to left, like Hebrew. The name Psalmanazar, it afterward developed, was derived from that of Shalmaneser, the Assyrian prince mentioned in the second Book of Kings.

The extraordinary language and the even more extraordinary actions of "the stranger," as he came to be known throughout France and England, attracted the attention of the Governor of Sluys, who enlisted the services of William Innes, chaplain of a Scotch regiment, in the conduct of an investigation of Psalmanazar's claims. Innes, though convinced of the prisoner's impostures, came to the conclusion that he was a native of Formosa or Taiwan, an island off the coast of China, and, upon bringing the case to the attention of the Bishop of London, was directed to conduct the stranger to the British capital.

It was in 1703 that Psalmanazar arrived in London, where he presented Bishop Compton with a translation of the Church of England catechism in his "native Formosan," the language which he had invented, together with a complete grammar and set of rules. At the time, however, there chanced to be in London a Jesuit missionary who had travelled extensively through China and who challenged the authenticity of Psalmanazar's statements. The latter offered to meet the Jesuit in a joint debate before the Royal Society, where his manner and his "facts" were so convincing that even the learned members of the Society were unable to decide which of the speakers was telling the truth. Those who sought to trip Psalmanazar with catch questions received replies which made them the laughing-stock of the gathering, and, before long, the stranger was invited to many of the leading houses of Great Britain, the Earl of Pembroke standing sponsor for the truth of his assertions, while Bishop Compton himself paid for a tuition at Oxford in order that the "Formosan" might teach his language to missionaries who were to be dispatched to the Far East

The cult of Psalmanazar became the rage throughout England, in spite of the fact that its exponent declared that he considered it no crime to eat human flesh, "though," he admitted, "it might not be considered the best of form." However, when Chaplain Innes, who appears to have been the guiding spirit of "the stranger" in his impostures, was made Chaplain-General of the English forces in Portugal, Psalmanazar began to slip from the high place which he had occupied and it was not long before he was reduced to the level of a hack writer, though he also served for a time as a tutor and as a painter of fans. During the late years of his life he produced a vast amount of saleable material, including a number of essays on biblical subjects, an exhaustive "Universal History" and a new edition of the Psalms.

It was during this period of his life that Smollet referred to him as "a rather pathetic figure who, after having drudged for half a century in the literary mill, now subsists upon the charity of a few booksellers." On May 3, 1763, Psalmanazar died at his house in Ironmonger Row, and after his death, according to the instructions in his will, there was published the "Memoirs of ———, Commonly Known as 'Psalmanazar'." But nowhere in these nor in any of the incidents connected with his long life is there the slightest clue to the real identity of the man of mystery who successfully hoaxed a continent for more than half a century.

The above joke, from the London Mail, comes very close to summing up the European situation

STRAWBERRY LEAF SPOTS

(Experimental Farms Note)

Perhaps the most common of thep strawberry diseases is the so-called leaf spot. In this district this disease is generally found wherever strawberries are grown. In some localities very little damage is done to the crop, but in others whole plantations have been completely destroyed. As with all other fungal diseases, the severity of the attack depends to a large extent on the vagaries of the weather man.

The Leaf Spot first becomes apparent in the field as small reddish or purplish discolorations on the leaf, but with the progress of the disease these circular spots rapidly enlarge, the central portion becomes greyish in color, while the remainder of the spot shades through a reddish brown to the margin, which remains purple. This is a very striking leaf spot. Occasionally these circulas spots fall out, giving the leaf a shothole appearance. On severely affected leaves these spots may coalesce to such an extent that irregular blotches practically cover the entire surface of the leaflet. Similar lesions also occur on the other susceptible parts of the plant.

Another leaf spot, perhaps not so common in some districts, is the so-called leaf scorch. The leaf scorch, in the early spring, appears as small irregular purple blotches not unlike the early stages of leaf spot. Later these spots enlarge and coalesce much the same as in the case of leaf spot, forming irregular blotches which often cover the entire surface of the leaflets. The central portion of the spot, or blotch, however, remains dark in color, and this characteristic gives us a ready means of distinguishing these two leaf spot diseases. As this disease progresses all the leaves of a plant take on a dry, burned appearance. Lesions occur not only on the leaves, but also on the petiole and fruit pedicel, where frequently sunken lesions are formed which girdle and sometimes kill these parts.

As a result of the attack of both these fungal diseases, the foliage is impaired and the vitality of the plant greatly weakened. In severe cases the leaves are so affected that the plants die. In any case the plant is weakened and the next year's crops suffers as a consequence. When the fruit pedicels are affected, the berries never mature, but become seedy and worthless.

These diseases are rapidly spread during the growing season by the spores which are developed on the lesions of the affected parts, and are wind borne from diseased to healthy plants, thus setting up new infection in the patch. This accounts for the necessity throughout the summer of repeated sprayings in badly diseased patches.

Control

These two diseases are controlled by the same operations. When the first symptoms of either leaf spot or leaf scorch (small purple discolorations) have been noted in the patch, spray immediately with a 4-4-40 Bordeaux mixture. It will be generally necessary to continue these sprayings every two or three weeks during the season. The following season, spray with the same mixture before the blossoms open, and again after the fruit is picked. To obtain good yields from a strawberry patch, the leaves must be kept free from these two diseases, and if the above spray calendar is carried out faithfully a good, clean strawberry patch will result. Generally after the second crop the plants are ploughed under.

When setting out a new patch, never use plants which show symptoms of either of these diseases. A new patch should be sprayed every two or three weeks during the first season. The following seasons two sprays only should be necessary, one before the blossoms open, the other after the fruit has been picked.

AND SHE NEVER BOUGHT A THING!

A woman in Hamilton, Ont., had a wardrobe extensive enough to meet the acquirements of a dozen or more of her neighbours. But she didn't split it up with them. She never paid cash and she had no charge account, police say. Now shes being held on a shoplifting charge. Articles merchants say she stole from them filled every nook in the court room. Here they are

The CRESSMAN Company Limited

AUGUST SALES

BUSINESS is a Pleasure—at least that's what we try to make it realizing that we will only get as much pleasure as we give; that the one real way to make our business a pleasure is to make it pleasant for the buyer of merchandise to trade with us. We consider the ability of our employees to give pleasure along every purchase made the most precious commodity within the store and yet there is none we more willingly sell to our patrons. Among our richest possessions we count the pleasure that has been given us by the good people of Peterborough and district.

Blue-Bird Lingerie Crepes, 49c

Oh! those soft dainty colorings and pretty blue bird patterns that are absolutely fast in color, and just think, no ironing! That is enough in itself to make a person want all their underthings fashioned from this fabric. Colors are blue, maize, and helio, with patterns; also plain colors of pink, blue and mauve. 30 inches wide.

STREET FLOOR.

Double Bed Width Bleached Sheeting, 59c

It would not be at all surprising to see this 72-inch Full-Bleached Sheeting sell out tomorrow morning. Extraordinary is the only word that describes this value. So people who would like to share in this event will make their plans to be here as early as possible.

STREET FLOOR.

36 inch Curtain Scrim, 19c Yard

A firm, durable curtain fabric with fresh and dainty patterns, 36 inches wide, with fancy open-work edge. Women who pay particular attention to the neatness of their rooms should take advantage of this Sale.

THIRD FLOOR.

ONE DAY SALE OF "Niagara Maid," "London Lady," "Penman's," "Knitwell"

Pure Thread Silk Hose $1.48 Pr., 2 Prs. $2.85

Women who are familiar with Cressman Hosiery Events are going to be up and scurrying to our Store early tomorrow morning. Plenty of plain shades that women want for fall—black, white, brown, grey and navy. Every pair guaranteed perfect and of pure silk thread. Elastic ribbed tops in some shades.

The CRESSMAN Company Limited

45-Inch Curtain Nets, 39c Yard

It is far more sensible to buy new curtains than to fuss with old ones. Every window can take on a more cheerful aspect if one does their buying here. This Net is 45 inches wide. The lot consists of Scalloped and Bordered Nets in double thread quality. White, ivory and ecru are the shades.

THIRD FLOOR.

Discontinued Lines of Linoleun Rugs

Linoleum in the kitchen, the breakfast room or porch—it will do extremely well most anywhere. It is labor-saving since it may be washed up so quickly. The patterns are clear cut and its colors as firm after long use as when purchased. Its texture is quite dependable. It will be to your own advantage to secure new floor coverings Saturday.

Curtain Rods, 48 inch Extention, 19c and 38c

Now that you have your drapes, what do you intend hanging them on? These popular Flat Rods with curved ends, made extra sturdy and have 48-inch extension, are as good as one could buy, and then they are reduced.

Single Rod sells for 19c.

The Double Rod at 38c.

THIRD FLOOR.

Black Patent Strap Shoes $5.00

You can just imagine how neat they look when we tell you they have grey buck trimmings and Cuban and flat heels. Perhaps you prefer an Oxford, or a four-eyelet, tongueless Oxford with military heels—they're on Sale, too. Regular $8.75 and $9.00. Every size from 3 to 7 in the lot.

Do Not Forget

Do not forget our Ladies' Shoe Shine stand adjoining our Women's Shoe Department. Drop in any time and you are assured of the best service. All kinds of Shoes dyed promptly and properly.

SECOND FLOOR.

Women's White Canvas Sport Oxfords, $2.75

These are fashionable Shoes. Styles that are being worn right now. They have rubber soles and heels. Some 2-Strap Slippers. Some are trimmed with a touch of black, others in plain white. Clearing at $2.75.

White Duck and Talma Cloth Slippers $3.75

Every Shoe has a turned sole and covered heels. Plain duck and Talma cloth lasts, with Cuban, baby Louis and high Louis heels. About seventy-five pairs to clear Saturday.

Whims of the Mode

Circular

effects either in the shape of flounces, godets or tiers in apron effect strike the dominant note in the fall silhouette. Even cuffs show a circular flare and these fashion features belong to coats as well as suits.

The Waistline Is Out of the Argument

There will be no more differences of opinion as to whether the dropped or normal waistline is preferred, for Fashion has pledged herself to no waistline at all and leaves its whereabouts to your imagination. Beltless is the rule of the new frocks with a bit of fullness inserted at the sides.

Fashion Uses Bows to Many Ends

She places them where it best strikes her fancy and that is in many places. On the hip first to hold up circular draperies, in the back also to make a bustle bow. A bow on the shoulder is another of her vanities, as is the one which gives an Indo-Chinese effect when placed in the centre front of frocks.

Women's Pink Balbriggan Step Ins, 37c

If you have bought either of these before you'll have some idea as to what remarkable values they are. This announcement that they go on Sale tomorrow at a price far below the former cost will be a signal for those who are on the alert to purchase a season's supply. They're from the Oxford, Moodie and Watson Mills. Practically all are perfect —a few only classed as mill repaired seconds.

Consider the Beach Lily!

(By HEDDA HOYT)

NEW YORK, N. Y., Aug. 17 (United Press).—Consider the lily of the beach
She toils not—neither does she swim.

At every beach we find them—these lilies of the beach! Their complexions are as white as the foam of the sea. Lo! They parch not and peel not, but wax fat on the sands under enormous umbrellas. Be the sun's rays too bright, they are goggled in amber lenses. What sun penetrates through their sunshades hits not flesh, but layers of powder.

It was rumored last season that Zeigfield offered a prize to the Follies girl who went through the season without becoming disfigured by sunburn. It may be that the vogue for sun-protection started in this way.

Quite the most astounding sight that I have witnessed this year on the beaches was a "beach lily" done up in a brown batik frock, which had a high-lace-trimmed neck and long skin-tight sleeves. Her parasol hid her mether portions from view and I presumed that she was dressed for the day, so to speak. When suddenly, without warning, she leisurely lifted her parasol displaying two of the brownest bare legs that I have ever seen. The incongruity of the bather's legs and the Fifth Avenue "upper" was amazing.

Real Bathing Suit

Of course, there have been all sorts of lovely bathing suits introduced this season ranging from silk batiks and velvets to simple little ginghams and printed linens. But the real swimmers are still wearing and will continue to wear the jersey suit as it permits complete freedom for swimming. Vacation girls find it preferable to all other types of suits and since the ban on the one-piece has been lifted at most resorts, the woman who goes in for swimming as a sport need have no qualms about wearing what she pleases.

Certainly the one-piece, designed for swimming purposes, is less conspicuous and shocking than the long-sleeved, high-necked frock which ends at the hips, boldly displaying naked limbs for no apparent reason.

Double rubber caps with the chin-strap a-* quite the best sort for the swimmer. One cannot really enjoy the water with ends of batik and bandana handkerchiefs flowing in the foam. Even the girl with the permanent wave hesitates a bit before getting her hair wet as continual applications of cold water tend to eliminate the curl.

Coin in Bathing Suits

Rubber upper-arm bracelets for swimming have tiny pockets in which small change may be kept. They come in very handy, as it isn't always easy to get back to one's locker for change and popcorn and peanuts taste mighty good after a long swim.

The newest bathing shoes are made in sandal effect, with soles of heavy chamois and uppers of white canvas. Straps of colored leather are used as a trim and as a support to the foot and ankle. Often a beach shoe of this kind extends half way to the knee. The all-rubber sbeach shoe is pretty in its bright colors but unless the beach is free of broken glass and stones, it is inadvisable to wear a rubber-soled shoe.

K. OF C. SHOWS A BIG MEMBERSHIP INCREASE

MONTREAL, Aug. 17 (United Press)—The membership of the Knights of Columbus showed a gross increase of 75,793 for the year 1922-23, Supreme Secretary William McGinley of New York, stated in his report to the forty-first supreme convention of the Knights, which formally opened here today. A new state jurisdiction was added to the sixty already existing in Canada, Newfoundland, the United States and its possession, Cuba and Mexico—that of Manitoba. Eighty-five new councils were formed, making 2331 in all.

The report shows that financially the K. of C. enjoyed an unusually prosperous year, two assessments on the entire in surance membership of the organization of 227,936 being waived. The associate membership is approximately 560,000.

Insurance Increased

Total insurance of $247,800,353.33 was in force by the K. of C. on its membership on June 30, 1923, the reports show, the increase for the year being nearly five and a half millions. There were 5,542 deaths in the order during the past twelve months. The total assets of the order have reached the unprecedented figure of $17,133,-914.96, exclusive of all special funds. For death benefits to beneficiaries of members the K. of C. paid out $1,516,-829.05 during the year. The order is officially rated by independent insurance examiners as 125 per cent solvent, believed to be the highest rating ever attained by a fraternal organization.

The report was made following a vigorous declaration by Supreeff? Knight James A. Flaherty that the K. of C. would not in future be patient with those who challenged the order's integrity. He declared that the principal activities lying before the K. of C. during the next year were the maintenance of their vast educational work for ex-service men and the institution of a national K. of C. correspondence school to the 800,000 members of the order at cost. The national free correspondence school for war veterans should be continued as well as the maintenance of the K. of C. hospitalization work in jmore than 400 institutions containing more than 30,000 disabled men. He recommended practical work for boys, on which a K. of C. committee will report regarding the formation of a junior Knight's movement; the intensive conduct of the Knights' Italian welfare program, under the auspices of the Vatican, and the maintenance of activity against extreme radicalism and religious bigotry.

NUT

A business man in Italy said: "You have shut out our wines by prohibition, you have shut out our oranges, our lemons, our almonds, our grapes and our laces by high duties so that we have left little that we can export to you, and then finally you have passed immigration laws so that even our labor cannot go to your country for employment. Why should we want to buy your products if we can avoid it?"

There are easier jobs than being a foreign trade salesman.

THREE-MILE

Returning from Europe, the president of an American company says: "Great Britain is becoming irritated over our trying to extend the right of search beyond the three-mile limit. British business men fail to see how wines and liquors sealed in the hold of vessels where they are inaccessible to Americans can affect local conditions, especially in a community where liquor is so freely obtainable as in New York."

The European viewpoint is that our purpose, in refusing to allow return-voyage liquor to enter our ports, is not so much a matter of prohibition as to enable dry American ships to compete with wet foreign ships.

VALENTINO

Rodolph Valentino shows the reporters that he wears tan silk suspenders. He wants it known that he is an Italian, not a Spaniard, his real surname being Guglielmi. Valentino gets from 2000 to 3000 letters a day from the fair (sometimes unfair) sex.

With a million women a year writing to him, we wonder what would happen if he ran for president. Men, who have as one of their chief functions the task of "selling" themselves to the Only Woman, should study the psychology employed by Valentino. He is a "wise bird" and as clever a press agent as Barnum's Tody Hamilton.

From July to August was out of the frying pan into the fire.

"LEVIATHAN" AND "GREAT EASTERN"

Sixty-Three Years Ago Biggest Ship Entered New York

WORLD WONDERED

Afterwards Became Cable Layer, Coal Hulk and Was Broken Up

The departure of the Leviathan, the 'new queen of the seas," which began active service to Southampton and Cherbourg, says the Washington Star, recalls a similar historical event in the same harbor New York, sixty-three years ago, almost to the day, the 28th of June, 1860, when the Great Eastern, the most magnificent conception and achievement, the great wonder of modern times in oceanic navigation, made her appearance in the harbor of New York, reaching the lightship at half-past seven in the morning. There she anchored, at two o'clock in the afternoon, high water, she crossed the bar and proceeded to the city, arriving at her dock at 6 p.m. The event created the greatest excitement throughout the city and country; business was generally suspended and multitudes of people thronged the wharves and roofs to get a glance at the monster.

The great event is just reversed. Sixty-three years ago the Great Eastern afterwards called the Leviathan, came to this country's shores as the most marvellous wonder of the trans-Atlantic service—today, the most wonderful steamship of modern times, goes out from the metropolitan harbor bearing the same name—the sea queen of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries

A Great A[illegible]

The history of the Vaterland—the Leviathan—its immense proportions and recent reconditioning under the direction of American genius and sportsmanship, which turned the German Vateriand into a better ship than she was born to become, is familiar history. To say the least, the United States Shipping Board officials, who constituted the trial board of the modern Leviathan, are jubilant over the capture of a new championship one held by Great Britain for many years.

Steam communication from Southampton to New York—the steamship Great Eastern, 18,915 tons register, J. Vine Hall, commander, will be dispatched to New York on Saturday, June 9, 1860.

Then followed a schedule of prices for passengers luggage, freight etc. There was some delay in carrying out the program for her departure for the western world, but when at last that event took place it was witnessed by tens of thousands of enthusiastic spectators covering every available spot—the scene being one of the grandest ever presented to the human eye.

As the vessel neared the city the interest of the occasion became, if possible, more and more manifest. Hundreds of little craft shot into the stream and fell in the wake of the Great Eastern.

Visited by Thousands

For many weeks the Great Eastern was visited by tens of thousands of persons, who gladly paid the admission fee charged to inspect the majestic structure, a ship twice as long (six hundred and eighty feet) as the United States frigate Niagara and five times the tonnage (about twenty thousand) of the giant of the American Navy in 1860. She had accommodations for four thousand passengers and could carry instead, if need be, ten thousand soldiers, in addition to her crew of four hundred

For several weeks this grandest of nautical structures was the chief object of attraction in the United States, and was pronounced by all the most superb conception—the most wonderful achievement of the human mind and skill. Excursion parties came from all the principal cities of the Union to view her lofty walls of iron, her stupendous machinery and marvellous internal arrangements; and in due time opportunity was offered those who wished to witness her sailing qualities to be carried on pleasure excursions to Cape May and elsewhere—a privilege which thousands availed themselves of, including many persons eminent in nautical and scientific matters.

Laid Atlantic Cable

In 1864 negotiations were entered into with the Atlantic Telegraph Company for the employment of the Great Eastern as a cable-laying ship and that service embraced the years 1865-66; in 1867 she was converted into a passenger ship in order to provide for the travel to the Paris exposition. In 1868 a new arrangement was made by which the ship was to be permanently chartered by the Telegraph and Construction Maintenance Company. The name had been changed to Leviathan, then to Great Eastern and again to Great Ship. Between 1869-1874 the Great Ship successfully laid some of the most important telegraph cables across the Atlantic, in the Mediterranean and in the Red Sea; in 1884 she became a coal hulk in the harbor of Gibraltar; in 1887 was sold to be broken up for $82,500.

In 1852 the Eastern Steam Navigation Company was formed to maintain an ocean steam route to the East around the Cape of Good Hope. In 1853 the directors came to the conclusion that owing to the cost of such a ship route would not pay them unless the ship could carry coal enough for the voyage out and home, besides a large number of passengers and a great cargo. The idea was for a ship that could meet these requirements at that time, 1850-1860. The result was the construction of the Great Eastern, called the Leviathan, which was not equalled in size as an ocean steamship until 1901, when the Celtic was completed, her equal in size.

ETNA'S ACTIVITY NO NEW MATTER

Roman Writer Described Volcano's Eruption in 474 B. C.

CREATED SICILY

Geologists Say Mountain's Disturbances Have Formed Whole Island

WASHINGTON, Aug 17—"The newspaper men who are writing hastily about Etna these days were scooped some years ago by at least three rather well known fellow craftsmen: Homer, Pindar and Plato," says a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic Society "For this volcano, greatest in Europe and ranking with the greatest in the world, has been pouring out lava and ashes, destroying farms and villages and interesting philosophers and scientists since the world was young Pindar was the first writer to mention Etna's fires, in 474 B C and since that time more than 100 eruptions are said to have taken place

"A much more remote history of Etna has been pieced together by modern geologists who look upon the whole island of Sicily as a contribution from the great reservoir of molten material under the mountain They picture a time when the sea rolled over the site of Sicily Then, presumably in the Pilocene, Etna's tip emerged; and through the ages it has steadily built itself and Sicily up

Matchless Fertility

"Etna might be described in the terms of an Eastern religion, as both the Creator and the Destroyer It has created Sicily; its disintegrated lava has given a soil of matchless fertility which supports rich vineyards and orchards; and it has drawn to its slopes, in spite of obvious dangers, hundreds of thousands of tillers of the soil and their towns and villages As one writer puts it, 'towns succeed towns along its base like pearls in a necklace, and when a stream of lava effects a breach in the chain of human habitations, it is closed up again as soon as the lava has had time to cool' Many of the villages on the mountain's slope are built almost exclusively from blocks of black lava, and have a sombre, depressing aspect in consequence

"It is on the lower slopes of Etna where time and weather have most completely broken up and washed down the ancient lava, that the creative side of the volcano is best seen Virtually the whole circuit is a garden spot of date palms, bananas, oranges, lemons, olives, figs, and almonds

"Farther up are nut trees—notably, the beautifully ordered filbert orchards near Castiglione—and a forest zone of chestnut, cork, pine and oak Above 6,300 feet is the region that fire has kept for its own domain—a dreary rough, black desert of lava and ash Down from this region and into the forest and orchard and farm zones, tongues of molten lava have encroached at frequent intevals These are left, significant warnings of Etna's potentialities for destruction, only so long as they must be Some enterprising planters have blasted holes in fairly recent lava flows and have made the artificially fractured material support olive and almond and citrus trees

Volcano's Caprice

"Few of the towns and villages near Etna have escaped destruction or serious damage from one or more of the numerous eruptions One town that seemingly lives a charmed existence is Randazzo which, though less than ten miles from the crater, has always escaped The city and port of Catania, about twenty miles from the crater, has, on the other hand, been Etna's chief victim, and is reputed to have suffered more from eruptions and earthquakes than any other place of importance in the world Because of partial destruction in 122, Rome remitted part of its taxes for a decade

There in 1169 the cathedral was overwhelmed by lava and its worshippers and bishop destroyed In 1669 a river of lava rose above the 60-foot walls, poured into the streets, destroying large part of the city, and flowing into the sea, ruined the harbor

"The streams that have poured down Etna's sides during the past few days can hardly be different from the numerous preceding flows that have been so frequently described The typical river of fire from Etna flows in a relatively narrow stream It moves sufficiently slowly that men and animals may keep out of its path, and large crowds of people assemble to watch its progress It is a crowd of mixed emotions Beside the small farmer, trembling lest the stream destroy his valuable orchards, may kneel peasants from a threatened village, weeping and praying that the flow be deflected, and tourists from a far land viewing what can be to them a magnificent activity of Nature Priests head processions of the pious country folk; candles are lighted, relics exhibited and altars set up

"Beneath the rays of the sun the stream seems black except when, like the crest of a breaker, the edge of the oncoming wave breaks disclosing the angry, red interior and sending aloft sparks as the falling material shatters on the ground When night falls the same activity seems tremendously increased The stream is now a river of fire, a thing of fascinating but cruel beauty"

When The Brakes Refused To Work.

Several tramps are believed to have been killed in this wreck in the mountains near San Bernardina, Cal. But their bodies have not been recovered. Blood stains were found in the debris. The brakes failed to function as the freight train began to negotiate this steep grade.

ITALIAN BEANS

One pound beans, 1 egg, 2 tablespoons butter, ½ cup milk, 1 dessertspoon lemon juice, 2 tablespoons grated cheese, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon nutmeg, 1-8 teaspoon pepper.

Wash and snap beans. Cut in long, narrow strips. Put in sauce pan of boiling water, salt slightly and boil 45 minutes. Drain. Melt butter and add beans. Cover and simmer until tender. Shake the pan to prevent burning. Beat the egg, add cheese, salt, pepper and nutmeg. Add lemon juice to beans. Pour over egg mixture and stir over the fire till very hot. This is a good luncheon dish for a one-dish meal.

MUSIC AND THE CHILDREN CONCERTS FOR YOUNGSTERS

By ARTHUR MASON

We should "cultivate our gardens," urged Voltaire, in an inspired word. The gardens of music are many-hued, and of infinite capacity of bloom and fragrance. The children's garden, in particular, is a delightful corner of them For long left to blow and grow where it listed, the children's garden of music might have faded and died but for its inherent vitality and vigor, and its hidden stores of inspiration and impulse. How it grew and flourished, with what an outpouring of scents, and colors, and of sweetness born of the charm of youth and innocence, let the voices and the child-songs of myriads of children, and the music of unnumbered tiny fingers, and the secret laughter of music rippling through the whole world of child-hearts, proclaim. It is a wonder-garden of music, this of the children. To tell the truth, it is only half-seen, and half-heard, and not realy half-understood, by us their elders who cultivate other spaces of the spread field of the art we all love.

But we have awakened in recent years to a fuller realization than once we had of the actual beauty and the dormant possibilities of these shining sun-filled spaces of the children's garden of music. The activity now so vigorous on behalf of child-music, and the music of children, is a finer activity than was ever available to them. It has become a campaign. The world o' children's music has been newly discovered as offering those who work for the expansion of music's domain their best opportunity. Never before was music so clearly seen to be an inexhaustibly rich possession of the child. Never before was the cultivation of music so clearly seen to be a necessary part of the child's education, nor never before was music so assiduously, or so persuasively, or so understandingly urged upon the children. The schools are filled with music. The school singing-lesson has developed out of all recognition. School songs, schoo' entertainments with music, school displays of children's musical proficiency, school-talks on music, musical lectures in the schools, half-hours of school time-tables devoted not merely to direct teaching of the subject, but to the children for their listening to music, their absorption of music, their enjoyment of as well as their instruction in music—these things are universally abroad in the land. They are activities on behalf of music which cannot fail to have enormous result, which can scarcely fail, indeed, to induce such a widespread love of music, instructed appreciation of music, attachment to music, as will expand beyond calculation the musical public of this country. Provided, that is, all this energy of effort in the schools is adequately supported elsewhere—in the home, and in the music-making world outside the schools.

As to the place of home-music in the musical education of young people, nothing need be said here. It is my intention, rather, to emphasize the need for a closer organization of outside musical influences. They already exist. They are indispensable, if the flood of musical activity in the schools is not to dribble away into useless shallows. There must be necting channel of music-provision between that of the schools and that of the adult audiences of the concert rooms and the opera houses. At present, the boy and girl pass out of the school-room and its admirable activity in music, and sink or swim, musically, within the thousandfold but unrelated activities of the adult musical life around them. The musical provision now existing for the youth of the land is invaluable. But it is as yet no more than experimental and tentative. It could be organized into schemes of music provision specially intended for juveniles and for adolescents. Concerts for children, for example. What an amount of reproductive activity is suggested to the musical worker here

Concerts for children have been tried, as is well known, in some places. The recent experiments at Edinburgh, Glasgow, and at other places, with concerts which combined performance of orchestral music with explanatory remarks by the conductors upon that music and the instruments conveying it, are reported as having been greatly enjoyed by their young audiences. And, in another connection, no one who saw the hundreds of children at the recent performances of "Hansel and Gretel" at Covent Garden by the British National Opera Company, could have failed to realize the attractiveness for them of that beautiful musical setting of a children's story: There is only one "Hansel and Gretel," it is true, but that very fact suggests the opportunity open to British composers believed to be in need of suitable opera libretti. Let one of them write a British children's opera.

There is a good deal of music attached to childhood—for orchestra, Elgar's "Wand of Youth" suite, for example, and for pianoforte, Schumann's "Scenes of Childhood," leap to the mind. But although this class of music has a definite child-programme, nearly always it is intended for and is played to the adult audiences of the conventional concert-rooms. Children's concerts should be concerts exclusively for children. They would not lack suitable music. A great deal of suitable music already exists, not always, or necessarily, music written for children, but music attached to a subject of interest to children—as to which, moreover, a demand for children's music would soon impel its supply. And such music could be made the basis of many a concert which would delight a young audience. Performance on almost any solo-instrument has attractiveness for children. Song-programmes of suitably diversified and tuneful character—straightforward songs, children's songs, light-hearted songs in general—could be made up with little trouble and in great variety. Orchestral concerts might need careful handling, and would probably be most acceptable when varied by solo items, while for a time, perhaps, all children's concerts had better be "mixed" concerts. Thus, children's concert programmes would be most suitably laid out in ballads for solo voices and instrumental solos; or in orchestral numbers, vocal solos, and instrumental solos; or in choral items, songs and instrumental solos.

Properly selected programmes might safely be expected to draw crowds of young folk—and I am sure it is not too fanciful a faith which impels me to suggest that in any season of orchestral concerts or of ballad concerts in the larger centres of music, a concert for children on some such lines would be among the most popular of the series. In lesser musical centres, and in small towns, children's concerts could easily be organized, and, given the suitable programme, would be sure of their audiences.

The child's capacity to listen to music and to appreciate music is now being cultivated over a wider field, with more enthusiasm, with more insight, with more success, than ever before. The provision of music available to the adult listener s of greater volume, and enjoys a wider patronage, than any it has ever known. But those two encouragingly successful activities are operating at two separated periods of the music-lover's lifetime. Between those periods are the plastic years of youth and adolescence, years in which the character and the quality of the individual, his tastes and his ineterests, are most susceptible to the moulding influences at work upon them. His musical taste not least—even his response in any degree to the appeal of music. For that reason, surely, every kind of organized effort to attach him to music is worth while. Children's concerts are one way.

RECIPES

Even the housekeeper who must buy her vegetables will find that she can save money by doing her own canning.

Buy directly from the producer if possible. This insures greater freshness in the vegetables and means a saving in money.

All vegetables must be freshly gathered for successful canning, but peas especially should be canned with the dew still on them. Nor should they be too ripe when picked. The pods should be well filled and firm to the touch and a clear vivid green without the faintest white tinge. No matter how carefully you can, if the vegetable is not as it should be to begin with the canned product will not be satisfactory.

The first step in successful canning is to read the rules and see that all utensils and ingredients are at ahnd.

Then work as quickly and neatly as possible, but do not try to hurry through. Successful canning takes time and patience.

To Can Peas

Wash pods and shell. Care should be taken not to bruise the peas as this makes them cloudy when canned. Put enough peas to fill one jar in a cheesecloth square and plunge into rapidly boiling water for five minutes. The square should be large enough to hold the peas loosely and the kettle of boiling water big enough easily to cover the peas.

At the end of five minutes of boiling lift from the boiling water and plunge into a large basin or kettle of clear cold water. Remove immediately and dip into the second pan of clear cold water. This cold dip seals the pores of the vegetable and prevents the escape of any juices.

Drain peas and pack in sterilized jars to within one inch from the top of the jar. Add one-half teaspoon salt and one-half teaspoon sugar to a pint can. Fit on tested rubber and fill can to within one-fourth inch from the top with boiling water. Half seal.

To half seal screw-top jar—tighten cover with thumb and little finger.

To half seal spring-top glass jar—adjust cover and pull over top bail.

Put jars in hot water bath. The water should cover the jars by two inches. The jars will cool the water and boiling will stop. When the water begins to boil again note the time and boil for four hours.

Remove from canner and finish sealing. Turn upside down and cool as quickly as possible. Be careful that a draft does not strike the jars while cooling. When cold store in a dark, cool, dry place.

Pint jars are more economical for the average family to use. A pint of solid peas will serve four persons liberally.

One-half bushel of well filled pods will make about seven pints of solid peas canned.

String or wax beans are an economical dish in that there is so little waste in the preparation of them. A pound of stringless "string" beans will serve six persons.

This recipe for beans with bacon is perhaps a bit different. The dish is very nourishing and should accompany a light meat course.

BEANS WITH BACON

One pound beans, 3 slices bacon.

Snap beans and wash. Cut bacon in small pieces. Put it in the sauce pan in which the beans are to be cooked. Try out without crisping. Cut beans in short lengths and put into sauce pan with bacon fat and bacon. Do not add water. Cover closely and let simmer over a slow fire for 15 minutes. Shake the pan to prevent sticking. Add boiling water to cover and simmer for an hour. Replenish water as necessary, but when beans are nearly done let water cook away. Season with pepper and serve on the dinner plates with meat and potatoes.

Beans are good cooked in combination with other vegetables.

COMBINATION BEANS

One pound string beans, 2 tomatoes, 1 onion, 22 green peppers, 2 stalks celery, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 2 teaspoons olive oil.

Wash and snap beans. Split and cut in short lengths. Put in stew-pan and cover with boiling water. Add tomatoes peeled and cut in slices. Pour boiling water over peppers and let stand five minutes. Remove the thin skin that coats the pepper. Open and take out seeds and white pith. Mince peppers, celery and onion. Add to beans and cook two hours. One-half hour before serving add olive oil and seasoning. Serve in sauce dishes.

Financial News and Views

Canadian Stock Exchange And Mines — New York Stock Exchange and Curb Prices

Today's Quotations and Opinions and Reviews of the Markets.

New York, August 17. Special — Price changes at the opening of the stock market to-day were small; some of the lower priced oils made new lows, mid states selling at 5¼ and Transcontinental at 4; the higher priced oils, however, were steady around Thursday's close.

Among the Industrials Studebaker showed the most important change, gaining3-4 on the first quotation of 105.

The overnight foriegn news was on the whole encouraging. The despatches suggesting the possibility of getting together on the part of the French and the German industrialists and statesmen.

Woolworth sold at 253, a gain of points. Sugar prices continue to be shaded, American Sugar reducing its price of refined 15 points to-day to 7.75c a lb; Federal came down to 7.60 late yesterday; new highs on the recovery were reached by Steel, Studebaker, Baldwin, American Can, and other industrial leaders, when the irregularity characterizing the early dealing was swept aside by another buying wave toward 11 o'clock.

Optimism was heightened by the constructive character of the Federal reserve bank's statements and by cumulative evidence that the increase in business had not reached the proportions predicted last June. In certain lines there has been a falling off in production but statistics show that labor is still fully employed in most of the great manufacturing districts. In-coming business of Steel Co. has been running 30 per cent. below shipments, but mill operations have been well maintained on old bookings. This month may witness further curtailment in production and new orders but a revival is looked for in the latter part of September and October.

One steel producer ventures the opinion that autumn will show a substantial decline in U. S. Steel unfilled orders. September shrinkage will be small while October would show an increase; steel companies will show good surplus after dividends in third quarter but they will not be as large as reported in second.

CHEMONG PARK REGATTA

The Chemong Park Regatta, under the auspices of the Chemong Park Regatta Committee, held off the club house on Chemong Lake yesterday morning and afternoon, was well attended. Hundreds of people motored out from the city and district and came down by water from Stoney Lake and Sturgeon Point. The weather was absolutely ideal for the majority of the events, the sailing entries suffering somewhat from a lack of wind, which made their efforts necessarily rather languid.

Mr. C. K. Fraser brought his big boat, "The Wanderer," down from Burleigh. Anchored opposite the club house, it served for a judges' stand and finishing point for the various events.

The big white yacht, gaily adorned with flying pennants, made a lovely spot of color against the dancing blue waters, where sail boats tacked all day long in a desultory breeze, skiffs with watching passengers rested under a mild sun, and fussy canoes darted in and out among the bigger craft. On the sloping hill, the crowd sat and watched through a long, pleasant afternoon.

The paddling events were perhaps the best of the afternoon. There were no skiffs, but sail boats were much in evidence. The bang and go back motor boat event, the swimming entries and the tilting in canoes were the most spectacular of the afternoon session.

Of the four special trophies offered this year, the J. Patte prize for canoe sailing went to Otto Gliddon; Mr. G. N. Gordon's trophy for open sailing was won by Harold Knapman; the Gettas trophy, to the resident of the Park making the most number of points in all the summer regattas, went to Reg. Dixon, who also won the Peterborough Canoe Company's challenge cup and pennant. Mr. W. J. Thompson's cup for paddling was not competed for. This is open only to Chemong youths, and it is expected will be competed for on next Thursday. The Chemong Challenge Cup went to W. Willoughby, a summer resident at Stoney Lake.

The list of prize winners is as follows:

Dinghy sailing race, 6 miles—1 Reg. Dixon (Peterborough Canoe Company's challenge cup and pennant; 2 Mr. W. Willoughby, oil skin coat.

Open sailing—1 Harold Knapman, (Gordon Trophy), with the "Cygnet"; 2 Mr. G. E. Oxley, with the "Gull."

Dinghy sailing, 3 miles—1 Mr. W. Willoughby, (Chemong Challenge Cup); 2, Reg. Dixon (oil skin coat.)

Canoe sailing— 1 Otto Gliddon, (Patte Trophy); 2, T. Vanatta, oil skin coat.

Boys' single canoe—1 J. Ridpath, Lakefield; 2, Reeves.

Men's single canoe— 1 Braden Blewett, Lakefield; 2, L. Kitchener.

Ladies' single canoe—1 Miss Helen Edmison; 2, Miss Kitchener.

Crab race — 1 Don Fitzgerald, Lakefield; 2, Ross Thompson.

Open motor boat race— 1 J. R. Dodworth; 2, H. Wolffe.

Mixed tandem canoe—1, Mr. Ridpath and Mrs. Nicholls; 2, Lawrence Kitchener and Miss Kitchener.

Gunwale race— 1 Reeves; 2, L. Kitchener.

Seven men in a boat— 1, Braden Blewett and party; 2, Dr. H. Long and party.

Ladies' swimming race—1, Madeline Pulkinghorn; 2, V. Hiland.

Men's tandem canoe— 1, Messrs. Davis and Reeves; 2 Messrs. Dunford and Kitchener.

Bang and go back motor boat—1 F. L .Roy; 2, Chas. Huffman.

Men's swimming race—1, T. Vanetta; 2, D. Fitzgerald.

Ladies' tandem canoe — 1 Miss Frances Ackerman and Miss Helen Edmison; 2, Mrs. Nicholls and Miss V. Knox.

Men's four canoe—1, V. Eastwood and party; 2, Braden Blewett and party.

Tilting—1, G. Reeves and R. Davis; 2, Messrs. Henry and H. Bradburn.

The Chemong resident receiving the most number of points in this year's regattas—Reg. Dixon (Rendezvous Trophy).

The boat house cottage was, as usual, kindly opened to the public by Mr. and Mrs. C. McClelland. The committee in charge of arrangements was particularly grateful to Mr. Gordon K. Fraser for attending the regatta with "The Wanderer," and also to Mr. J. R. Dodworth, of Pittsburgh, a summer resident at Stoney Lake, whose fast motor boat, the "Elizabeth Second," added much to the excitement of the open motor boat races.

The annual regatta dance was held in the Pavilion in the evening, when prizes were presented by F. L. Roy. To music furnished by the Parkdale Serenaders, a large crowd of people danced all evening, while a larger crowd sat outside and watched the trippers.

Officials in charge of yesterday's regatta arrangements were: Chairman of Committee, Reg. Dixon; Vice-chairman, F. Hills; Dance Committee—H. Bradburn, P. Gliddon and H. Coulthard; Prize Committee—R. Breyfogle, H. Bradburn, R. Thompson, G. McClelland and F. C. Weber.

Adversing Committee— F. Hills and F. L. Roy.

Course Committee— Reg. Dixon and R. Thompson.

Honorary Judges— W. J. Hopwood, T. F. Matthews, Prof. Bull and W. H. Hill.

Judges — W. R. Breyfogle, H. Wolffe, W. J. Thompson, George McDonald, P. P. Westbye, W. H. Bradburn, H. G. Walker, G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., W. B. Warne and V. Eastwood.

Starters—G. H. Roper, J E. Patte, F. C. Weber and E. B. Wayte.

Clerks of Course— A. E. Dixon and F. C. Hungerford.

Timekeeper—Dr. A. W. McPherson.

Treasurer—F. L. Roy.

Regatta Committee — R. Dixon, (chairman), F. Hills, H. Bradburn, R. Breyfogle, O. Gliddon, R. Thompson, W. A. Breyfogle and V. Rutherford.

NEWS BAILIEBORO AND THE DISTRICT

U. F. O. Clubs of District To Attend Divine Worship. Personals.

BAILIEBORO, Aug. 17. — The members of the U.F.O. Club, Centreville, met in their hall on Monday evening, August 13. After the business part of the meeting was completed it was decided to issue an invitation to the members of the Peterborough and surrounding U.F.O. Clubs to attend divine worship in the Presbyterian church on Sunday, September 2nd. The service is to be conducted by Rev. A. H. McConnachie.

News Paragraphs.

Monday, August 13, was observed as Civic Holiday in Peterborough and Millbrook. About six carloads of picnicers motored down to Barnard's Landing, Rice Lake, from Peterborough and spent the afternoon fishing.

The first union service, which was held in the Methodist church, Bensfort, was well attended. Rev. A. H. McConnachie conducted the services of the evening.

Personals.

Miss Verne Fell, Peterborough, was the guest of Miss Mildred White last week.

Miss Beryl Wakefield, Peterborough, visited friends in Bailieboro, over the holiday.

Miss Helen Throope, of Peterborough, is visiting Miss Hattie Dawson.

The Million Dollar Doll

By C. N. and A. M. Williamson

Authors of "The Lightning Conductor"

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY

Terence Desmond (Terry) Exquisite and convent-reared, unbelievably innocent, is forced to work as a cashier in her father's roadhouse while

Juliet Divine, the stage name of her beautiful half-sister, whom Terry has not seen for years, lives like a princess and talks vaguely of a millionaire.

Terrence Desmond, their father, moody and selfish, formerly caretaker of an estate, is now the proprietor of the Blue Moon, a roadhouse. He is anxious to get Terry married and off his hands.

Mrs. Parmalee owns Silverwood, the estate of which Desmond was caretaker.

Betty Sheridan, her grand-daughter, who e rudeness to Terry the latter will never forget, is the wife of

Miles Sheridan, handsome and likable, who when Terry was a child furnished the money to send her to the Convent, partly to atone for his wife's rudeness. To Terry, he is always 'The Prince.'

Eustace Nazlo, a wealthy Greek, unscrupulous with women, is impressed by Terry's beauty and her resemblance to Juliet Divine, the famous stage beauty. He invites her to go for an auto ride and on the way to New York, he kisses her.

While Nazlo is arranging for a private dining room at the Hotel, Terry slips away. Nazlo is furious.

Terry takes a taxi to her sister's apartment and begs the maid to let her see Julia.

Hartley Phillips, a member of New York's Four Hundred, is calling on Julia and Terry has to wait. Phillips announces that he wants Julia to do a favor for Miles Sheridan.

It develops that Sheridan and his wife are unhappy and Sheridan in order to facilitate her getting a divorce will pay Julia $20 000 to take a yacht-trip with him He lets it be known that aside from appearing with her he wants to have nothing to do with her.

CHAPTER XVII

Country Mouse and City Mouse

"Sheridan has never seen you. If he had he could hardly have been so cold-blooded." Phillips tone changed. "We were discussing his troubles he and I talking over pros and cons ways and means—that sort of thing. And it was I who thought of you I proposed the plan—"

"I'd like to have heard you doing it" sneered Julia strong in the position of which she alone knew and independent of any man's favor.

"I don't mind telling you how I did it" said Phillips. "I told Sheridan you were the prettiest and the best known person in—er—n your own set. I said that you'd been on the stage as a show girl and that even now you acted once in a while if you felt like accepting some offer.

"I ment oned your — er — pet name which seemed to tickle his fancy rather: the 'Million Dollar Doll" and explained to him that it was—expressive. I said what I've said to you too —that you're a good sport.'

"And I told him he couldn't do better than invite you on board 'Silverwood' if he wants to be thoroughly compromised so his wife can divorce him with out any bother. Of course if you don't want him to keep away from you on board——"

"Oh I'd want him to all right if I were going. But I'm not" Julia said.

"Won't you at least think it over?" Phillips urged.

It was on Julia's tongue to say "no I won't. You must get someone else." But a door shut with a sharp slam somewhere in the house.

She remembered the little sister waiting anxiously in another room. What if—well it wasn't likely. But twenty thousand dollars was worth having—if it could be had.

"Well—perhaps—yes I'll think it over" she agreed. "Though it's not much use. I don't feel one bit inclined to accept. Still.....you're absolutely sure Miles Sheridan would let me keep to myself?—that he wouldn't change his mind or—be troublesome?

"I must be certain that's regularly in the bargain before I even think. Because—I tell you this in the same confidence that you've been talking to me. I'm going to give up New York and the white lights I met a man when I was travelling in South America —a peach of a man a big millionaire. Handsome too. He knew my—friend —I travelled with and made me promise to throw him over

"We're engaged to be married now. It's me for the quiet domestic life with plenty of diamonds and pearls a grand house in Buenos Aires and good society—real society see?—thrown in But we shan't have the wedding right off. He's in New York now but he's got to run over to Spain before he goes back home and I'm dead sick of Europe. I was in Paris and London and Madrid last year.

"So I'll have a little rest cure after he sails. He's starting in about two weeks He may be away as long as three months. And it's just on the cards that I—but I don't think—"

"Do think" Phillips cut in.

"Would you care to run up again tomorrow evening after breakfast—say about eleven? I'm generally more or less visible then" suggested Julia. "By that time I might give you a definite decision"

"I'll come" exclaimed Phillips getting to his feet instantly so that the girl might not have time to change her mind

She touched an electric bell beside the divan and the mulatto woman who looked like an Indian came with surprising promptitude.

"Till eleven tomorrow" Phillips said.

No sooner was the visitor gone than Julia floated into the hall

"Who slammed a door—two or three minutes ago?" she demanded.

"'Twas the wind came up and blew it out of my hand" whispered the maid. "Your sister peeked out of the dining room and I—jes' happened to be in the hall.

"She was beginnin' to be worried Madam; wanted to make sure I'd told you she was here. But I got her back into the room all right."

"I'm going to her now Julia said.

It was a vision that turned dusk to dawn for Terry with the flinging open of the door. At the sound she stepped out of the bow-window where she had paused to stare down at the river; and the doorway framed a radiant figure draped in what seemed a ball gown. It was pale blue and sparkled all over with silver like the sea in moonlight.

"Oh Jule—darling" the girl cried in joy and thankfulness. "I'm so glad to see you again. It's wonderful—like a dream. But you're dressed for a party. You won't go and leave me yet for a little while will you after all this time?"

She had made a motion to fling her arms around Julia but feared to crush the shimmering gauze. Instead she caught both her sister's hands and pressed them to her breast. It felt so young and almost childlike to the touch under a thin blouse that a wave of tenderness as of old time swept over Julia.

She released her hands and heartily hugged the little sister regardless of ninon and silver embroideries. It was years since the two had seen each other.

"I'm not going out at all" Julia promised when she had kissed Terry on both cheeks. "This isn't a ball dress Miss Country Mouse; it's what they call a 'rest gown' or something. By and by a very nice gentleman is calling to see me but not for nearly an hour and we'll have lots of time to talk before that.

"Come into my den and Emmeline will take your hat and coat. You look as if you were got up for motoring. You must tell me why on earth you came here and how and everything."

She drew the girl into the "den" which was like a room in the harem of a sultan; but as Terry knew nothing about harems or sultans it looked to her merely bizarre and gorgeous in a way very becoming to Julia.

Bailieboro Personals

Miss Carrie Anderson, accompanied by her niece, Miss Jean Anderson, is visiting friends in Toronto.

Mr. Joseph Porter, Lakefield, motored down to Centreville and spent Sunday with friends there.

Miss Kathleen Dawson, nurse-in-training in Nicholls Hospital, returned to the hospital last week after spending three weeks at her home in Bailieboro.

Mr. and Mrs. Tennant (nee Ida Dawson), are visiting at the home of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dawson.

Mrs. Joseph Graham, accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. A. Wharton, and granddaughter, Miss Erma Storer, of Winnipeg, have returned to Bailieboro after visiting friends at Lindsay, Omemee and Peterborough. They intend leaving for Winnipeg this week end.

Mrs. Charles Dawson and son Roy have been the guests of Mrs. George Nurse, Long Island, Rice Lake.

BUGS

With a cargo of 800,000 lady-bugs, County Agent C G Cate arrives in Medford, Ore The bugs, it is said, will eventually eliminate various insects that destroy orchards

Insect life, phenomenally prolific, some day will be one of man's best slaves Mosquitoes and other pests will be fought by insect or germ destroyers bred by scientists For instance, the "darning needle" is the mosquito's natural enemy Why not breed them by the millions?

PROSPERITY

Building construction will continue for at least another year at or near capacity. In other words, going full-blast. So predict economists of National City Bank, conservative and reliable prophets. Take this as an antidote for the worst news you hear today.

Your Health

By DR. CLIFFORD C. ROBINSON

Fellow American College of Surgeons

It used to be said that a man's work was from suh to sun, which was surely bad enough, but a woman's work was never done, which was much worse. Many working girls and women often feel that this is quite true when they return home at night after a hard, tiresome day in the mill or the factory. Many women in the modern industrial world are piece workers.

The great speed, deftness and swiftness of these women workers has enabled them to almost take possession of many occupations which do not require much muscular strength. Oftimes this class of labour requires bent shoulders and a half-stooping position together with a lowered or drooping head and bad focusing of vision.

Medical Profession Alarmed.

The medical profesion has for many years watched with great concern the evils and bad effects on the physique of working women in monotonous and rapid labor. The principal defects produced in this class of workers are, under-development, abdominal diseases, tuberculosis and faulty vision. Such positions interfere with proper breathing and lack of chest development.

The ribs and enclosed organs are forced down upon the abdomen and displacement frequently occurs in the abdominal organs. Worse than this is the results such bending and posture has on digestion and partial retarding of material passing through the intestines. This brings abnormal fatigue, that weary, tired feeling, nervousness and constipation.

Other rapid work carried on by women and girls requires a side-bending position or sideway slouch. This position tends to cause bad breathing and invites tuberculosis. It is also liable to deform the shoulders and to produce uneven hip development or "high hip."

Strain Causes Deformities.

In seeking a change from these conditions wherever it is possible to do so try a change in work. This is not always possible, but any time lost may save your health and keep you from deformity and ill-health in after life. Women and girls who are compelled to sit on benches or in chairs all day long are also subject to ill-health and disease.

In many cases these positions have been found as bad as standing all day. Whenever possible the feet should rest on the floor. This relieves much strain and prevents many deformities. Very few women and girls exercise as they should. In preventing these troubles you must take all the time you can in the open air for useful corrective exercise. Try to avoid getting into the habit of taking something for every imaginary ill.

Those who live in towns and cities where gymnasium classes are held should become members of the classes whenever they can, if only once or twice a week. Don't say you are too tired. The change in using a different set of muscles will act as a great aid in taking away that tired feeling of the day. The change in environment will also be of great help.

St. Simons Won Lacrosse--Belleville Will Be Here Tomorrow

ST. SIMONS WON SEMI-FINALS IN LACROSSE TILT

Marmora Defeated By A Wide Margin in Game Here Yesterday Afternoon.

SCORE WAS 19 TO 2.

The boys from Marmora went down fighting before the attack of the St. Simons team of Toronto by the score of 19 to 2 in a sudden death game played in the O.A.L.A. semi-finals at Riverside Park last evening.

The game was close and good lacrosse played during the first half after which the superiority and greater staying powers of the Toronto team was shown and they drew ahead.

At the end of the first period the score was 2-2. With play still nearly even the score stood 3-2 when the second period ended. Then the Toronto team began to bore in on the Marmora defence and pile up goals. They netted 7 during the third and totalled 19 when the game finished.

Lack of experience and poor condition were the factors which contributed most to the defeat of the Marmora team. Though outweighed and playing a team of greater experience the Marmora boys held the Torontoniats for the first two periods. St. Simons played smooth lacrosse with good team play and combination. They were equally strong in both defence and attack, playing at times a full ten man defence when the Marmora players pressed them close, at other times they threw the full weight of their team into the attack playing every man in on the goal. Their shooting was hard and right on the nets. Dinsmore, Cotton, Rice and Kitchen were the stars for the winners while A. Wells, the diminutive inside home for Marmora was not only the star for his team but the best player on the field. McInnis and Watson turned in some good play for the Trent boys and did the scoring for Marmora.

Score by periods:

First period—Toronto 2; Marmora 2.

Second Period—Toronto 3; Marmora 2.

Thidr period--Toronto 10; Marmora 2.

Fourth period—Toronto 19; Marmora 2.

Referee—Sullivan.

C.P.C. WOOLLENS FAILED TO SCORE

Good Football Featured Fast Game At The Oval Last Evening.

No scoring was the result of the C.P.C.-Woollens soccer game last evening at the Oval. It was a clean and fast game and the referee's decision were never questioned.

Th game started at 6.35—twenty minutes after scheduled time and each team was short of players when the play opened. Raid after raid was made on each goal without any results and for a long period the Woollens bombarded Curtis' goal. He made many brilliant saves from the shots of the Woollen's forwards. A break-away by Underwood on the left wing caused the Woollens defence some worry but H. Hotston's finishing touch lacked the sting. Cridland cleared to midfield where play was confined, with an occasional raid on C.P.C. goal. Just before half-time Underwood repeated the performance and centered nicely. All the players were in a heap in goal, the ball going from head to head until Chambers got his foot on the ball sending it up the field. Half-time—No scoring.

After a few minutes rest, the C.P.C. made a desperate attack on Woollen's goal and held the defence in their own area until Reid dribbled through his opponents, passed up to Shaw who worked in on Hotson. The defence work of "Wag" was excellent, many a time he would stop the attack with ease, and relieving the pressur. Starting on the mid-field line, Harry Hotson went down on his own, to be checked just at the critical moment, when a goal looked certain. The Packers came back again through Jack Shaw who missed the cross-bar by inches. A minute later, Griffin fisted out from Lasenby. Reid trapped the ball and punted across to Jimmie Shaw. The left wing played combination until they were in on Curtis, but the C.P.C. goalie saved his citadel splendidly. Then individual play by Underwood transferred the ball to the other end but Cridland checked. The C.P.C. player came back again himself and with nobody but goal-keeper in front of him, he sent his parting shot up in the air. When a visit was made on C.P.C. goal, Curtis was sound as a rock, and all the forwards coming down on the defense, to hold the Woollens from scoring. It was a continued attack on C.P.C. goal until the finish. Final—No scoring.

The players were:

Woollens—Griffin, goal; Cridland and Chambers, backs; Gaskill, Reid and Roberts, half-backs; Mitchell, Lauchlin, Shaw and Crow, forwards.

C.P.C.—Curtis, goal; W. Hotson and Jury, backs; Burberry and J. Shaw, half-backs; H. Hotson, Lazenby and Underwood, forwards.

HECKMAN THE PITCHING STAR

The following records have been compiled by F. C. Beaudry, of the Kingston Standard:

Al. Heckman, the star twirler of the Peterborough team, was the bright star of the pitching mound during the season, his work standing out as a wonderful exhibition of twirling. Heckman was in 184 innings, during which time he allowed 96 hits and 195 runs, fanning 171 men. Cherry is credited with 2 wins, and leads in the matter of games won and lost, though Heckman is the real leader with 15 wins and 6 losses. Gallagher was the best local pitcher, with 6 wins and 7 losses. The records of the pitchers were:

| | IP | R | H | BB | SO | HB | W | L | T | PC |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Cherry (K.) | 28 | 20 | 33 | 7 | 12 | 0 | 2 | 0 | 0 | 1000 |

| Cobourg | 20 | 17 | 15 | 14 | 17 | 12 | 12 | 10 | 9 | 1 |

Peterborough has 184 left on bases; Kingston, 175; Belleville, 175; and Cobourg, 163.

TOUGH GAME IN STORE FOR PETES

Belleville Crew Will Be Here To-Morrow For the Second Game of the Big Four Play Off.

The Petes will be a full strength for tomorrow's battle with Belleville. Hap Harrison will be on hand and it is expected that Charlie Ansaldo will be sufficiently recovered to take part in the game. The locals are right out to trim the Trunks for the six straight game and sew up the honors of the Big Four section. Belleville, however, can be expected to put up a great battle for a victory tomorrow is their only hope if they wish to stay in the running for the O.B.A.A. honors.

Heckman is almost the certain choice for the mound work for the Petes with his usual battery mate on the receiving end. It is likely Jack Oulette, of last season's Greybirds, will be on the rubber for the visitors, though there is a chance that the dusky southpaw, Williams, may be given a chance to even up his defeat of Wednesday.

Peeney Mills was back in the game Wednesday but his broken finger was not sufficiently recovered to allow him to take his place behind the bat and he was sent to the outer gardens.

Hallinan and Berg, both of Toronto, are scheduled to do the umpiring for this game. These two men handled the Belleville game and in spite of the Belleville reputation there was not a single objection to any of their rulings. They had complete control of the game at every minute and every decision was given fairly. Their work was in fact a decided change from some that has been dished up by the indicator men during the season.

FOOTBALL NOTES

The Thistles are heading the local league by two points, with one more game to be played and good averages. The Vets and Quakers are second.

The association desires the services of more referees and the local secretary has issued a call for any with the necessary qualifications.

The Owls F.C. won the Peck and Phelan Cup last season.

There is a good possibility that the Guards team from Montreal will pay Peterboro a visit when they start their tour through the country.

LEASIDE PROTESTS GAME IN OSHAWA

Evidence Will Be Taken in Oshawa on Aug. 20

OSHAWA, August 17. Special. —The executive of the Leaside Athletic Association are fast workers. Their ball team dropped the first game to Oshawa in the Central Ontario Baseball League yesterday. By one o'clock to-day they had completed arrangements with the local Shamrock Lacrosse Executive to play the return game here as the second part of a double header, the touring Oxford-Cambridge and the local Shamrock team crossing sticks at 2 o'clock.

At 2.44 this afternoon Secretary Nott of the Central Ontario League received the following wire from the Toronto suburb executive:

"Please be advised we are protesting Oshawa-Leaside game played on Aug. 15th at Oshawa on the grounds of infractions of rule E, section 52 of Official Baseball Guide; mailing cheque to-night."

Oshawa received official notice of the protest, and the same will be heard by the sub-committee of the League on Monday, Aug. 20 at 12.30 in Oshawa Y.M.C.A. This will allow ample time for arranging a third game if necessary for Wednesday.

HAIR TONIC CONTAINED A SIX CYLINDER PUNCH

CHICAGO, August 17 (Canadian Press). — A veritable lake of hair tonic, 2,448 cases, 29,276 pints, sufficient to make Chicago the hairiest city in the world and keep the barbers' union busy for many months, was seized yesterday by the Federal Prohibition agents, who found it contained 93 per cent. alcohol, and carried a too powerful kick for bald pates.

The stuff was held in three warehouses, and was made in New York.

This is the most powerful hair tonic ever seized, said William Hassett, one of the Government operatives.

"It is strong enough to grow hair on a door knob."

No Game Saturday.

G.W.V.A. vs. Quakers has been called off for Saturday, owing to unforseen circumstances.

WOLFE CLOSE SECOND FOR BATTING HONORS OF BIG FOUR SECTION

Ross Of Belleville Tops the List By A Narrow Margin. Ansaldo and Comolli Near the Top.

THE RECORDS.

The following records compiled by F. C. Beaudry of the Kingston Standard show "Wicky" Ross of Belleville topping the list of batters in the Big Four League with a percentage of .371. Herbie Wolfe of the Peterboro team is close on his heels with .368. The figures include all games of the first and second scheduled, and shows nine of the Peterboro regulars batting above .250. Ansaldo appeared at bat oftener than any other player in the circuit and is third in the number of hits collected with 34 to his credit. Ross got the most hits, having 39 while his team mate, Weir, was second with 35, topping Ansaldo by one.

Ansaldo also tops the league in the number of two base hits with 10 to his credit. Wolfe of Peterboro and Weir of Belleville were close seconds with 9 each.

By HENRY L. FARRELL

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—(United Press).—Fame is short lived and glory dies soon. Laurel crowns won on sport fields are not evergreen and they soon wither and die.

Nothing is more pitiful than the sight of a one-time king with a tarnished crown and the threadbare remnants of his regal robes.

Before the avenues to big money were open to the modern professional athletes, the conquest was considered worthy of the acclaim, the applause and the glory attending victory.

But with hundreds of examples to prove the emptiness of glory and the fickleness of fame, it is not surprising that modern athletes are commercial.

They know now, and they put it in practice that: "Fame is a joke, and without dough you're broke; glory is the bunk, and without cash you're sunk."

Among the retinue that has attached itself to Jack Dempsey, is a colorful character, known and remembered wherever the champion has been on business pertaining to his title. He is always on the scene, always around sounding the praises of the champion and offering his fists to back up his point.

"See your old friend So-and-so is out here with you," a visitor remarked to Dempsey in Great Falls before the Gibbons fight.

"Yes, he's always around, but he'll be in the other fellow's dressing room after the fight, if I lose," Dempsey replied.

Fair weather friends—and the world of sport is filled with them—always are found around the winner's dressing room. Just a few stick to the champion when he goes down, but those few are worth the other flock.

Last summer, in Jersey City, just before Benny Leonard and Lew Tendler entered the ring to fight for the world's lightweight championship, a rather disheveled stowaway sneaked out from under the stand and cautiously worked down to the ringside to tell the press he was there even if he had to hide away for over a day under the seats.

He was immediately grabbed by a couple of "bulls" and thrown out.

He was Battling Nelson, former lightweight champion of the world.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORT

The Junior game between the Lakeviews and the Oshawa city champions is scheduled for 5 o'clock. Owing to the increasing shortness of the evenings, it will be necessary to get the game under way sharp on time in order that the full nine innings may be played. The return game is scheduled to be played in Oshawa next Wednesday.

"Hap" Harrison will be wearing a Peterborough uniform for tomorrow's game. Charlie Ansaldo, who injured his arm in the Osler game, may be back in the line, though his arm is still rather sore.

* * * * * * * * *

Picton won the honors of the Bay of Quinte League and will now play-off with the winners of the Kingston City League. The first game will probably be played on Monday.

The Lindsay Post, after patting President Milt Dedman on the back for the manner in which the Central League has been conducted this season, goes on to say that when the winners of Sections A and B play off for the league championship the league will be assured of sufficient finances to carry on as the gate receipts in all these, as well as in the section play-offs, will be split three ways, the league taking a third. The Port Hope Guide has the following to say about this plan:

"If President Dedman will look over the minutes of the special meeting held in Oshawa he will find a resolution which was unanimously adopted providing that the league should share in the final games only and not in any of the home and home fixtures. That is to say, should a tie exist between Peterborough and Belleville or Leaside and Oshawa after their home and home games had been played, then the league would share in the next gate, also in the play-off game between the winners of the two sections. With the exceptionally high cost of all baseball paraphernalia, it is unfair to increase the league balance at the expense of the team."

The Men's Softball League will hold its annual meeting on Monday evening at 8 o'clock. The meeting will be held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms. In addition to the election of officers, plans will be discussed for the coming schedule.

The St. Simons lacrosse team had the Marmora boys outweighed, and in the last two periods outplayed. At least five of the Toronto men play in senior company during the hockey season, while at least five of the Marmora boys come under the juvenile age.

NEW YORK TEAM CAME BACK STRONG

Turned the Tables on Cincinnati After Dropping Bouble Header On Wednesday.

NEW YORK, August 17 (Canadian Press). — The New York Nationals come back strong here yesterday, after Wednesday's double defeat and defeated Cincinnati in the third game of the series, 7 to 1. The Giants landed on Benton, Harris and Gill for sixteen hits, totalling 26 bases. Benton was knocked out of the box in the fifth inning, when Frisch and Meusel hit successive pitches for home runs. Score:

Cincinnati ..... 000000001—1 7 0
New York ..... 00213010x—7 16 0

Benton, Harris, Gill and Hargrave; Watson and Gowdy.

Brooklyn 4, St. Louis 0.

BROOKLYN, August 17 (Canadian Press). — Grimes allowed St. Louis four scattered hits yesterday, and Brooklyn won, 3 to 0, making it two straight in the series of four. It was Grimes' successive shut-out, as he blanked Pittsburgh last Sunday with three hits. Score:

St. Louis ..... 000000000—0 4 1
Brooklyn ..... 00100110x—3 7 1

Haines, North and McCurdy; Grimes and Taylor.

Philadelphia 8, Pittsburgh 5.

PHILADELPHIA, August 17 (Canadian Press). — A home run by Walker with two on base in the ninth inning gave Philadelphia a victory over Pittsburgh yesterday, 8 to 5. Score:

Pittsburgh ..... 010002020—5 9 1
Philadelphia ..... 400000004—8 11 1

Morrison and Schmidt; Mitchell, Weinert, Betts and Wilson, Henline.

Chicago 6, Boston 2.

BOSTON, August 17 (Canadian Press). — Chicago defeated Boston yesterday, 6 to 2, largely due to a massed Chicago attack on Oeschger in the early innings. Cooney came in from centre field to the box for Boston in the first of the fifth, and pitched well for the balance of the game. Score:

Chicago ..... 002300010—6 12 1
Boston ..... 000100100—2 8 4

Kaufmann and O'Farrell; Oeschger, McNamara, Cooney and O'Neil.

MIDGET CONTEST TO THE CURLERS

Defeat Sacred Heart in Second Half Opener by 3-1 Score.

Curlers opened the second half of the Midget series with a 3 to 1 win over Sacred Heart last evening. The contest lacked the usual zip that has heretofore been one of the features of a Sacred Heart-Curlers battle the regular fans, probably being fagged out after the excitement of the previous evening at Riverside But it was a corking good game with both pitchers going strong all the way. Wood allowed four hits and fanned fourteen batsmen, while Masterson restricted the Curlers to a quartette of singles and fanned eleven. Nobody hit for an extra base Ed. LeBarr handled the game alone, and put in a quiet evening.

First Innings

McDonald shot a single through to start the Curlers. He stole second and third. Barrie fanned. Wood hit into right second to score McDonald and stole second. McLeish walked. Baker hit in Wood and McLeish, the latter being called out for failing to touch third base. McDuffy walked and McGee fanned.

For Sacred Heart Kenneally hit into centre and made second when Baird failed to handle Vincent's throw. Archambault and Rishea fanned. Masterson popped to McDonald.

Second Innings

Vincent fanned, Baird popped to Rishea and McDonald sent one up for O'Brien. McDougal walked, made second and stole third. O'Brien and Solmes struckout.

Third Inning

Barrie was thrown out by McDougal on a smart play. Mastrson pegged out Wood and McLeish whiffed.

Grady fanned, Kenneally flew out to Barrie, Archambault walked and was thrown out at second.

Fourth Innings

Baker as retired on a grounder to O'Brien. McDuffy and Allen who replaced McGee wafted in vain.

Rischea was thrown out by the pitcher and Masterson fanned. McDougal walked again and made his way to third where he watched O'Brien strikeout.

Fifth Innings

Vincent hit and stole second and third. Baird fanned. McDonald sent out a long fly to left scoring Vincent Barrie flew out to Holland who had replaced Solmes.

LeBarr fanned but had to be retired at first. Holland singled, going to second when McLeish allowed a peg from Wood to go through. Grady hit putting Holland on third. Kenneally tapped to Wood who caught Holland at the plate. Archambault fanned.

Sixth Innings

Wood fanned, McLeish grounded out and Baker suffered a similar fate.

Rishea walked and stole. Masterson popped to Barrie. McDougal scored Rishea with a single, O'Brien flew out to McDuffy and LeBarr fanned.

Seventh Innings

Masterson fanned the side and Wood duplicated the performance the Sacred Heart half.

PIONEERS

In the last two years 23 million acres of public lands have become the property of homesteaders. That's an area larger than Maryland, Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Connecticut combined.

The days of "free land" in our country are about over, the "land" including all natural resources. Values—loose opportunities—are getting under lock and key. Private—keep out.

LAKEVIEW VS. PETERBORO FRIENDLY TENNIS GAME

The Lakeview Tennis Club played a friendly match with the Peterborough club on the new courts yesterday afternoon and when the score was finally cast up the play had been pretty even Peterborough winning four matches to the Northeners three.

Lakeview were assisted by Gen. Elmsley, very fine player, who paired with Craesor, was a bit strong for Scott and Cranfield. Cranfield was very steady but Scott was a bit off, and the beautiful placements and generalship of their opponents kept them on the jump all the time.

Bowness and Jackson were in good form and played Elmsley and Smith to set all, when Gen. Elmsley had to leave. Tanner took his place, but Bowness and Jackson raced away with the last set.

Cruther and Burgess paired well to beat Northey and Renwick. The Lakeview pair, however, returned the compliment by beating Sills and Henry.

In the singles Jackson had to go three sets to beat Dr. Smith and finished up by candlelight.

The tea committee under the leadership of Mrs. Maybee, were very busy and served delightful refreshments, Miss Phyllis Goldey poured tea.

The following is the summary of the matches:

Cruthers and Burgess (Peterboro) beat Northey and Renwick, 6-1, 7-5.

Elmsley and Craesor (Lakeview) beat Scott and Cranfield 9-7, 6-1.

Northey and Renwick (Lakeview) beat Sills and Henry, 6-1, 6-3.

Bowness and Jackson (Peterboro) beat Elmsely and Smith 6-3, 3-6, 6-0.

Tanner, (Lakefield), beat Sills 6-3, 6-3.

Scott, (Peterboro) beat Craesor, 6-2, 6-3.

Jackson, (Peterobro) beat Dr. Smith, 6-4, 4-6, 6-3.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

There is a gay, bright atmosphere about "The Love Piker" now showing at the Capitol Theatre, with Anita Stewart in the title role, which makes it a very attractive picture. With luxurious backgrounds and plenty of pep in the action, it is well worth seeing.

The heroine is a spoiled daughter of the rich who turns out to be a 'piker' in love. She becomes infatuated with a poor young man, and then refuses to recognize his poor relations, and his old father. The numerous adventures which befall the two young things, and her final regeneration to a better spirit, makes a pretty picture.

The comedy has one of the 'movie' dog actors for a hero, in a series of laughable and clever incidents.

Price of Lightning

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Aug. 10 (By Science Service).—Lightning, symbol of power since time immemorial, is worth just 1.2 cents per bolt, engineers of the General Electric Company here estimate.

The voltage, or electrical pressure, of a stroke of lightning is 50,000,000 volts, they figure. But as "fast as lightning" is no idle phrase, they claim, and a flash is so soon over with that the energy involved is exceedingly small. One thousandth part of a second is the time which a flash usually lasts.

If the assumed current of the flash 1,000 amperes, is multiplied by the number of volts, they explain, a power of 50,000,000 kilowatts is obtained. In one second, the energy produced is therefore only 500 kilowatts. At the rate of eight cents per kilowatt hour charged to this city, the value of one of these discharges of nature's heavy artillery would be only 1.2 cents.

INTERPRETATION IN MUSIC

Every work of art emanates from an interesting and absorbing idea which seems to demand expression in the most artistic and complete form Especially is this the case in music, the most intimate and the most introspective of all the arts This magnificent art depends for its effects upon channels of its own. While the painter and the sculptor speaks directly to their public through a completed work, the musician on the other hand must depend upon an artistically trained interpreter His work is not finished when he places it upon paper Its value may be raised or lowered depending upon the character and the training and the talent of the one who elects to perform the work In the work of musical art there slumbers under the veil of notes and staves a sleeping beauty awaiting the magic touch of the interpreter to bring all the loveliness to life

The interpreter must first of all be a real artist, otherwise it will be impossible for him to liberate the magical vibrations of the music In the work of the creative musician there must naturally be more dependence upon intuition and individuality, while with the interpretive artist greater stress is laid upon the extent of his interpretive knowledge What is of greater importance to the interpretive artist is that he shall know not merely the composer and his works, but shall comprehend the nature of the musical receptivity of the public mind for which he must perform

RECIPES

Instead of baking pies and cakes during the hot summer weather, why not make ices and sherbets? Every one likes a frozen dessert, and it's infinitely easier for the cook to prepare than to have an oven going for an hour or more.

Fruit ices are economical and refreshing. They require little effort in the preparation and can be frozen without turning.

Raspberry Ice

One quart raspberries (red or black), 2 lemons, 3 cups sugar, 4 cups water.

Pick over berries, wash and drain. Grate rind of lemons and squeeze juice from lemons. Add to berries. Cover with sugar and let stand an hour. Rub through sieve. Add water to juice, turn into freezer and freeze.

Melon Sherbet

Two cups melon pulp, 1½ cups water, ¾ cup sugar, 1 egg, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 tablespoon gelatin, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons powdered sugar.

Soften gelatin in 4 tablespoons cold water. Bring sugar and water to the boiling point and add to gelatin. Stir until dissolved. Let cool slightly and add melon pulp. When cold add lemon juice and salt. Beat white of egg stiff and dry with powdered sugar. Fold into melon mixture. Turn into freezer and freeze.

Watermelon Ice

Three cups watermelon pulp, 1 cup sugar, 1 orange, ¼ teaspoon salt.

Rub melon through sieve. Add sugar, juice of orange and salt. Turn into freezer and freeze.

Pineapple Sherbet

Two cups diced pineapple, 2 oranges, 1 lemon, 2 eggs (whites), 1 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon gelatin, ¼ teaspoon salt 1½ cups boiling water, ¼ cup powdered sugar.

Squeeze juice from oranges and lemon. Add to pineapple with the sugar and let stand two hours. Soften gelatin in ¼ cup cold water. Put pineapple mixture over fire and bring to the boiling point. Let simmer ten minutes. Remove from fire and stir into gelatin. Beat egg whites till stiff and dry with powdered sugar. Fold into first mixture and turn into freezer and freeze.

THE GARDEN
By Nancy Byrd Turner

Who rears four walls around a little plot
—Some still, secluded spot—
And digs and sows therein, has done a thing
Beyond his reckoning.
In one, small, fenced space
Beauty and deep, untellable content
Make their abiding-place
And measureless peace is pent.
There time takes note of tender happenings:
The shimmer of a butterfly's blue wings
Above the clustered phlox;
A spider's will to work a miracle
Between two hollyhocks:
A twilight cricket's humble prophecies;
A brown bird by a pool, and all that goes
Into the lovely lifetime of a rose;
A pansy's love, and little, questing bees'
Strange, sweet biographies.

Who makes a garden plans beyond his knowing.
Old roads are lost old dwellings have their day
And he himself far summoned, passes hence
An unfamiliar way;
But lo, he has not perished with his going;
For year by year, as April's heart stirred,
Soring after punctual spring,
Across the little acres wintry gray
Come, slowly traced, an old, authentic word
In radiant lettering:
A shining script of tendril, vine and and whorl,
New green, faint rose, clear lavender and pearl,
Petal by delicate petal leaf by leaf;
As though his own hand from the Mystery
Wrote for all earth to see
Upon a fadeless, beauteous scroll, his brief
For immortality.

UNITED STATES WILL CHANGE HER POSITION

LONDON, Aug. 17.— (Canadian Press).—Acting upon cable advices from Secretary of State Hughes, United States Embassy officials in London, have made it clear to the British Foreign office that United States contemplated no departure from its attitude on reparations as taken before President Harding's death and as announced by Secretary Hughes in his Newhaven speech. This disposes of any hopes on this side that President Coolidges accession to office might result in a more active interest by United States in Europe's problems.

HARVESTERS BEHAVING THEMSELVES ON TRAIN

OTTAWA, Aug. 17.—(Canadian Press). — About 70 members of R. C. M. P. have so far been detailed for escort duty in connection with harvester trains going west, two men being alloted to each train. According to assistant Commisioner Worsely, who is in charge during the vacation of Col. Courtland Starnes. Beyond minor disturbances among harvesters which were of no consequence, the men are conducting themselves creditably So far there have been no diffiulties at all with regard to harvesters shipped from the old country, said assistant commisioner.

EVENTS OF INTEREST

High school girls spend an average of $4.15 a week apiece, boys $2.53, according to a check-up in Boston.

This may rile old-timers who recall when many a high school lad wore pa's old suit made over by ma. In fairness to the youngsters, though: The decreased buying power of the dollar makes it necessary to divide spendings by two or three to make a just comparison with the former generation's youthful pin-money.

The Boston average budget disclosed that boys spend 14 cents a week apiece for cigarets, girls half as much.

How long since you've seen a boy mowing a lawn or collecting junk?

DIAMONDS

Americans are importing diamonds at the rate of 65 million dollars worth a year. But that's only about 60 cents a year for each of us—5 cents a month —which certainly isn't extravagance in the modern sense. Making allowances for increased prices, the nation doesn't seem to be buying more diamonds than before the war.

The figures quoted are wholesale prices, not what the consumer pays. But, even at that, the price of several movies matches our diamond bill. We throw our diamond money several times over into the garbage pail.

CHINESE

Essex Market Court in New York, which has been trying prisoners for more than a century, receives the first drunken Chinese in its history. Did you ever see a drunken oriental?

The widespread use of drugs among the Chinese, however, suggests that the scarcity of Chinese drunkards may be less a matter of temperance and moderation than of nerves. Chinese have no nerves, in the white man's sense, most of them being able to undergo severe operations without anesthetic. This contrast will show itself in many forms as the two races increasingly come in contact with each other commercially.

ASIA

Our much-heralded trade with the orient is back-firing. Instead of America finding big markets in the orient, the orient seems to be finding big markets in us.

During the last 12 months we bought from Asiatic countries about 550 million dollars more than we sold them.

BORROWERS

We are a nation of borrowers, as lawnmower owners already know. Loan of all banks in the country now total around 32 billion dollars or enough to put every American man, woman and child in debt $300.

Comparing this with the average income, the American people—by the bank loan route—have their earnings mortgaged six months ahead.

OIL

Mexican oil is eclipsed by the geysers of flowing gold in the big California fields. Oil experts from Mexico in the first six months of 1923 were a third less than the total of the corresponding months of a year ago.

Mexico begins checking out. California comes in. Don't ever worry about an oil famine. When California oil fizzles, other fields will be opened up. That has been the experience in the industry since Colonel Drake drilled the first well.

THE FATAL SHOT

You recall Gavrio Prinzep, the boy-assassin whose bullet started the trouble between Austria and Serbia in 1914 and thereby precipitated the World War

Prof. Stanoyevitch of University of Belgrade publishes a pamphlet attributing leadership of the assassination plot to Dragutin Dimitriyevitch, lieutenant colonel and former leader of the Serbian military party.

At the last minute he apparently changed his mind and tried to call off the assassination, but the situation had gotten beyond his control. Curiously enough, he had the idea that impending warfare between Austria-Hungary and Serbia could be avoided by killing Archduke Ferdinand.

Dimitriyevitch was court-martialed and shot in 1917 in connection with another murder plot. He was about 30 years old when he departed this life.

* * *

Prof. Stanoyevitch's pamphlet is historically important, for he had access to "inside information. He seem sincerely convinced that the Serbian government did not know of the assassination plot.

Many people will comment: "The war had been brewing for generations, so it cannot be traced to any act of any one individual.

However, is that true? The Socialists were close to gaining the whip-land in Europe when the war rushed them off their feet. And it is, at least, remotely possible that the war might have been avoided if a half-witted radical youth, spurred on by a moron militarist, hadn't loaded his pistol and set off the fireworks.

The world is making a terrible mistake if it inclines to attribute the great war to fate—that it was inevitable.

* * *

Yes, things might have been different —termendously different—if the boy-assassin hadn't cut loose with his pistol.

It's too late now, of course, to unscramble the eggs. But the pistol of Gavrio Prinzep should make us do a lot of serious thinking about the dangers of allowing pistols in general to get into the wrong hands.

There's a campaign gaining headway to stop the sale of revolvers except under police permit, especially by the mail order route. Back that campaign. It would partly disarm the criminal. Householders could protect themselves with rifles or sawed-off shotguns—which cannot be carried by crooks without detection.

To stop murders by revolvers, take away the revolvers.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

WERE ALL PREACHERS?

Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—We were in the city the day of the Royal Black Knights in their Derry Day celebration.

The fellow that was with me, he said I don't see how the Methodist always grumbles at not having enough preachers for one in each church. Why he says they could be two in each church in Canada to what I see to-day. He thought that every one that wore a high hat (or plug hat) was a preacher.

HAMILTON, Aug. 17.—(Canadian Press). — George King, was this morning committed for trial on charge of murdering his 17-year-old sweetheeart Errie Johnston on August 7. He was arrested in Toronto morning following crime after having forced motorist, at point of a revolver, to drive him to Toronto. No council has yet been engaged for him

CONSIDERABLE MYSTERY SURROUNDS BABY GIRL

HAMILTON, Aug. 17.—(Canadian Press).—Considerable mystery surrounds the finding in St. Patrick's Church of a baby girl about two months old. She was very expensively dressed, wearing a silk dress. This is the fifth baby to be abandoned in Hamilton in two weeks.

Cheap wheat will ruin many farmers but not the general farming industry. The Breeders' Gazette, agricultural weekly, points out that "less than 7 per cent of the value of farm crops and livestock last year was represented by the American wheat crop. That percentage had seldom been higher than 7."

The one-crop farmer takes an awful chance. Many years were required to teach the south the wisdom of diversified crops. But the south is well on its way toward learning its lesson.

PETERBORO BOY IS PRESIDENT OF THE HOME BANK

Herbert J. Daly, Born in Peterboro, Enjoys Reputation as Canada's Youngest Bank Head.

HOLDS MANY POSTS

TORONTO, Aug. 18. Canadian Press. — Herbert J. Daly, president of the Home Bank enjoys the reputation of being the youngest bank president in Canada. He was only 38 when he was elected to that post in 1920. But even at that age he had had wide experience in the business world and manufacturing and retailing of merchandise.

Holds Many Offices.

He was born in Peterboro in 1882, finished his education at the Orillia high school, started in 1899 with the E. M. Dunning grocery firm, and at the age of 20 he was office manager of the National Cash Register Company. Then he became the manager of a Canadian factory three years later, and in 1915 he became general manager and vice-president for Canada of this firm. He is head of a large retail store Ottawa, is president of the James A. Ogilvy Company of Montreal, president of the Arnprior Cabinet Company, director of Murray-Kay Company, vice-president of Western Canada Pulp and Paper Company, president of the Porcupine Product Company, vice-president of K. and S. Tire and Rubber Co., and president of the Manufacturers Holding and Investment Corporation.

He was chairman of the Government Labor Appeal Court in 1918, and for several months acted as director of the Government Repatriation and Employment Committee.

He married Miss Phoebe Middleton of Orillia in 1907, and has four sons and one daughter. He is a member of the Ontario Club and the Scarboro Golf Club. His recreations are golf and motoring. He is described as independent in politics, and in religion RomanCatholic . His residence is at 92 Warren Road.

In a recent interview on business conditions Mr. Daly was quoted as saying that good faith was the basis of business, and he also stressed the worth of the practical man as against the theorist. The following is taken from the interview:

Men Who Does Things.

"The Canadian bankers are beginning to realise that the man to do business with is the man who does things rather than just talks about them," said Mr. Daly. "The woods are full of theorists and planners who seem somehow to have minus qualities when it comes to accomplisment. The doers, I may say, seem to be getting scarcer and scarcer all the time. Real capable and dependable executives were never harder to obtain than they are at the present time."

"During the boom period, as during any boo period, it was not difficult to run a business," continued Mr. Daly. "The men who have developed have been men who have

HONEY CROP WILL NOT BE ABUNDANT

Dry Weather Ensures Good Quality—Half Crop in West.

Canada's honey crop is likely to be a little below the average. Ontario will have a fair yield. Dry weather in recent weeks ensures good quality, as the honey will be riper than would be th case had the Province been passing through a rainy period. In Manitoba, which produces somewhere between one and two million pounds annually, the output will be below the average. In Quebec the production will be light, there being virtually no yield in some northern areas of that Province.

New Brunswick will have a rather small crop, and while Nova Scotia will do fairly well, the output there is never an important factor.

The clover honey crop in British Columbia is barely half the crop from that source obtained last year, according to careful estimates, but an exception to that is furnished in the Delta, where there is an exceptionally good clover honey crop, compared with most other areas.

The normal production of honey in Ontario is about ten million pounds. Professor Millen thinks there should be wider recognition among beekeepers that honey is not only a summer food, but that the coming of cool weather in the fall should stimulate consumption greatly, particularly if the public realised more fully the food value of honey.

Canadian Ministers Get Accommodation

LONDON, Aug. 18.—(Canadian Press.)— Canadian Ministers attending the Imperial Conference have for the first time been given offices in the Canadian building, the multifarious departments of the High Commissioners doubling up in order to make room for the Canadian Prime Minister and others. Hitherto, Canadians have been crowded into Whitehall Gardens, paying additional rent, but today Canada provides her own quarters at the lowest cost.

A CONVENTION IN PETERBORO

Ontario Fire Fighters Decide to Come to This City Next Year.

HAMILTON, August 18 (Canadian Press) — Delegates to the fourth annual convention of the Provincial Federation of the Ontario Fire Fighters yesterday afternoon adopted a resolution regarding the Workmen's Compensation Act.

It was resolved that in all municipalities where no pension fund for fire fighters is in force, officers and members of the Fire Departments who are injured in the course of duty should benefit under the terms of the Act.

The convention will be held next year in Peterborough, which was chosen over Kitchener by one vote.

Committees were appointed as follows:

Ways and Means, P. S. Herd, of Brantford; S. Green, Belleville; J. Connor, Galt; D. McIntyre, Guelph, and H. Pollrie Kingston.

Constitution and Laws—J. McGrattan, Brantford; W. O'Rourke, Toronto; R Lyons, Toronto; D. Dear, Ottawa; R. L .Malcolmson, Hamilton; E. Ostrander, Brantford; G. Johnson, Peterborough; D. Diestlemeyer, Kitchener; D. McJannett, Woodstock.

Band Concert

stolen or strayed on August 15, a large Airedale dog, very dark, with tan markings. He wore a brass studded collar and answers to the name "Bobs.' Also lost, a spotted coach dog without a collar.

Any person knowing the whereabouts of these dogs pleas, communicate with Chief Newhall, when a reward will be paid for information leading to their recovery.

500 IN FIELD FOR ELECTION IN FREE STATE

There is No Dearth of Aspirants For Seats in the Next Irish Parliament.

NOMINATIONS TO-DAY

DUBLIN, Aug. 18. — (Canadian Press.)—Nominations for Parliament of the Irish Free State are being made to-day. There are between four and five hundred candidates in the field for 153 seats, but it is unlikely that all of these will be able or willing to furnish the required deposit of £150, and it is therefore expected that several will retire.

Government Candidates.

Pro-Government party has put forward 111 candidates, but it is possible that this number will be increased before the end of the day.

Republican aspirants for seats in the Legislature number 85. However, there may be more before balloting is over. In addition, there are many representtaives of Farmer and Labor parties to be nominated, and perhaps Independents as well. On Sunday after the morning mass, will begin a week of intensive electioneering, during the course of which there is likely to be considerable turmoil, inasmuch as excitement over the contest, already considerable, grows with the approach of August 27th.

PRICES HIGHER TODAY'S MARKET

Plenty of Butter, Fowl and Eggs— Black Currants Still Here.

There was plenty of butter on the farmers' market this morning, and fowl and eggs but the prices were comparatively high. Butter opened at 45 cents a pound, decreasing gradually to 40 cents. Eggs were selling from 28 to 23 cents a dozen, chickens at 25 cents a pound and duck at 30 cents.

Potatoes were plentiful and of good quality, selling this morning at 50 cents a peck. Corn was 35 cents a dozen in several arts. A. Stenson had a supply at 30 cents a dozen.

Tomatoes this year are better-looking than usual; ripe spheres that look as if the sun had brought them to their red perfection. They sold in small baskets at 50 cents, in large at 80 cents.

Butter beans were much in evidence, at 10 cent a quart; there were small plums at 2 quarts for a quarter, and several varieties of apples, in the small sizes that prevail this year. A "Maiden's Blush" variety that hadn't blushed very pink as yet was 40 cents a peck, Early Harvest and Duchess were 50 cents. Pole beans were 10 cents a measure, and beets and carrots five cents a bunch.

A white butterfly fluttered about a honey stand, where pale gold clover honey was retailing for 85 cents in five-pound pails and $1.60 in ten-pound containers.

Black Currants were 20 cents a box.

Many of the flowers that appear in florists' windows may be purchased on the Saturday market, in hardier varieties, perhaps, but still colourful in appearance. Marigolds and gladioli, asters and the frail cosmos were on sale this morning.

FORMER KAISER RESIGNED TO FATE; NOT SO HIS WIFE

She is Believed to Favour Attempt to Seize Royal Power and Murder the Republic.

(By Carl D. Groat.)

BERLIN, August 18 (United Press). — Ex-Kaiser Wilhelm has resigned himself to his fate.

Not so his followers, and, according to the belief of many strong monarchists, not so his new wife Hermine.

Advocates of the Hohnzollrns, or at least advocates of the monarchical idea, are extremely diligen for a return of the monarchy and they are, to put it mildly, displeased that Wilhelm now shows no interest about again mounting the throne in Germany.

Some quarters believe his wife, ambitious to an extreme, would like to be a second Zita and force him to attempt to become again the ruler of the Reich.

The monarchists are not despairing, though they realise that never in the world's history has a dethroned dynasty returned to power if it resigned itself to its fate, as Wilhelm is doing.

Wilhelm Indifferent.

Such followers as Wilhelm still has accuse him of too great indifference and too much laissez-faire toward the question of the fall of the Hohenzollerns, who almost 300 years long ruled as the kurfursts over the mark Brandenburg, who 200 years ago set upon their heads the kingly crown of Prussia, and 50 years ago assumed the kaisership over a united German Reich.

It may be said that the Kaiser party is more kaiserly than the Kaiser himself. The Kaiser lost many ardent supporters when he wed Princess Hermine so soon after the death of his faithful Kaiserin, Augusta Victoria. Some said that it showed a lack of piety and a posthumous infidelity towards the woman who, for thirty years, was his true and sacrificing companion.

Wilhelm the Helpless.

Others, however, say that the Kaiserin herself probably would have aproved this outcome, for she realized the weakness and the helplessness of Wilhelm II., a cripple from birth as the result of an operation on his mother at that time.

The Kaiser's coolness to his mother and his dislike for the English—his mother was Queen Victoria's daughter—are probably traceable to that event.

The former Kaiserin spoiled the Kaiser. She herself made his breakfasts, poured his tea, buttered his toast and carved the meat. Her death left him even more helpless and almost tragically lonesome.

However the opposition to the new marriage, both within the Hohenzollern family and in kaiseristic circles, is ebbing somewhat, and hence the pro-kaiser politicians are again venturing to raise their voices for action out of Doorns.

BRITISH SEEKING OTHER MARKETS THAN EUROPEAN

Change in Commercial Policy Likely to Seriously Effect the Standing of The Present British Cabinet.

By J. W. T. MASON

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.— (United Press)—Premier Stanley Baldwin, of Great Britain, is facing a revolt with in the Conservative party against his European policy.

A complete change in the British attitude toward France and Germany is in the making, and the new Prime Minister will have to accept the altered view point of Britain's financiers and international traders or he will be forced to resign'

The dangers of political entanglements on the continent of Europe are now being regarded by "Big Business in Great Britain as too costly a price to pay for commercial progress in that area. Premier Baldwin is being warned that Great Britain wants him to arrange his policy so that if a new war breaks out between Germany and France, the British Empire will not be involved. The Franco-Prussianwar was fought with Great Britain a neutral. A new war can be waged under similar conditions if the Germans let Belgium alone and do not approach the Channel ports, thereby leaving Great Britain unmolested.

Keep England Out

If Germany were to agree to these conditions, the Germans would be given a free hand in a war of revenge according to the conditions being laid down by British financiers and merchants. The American policy of avoiding entanglements abroad is appealing to the British, as suitable to their own present needs.

Instead of pushing into continental entanglements for the purpose of gaining foreign trade, the British are now seeing their commercial future in other parts of the world. The British colonies, the Far East and South America have been found to possess better possibilities for commercial expansion than the European continent.

Premier Baldwin has not yet got this point of view. He is an obstinate politician and has always paid attention to precedent and inherited policies. Great Britains natural line of industrial development for generations has been to maintain a certain balance of power in Europe and to concentrate her efforts upon making customers for herself among the Euopeans. In conformity with this commercial incentive the British have been involved in numerous European wars. The wars have been made to pay many times over in improving commercial intercourse through the new prestige added to the British Empire.

World War Too Costly

But the World War went too long for commercial advantage to be reaped within the borders of Europe for an indefinite time to come. Great Britain has won additional security through Germany's downfall, but at a large expense in overturned commercial makets.

Nevertheless, the full force of precedent still dominates theofficial policy of the British government. The search for new markets amid the ruins of war has always been an important part of British constructive statesmanship. The search since the Versailles peace conference, however has been with little success.

While the politicians persist in the time-honored custom, the British financiers and business man, who always have to work the markets once they are recovered, have concluded that new ground must be broken' So th Baldwin ministry is being urged to cease its fruitless discussions wth France and Germany and turn to other parts of the world.

Already the cry has met with some success, as the construction of the new naval base at Singapore shows. But it will have to be heard in whole if a ministerial breakup is to be avoided by the Baldwinites.

MORE HARVESTERS NEEDED FOR WEST

Owing to the heavy crop throughout the western provinces, more harvesters will be required to help harvest this crop and in connection with special trains to Winnipeg, the Canadian Pacific will continue their special train service on August 22nd and 24th. The unexpeted response with which the former appeal for harvesters, was met, officials feel, was due in no small manner to the accommodation and to the fact that special cars of a good type, were reserved for families. A special lunch counter car will also be maintained on all special trains.

The Canadian Pacific is the shortest route to the West and the usual low rate of $15 to Winnipeg plus a half-cent per mile to destination beyond, will be continued.

NOTICE OF WARNING.

Premier Poincare to Meet Prime Minister

PARIS, August 18 (United Press). — Premier Poincare will meet Prime Minister Baldwin of Great Britain after the latter's return from his vacation in Aix-les-Bains, for a new discussion of the problem of reparations, according to semi-official information here to-day.

PLENTY FIREWORKS AT PETERBORO FAIR

Also Baby Show and Children's Day — Events Worth While.

Anyone who attends the Peterborough Exhibition this year will be assured of plenty of fireworks. In the office of Mr. Webber Turner, the indefatigable amusement hunter and concession granter, reposes a bulky file which is occupied exclusively with holding the accumulated correspondence which has anything to do with amusements for this year's Fair.

The International Fireworks Company of Jersey City are providing the nightly fireworks this year along with a man to supervise their showing.

The programme includes set pieces for each night: "The Canadian Beaver, the Union Jack, the Maple Leaf For Ever, etc., along with the forty other pieces which constitute each evening's programme, and number among them such things as Flaming Geysers, A Trip to Mars, and The Girdle of Venus all in blazing splendour.

The Department of Agriculture at Ottawa have reserved three hundred feet of inside space for a special exhibit of grains, fruits, etc., and the Post Office Department will show here the operations of their business, in the same exhibit as made at the Canadian National Exhibition.

The Canadian General Electric Co. are showing some of their products this year, both in the manufacturers' building and outside.

The Baby Show promises to be one of the outstanding features of the Fair. Entries already are over the hundred mark, and the judges will have their hands full with the array of infantile competitors already in line.

Worth-while prizes, both in articles and money, will be given for the Children's Day events. The opening day is Children's Day which has always proved a very successful session.

The programme has been arranged as follows:

Events for boys—Sack race (under 12 years) wheelbarrow race (under 14 years), 75-yard dash (under 16 years), half-mile race (under 18 years), half-mile relay race (four boys of the Public and Separate Schools).

For the girls—Potato race (under 12 years), 50-yard dash (under 14 years), 75-yard dash (under 16 years), nail-driving race, in teams of six.

VETERAN DIED AS RESULT OF WAR SERVICES

J. L. Feeley Found Dead in a House on the River Road Where He Had Been Staying.

HAD LEFT HOME

The aftermath of the Great War struck a sombre note in Peterborough this morning, when one of Canada's sons, a remnant of the titantic struggle went to face his Maker by a tragic route. Brooding and desperate, his brain inflamed by suffering from disabilities incurred in the service of his country, J. L. Feeley one of those whom Peterborough acclaimed a hero when he donned the uniform of the King's soldiers and went forth to fight for the worlds freedom and the honor of Canada ended his life early this morning by drinking caroblic acid. The young man was an overseas veteran who was wounded several times during the Great War.

The young man, who has been acting in a demented manner for months past, had been nursing a fancied grudge against his parents, who reside at 271 Romaine street. He had been living with the family of his fiancee on River Road and worked in Purdy's Mill'

At five o'clock this morning, Feeley was sitting in the kitchen, talking to his fiancee. She left him there when she went out to milk. Later, her father discovered him lying on the floor, dead. Dr. F. A. O'Reilly was summoned, and immediately informed the police.

When Sergeant Arthur Thomas, Constable G. Puffer and Provincial Constable T. Pearson arrived at the house, they found Feeley on the bedroom floor, partly dressed. In a search of the room, Constable Puffer found a three-ounce bottle of carbolic acid from which about three-quartes of an ounce had been taken.

On arrival of Dr. T. W. H. Young, coroner, who was notified by the County Constable, he thoroughly investigated the circumstances. The bottle was seen to bear the name of Bogue, at the corner of George and Westcott streets. Mr. Bogue displayed his poison-book, showing where Feeley had signed for three ounces of carbolic acid. He claimed that he required the poison for use as a disinfectant for a woman who is said to reside on New Chamberlain street. He signed the book with the name of a neighbor who lives near his parents.

The coroner considers an inquest unnecessary, as circumstances showed, in his opinion, a clear case of suicide.

LEAVE TO-DAY

G. B. Edie, local manager for Fuller Brush Co., Limited: for two years here, has been promoted to take charge of the western provinces with headquarters at Winnipeg. Mr. Edie and family leave to-day.

War Veteran Dead

J. L. FEELEY,
who died this morning as a result of taking an overdose of carbolic acid. For some months past deceased has been in a state of ill-health, due to war disabilities, and his mind was affected.

SUDDEN DEATH OF W. F. NELSON

Well Known Stockbroker of Peterboro Called by Heart Disease While at Work.

Stricken by heart disease while busy at his desk, William Franklin Nelson, of the firm of Nelson and Martyn, stockbrokers, died suddenly yesterday evening.

The tragic occurrence was not known until Dr. Duncan Carmichael arrived in answer to a telephone call and found Mr. Nelson lying on the office floor. He was dead on the doctor's arrival.

The deceased was subject to heart trouble, but with his usual quiet manner had maintained silence in his family circle regarding his affliction in the effort to spare them trouble.

Dr. T. W. H. Young, Coroner, made an examination late yesterday evening, and, with Dr. Carmichael, diagnosed the cause of death as heart failure.

Mr. Nelson was born in Cannington, Ont., and spent his early days in Uxbridge, where he was educated. He came to Peterborough when 19 years of age, and was associated with the old Ontario Bank until shortly before it closed its doors. In 1900 he entered the brokerage business and in September, 1922, he opened the present offices of the firm in partnership with Max Martyn. Extensive improvements in the office had just been completed, and in giving an account of the alterations to the Examiner a few days ago Mr. Nelson said "We want to give every one the best service we can." That acording to those who were most closely associated with him, was the keynote of his life. Mr. Nelson also conducted a typewriter business.

"He was one of the best to work with," declared his partner. Mr. Martyn, this morning. "Our partnership relations were always amiable and satisfactory. His death is a great loss to the business men of the city."

"I never dealt with a squarer man," one of his clients said. "He was always ready to give advice and he was just as straight in his dealings here in his office as he was in St. Paul's church."

Active Church Worker.

Mr. Nelson was a member of St. Paul's Presbyterian church and until this spring a valued member of the choir where he sang in the bass section for thirty years. He was at one time secretary of the Board of Managers and was active in Sunday School work. He organized the first orchestra in connection with the Sunday school, and was president of the choir for many years.

As a member of the School Board he served the city well for two years and retired from active participation in the affairs of the municipalty only because of encroachng business duties.

One of the tragic circumstances in the family's bereavement is the fact that a daughter, Mrs. George Carmichael, was married only a few days ago, and departed happily on her wedding trip on Wednesday.

The deceased is also survived by his wife and two daughters at home, the Misses Wilma and Isobel. His mother resides with his sister, Mrs. J. S. I. Wilson, wife of Rev. J. S. I. Wilson, of Brighton.

The total value of all the roads and bridges in the British Isles is estimated at $4,500,000,000.

HINT OF FALL IN THE AIR AT CHEMONG PARK

Visitors Not as Numerous as in Earlier Months, Although Resort is at Its Best.

KING DAVID BAND

Chemong Park had a quiet hour yesterday after its busy Regatta day. On the verandahs, the varous events were reviewed and the dance discussed. The dance was evidently a very bright affair, lasting into the small hours, with an enormous crowd in attendance.

The Rendezvous orchestra put on a special stunt for the event. As a "House of David" band they played in long coats, flowing dark whiskers, dark eyeglasses and "Ikey" hats. Charlie suffered a nervous reaction also, after his exciting day. Charlie is the Pavilion owl, and he was extremely temperamental yesterday, his fierce eyes glowering at the big Yellow "Comet" bus. Perhaps the bird associated the bus with all the fuss and noise, its twelve trips of the day previous doubtless helping to swell considerably the number of Regatta attendants.

The detour on the road between the fifth and sixth lines still remains. The present condition of the culvert constitutes a menace to traffic of any desription Although the cement must have hardened some time ago, a gaping, unfilled hole in which water is collecting forms a pitfall for unwary wheels.

Residents Thrilled.

At Chemong, there is a hint of Fall in the air. Visitors are not as numerous as in the earlier months, although the Park appears at its loveliest in this mild weather. Already, some of the residents have flitted. A number of small social afairs, as usual, are noted from time to time. Last week, Mrs. Goldwyn of Toronto gave a bridge party, and Mrs. M. Daly entertained a few friends for the Misses Kidd of Toronto, who spent a fortnight at the Park.

Mr. F. Zaffrays, a former member of the original Dumbells troupe, has been spending sometime at the Park, at Mr. and Mrs. Perry's cottage.

Personal Mention.

Adjt Wallace Bunton has gone to Windsor for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Scollard and family have taken the Archer cottage.

Miss Jessie McFarlane of Toronto who is summering at the Park, is back from Bala.

Mr Harold Hudson and family are spending their holidays at the Park.

Miss Edna Overend of Toronto, returned home yesterday after visiting Mr. and Mrs. Fred Overend.

W. D. Powell of Buffalo, N. Y., who has been the guest of Mrs. D C. Fairburn and her brother, Mr. Prosser, at the latter's cottage, had some good fishing during his stay, pulling out nine pound 'lunge on one occasion.

Miss Bernadette Fobert of Detroit who has been visiting her grandmother, Mrs. L. Fobert, returned home yesterday.

Mrs. C. Perry, junior, has returned to the Park after a visit with relatives in Kingston and Port Hope.

Mrs. J. J. Lynch, Park Street, spent a few days with Mrs. C. Rutherford at the latter's cottage.

The Misses F Gallivan, K. McAuley and M. Kennealley were visitors at Mrs. Owens' cottage last week.

Canon Davidson of Toronto returned yesterday after a brief stay at Chemong Park, with Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Gordon.

Miss Jean Scott of Bridgenorth is spending a few days with her aunt, Mrs. J. Pope.

Mrs. F. P. McNulty and party are motoring to Cobourg to-day.

Miss Molly Young is spending the week-end with Mrs. J Pope.

GETTING MONEY TO BUILD A STUDIO HOME FOR GIRLS

Hollywood Wants Fewer Drifting Girls, Who Are Dangerous to Themselves and to the Movie Game.

By Robert A. Donaldson

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 18'—United Press).—A campaign is now under way in movieland to raise the dignity of "extra" work and to form a colony of extras so that all may obtain a reasonable living and form a substantial part of Hollywood life.

Hollywood wants fewer drifting girls— girls who are given to chance acquaintances, and who, because of lack of proper environment, are tempted to listen to improper advances by men influential in the studios.

Several years ago the Y.W.C.A. in Hollywood started the Studio Club, a temporary home for girls coming to Hollywood to go into the movies. It housed 20 girls. They were supposed to stay only for two weeks, while they got located else where although after that they were urged to make the Studio Club a social center. The Studio Club has always been filled to capacity. The two weeks' rule has never been enforced, and girls were housed there for several months, until they could get on their feet financially.

Membership in the Studio Club is not limited to girls who aspire to be actresses, but is open to all girls who work in the movies— stenographers film cutters, scenario readers and secretaries.

Hays' Campaign

A campaign, headed by Will H. Hays, movie czar, and the big producers to raise $150,000 for a new Studio Club building, to house 100 girls and serve as a recreation center and club house for all movie girls in Hollywood. Girls would be permitted to live at the new club for as long as a year unless the rush of girls to Hollywood becomes greater than at present'

"The majority of girls who come to us are of good type, clean, wholesome and serious-minded,' one of the clubs secretaries told the United Press. "Most of them are from small towns, and are generally girls who have gained fame in home-town amateur theatricals. Most of their families are in moderate circumstances. Of course, a large number of them are quite unsophisticated as to the ways of the world and the dangers that beset a single girl in the motion picture or any other large business. I feel sure the club has saved a great many girls from going astray. Where girls have told us of improper advances we have taken the matter up with the studio heads, and usually have put an immediate stop to such a man's activities.

Must Work to Live

"After a few weeks many girls who have come with high hopes of becoming stars run out of money, and confess to us that they must have work to live. Then we try to ge them located in other lines in the movies where they can make a good living, if they are qualified for the work, or if not, we try to get them work of some sort in Los Angeles stores.

"Far too many girls who have only small savings come to Hollywood only to realize too lat, that even if they have the ability, it takes time to break in to a point where they can earn enough on which to live. Any girl—if she must come to Hollywood, ought to have money enough to live for six months at least. She should also have a good wardrobe, as a girl without plenty of clothes for all occasions cannot qualify for the wide variety of scenes which require extras.

"Of course,' the secretary added "we see only a part of the girls who come to Hollywood. There is a fast set, who hope to win success in another way and the last place they would think of coming would be the Y.W.C.A.'

HOME BANK OF CANADA SUSPENDED PAYMENT YESTERDAY AFTERNOON

Assistant General Manager Says a Serious Number of Bad and Doubtful Debts Among the Assets.

WAS A SURPRISE.

TORONTO, Aug. 18.—(Canadian Press.)— Many anxious depositors made enquiries at the head office and thirteen branches of the Home Bank in this city long before the regular hour of opening for business, following the announcement of last night that the Bank had suspended payment and "closed its doors" to enable curators appointed yesterday, to go over the affairs of the institution and define the standing of shareholders and depositors in relation to available assets.

There are sixty branches of the bank in various parts of Canada, forty of them being in the province of Ontario. And a similar situation existed this morning at all points in the country where the Home bank has been doing business. Deposits remaining on the banks books are said to total about seventeen million dollars. While it is understood that various institutions of the Roman Catholic church were heavy depostiors, it is known that depositors with small accounts, very considerably saving accounts, gave bulk of business particularly at city branches and in smaller towns in Ontario, Quebec and West.

Pending curators official examination of books and reports from branches in all parts of the country, the situation is very indefinite, both in regard to depositors and shareholders, the latter being automatically accountable for double liability to make up any deficits accruing to depositors and other liabilities.

Meantime newspapers and banking officials are counselling steadiness among the people. The suspension will in any event last for ninety days, and it is expected that it will take nearly that time to clear up affairs of the institution.

TORONTO, August 18. Canadian Press. — The Board of directors of the Home Bank of Canada announce that they have received from the recently appointed assistant general manager of the bank an official report of a serious character as to the amount of bad and doubtful debts among the assets of the bank, and as to the extent of appropriations necessary to be made in respect of a number of large loans and investments; for the purpose of conserving the assets of the bank for the pro rata benefits of its depositors and other creditors, according to their legal status, respectively, they have decided to suspend payment.

The Canadian Bankers Association having been notified of this action on the part of the board has in accordance with the provisions of the bank act appointed a curator to supervise the affairs of the bank and protect the rights and interests of its depositors and shareholders.

OTTAWA, Aug. 18. Caadian Press —Information that the Home Bank of Canada had decided to suspend payment yesterday afternoon, came as a surprise to the officials of the Federal Department of Finance who claimed that they had received no official notification of the situation confronting the bank.

I the absence of Rt. Hon. W. S. Fielding, Hon. J. A. Robb is acting Minister of Finance. He declined to comment upon the report that the Home Bank was facing financial difficulties until such time as he had been officially informed of the circumstances.

Plans Were Made For Big Plowing Match.

SARNIA, Ont., Aug. 18.—(Canadian Press.)—J. Lockie Wilson, Superintendent of Ontario Department of Agriculture and J. McLean, of Toronto, were in Sarnia yesterday arranging details of the International plowing match and tractor and farm machinery demonstration to be held on October 17, 18 and 19. The grounds selected for the big event were staked out and other preliminaries talked over. Mr. Wilson announced that Hon. John S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture, would be in attendance, and Lieut.-Governor Cockshutt may also be a visitor here on one of the three big days.

CAUSE OF FIRES IN THE PROVINCE.

Four Hundred And Twenty By Lightning, 171 Through Matches.

The fire loss in Peterborough County through 74 fires in the second quarter of 1923 was $30,158, of which $19,073 was paid by the insurance companies and $11,085 by those who had not their property insured.

There were twelve deaths in Ontario during this period attributable to the fires ,and thirteen people were injured.

Throughout the Province of Ontario there were 433 fires arising from unknown causes; 420 caused by lightning in buildings not rodded; 332 originating in faulty stoves and pipes; 305 caused by sparks; 171 by matches; 163 by electricity; 138 originated in faulty chimneys, and 92 were caused by careless smoking.

The lowest cause given is molten metal, which was responsible for two fires; and second from lowest were 4 buildings equipped with rods which were struck by lightning.

Dwellings Suffered.

Dwelling-houses were the heaviest sufferers from fire during the second quarter, 2,055 being affected. Next heaviest were barns, 286, and stores 276. Sixteen arrests were made for arson and fraud in connection with fires.

The number of fires and the loss sustained far exceed those of similar periods in previous years, as shown in the following figures:

| | 1921 | 1922 | 1923 |
|---|---|---|---|
| Number of fires | 5,061 | 4,968 | 6,100 |
| Loss | $7,382,458 | $6,671,702 | $9,840,449 |
| Insurance loss | $5 952,109 | $5,378,311 | $8,.171,447 |
| Not covered | $1,430,349 | $1,293,391 | $1,669,002 |

MOSCOW FIREMAN HAS NEW RADIO INVENTION

By JOHN GRAUDENZ.

MOSCOW.—(By Mail to United Press).—To listen to a radio concert given in Berlin or elsewhere through a wooden cigarette case is the latest sensation here.

The inventor, a simple fireman entered the editor's room of the "Working Moscow" and asked whether the editor would like to listen to a radio concert right in his room. He then produced an ordinary Russian wooden cigarette case, held one end of the attached wire to a waterpipe, and the editor could hear the music in perfect clearness. Later he heard the wireless messages Rosta was receiving.

Alerej Ivanovich Semenof, the inventor, said it was all very simple and inexpensive. He lined the old case with a few sheets of tin foil which he got out of a tea packet, bored holes at the bottom, got a piece of wire from an old door bell and an old gramophone membrane which was the most expensive thing of the whole affair.

NO TROUBLE IS ANTICIPATED IN NEW GRAIN ACT

Hon. J. A. Robb says the Act Will Be Administered Without Any Trouble With U. S. Ships.

BOATS CARRY ORE.

OTTAWA, Ont. Aug. 18.—(Canadian Press).—"We intend to administer the Act and we do not anticipate any trouble with the grain shipping situation," said Hon. J. A/ Robb, Minister of Trade and Commerce, yesterday afternoon after a conference with Leslie H. Boyd, K. C., chairman of the Board of Grain Commissioners for Canada, and G. S. Wrong, who returned yesterday from Cleveland, Ohio, where they met the managers of the various lines operating on the Great Lakes.

Mr. Robb intimated that while the United States vessel owners said that they would not operate under the lake grain rates act, it was not expected that there would be any difficulty from this source.

It was pointed out that, at the present time, the American Lake Carriers were busy handling ores. This class of cargo, however, usually falls off in the months of October, and it is anticipated that United States shipping men will then be anxious to get grain to fill their vessels. This has been in the past the usual development in the trade, the cessation of the ore business coinciding with the heavy movement of grain traffic.

CONVICTS ARE NOW THEIR OWN GUARDS.

A Penitentiary Without a Cell at Baton Ronge, Louisiana.

BATON ROUGE, La., Aug. 18.—A penitentiary without a cell! A prison where convicts guard themselves!

And there, in substance, you have the Louisiana State Penitentiary under the administration of Governor John M. Parker.

Governor Parker's theories as regards prison reformation are attracting national attention. They are revolutionary. And those who have visited the "Big House" here say they are producing the desired results.

Except for the wall and the sentries posted thereon, one would not suspect he was in a prison. The convicts sleep in huge dormitories, kept spotlessly clean. No bars bind the windows. Only screens to keep out insects of the night, that the prisoners may sleep the better.

Starts in Home.

The idea of trusting men who have made a faulty step, starts in the governor's very home. His butler is a former prisoner, a man who has gained the esteem of the entire household.

For, as Parker explains it:

"How could I expect other men to employ ex-convicts I know to be all right, if I did not do so myself?"

The most striking thing about the strange prison is the prisoner-guard system. Crack shots, who have good records, are chosen for the task. No other prisoner is allowed to come within 30 feet of one of these guards. Guns are loaded with buckshot, and in the few attempts within the past four years, of breaks for freedom, the aim has been accurate.

"A guard knows," the governor explains, "that if he misses he is demoted, and never given the opportunity again."

One particular prisoner-guard, up for a stretch of 10 years for killing, has the particular affection, if one could call it that, of the governor.

"The money he makes as guard—oh, yes, we pay them for the work—is sent back to his wife and children.

"These men are not brutal toward other prisoners merely because they have been shown this extra confidence. They simply are firm. And the other prisoners, scenting the confidence we place in all by the mere fact of having prisoners to guard prisoners, do not try to take advantage of it. They could not get away with it, anyway."

Brought Back.

He amplified that by showing his visitor a "hound chase." These have come to be great sport to the prison population.

A prisoner, known to be especially resourceful, is taken outside the walls and told to run away. He is given half an hour start, and cautioned to cover his tracks wherever possible. When he is well on his way, hounds are loosened, and the "escaped convict" always is found and "brought back." This has a wholesome effect on those who harbor the slightest desire to risk the guns of the sentries in a break for freedom.

Punishment? When infractions of the rule are practiced, the punishment inflicted is intended not so much to hurt as to ridicule the offender in the eyes of the other prisoners. These latter "kid" the unruly one until he feels like a schoolboy, the governor says.

Governor Parker feels his theories are sound. So do prison reformers from everywhere who visit the "pen" here. And Parker intends to continue them.

Minister of Mines To Announce His Policy.

Sudbury, Ont, Aug. 18.—(Canadian Press).—Hon. Chas. McCrea will make his first formal announcement of policy as Minister of Mines next Tuesday evening in Copper Cliff when visiting members of American Institute of Mining Engineers will be their guests some important announcements are expected to be made.

A BARN SUDDENLY BURST INTO FLAME

Season's Crop, Driving Shed, Hens and Implements Destroyed by Fire

LINDSAY, Aug. 18.—Another destructive fire caused by combustion occurred on the farm of Sam. Cooper, half mile from Powel's Corner, when his barn, together with the season's crop, driving shed, implements and a number of hens, were totally destroyed.

The fire occurred about eight o'clock, when the barn suddenly burst into flame. The farmers of the district flocked to the scene, but could do nothing towards saving the burned buildings and contents.

Mr. Cooper had insurance on his buildings, but his loss will be a heavy one.

THREE DAYS ADRIFT ON LAKE ONTARIO

Two Men in Motor Launch Had Thrilling Adventure.

TORONTO, Aug. 18.—(Canadian Press).— Adrift for three days on Lake Ontario, two men were sighted in a motor lunch yesterday afternoon by officer Steinhauer of the life saving service and towed ashore The men whose names were John Matthews of Port Hope, and John Beck, Huron St., Toronto, were not much the worse for the experinece, since the launch had a cabin, and fortunately, was well stocked with food. They told the life.guards that they had left Toronto at 11 o'clock on Tuesday morning, and that two hours later the engine of the launch stalled.

MORE BOY BABIES BORN

MOSCOW (United Press).—Moscow's population is growing more and more masculine. For some time between ten and fifteen per cent more boys have been born than girls. Moscow's psychologists explain this by saying that many girls marry younger men.

CROPS IN WEST WILL COME TO EXPECTATIONS

Alberta and Sashatchewan Are Certain of a Big Yield.

OTTAWA, Ont. Aug. 18.—(Canadian Press). — "There is a good outlook at the present time that Alberta and Saskatchewan will come fully up to our expectations," said Hon. W. R. Motherwell yesterday afternoon, discussing the crop prospects in the West. "This is conditional upon getting good ripening weather and upon the ground drying up sufficiently to let the binders into the grain, some of which is lodged. It is also conditional upon the absence of frost.

"In Manitoba and in the southeastern corner of Saskatchewan," he added, "Rust has done some damage and may result in a loss of twenty to twenty five million, of bushels in the yield.

The Minister expected the opinion that the yield would come up fully to the estimate of 382,514,000 bushels for the total Canadian wheat crop given out by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

No matter what the conditions might be now, he said, there would be a large yield; but the quality would depend upon good weather conditions.

RUSSIANS WILL EXPORT HUGE AMOUNT GRAIN

BERLIN, Aug 18. — (Associated Press).—Russia's grain exportation this year is a burning question for Germany, which must buy a large portion of its bread-stuff abroad. Contract are already reported to have been made by German organizations for 40 million gold marks' worth of Russian grain, chiefly rye. This transaction is said to have been financed jointly by the Germàn of Soviet Russia maintain that the ists and the German bankers.

Krassin and other representatives of Soviet RDussia maintain that the Soviet government will be able to export three million tons of grain this season there has been more favorable than in Central Europe. There has been more sunshine and no difficulty is anticipated in harvesting the grain because of rain. In all the Soviet government expects to collect about 11 million tons of grain this year in grain taxes, and is planning to export almost one-third of this amount.

Grain crops in Germany are in excellent condition as a result of the abundant rain which has fallen gradually throughout the spring and early summer. But the lack of sunshine before July 1 has caused apprehension less there be insufficient heat and sunshine to ripen the grain and make harvest possible

BIG INCREASE NOTED IN TOTAL CANADIAN TRADE FOR LAST FOUR MONTHS

Total Increase Was Fairly Evenly Divided Between Exports and Imports. Imports Are the Greatest.

JULY BIG MONTH.

OTTAWA, August 18. Canadian Press. — There was an increase of $140,000,000 in the total trade of Canada during the four months of the current fiscal year ending with July, according to the figures just made public by the Department of Customs and Excise. For the month of July alone the increase over the previous July was $29,000,000.

The increase in the trade for the four months was pretty well divided between imports and exports but the increase in imports was about sixteen millions greater than that in exports. The total trade for the four months ending with July last was $624,000,000, as compared with $484,000,000 for the corresponding period of last year.

The imports for the four months of this year were $314,000,000, as compared with $236,000,000; while the domestic exports for the curdomestic exports for the current year were $305,000,000, as against $243,000,000 in 1922.

For the month of July this year, the total trade was $161,000,000, while for the same month last year it was $132,000,000. The imports for the months of July were $77,000,000 as against a little less than $61,000,000 in July, 1922; while the exports were nearly $83,000,000 as compared with something over $70.000,000 in July of last year.

The largest increase in imports for the four months period ending July is found in the group of nonmetallic minerals and their products, although iron and its products run them a close second.

The imports of the former class for the period under review in the present year totalled about $55,000,000, as compared with about $30,000,000 for the corresponding period of last year. In the cose of imports of iron and its products the total coming in during the four months this year was nearly $66,000,000 as compared with $44,000,000 for the similar period last year.

Among exports, the largest increase was found, as had occurred several times previously, among wood and paper. The exports of Canadian wood products and paper valued at over $90,000,000 as against something over $66,000,000 for the corresponding period of 1922. Other considerable increases are reported in exports of agricultural and vegetable products, in iron products and in non-ferrous metals and their products.

MOVIES PUT UP THE BARS.

All Visitors Will Be Denied Admission to California Studios.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 18.—Motion picture studios of southern California will be closed to all tourists, salesmen solicitors and friends of actors and employes after tomorrow.

A decision to that effect has just been reached at a meeting of the Motion Picture Producers' Association, and notices of the ruling have been posted at the larger studios.

The reason is said to have been receipt of information that a San Francisco woman recently visited the studios, received every courtesy, was photographed with various stars and is now on a lecture tour telling of the "vice and depravity" that she found.

GULLS COME BACK.

HELGOLAND, Aug. 18.—(Associated Press)—Kittiwakes have appeared in flocks off the coasts of Hegoland lately, apparently looking for breeding-places, and the migration of these gulls from their northern hunts has aroused considerable interest.

The authorities have issued instructions that all possible encouragement and protection be given the birds for re-establishing homes on the island. It has been decades since the kittiwake with its unusual threetold feet, has used Helgoland as a haven for hatching.

Negotiations Opened To Permit Liquor Shipment

VICTORIA, B.C., Aug. 18.—(Canadian Press.) — That the Federal Government start negotiations with the United States for the removal of present restrictions against the shipment of liquor through Alasaka to them Yukon and to Atlin, B.C. is the proposal which Hon. A. M. Manson, Attorney-General is laying before Premier Mackenzie King, in a letter to Ottawa yesterday

It is proposed that Canada and the United States enter into a special treaty to cover this difficulty.

THIEF IS THANKED FOR RESTORING LOST VOICE

PARIS, Aug. 18.—(Associated Press).—In a secluded spot just outside the walls of Paris there stands a small and select infirmary where diseases of the throat are treated. Patients suffering from chronic laryngitis go there for medical attention.

The attention of the police was called recently to a series of daylight hold-ups occurring in the vicinity of the sanatorium. It seems that ingenious crooks watched prosperous looking visitors enter the institution, noted the worst cases—those so unable to utter a sound that they had to make signs to the doorman—and then set upon them when they left and robbed them of their money and valuables.

One of the stick-up men received the shock of his life the other day, when an intended victim, upon being attacked, suddenly shouted "Help, Thief" in a voice which would have been a credit to a side-show barker. Fear had brought back the sick man's voice. "You have cured me," he said to the crook. "It's ten years since I have been able to shout like that. Here is a hundred francs; I would much rather give this to you than go on paying doctors."

PLENTY OF MUSIC.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 18.—(United Press).—Martial music that quickens the pulse and makes feet step forward with the old-time military precision is an important element in the success of any gathering of former service men.

San Fransico streets will resound with the martial notes of 100 bands and drum corps when members of the American Legion gather here on October 15 for their annual four days' national convention.

Thousands of dollars in cash prizes and many valuable gold and silver trophies will be distributed among the best musical organizations.

BETTING ACT IS STILL IN FORCE

In Spite of Judge Denton's Decision That Measure Ultra Vires.

TORONTO, Aug 18.—(Canadian Press).—In spite of Judge Denton's decision declaring the betting informaton bill to be ultra vires the provisions of the measure are to still remain in force pending decision to be obtained from appellate court, and informations will continue to be laid against interim violators.

Attorney General Hon. W. F. Nickle K.C. made this announcement last evening in the course of a statement which he ssued detailing the governments attitude. Hon Mr Nickle said that he wished it made absolutely clear that Judge Denton's finding was merely that of the senior police magistrate of Toronto and that it had thus no binding force upon any other magistrates. He stated furthermore, that, because many inquiries had been made he also wished to emphasize that people infringing the act would continue to find proscutions launched against them. Instructions to this effect he declared, would be sent out to all crown attorneys, who would be told to lay charges as usual and to have the cases adjourned pending the outcome of the appeal.

TROUSERS, NOT KNICKERS, ARE WORN BY WOMEN

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 18.—Men's trousers were the latest fashion adopted by the women of southern California today.

Plain pants, minus the frills and masculine to every detail, were worn by groups of girls in several cities following inauguration of the fad at Avalon, Catalina Island.

Haberdashers reported large sales of men's trousers to women.

"They don't order any alterations—they just step in and buy pants." one of them said.

Most of the girls favor the light grey shades, with prominent stripes, according to the men's furnishers. They prefer cuffs to bell bottoms, it also was noted.

SUMMER COLDS

A summer cold is the same as any other cold with a little different setting. It is a sure sign of some kind of weakness in your condition. The change from normal condition, which may have been brought on by carelessness, allows the micro-organisms, which are always prevalent, to have their poisons more rapidly absorbed. They are always on the job and waiting for a chance.

The nerve centres, which control the circulation of blood in the skin, are very sensitive and show a quick reaction to exposure or fatigue. If you have over exerted yourself in golf, tennis or rowing, and then taken a rest in a draft or under bad conditions, you have opened the way to attack.

Or if you have been careless in your summer eating, loss of rest, bad ventilation or continued constipation, you have let down the bars to a summer cold There is no help for it but to take precautions and be sensible.

The Cure.

After a summer cold has been actually caught, and one can usually be quite sure of that condition when it occurs, every effort should be made to get back to normalcy. Do not treat a summer cold lightly. It is a real infection and every effort should be made at once in its behalf.

A hot bath should be taken at once. This may be aided by a hot drink. The purpose, of course, is a good sweat for an hour or possibly two. Be very careful to sponge off after this sweat and continue your rest in bed.

If your headache, fever and sneezing do not yield to the treatment, continue your rest, stay in bed and be happy.

Precautions.

It is best to avoid any excessive eating during this period. It is even wise to fast for a day, taking nothing but water.

Be sure to avoid alcohol in any form or heavy doses of quinine, as well as all other quack remedies.

Do not associate with the rest of the family for awhile and be careful that all articles and utensils are thoroughly cleansed before using. Summer colds are given to others by contact, so save your friends from any such trouble by isolation and careful habits until well

A DEFICIT IN OUR MAN-POWER.

Canada's loss of young manhood during the last five years of peace have hardly been less than her losses during the preceding five years of war.

Many thousands died that Canada and the Empire might prevail and live. Their sacrifice was the price of their nation's glory, and their loss is counted as an eternal credit and gain to the country they so loyally served.

We vaguely understood, in the joy of reunion, that our armies of young men were to remain with us, in the pleasant fictional ending of living happy every after; that the flush of their victory and the fervor of their devotion would give to the whole people a new impetus to the upbuilding and advancement of their country under the broader opportunities of more deeply prized peace.

That vision has vanished, and the hope it had begotten has been bitterly revised, almost shattered, under the disappointments of the anticipated reconstruction, so-called.

Men who returned from France fit to resume their part in the industrial affairs of the country have since been lost to Canada, perhaps permanently, with thousands of others just reaching their majority.

It is only natural that men consult their own interests first, especially young men who have the world before them and an impelling urge to realize somewhere the fullness of their ambitions, to make their dreams of life come true.

The pity of it is that they are forced, by circumstances that dissatisfy them or by attractions that lure them elsewhere, to leave their own country that needs their youth and virility and their Canadian ideals.

True, they are simply following in the adventuring footsteps of their fathers and grandfathers before them, who turned to the new world and claimed a continent for English-speaking peoples. But it is a matter of deep regret, as it should also be a cause of serious introspection, that these young men of ours who have passed over to the United States during the last few years could not have found in their home land the incentive and reward of living for Canada, those of them who were soldiers, even as they had been prepared to die for Canada.

These losses in population cannot be satisfactorily balanced by immigration. Their places will be filled by new-comers, no doubt; the ranks of industry will be filled up, but there will remain a sense of defeat and deficit—the defeat and deficit of peace that we seem unable to check.

TRYING TO CONFUSE A WITNESS.

The wonder is that there are any lawyers in the country, either of long standing or of the school where the gilt letters are hardly dry on the window, who follow the poor tactics of trying to confuse a witness.

A case which took place this week north of London illustrates the point. A lawyer for the defence in a liquor case undertook to handle two crown witnesses who swore they drove from a neighbouring town, secured liquor, got drunk, and were arrested. He first started out with the idea of showing that they were out in their opinion as to the hour of their arrival in the town where they secured liquor. When did you quit work, where did you go, how long to eat supper, how long to dress, how long to shave, how long to get oil and gas, how long to drive 50 yards around a corner to put in water? Then at exactly what time did the car arrive, which way was it pointing when it stopped at a garage; hat kind of a bottle was secured, who took the first drink, who opened the bottle, was a corkscrew used? In all there must have been hundreds of such questions poured out, and each one was put again to the next witness in order to find some split-hair detail in which the two stories differed.

It was quite evident all through that the main idea was not to bring out the real facts of the case and place them plainly before the presiding magistrate. The whole drift of the cross-fire was to get one witness to differ in some petty detail from the other.

Another poor method was the addressing of witnesses: "Now be very careful what you say, or you are liable to find yourself in serious trouble." Fortunately there are many magistrates who would stop this sort of business right at the start, but in this case it remained for the crown attorney alone to lodge his protest for the protection of his witnesses from intimidation.

On behalf of the legal fraternity it can be said that the most of them, when acting as counsel in a court case, feel their responsibility, and consider that they have done their part when they present their case fully to the court. If they find a weakness in the opposing evidence they proceed to analyse it, but never in a manner that would cause a witness to become confused, and having become confused cease to be a competent witness.

A court sits and witnesses are heard with only one point in view, viz., that the magistrate who has to give his decision may have all the facts bearing on the case placed fairly before him. Questioning that does not help in this direction has no right to be permitted in any court, and should at once be stopped. — London Advertiser.

ROAD OF REMEMBRANCE.

Few features of the countryside add so much to the pleasures of motoring as the rural road lined with trees. After driving miles in the hot sun one blesses unknown, probably gone to his rest long ago, whose forethought provided the green coolness arching overhead.

In Indiana, Forester Dean is asking permission to line the 70,000 miles of highways in that State with walnut and hickory trees. It is estimated that crops valued at $2,000,000 would be harvested annually when these trees reached maturity.

The American Tree Association, an organization anyone may join by planting a tree, but which can not be entered by any other route, is now proposing through its President, Charles Lathrop Pack, that the Cannonball Trail, stretching from Chicago to California, change its name to Harding Highway, and that the people of the nation, particularly of the States through which the road passes, line it with trees as a memorial to the dead President. It is pointed out that Mr. Harding was nominated in Chicago, the eastern end of the highway, and died in California, where it ends.

Certainly the definite planting of trees along this or any other highway constitutes a gracious and a lasting memorial, symbolizing not only respect for the dead, but a thought for the yet unborn who may have cause to resent in other respects the manner in which this and the preceding generation treated the timber resources of our land.

In fact, every tree planted represents at least one protest against the waste of a great natural resource, and at least one effort to restore the heritage to posterity. "Poems are made by fools like me," wrote Joyce Kilmer, "but only God can make a tree." The men of today can make motors and locomotives, skyscrapers and battleships, but to hand one tree down to the race to come they have to call in the aid of the slow, patient and mighty forces on which all life is based.

The Lincoln Highway is a road dedicated to the memory of one of America's great men. But there is room in this country for another such road of remembrance. The remembrance will be sweeter if trees line its side.—Detroit News.

WHY CANNOT GERMANY MAKE SOME EFFORT?

A remark made by the Premier of Belgium at the last conference upon reparations was vividly illuminating. Discussing the British proposals, he said dryly: "Perhaps Germany might be called upon to make some effort." Germany's only serious efforts so far have been to evade payment. Is it not high time to make her realize that she must show better faith than she has shown or submit to her creditors collecting what her own Government so obstinately withholds?

Lord Curzon assumes that if France withdrew from the Ruhr and allowed another conference to decide what Germany can pay, Germany would pay. But supposing that following this Germany still refused to pay; what then? Germany had two years to try to make good. Conference after conference lessened her burden, and cut down French claims; and her only answer was to try to drive a wedge between the Allies and to use their differences to help her evasions. Is there any reason to suppose that a French retreat from the Ruhr (which would be hailed as a victory in Berlin) would alter the German mood?

There is none. On the contrary, the last German note held out for an amount infinitely smaller than Mr. Bonar Law stipulated as just at the last Paris Conference; and we have had the German Chancellor repudiate the latest British note and scorn the Pope's plea against passive resistance.

In 1871 Germany held French territory while the French were paying the war indemnity. She occupied Northeastern France. What is there immoral, or disturbing, or wrong about France occupying part of Germany?

French rights are clear. German bad faith is equally clear. Surely, then, France is entitled to carry on her experiment which in time may bring the Germans to their senses. Until now they have banked on the Allied deadlock to frustrate the treaty. The Ruhr is their jugular vein, Mr. Bonar Law admitted. Is it not reasonable to suppose that Germany will some time drop her sullen resistance and camouflage of poverty when she feels French fingers tighten on her throat?

Nobody doubts British sincerity; the Baldwin Government strives for European peace. But as against the well-being of European industrialists, and justice to devastated France, many will choose the latter. A Germany absolved and rejuvenated at the expense of a broken and bleeding France is too much to swallow—so soon.—Ottawa Journal.

AS OTHERS SEE US.

At a conference held the other day of representatives of the Dominion Government, the Canadian railroads and the farmers it was decided that about 60,000 harvesters would be needed for the coming grain crop. One-tenth of these will come from Great Britain. For the first time Canada is taking a quota of harvest help from the old home, says the New York Times. These harvesters, all men, are brought over at reduced rates by the shipping companies. Harvesters' tickets are sold in the Old Country by agents of the great railroads. Some have already arrived. Others are on their way. The railroads and the Federal and Provincial Governments distribute them where they are needed, and don't allow them to take unreasonably low wages. If they do not like Canada, they will go back at a cheap rate. Those of them that are satisfied with the country and their prospects in it are expected to stay, and later to bring their families.

Most of these immigrants are going West, though Ontario is getting a good supply. Some farmers in the Province of Quebec have applied for immigrant help in vain. The Quebec Government doesn't want any English farm hands admitted into the Province. Meanwhile, the harvesters' excursions to Winnipeg and the harvest lands of the Prairie Provinces have begun. Some 5,000 persons started from Montreal on Wednesday. They are described as a fine class, including, besides farmers' sons and agricultural laborers, many "white collars." All are sure of getting good wages. Many of them will "look around," find the place that suits them, become farmers in the Canadian West. Some are French-Canadians, whom Canada hopes to see established there instead of emigrating to the United States. There was a time when harvesters' excursions were largely made up of a rather rough type, violent and thirsty. For them only the rudest accommodations were provided by the railroads. Now the train service and conveniences have been greatly improved, and family parties—no women could have gone in the old days—are taken along.

TORONTO CATTLE.

TORONTO, Aug. 18.—The cattle market has shown some improvement this week, after a month of dull trading. The improvement is largely due to lighter receipts, and fewer shipments of common cattle. Only about 600 head of western cattle came to the market, and they were mostly of a better grade. The common stuff has been diverted to the American markets of the middle west, where there is a demand for it. In Ontario rain has improved the pastures, and farmers are better able to keep their cattle for finishing. As a result of lighter receipts of a better grade of cattle, there has been a clean-up this week for the first time in a month.

For export Rogers and Mayhee bought 320 cattle at from $7.25 to $7.70, and 14 bulls at an average price of $4.13 with tops at $4.75 and H. P. Kennedy shipped 200 steers. Further export buying to about the same extent is expected next week.

Packers were in the market for heavy steers this week, and on Monday bought several hundred at $7.50 to $7.85, with a few at $8. Choice butcher cattle were in demand throughout the week. Packers would have bought more cattle of good quality, but they were not offered. Choice handyweight steers sold at $7.40 to $7.60, and fair to good steers at $6.50 to $7.25. A few loads of light westerners sold from $3.50 to $5.50.

There was a better demand for butcher cows at $4.50 to $5.25; choice milch cows sold stronger at $60 to $100. There is a growing demand for good quality breedy feeding cattle of the Durham, Hereford and Polled Angus types. A good load of feeders brought $6.40 on Monday. Stockers and plain feeders went at $3 to $5. There were very few stockers and feeders on the market. Trade in bulls is very light, export bulls are not wanted. Choice butcher bulls sold at $4 to $4.50 with an odd one at $5, with a fair run. The calf market advanced a half dollar a hundred during the week. The majority of choice vealers sold at $10 to $11 with odd sales up to $12. Grassers were hard to dispose of. Some sold on Wednesday at $3.50 a hundred. Speculators shipped three loads of calves to Buffalo.

Hogs gained $1 a hundred during the week. On Monday they sold at $9.85, 15 cents higher than the previous close, and on Thursday they were selling up to $10.60 for thicks, smooths, fed and watered, and $1 premium was paid for selects. The causes of the higher prices were the light run and the competition between packers and outsiders.

Lambs opened a half dollar a hundred lower on Monday, but gained a dollar during the week. Sales were made on Wednesday and Thursday at $12.50 to $12.60 with the bulk at the lower price. Culls and common lambs brought $8 to $11.50 with yearlings at $8 to $9. Sheep remained steady at $5 to $6.50 for handyweights, and there is a demand for good butcher sheep. It has been announced that after August 27 packers will cut the price of bucks $1.50 per hundredweight.

The Week's Receipts.

Union Stockyards receipts, August 13-16: 387 cars, 6,030 cattle, 1,620 calves, 5,203 hogs, 4,010 sheep and lambs, 18 horses.

CASH GRAIN.

MONTREAL, August 18 (Canadian Press). — There were no new developments in the local grain market yesterday. Trading in flour continues light. There are signs of an improved demand in millfeed, but the rolled oats market was again quiet. Prices ruled unchanged in baled hay. Conditions were unchanged in the egg market. Prices for butter and cheese are firm.

WINNIPEG CATTLE.

WINNIPEG, August 18 (Canadian Press). — Receipts, 664 cattle and calves, 287 hogs, and 55 sheep.

There was little change reported on the cattle market yesterday morning. The few offerings of choice classes were disposed of at steady prices, while medium grades were weak.

The hog market continued firm at $10.00 for thick smooths and $11.00 for select bacons.

A few top lambs sold at $11.00.

Mr. Fred Palmer, 217 Dalhousie St., Brantford, Ont., writes:—"When I first went out to the North-West the water played havoc with my bowels, and being in a remote spot I could not get anything to give me relief for any length of time.

I wrote and told my wife about the time I was having and she sent me a bottle of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, and I cannot speak too highly of it for what it did for me.

Whenever the children have any bowel trouble from eating fruit or drinking strange water, which they have done for the past five years, living in the country, the only remedy we use is 'Dr. Fowler's', and nobody should be without it as it cannot be beat for instant relief."

Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has been on the market for the past 78 years, you don't experiment with now and untried remedies when you buy it, but be sure and get 'Dr. Fowler's' when you ask for it, as a substitute may be dangerous to your health.

STONEY LAKE AND DISTRICT

STONEY LAKE, Aug. 18.—The heavy rain which fell on Tuesday was an effectual check to the fires which were raging through the north country during the past week. On Monday the high wind was a great assistance to the fire, which menaced the north shore of Stoney Lake and caused grave anxiety. However, the danger is practically over now, and it is hoped that in the near future there will be sufficient rain to stamp them out entirely. No one knows who has not lived in the fire area just what it means to have a bush fire. It is the menace of the settler and always will be until people learn to take proper precaution, as these fires are usually caused by someone's carelessness and lack of knowledge of the first principles of wood-craft. The forests in Quebec have been closed from April 1st to November 1st, and no one is allowed to enter without a permit. This is a preventative measure against careless campers. Common-sense is necessary and will prevent a recurrence of this year's losses.

A notice has been posted at Juniper Island requesting owners of motor boats to avoid unnecessary noise with their boats during the Sunday services. This might apply to any place on the lake where worship is taking place. It is annoying and distracting to both clergy and laity, who are gathered for the worship of God, to have their devotions interrupted by "sputtering" motors. This is a case where "do as you would be done by" would be appreciated as it is neither necessary or reverent.

Passengers on the steamers as well as cottagers and campers have been cheered greatly by the sight of many scows of hardwood being towed down the lakes to assist in meeting the fuel problem of the coming winter. In spite of the gloomy prophecies of a year without a summer, this has been a "really truly" summer, but the provident are laying in stores of fuel against the fierce nor'wester which in a few months will announce the advent of winter again.

There have been several enjoyable picnics held during the past week. One very enjoyable party was held at Eel's Creek, the more adventurous spirits making the trip to High Falls. This is a trip well worth the extra paddle and occasional portage. Several picnics to Indian River (perhaps the favorite picnic ground) have been made. On Thursday evening of last week a very successful marshmallow roast was held.

GARDEN PARTY VICTORIA ROAD

Father Kelly's Annual Event Featured by Peterborough Entertainers. — Address by G. N. Gordon, M.P.

LINDSAY, Aug. 17.—Rev. Father Kelly, formerly of Peterboro, but now parish priest of Victoria Road, held his annual garden party on Wednesday, and the event attracted a big crowd from the surrounding country, including a number from Peterboro. An interesting bill of attractions was presented, and three Peterboro entertainers, Messrs. Quinlan, Wesley and Lush captured the crowd with their specialties. The treat of the day was the address by G. N. Gordon, M. P., of Peterboro, Deputy Speaker of House of Commons, who took as his subject "Timely Canadian Topics." Rev. Father McGuire, of Peterboro, acted as chairman and in introducing Mr. Gordon referred to his good work at Ottawa. When he went to the Capital a member for Peterboro, he became conspicuous at once. He is there to stay and a good man. He is now Deputy-Speaker of the House and further promotion is in store for him."

Paid Glowing Tribute.

Mr. Gordon opened his remarks with a short story and afterwards paid a glowing tribute to Father Kelly, whose family were neighbors of the speaker's in Peterboro. "The people whom I have met since arriving heer to-day all speak in glowing terms of Father Kelly and he is a man worthy of this worthy community."

The speaker also paid a tribute to the intelligence of the young men and women of the community and urged parents to give their boys and girls every possible chance to succeed in life.

Launching into his address, Mr. Gordon referred to the fact that Canada had a war debt of two billion and a quarter dollars It was a mortgage upon the shoulders of young Canada, and on every man and woman in the country. It comes first above all other mortgages, even the mortgage on your farms, but Canada was a growing country and well able to pay the war debt. On top of this war debt there was also the general debt of seven billion and a half dollars, but the very fact that Canada is the greatest wheat producing country in the world, and that Canada has abundant other resources is guarantee enough that Canada will measure up and pay her debts. Citizens of Canada today should not worry too much about their responsibilities, as Canada's resources are ample."

Canada's Assets.

In referring to some of Canada's assets the speaker mentioned her numerous lines of railways, and excellent population, and in doing so paid a fine tribute to Sir William Mackenzie who was born and raised in the above community, and who became one of the greatest railway men Canada had ever produced. "The people owe him a tribute for the work he has done in building railways and opening up new towns all over the west.

Canada had also one billion and a quarter dollars of exports, and almost an equal amount of imports, and the country is developing very rapidly.

Mr. Gordon also referred to the lifting of the British embargo on cattle, and predicted that this would mean a great deal to Canada and to the community around Victoria Road, where ranching was a recognized business. He also predicted a further development for Canada when the aftermath of war strikes and war disturbances are finally settled.

Commended Farmers.

The speaker commended the farmers for the improved type of stock they were fostering and advised them to get rid of the scrub cattle and go in for the very best type. He also urged them to get into the British market, particularly with regard to pork. The Englishman wants the Wiltshire bacon, the very best bacon he can get. "We want to develop more efficiency and a better strain in Canadian live stock. More efficiency is also needed on the farm and in the factory These bright boys and girls are entitled to a greater chance give them all the opportunity and advantages possible in order that they may become the big citizens of to-morrow. We need in Canada a better citizenship, a better manhood and a better womanhood, and an era of prosperity is ahead of us."

Will Take Off All Excess Fat

Do you know that there is a simple, harmless, effective remedy for overfatness that may be used safely and secretly by any man or woman who is losing the slimness of youth? There is; and it is none other than the tablet form of the now famous Mamola Prescription, known as the Marmola Prescription Tablets. You can well expect to reduce steadily and easily without going through long seiges of tiresome exercise and starvation diet. Marmola Prescription Tablets are sold by all druggists the world over at one dollar a case, or you can secure them direct from the Marmola Co., 4612 Woodward Avenue, Detroit Mich., on receipt of price.

GIRLS AND BOYS, READ THIS.

Here is a fine way to get a tennis racquet or skipping rope free, girls. Go to Mother and tell her that you want Quaker Corn Flakes. Tell her you known they're the best, because they're made by the famous Quaker Oats Company. Then save the coupons that are in every package and you'll soon have enough for a dandy racquet or skipping rope. Tell your brothers to save, too, and get a baseball outfit free. And don't forget to tell Mother she can get some fine aluminum ware in the same way.

APSLEY VILLAGE AND THE DISTRICT

John McCauley, Pioneer Of North Country, Passes. Bush Fires Subdued.

APSLEY, Aug. 18.— Another of the pioneers of the north country passed away on Tuesday morning, the 14th inst., in the person of John McCauley, at the old homestead on the shores of Mink lake, seven miles east of Apsley. Mr. McCauley was one of the earliest settlers in this district, coming here fifty-four years ago, and would have attained his eighty-ninth birthday had he lived until the thirty-first of this month. He was born at Glasgow, Scotland, and came to Canada with his parents when he was seven years old, and as a young man served four years as a sailor in the merchant service. When he settled here there was only a footpath through the woods from Apsley and all supplies had to be carried from there to his home .There are left to mourn his loss, besides his widow, one brother, Robert of Burleigh, six sons, Dillman (with whom he lived), John, Joe, William, Robert and Andrew, and four daughters, Mrs. Pete Johnston, Mrs. George Gilroy, Mrs. George Couch and Mrs. Albert Hall, besides 62 grandchildren and 28 great grandchildren, a total of 100 direct living descendants.

The funeral, which was largely attended, was held at St. Paul's church, Lasswade, on Thursday, the service being conducted by the Rev. C. Spence, assisted by Mr. J. B. Bonathan. Miss Marjorie Spence sang with great feeling and expression, "There's a beautiful land on high," and "Nearer My God to Thee" was also sung by request. The bearers were the four sons, Robert, John, Dillman and Joseph, and the two sons-in-law, George Couch and Albert Hall. Interment was made in the cemetery .

Rain a Blessing.

The rainfall on Tuesday, which totalled .29 of an inch was effectual in subduing the forest fire that has raged for nearly two weeks, and the fire fighters are now having a respite from their exhausting labour.

The Healthiest Baby in the District

CAN you make that proud boast about your baby? Is he thriving as he should? Read this letter from an Ontario woman. It will give you some idea of what "ALLENBURYS" Foods are doing, not only for this baby but for hundreds all over Canada.

"I have a seven months old baby. The doctor told me at first that my baby could not possibly live as it had no constitution. However, the nurse (an Englishwoman) advised me to try 'Allenburys' Food. I got a tin of your No. 1. Food and today I can say without boasting, that you cannot find a healthier child in the district. I hope I am not trespassing on your time, but I wanted to let you know what 'Allenburys' Food has done for my baby."

THE FREE METHODISTS CAMPBELLFORD HAVE FLOURISHING SOCIETY

Annual Meeting on Friday Showed Satisfactory Conditions — Officers for Year Elected by Ballot.

REV. R. BLOYE,
Pastor of Free Methodists at Campbellford.

NEWS PARAGRAPHS

CAMPBELLFORD, August 18.—The annual meeting of the Free Methodists' Society was held last evening with the pastor, Rev. R. Bloye, presiding, and Mrs. H. Abernethy acting as secretary. After the devotional exercises conducted by the pastor, the meeting proceeded to elect by ballot the officers for the year. Those chosen were:

Delegate to the conference which opens at Newmarket on 29th of August, Mrs. H Abernethy.

Reserve delegate, Mrs' J. Rightmeyer.

Class leader, Ira A. Loucks.

Assistant class leader, Mrs. J. Rightmeyer.

Sunday School superintendent, C. L. Kellogg.

Stewards, Mrs. E. Loucks, C. L. Kellogg, Mrs. H. Abernethy, H. Abernethy.

D. Mainprice, treasurer of the Board of Trustees, submitted the report of the money expended upon the parsonage, a comfortable residence that was purchased by the society for their pastor in September of last year. The building cost $1,800, and of this amount the sum of $750.80, principal and interest, has been paid, leaving a balance of $1,250. The report is regarded as highly satisfactory when the small membership of the society that has assumed this liability is taken into consideration. The church building a neat and comfortable edifice. is entirely free of debt.

The society was organised fourteen years ago, the first annual meeting being held on the 5th of August, 1909. It has now 22 members, and these have at all times been ready to make financial sacrifices in support of the faith to which they are so devoted. Rev. R. Bloye has been pastor for the past two years, and his services have been so highly appreciated by the members that they have urged him to remain for another year. Three years is the limit of a pastorate in this denomination. The transfer of ministers for the year will be made at the Newmarket conference, so that Mr. Bloye will not know what the future has in store for him before the list for next is made up.

Funeral of Thomas Fox.

Friends from far and near attended the funeral of Thomas Fox, which was held from his late residence in Seymour to Mount Pleasant cemetery Friday afternoon. Rev. C. F. McIntosh, of St. Andrew's church, of which the deceased had been an esteemed and faithful member for years, conducted the religious services at the home and at the grave. The pallbearers, all lifelong friends of the deceased, were W. Fraser, Peter Hicks, James Forrestal, Robert Bertrand, Robert Innis and W. M. Stephens.

The Game Monday.

The game between Campbellford and Warkworth, to be played at Orland at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon, will decide which of these teams will play Trenton home and home games for the cup, which is presented by Sam Clark, M.P.P. for Northumberland West, and which is the championship trophy in the Northumberland League. Brady is at his best, and all the regular players will be on deck, so that the home team's chances for defeating Warkworth are excellent. The veterans, however, can be depended upon to fight fairly with all the means at their disposal for victory, so that a good game is assured. A sympathetic crowd is a help to any team, for after all baseball playeres are intensely human. Warkworth fans will be out in force on Monday so that Campbellford enthusiasts should not permit themselves to be out numbered. The game that the Campbellford boys are playing shows that they are worthy of support.

DROP IN SUGAR PRICE

VANCOUVER, B.C. Aug. 18.—(Canadian Press)—Another drop of fifteen cents in the wholesal, price of granulated sugar to $9.35 is announced here. This is the second reduction this week.

AID WIDOWS IN INDIA.

GENEVA, Aug. 18.—(Associated Press)—There are twenty-five millions of Hindu widows in India who, owing to their religion, can never marry, Miss Isobel Frosham of the Church of England Missionary Society told her hearers at a lecture in Geneva.

Of this total, 174,000 widows are under the age of nine, and both old and young widows, especially the latter, are as a rule very badly treated by their relatives, who believe that in former lives their misdeeds must have been great to be thus punished in this life. When ill, these unfortunate widows are not allowed to be attended by a male doctor. Miss Frosham therefore appealed to the Swiss Women's Committee to send volunteer womn doctors to India to look after this sorely tried class of native women.

FREIGHT TRAFFIC RESUMED.

MOLINE, Ill., Aug. 18.—(Associated Press)—With four new motors barges, freight traffic on the Mississippi between St. Paul and St. Louis will begin soon after a lapse of more than four year, the River Transit Company of St. Paul has announced.

The motor barges on their route between St. Louis and St. Paul will cover 689 miles. Ninety landing places are tabulated on a list. The boats will have a 100-ton cargo capacity.

SAVE THE CHILDREN

Mothers who keep a box of Baby's Own Tablets in the house may feel that the lives of their little ones are reasonably safe during the hot weather. Stomach troubles, cholera infantum and diarrhoea carry off thousands of little ones every summer, in most cases because the mother does not have a safe medicine at hand to give promptly. Baby's Own Tablets relieve these troubles, or if given occasionally to the well child will prevent their coming on. The Tablets are guaranteed by Government analyst to be absolutely harmless e .n to the newborn babe. They are especially good in summer because they regulate the bowels and keep the stomach sweet and pure. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Hastings Personals.

HASTINGS, Aug. 18.—Mrs. Jas. Buck, of Norwood, spent a few days recently with Mrs. Wm. Preston.

A number from here spent Monday in Peterborough.

Mrs. J. Dick and little daughter, of Toronto, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Albert Brooks.

Those who left on the harvesters' excursion for Western Canada on Monday are: Wm. Whitred, Carl Caldwell, Ed. Carnright, Cecil Whitred, Geo. Sharpe, A. Johnson.

Mrs. Wm. Londerville is visiting friends near Parry Sound.

Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Beavis of Colborne, were in town on Wednesday.

A number of people have been attending the Cobourg horse show this week.

CAMPBELLFORD TOOK REVENGE

Defeated Warkworth on the Local Diamond by a Score of 17 to 3.

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 18. — Campbellford got sweet revenge on the Warkworth veterans for the drubbing on Wednesday, by defeating the latter team on the local diamond by a score of 17 to 3, in a game that was called at the end of the seventh innings. This leaves the teams still tied for second place in the league and the game to break the tie will be played in Orland at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon. This village is easy of access for both teams and the Orland diamond is one of the best in the league.

The tables were completely turned on the veterans. They had the same line up to a man as they had on their home grounds Wednesday, but the personnel of the Campbellford team was different, all but one of the regular players being on hand. Nesbitt was behind the bat and nothing got away from him. Brady was in the box and pitched the game of his life, striking out 11 of the veterans, allowing only three bases on balls and holding the team down to five hits. He seemed to improve as the game progressed and in the fourth and seventh innings retired the side in one, two, three order. Holmes was in his old place at second and West was in cetnre, where he has always done his best work. Smith played third in place of Cowell and made a hit in the fourth. His fielding record was two put outs and an assist, all the chances that came to his corner.

The crowd was the biggest that has attended a home game this season and the Campbellford rooters excelled themselves in expressing their enthusiasm at the fine work of the home team. Warkworth sent a large crowd of fans of both sexes, who came presumably to cheer, but who left for home to nurse their disappointment over the fall of their idols, after preserving a silence throughout the game as dense as that of mourners at a funeral.

Holmes carried off the batting honors for Campbellford with a double in the first, a home run in the second and a single in the sixth, in five times at bat, a percentage of .600 for the game. Campbellford scored every time they went to bat, while the veterans were blanked in every innings but the third and sixth.

The Game Begins.

McGregor, the first veteran to face Brady, took a crack at the first ball pitched to him, but was thrown out at first by Holmes. Poole singled to left centre, but after stealing second, tried to pilfer the third sack but Nesbitt's throw to Smith was too quick for the fleet-footed Poole.. A. Zufelt, who had reached first on a safe hit, got to second while Poole was being put out and worked his way around to third. Mulhall waited out the pitcher, but Beatty sent a grounder to Brady and was out at first.

There was victory in the air for Campbellford the first time they went to bat. Eagleson was out, Poole to K. Zufelt, but Hume singled to right and Holmes sent him to third with a crashing double. Both scored on Weston's single. Brady helped Weston to third with a safe hit and the latter scored on a wild pitch. West and Smith were unable to land on Zufelt and the side was out, Brady being left on third and Nesbitt on first, to which he had been given a pass.

For the second time up the veterans were snuffed out in order. Eaglesam threw K. Zufelt out at first, Dick and Wilson fanned.

In the second Blakely got to first when Mulhall failed to handle his grounder in time and went to second when Eaglesam got his base on balls. Then Hume sent a high fly to right which Beatty got after a good run. Blakely made third on the throw in but Eaglesam who thought Beattey had missed the ball started too soon and failed to get back to third when he discovered his mistake.

It was then that Holmes made the hit of the day, a four bagger to left, a hit so lang that he crossed the plate, with Blakely ahead of him with an easy lead over the ball that was promptly relayed in to catch him at the plate. The side was out when Weston grounded to Mulhall.

When the Veterans went to bat in the third, Inglis, one of the best hitters on the team fanned. McGregor got his base by waiting, Poole reached first and McGregeor third, when Smith made a low throw to Weston of the former's grounder. Both base runners scored on the throw in when A. Zufelt was retired on a long fly to Blakely in left who never misses anything that drops from the clouds into his garden. Mulhall ended the inning by striking out.

In their third time up Campbellford faced a new pitcher, Mulhall going into the box and A. Zufelt taking his place at short. Brady, the first man up, singled to left and stole second but was thrown out at third when West grounded to second and was by fielder's choice, safe at first. Nesbitt hit safely to centre field and stole second West and Nesbitt added two runs to the total on Smith's sacrifice fly to right. Blakely hit to left and scored on Eaglesom's double. Hume's single sent Eaglesom home. Mulhall's first vetnure in the box ended when Holmes was out from short to first.

In the fourth Beatty flied out to Blakely, K. Zufelt fanned and Dick sent a fly to Smith.

In Campbellford's half of the innings, West walked, Mulhall evidently not caring to risk a hit by the pitche. A double to right by West sent them both in. Nesbitt flied out to right but Smeith hit safely to centre sending Brady home and West to third. Smith stole second. Brady flied out to A. Zufelt and Eaglesom to Poole.

Only four Veterans went to bat in the fifth. Wilson and Inglis fanned, McGregor hit to left and stole his way round to third but was left there when Poole was retired on a grounder to Brady. (, Campbellford made another on the fifth when Hume doubled to right and stole second, crossing the plate when Holmes sacrified to second. Weston was out. Mulhall to K Zufelt and Brady fanned.

The Veterans scored their last run in the sixth when A. Zufelt doubled to left centre and crossed the plate when Mulhall singled. Beatty got first and Mulhall second on a ball.; while the latter was arguing over this decision with Holmes he was tagged out by Campbellford's second baseman, who got the ball from Brady.

For the third time Warkworth changed pitchers in the sixth. Inglis relieving Mulhall, who took his old position at short, while A. Zufelt went to left. The new twirler had everything but control and in this frame Campbellford fattened its score by four runs. Inglis struck out three men in three innings but in each case the last strike was a wild pitch at which the batter offered and so reached first. Nesbitt, Smith and Hume got a base each by this route, West got a base on balls, Blakely and Eagleson flied out to Mulhall, who with his feet on his old stamping ground was himself again. West got a pass to first and scored on a series of misplays, the other three runs being tallied by the batters who had fanned but who saved themselves by offering at wild pitches. Holmes hit safely again in this inning but was left on third.

For the sixth Wilson fanned, Inglis sent a fly to Holmes and McGreggor struck out.

Campbellford scored again in the seventh, when Brady singled, stole second and went to third, when Nesbitt hit safely. Nesbitt got as far as third but was left there, West and Blakely striking out and Smith sending a fly to Inglis.

At the end of the seventh Umpire White, whose work at the plate was entirely satisfactory, to both sides, not one of his decisions being questioned, called the game. Play had started at 5 o'clock and the light was failing. The spectators joined in three cheers for the visitors who took their defeat without the slightest show of crabbing.

New Supply Station

W' J. Meiklejohn has put in a tank near his Vulcanizing shop and is now prepared to supply autoists with the best brand of filtered gasoline. The tank is so situated as to be easy of access to the owners of cars passing through the town.

Personals

Late yesterday afternoon, Mr. W. F. Nelson, who conducted a typewriter and supply business, dropped dead in his George street office. He leaves a wife and three daughters. The funeral will be held on Monday.

QUIZ CORNER

POPULATION INCREASES IN CANADA

Q—What were the population increases in Canada during the last ten-year census period?

A—The Increase in Canadian population in the ten years 1911-21, was 1,581,840 or 21.95 per cent. Of the increase shown by the last census, persons of British origin contributed 722,346 or 45.68 per cent; Irish 57,433 or 3.53 per cent, Scotch 175,944 or 11.13 per cent; other British races, 16.382 or 1.03 per cent. French 16.382 or 1.03 per cent. French 397,692, or 25.28 per cent. The total population of Canada in 1921 was 8,788,341.

BATTLE OF TICONDEROGA.

Q—When was the battle of Ticonderoga fought ?

A.—On July 8, 1758 the Battle of Ticonderoga was fought beside Lake George now in New York State. Then the old fortress was to guard the frontier of French Canada; and on this date a strong force of British and Bostonnais, under Abercromby attacked the fort, which was defeated by Montcalm, with a fourth the number of his enemies. But he was a wise general and Abercromby was a fool; so, though the Scotch Highland charged, and lost terribly, Montcalm won the battle.

THE SAULT FUR TRADER'S LOCK.

Q.—Who built the Sault Fur Traders' Lock at Sault Ste. Marie?

A—The old canal lock, at Sault Ste. Marie, was built by the Northwest Fur Company in 1797. It was the first big attempt to conquer the St. Mary's rapids and was, for it's day, a big engineering undertaking though it is in striking contrast with the modern Canadian canal lock, nearly 900 feet long.

THE FOUNDATION OF KINGSTON.

Q—When was the city of Kingston founded?

A—The site of Kingston dates back to the visits of Frontenac and La Salle in 1673, although Champlain had called at the spot in 1615.

CANADA'S WEALTH.

Q—What is Canada's wealth per capita?

A—In proportion to population Canada stands today among the wealthiest nations in the world, with an average savings on deposit of $800 per family. Canada's foreign trade per head of population stands among the highest of the commercial nations, being $192 per capita, in 1922-23, as compared with $135 in 1913-14, the "peak" year before the war.

FRENCH REPLY.

PARIS, Aug. 18.— (Canadian Press.)—The text of Premier Poincare's reply to the British Foreign Secretary's reparation note of Aug. 11 was forwarded to the French ambassador in Brussels late yesterday afternoon with instructions to deliver it immediately to the Belgian government.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

TINY MITE AND THE MOON

Oh, isn't the moon lovely!" cried Tiny Mite.

When Tiny Mite flew away on a lightning bug one night he had no idea where he was going.

All he knew was that the moon looked like a big silver plate, the little stars like sugar and the world like a great big plum pudding, dark and smelling forty ways at once like forty kinds of perfume.

"Gid ap!" cried Tiny Mit, clicking his tongue and digging his heels into his willing steed. "Gid ap and take me to the end of the earth. I'm tired of just seeing Pee Wee Land under the burdocks and no place else. Just plumb tired of it. Gid ap!"

The lightning bug didn't say anything but he went on and on and kept his lantern burning as brightly as he could. He wasted electricity something awful—he did!

But he went right on like a good lightning bug—on and on and on.

"My this is fine!" cried Tiny Mite. Suddenly he had an idea. "Could you fly to the moon with me on you? I want to see what it's like up there. I want to say how do you do to the Moon Man.'

Tiny Mite yawned'. He was getting sleepy.

The lightning bug picked up his ears. He heard that yawn and he winked at himself.

"Why, yes I can take you to the moon," he answered. "Just close your eyes and we'll soon be there. You might get dizzy if you kept them open."

"All right," said Tiny Mite. scrooging them up tight. "They're shut."

Then the lightning bug flew straight to a moon-vine and lit on one of the big white round flowers. The real moon had gone under a cloud and no one could see it.

"Is this it?" asked Tiny Mite opening his eyes. "Are we there?"

"Yes," answered the bug.

"Oh, isn't the moon lovely!" cried Tiny Mite. "And doesn't it smell grand!" And he sniffed and sniffed. Then he yawned again.

"I believe I'm sleepy," he murmured. "I believe I'll sleep on the moon. Good night, lightning bug."

Tiny Mite Rescued.

When Tiny Mite, the Pee Wee, asked the lightning bug to take him to the moon, the lighting bug took him to a moonvine instead and left him on one of the big round white flowers.

"Oh, thank you, Mister Bug!" yawned Tiny Mite. "I never knew the moon was so lovely. And doesn't it smell good! But I'm so sle-e-e-e-epy. I'll have to have forty winks at once. I'll crawl into this hole, which must be one of the valley I have heard of, and have a nap. Then you can take me home.

Soon he was snoring like a buzz-saw.

But the lightning bug was worried. He'd wasted so much electricity on his way from Pee Wee Land that he hadn't a speck left and his light had gone out. And how on earth he was ever going to get Tiny Mite back to Pee Wee Land when his nap was over. Besides, the real moon had come from behind the cloud and Tiny Mite would know he had been fooled.

"Oh, oh! What'll I do?" said the lightning bug. Then all at once he noticed something. It was getting near daylight when moon flowers shut themselves up tight. And Tiny Mites' particular flower had started to turn itself slowly 'round and 'round, all the time getting littler and littler like a screw.

"Oh!" said the bug. "I'll let him stay there and he can't get out till tomorrow night. I'll have time to go home for more 'lectricity."

When Tiny Mite woke up, there he was! Tighter 'n' a wad of cotton in a gun.

"Let me out! Let me out!" he yelled, pounding and pounding. "The moon's closed up on me and I'm hungry and wanta go home."

Who should come along just then but Nancy and Nick.

And they heard him. They'd been hunting for ever so long, for Tiny Mite's bed hadn't been slept in and his mother was worried sick.

"So this is where you are!" cried Nancy, pulling open the moon-flower and letting Tiny Mite out.

"You'd better stay in- Pee Wee Land, where you belong," said Nick.

(To Be Continued.)

Sault Ste. Marie recently celebrated the 300th anniversary of the discovery of its site by Etienne Brule and his companion Grenolle. Festivities extended over a full week, on two afternoons of which Ojibway Indians took part in a historical pageant depicting the landing of the two adventurers and in Longfellow's Indian play Hiawatha. The pageant was staged by L. O. Armstrong, of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and this and every other event of "Discovery Week" was enthusiastically supported by the whole populace, and witnessed by more than twenty thousand people. Brule and Grenolle are seen with the Ojibway chief after their "historic landing."

THE MODERN ANGLER SAVES TIME AND MONEY WITH MOTOR CAMPING EQUIPMENT

BY MORRIS ACKERMAN.

Nationally Known Author ity and Writer on the Great Out-of-Doors, and Editor of Ackerman's Sportsmen's Guide.

FIRST ARTICLE— WHAT TO BUY.

These articles on Fishing, which start to-day, will find special interest with Examner readers, in that its author, Morris Ackerman, is well known to Peterborough sports. He spends his holidays here each year:

This is the day of the motor camper, and to-morrow will be better. A large percentage of our population has access to motor tours and don't forget on a hot night a free camp site on the short of a cool lake does one more good than an expensive room in a hot hotel. Remember when you make a motor trip your car has no objections to a few added pounds of camping luggage. The investment you make in a tent, a bit of camp furniture and bedding will just about pay for itself in a 10-day trip.

You can buy tents of all sizes and shapes, with or without poles, heavy and light, costly and otherwise. If you want to stay at a hotel you can, but if you don't, you don't have to. I have noticed that the hotels are near the railway station and that camp sites are on the beaches. Has this a summer camping suggestion for you?

Folding cots are the sleeping rigs for summer. You don't need sheets and pillow cases. A discarded quilt from the attic makes as fine a bed as the whitest sheeting of sea island cotton. "Canned fire" is used for cooking at free camp sites.

You can get gasoline camp stoves that make quick and hot gas. Solidified alcohol is another cheap and effective heat for fast travelling. The day of chasing down a sharp tree with a dull ax "is went."

While the black flies are gone from the land at this season of the year, the mosquito remains, to some extent, the lord of the night. A few cents' worth of netting will reduce the lording considerably. A few cents 'worth of cheesecloth puts the skids under black flies and all.

Netting, however, gives you more ventilation. Take your choice. The matter of added equipment depends on personal whims. The less you have, having enough, the less to pack. Motor camping to-day is a pleasure. Expansive roads welcome you—lovely camp sites welcome you—the fishing is great.

Come on.

FISHING FIGHTING FOOLS

A grass-pike and his vicious companion of the weeds, the muscalunge, are a brilliant pair of dumbells when you come to think about of. A grass-pike will take a surface lure trolling a hundred feet or more behind a canoe, motor-boat or skiff—while the whole time the passing of the craft, the long line showing a white streak in the water and finally the whirling treble-hooked spoon are unfolded to the fish—and—he grabs the spoon just the same.

You troll a few inches deeper and you nail both "lunge" and pike, or you might snare both on the surface. The thing is that a grass-pike and a muscalunge will take a piece of tin or a hunk of wood trolling behind a boat when nature should have blessed them both with better sense.

They are boneheads of the first water.

When that Reel Hums

A wise old bird I know tells the world that the way to catch game fish is to trick 'em to shoot 'em something that looks good to eat fast and accurate and above all to have the lure reeling back toward you "when it hits the water."

This is certainly true with speckled trout and holds in the majority of cases with large and small-mouth black bass, but with grass-pike and muscalunge it doesn't mean anything. Of course, a grass-pike may not be considered a game fish, but surely a muscalunge comes in the front rank as a fighting fool.

It was only yesterday my young son was casting along the edge of a weed-bed. He got a blacklash worked out the tangle, started to reel in—and BAM!!!

That's a grass-pike for you, and I've seen muskies do the same thing Seldom, indeed, does a bass do that It's an advantage that the poor caster has with "lunge" and pike fishing, however. I'm not going to tell you how to catch muscalunge. I only suggest that you include in your "lunge" tackle a brace or so of phantom minnows rigged with bronze snelled hooks.

Phantom Minnow Bait

I know the treble-hook feathered trolling spoon is the accepted lure, both by the fish and the fisherman, but, in my opinion, the phantom is the "female of the species." A 25-pound line will hold a 75-pound fish.

So will a 15-pound line, if you don't try to "hoss' 'em. When a "lunge' of size decides ot rush after being hooked, it's up to you to keep slack out of the line. That's your first and last business. The rest of the battle takes care of itself.

Musky fishing reminds me somewhat of grizzly hunting. You start out fishing for shiners and your ultimate ambition is muscalunge—which you finally realize. A grizzly has an independent air about him—sort of if you want to know who runs things around this joint commence something. That's the way with 'lunge.

In his water he's boss and when he gets afoul of a flock of gang hooks he just starts right in to show you how he conducts affairs in his neck of water. There are plenty of muscalunge left in many states and eastern Canada.

BILLIONS OF BOTTLES FOR SOFT DRINKS NOW

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—(Associated Press).—History omits the description of many of the interesting things about Methusaleh, among them his liquid capacity. But, says the Department of Agriculture, if he had been given the task of disposing of all the "pop" consumed in this country last year, he would have had to start at birth and down eight bottles every minute of his 969-year span of life.

Each year, the department's statisticians declare, thirsty America empties four billion bottles of soft drinks exclusive of such beverages as near beers made of cereals. The sparkling flood comes from ten thousand bottling establishments and pours across 110,000 counters.

This enormous thirst quenching industry is a relatively new development, a commercializing of the discoveries of the chemist, and one that necessitates watchful care by department chemists to prevent fracture of the pure food and drugs laws. The "pop" of today, a department paper says, is not the same as that clear liquid formerly sold only at ball games, fairs and carnivals, reminiscent of over-ripe bananas, and with little delectation for the palate. Had not great changes occurred in the industry, it is hardly possible that it could have reached its present proportions.

Fruit juices are sometimes found in the beverages, it is said, but the chemist has supplied many substitutes which have a marvellous simulation of nature's flavors and perfumes.

THE EXAMINATIONS NEXT SEPTEMBER

Instructions to Be Observed by Prospective Entrants.

The following information regarding the September Departmental Examinations, including Matriculation, should be read by prospective entrants carefully.

Students who wish to attend one of the Normal Schools during the coming year should send for an application form to the Deputy-Minister Education Department, Toronto.

In return a schedule of dates for examinations on the several subjects will be forwarded with the application form.

Special Instructions.

1—The September Middle and Upper School examinations will be open to the following:

(1) Candidates who, having written at a previous examination on papers sufficient to complete their qualifications for Graduation Diplomas, or for entrance into the Universities or Professional Schools, apply to write on papers in which they failed.

(2) Teachers actually engaged in teaching during the previous school year.

(3) Industrial candidates who are able to submit a certificate according to the following form:

..... 192

(Signature in full)

(4) Candidates who were prevented by sickness, domestic affliction, or other causes beyond their control from writing at the June examination. Such candidates must prove to the satisfaction of the Department the sufficiency of the alleged cause of absence.

(5) Candidates who are at least twenty years of age

2—Each candidate shall submit with his application satisfactory evidence that he is eligible under one of the above provisions to present himself for examination. Where a candidate fails to submit full evidence with his application, the presiding officer may admit him to the examination, but his answer papers will not be read at the Department until the evidence is complete.

3—Application for the examination shall be made, as heretofore, to the Deputy-Minister of Education on or before 1st September, but other candidates may be admitted by the presiding officer on payment of a late fee. All fees shall be payable to the presiding officer at the time of the examination and not with the application to the Deputy-Minister, as heretofore.

4—The September examinations will be held at the following centres:

(1) University of Toronto, McMaster University, Toronto, Queen's University, Kingston, and Western University, London.

(2) Hamilton Normal School, London Normal School, North Bay Normal School, Ottawa Normal School, Peterborough Normal School, Stratford Normal School Toronto Normal School.

(3) Any other centre in the Province for which one or more candidates apply before 1st September and agree in writing to pay the full cost of the presiding officer at the rate of $6.00 per half day.

FACE HARD TIMES.

OLDHAM, Lancashire, Aug. 18.—(Associated Press)—The British cotton trade is dull, and shareholders in Lancashire spinning mills are having hard days.

Time was when these fortunate holders received dividends of from 20 to 50 per cent with reasonable regularity, but today a list of 74 mills shows these concerns facing losses, on capital and profit and loss accounts, of $50,000,000.

To offset this situation an effort is being made to develop cotton growing within the empire.

Barrel which will hold 625,000 gallons, largest in the world, was recently completed in Germany.

CANNING CORN

If you would serve canned corn this winter at less than 10 cents a "can" take a day off and do your own canning.

A bushel and a half or two bushels of corn in the husks will make 24 solidly packed pints of corn and each pint will serve six persons.

Dried corn is an old-fashioned dish that few housekeepers appreciate these days. It has a delicious nutty sort of taste quite unusual. If there are two or three ears of corn left from dinner, scrape the corn from the cob and spread thinly on a dripping pan or pie pans and dry slowly in the oven while making toast. When brittle, store in clean paper bags. ou will be surprised how soon you will have two or three cups of dried corn. And a cup of dried corn will serve four persons when prepared for a meal. This is an excellent way to use left-over corn during the season.

Canned Corn.

Husk corn and carefully pick out silk. Put corn into a large kettle of boiling water and boil ten minutes. The kettle should be big enough to comfortably contain the corn and allow each ear to be immersed in water. Drain from boiling water and plunge into cold water. Let stand one minute and drain

This blanching process is not absolutely necessary for corn, but it insures keeping and makes firm individual kernels. Corn that is to be used in made dishes is quite as satisfactory if canned without blanching and it does save time to eliminate two handlings.

After blanching, cut corn from cob. This must be done carefully that no hard portions of the kernel are scraped out. Cut the tops from the kernels and scrape out the heart with the blunt side of the knife. Pack in jars, add 1 teaspoon salt and 1 teaspoon sugar to a quart.

If corn is packed tightly, and this saves cans and space, pour boiling water over corn, filling can to within ¾ of an inch from the top. Half seal and process. Boil three hours in hot water bath, counting from the time the water begins to boil after putting in cans.

The cans will cool the water. The water should cover the cans by at least an inch. Add boiling water as necessary. Keep cover on boiler during processing. Remove from boiler and finish sealing. Cool as quickly as possible, taking care that no draft strikes the cans.

Corn for canning or drying should be full grown but "in the milk." As corn ripens the milk sets and becomes firm and the hulls of the kernels grow hard. Corn in this state is not satisfactory for canning. Immature corn is tasteless and watery.

Dried Corn.

Remove husks and silk. Blanch as in preceeding recipe. Cut from cob, cutting half way to the cob and scraping out hearts with blunt edge of knife. Spread on drying trays in thin layers and dry in slow oven or on top of cool range.

Drying trays are a good investment. They can be used year after year for all kinds of fruits and vegetables.

Corn Salad.

Twelve ears corn, 1 head cabbage, 2 sweet red peppers, 2 green peppers, 3 Bermuda onions, 1½ cups sugar, 1½ tablespoons salt, 1 tablespoon mustard, 1½ quarts vinegar.

Cut corn from cob. Dip peppers in boiling water, let stand five minutes and slip off thin covering of skin. Remove seeds and white fibre. Chop cabbage and onions Mix vegetables with salt and sugar. Put in preserving kettle with vinegar, add mustard mixed to a smooth paste with cold water, bring to the boiling point and boil half an hour. Pour into sterilized jars and seal while boiling hot.

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY

Terence Desmond (Terry) Exquisite and convent-reared, unbelievably innocent, is forced to work as a cashier in her father's roadhouse while

Juliet Divine, the stage name of her beautiful half-sister, whom Terry has not seen for years, lives like a princess and talks vaguely of a millionaire.

Terrence Desmond, their father, moody and selfish, formerly caretaker of an estate, is now the proprietor of the Blue Moon, a roadhouse. He is anxious to get Terry married and off his hands.

Mrs. Parmalee owns Silverwood, the estate of which Desmond was caretaker.

Betty Sheridan, her grand-daughter, whose rudeness to Terry the latter will never forget, is the wife of

Miles Sheridan, handsome and likable, who when Terry was a child furnished the money to send her to the Convent, partly to atone for his wife's rudeness. To Terry, he is always 'The Prince.'

Eustace Nazlo, a wealthy Greek, unscrupulous with women, is impressed by Terry's beauty and her resemblance to Juliet Divine, the famous stage beauty. He invites her to go for an auto ride and on the way to New York, he kisses her.

While Nazlo is arranging for a private dining room at the Hotel, Terry slips away. Nazlo is furious.

Terry takes a taxi to her sister's apartment and begs the maid to let her see Julia.

Hartley Phillips, a member of New York's Four Hundred, is calling on Julia and Terry has to wait. Phillips announces that he wants Julia to do a favor for Miles Sheridan.

It develops that Sheridan and his wife are unhappy and Sheridan in order to facilitate her getting a divorce will pay Julia $20 000 to take a yacht-trip with him. He lets it be known that aside from appearing with her he wants to have nothing to do with her.

---

Julia promises to think it over and Phillips is to call again for her answer. She welcomes her little sister warmly.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Memories of a Prince

Terry had begun to be frightened during the long moments when she was kept waiting shut up in the elaborate dining room. At first she had fled for refuge to this palace of her fairy princess without a thought that she might not be welcome; for Julia had always been kind and sweet.

As time dragged on however she had relived the past remembering how Mother and Julia had put her off with excuses whenever she begged to be taken to her sister's home.

Never had Julia come to Silverwood or to the Blue Moon Inn without being asked by Terry to take her to New York and letters from the convent had contained the same request. Invariably Julia said "No"; it couldn't be. There were lots of reasons and the best was "just because." Mother had forbidden the girl to tease her sister about the visit.

Yet here she was in spite of all; and perhaps Julia would be angry even when she heard how horrid Mr. Nazlo had been.

The princess showed no signs of anger however when she had listened to the story. She lay on the divan with her head on a black cushion looking more adorable than ever and kept unbroken silence her eyes on the young girl's face as the tale was told. She didn't even smoke; which was unusual for Julia.

"So I didn't know what else to do" Terry ended. "I was so thankful when I got here and heard you were at home. That nice brown maid said she'd pay for my automobile—I mean my taxi.

"Then I hoped I was safe But I was afraid that maybe you mightn't like me to come. You've so often told me I mustn't. Only this was different. I had to "

"I'm glad you come child " said Julia. "I'd have liked you to come long ago—often so far as I myself was concerned. But—well I've been away a good deal and even when I was here—I've had a lot of people about; not your sort or Mother's Some of them were a bit like Nazlo.

"Only I know how to manage his kind and you don't. Not yet. He's quite a big gun and no fool It sounds from what you say as if he'd fallen for you good and hard—which isn't a bad compliment to a little girl who doesn't know which side her bread's buttered If you'd played your cards right he might have gone the limit and married you.

"But maybe in one way you're like what I was at your age. (I'd been living in this burg a year when I was seventeen ) I mean maybe you don't want to be married?"

"Not unless I was in love of course " said Terry.

Julia laughed. 'What do you know about being in love my convent kid? Did any boy ever get a chance to make goo-goo eyes at you?"

Terry was scornful. "No indeed" she said emphatically. "Some of the girls liked boys and talked about them all they could. Not that it was much because it's the rule at the convent that two of us are never left together even to walk in the garden.

"There are always three—or else one of the Sisters with us. And three can't talk secrets very easily can they? Not that I cared because I think boys are dreadfully uninteresting. You see it was always different with me from the other girls."

"How different?"Julia caught her up.

"Oh well I couldn't help having my 'deal' " Terry answered reluctantly; for she regretted that she had spoken out.

That "difference" was sacred. She didn't want to be called upon to explain it.

Julia's interest quickened though it was more Terry's look than her words that roused it. "What kind of an ideal?" she asked. "Someone in a book?"

"No-o not in a book."

"Don't be so mysterious. You'll make me think you were in love with someone" Julia insisted.

Terry was silent her lips pressed together.

"Were you? Are you?"

The girl was desperate. "I don't know whether it's being in love or not" she tried to defend herself. "I couldn't help thinking of him—sort of—worshipping him. Ever since I saw him that time and he was so splendid—and so wonderful to me.

"I prayed for him to be happy and safe and for a chance to come some time when I could pay him back even a little for what he did for me—only a child he'd never set eyes on before There was never anyone so kind. And since I came home to live with Father I've realized a lot more what he saved me from—what he gave me.

"It isn't strange if I'd have my hand cut off to do him good is it? If you call that being in love it's all I know about it."

By this time the girl's face was burning under her sister's fixed stare which had turned from amusement to surprise then to keen interest.

"For-the-love-of-Mike" gurgled Julia. "Say— —talk of Fate But let's get this right. You mean Miles Sheridan?"

Terry was scarlet though she had tried to hold her breath because the girls at the convent said if you did it while you counted ten you could stop a blush.

"It doesn't do much harm" she said "because I never talked about him to anyone at all. I've just thought of him. Oh you can't understand how common the men I see at the Blue Moon seem beside the memory of him I've saved up "

"And you'd be glad to have your hand cut off to do him good?" Julia repeated

"I would. It's been a dream of mine something happening so that I could help him But of course it never will. He's married and has been through the war and I suppose he's always travelling about now to splendid places in the world—with his wife. I'm not much more than a child and he's almost old—so—"

"Thirty-three or four—if you call that old " Julia laughed.

"Maybe it isn't old for a man. But even if it is I can't think of him as changed or seeming old to me. I always call him to myself the 'Prince' because he named me 'Cinderella.' Of course he must have forgotten me long ago but I—"

SYMPTOMS OF ANAEMIA

An Inherited Tendency to Anaemia May Be Overcome.

Some people have a tendency to become thin-blooded just as others have an inherited tendency to rheumatism, or to nervous disorders. The condition in which the blood becomes so thin that the whole body suffers comes on so gradually and stealthily that anyone with a natural disposition in that direction should watch the symptoms carefully. Bloodlessness, or anaemia, as the medical term is, can be corrected much more easily in the earlier stages than later It begins with a tired feeling that rest does not overcome, the complexion becomes pale, and breathlessness on slight exertion, such as going up stairs, is noticed.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a home remedy that has been most successful in the treatment of diseases caused by thin blood. With pure air and wholesome food these blood-making pills afford the correct treatment when the symptoms described are noticed.

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail, post-paid, at 50c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co. Brockville, Ont.

EAT VEGETABLES

(By L. F. Burrows, Secretary, Canadian Horticultural Council)

Comparatively recent is the addition of the word "Vitamin" to our vocabularly, and even though the use of the word is now common, its meaning is not yet understood. Physicians have long recognized the value of vegetables in the daily diet and we are now told that this value lies largely in the fact that they contain vitamins, and that vitamins are necessary to life. Some vegetables contain greater quantities and of different kinds than others. Three distinct kinds of vitamins have been named "A", "B" and "C"

Vitamin "A" is a mysterious element in food. without which children cannot grow, but which grown folks also need. Shortage of vitamin "A" leads to disease of the eye, skin, and kidneys; and it may cause bad teeth, diarrhoea, pellagra, and other ailments. As a rule, seeds of all kinds are rather deficient in vitamin "A", although green peas contain appreciable amounts. Leafy plants, on the other hand, are valuable foods in this regard. Spinach and chard are probably the richest of the common leafy foods in this element, lettuce ranks next, with cabbage holding third place.

The roots and tubers vary, sweet potatoes and carrots ranking first, while white or Irish potatoes contain but a small amount, and it is doubtful if beets, rutabagas and parsnips contain appreciable amounts. Tomatoes, however, are very rich in vitamin "A" and Hubbard squash is also a valuable source. Little work has been done on the fruits but there is evidence that apples, bananas and oranges contain small amounts of this vitamin.

Vitamin "B" is guardian of good digestion and proper functioning of the liver and other glands. This vitamin is found in the germ and branny portions of cereals. In the milling of wheat, however, this vitamin is so completey removed that the best grades of flour are entirely lacking. This does not mean that we should condemn the white bread, starchy foods, white rice, etc.; it merely means that we must choose our food intelligently and eat more vegetables.

Potatos, sweet and white, contain appreciable amounts of vitamin "B", although the turnip and onion are more valuable in this regard. The beet root contains a fair amount although its leaves appear to be much richer. This vitamin is also found in the tomato, cabbage, spinach, lettuce, parsley, and the lowly dandelion, the tomato being especially valuable.

While many fruits have not been studied, it is probably safe to state that most fruit juices contain appreciable amounts of vitamin "B." It is likewise probably true that nuts are valuable sources of this vitamin, inasmuch as all nuts that have been studied contain appreciable amounts.

Vitamin "C" prevents disease and promotes the general health. Lack of it gives the skin a bad color and makes the heart weak. It has long been known that lemons, limes, oranges, and fresh fruits are curative in scurvy. It has only been in recent years that we have understood that this curative effect was due to vitamin "C". While oranges have been used for a number of years in the treatment of infantile scurvy, it is only recently that it has become the common practice to supply orange juice to infants as part of the regular feeding practice. More recently it has been discovered that tomato juice is practically equal to the juice of the orange in this regard, and many physicians in the poorer districts of the large cities are prescribing strained tomato juice in place of orange juice. The juice of canned tomatoes seems to be satisfactory for this purpose, indicating that the canning process is not particularly destructive as far as vitamin "C" is concerned. Berries are known to have scurvy-curing properties, although little investigational work has been done.

The Swedish turnip or rutabaga is very valuable as a source of vitamin "C" and the same is true of the carrot. Young carrots are apparently more valuable than old carrots and this appears to be true for many vegetables. As a rule, it is probably safe to state that the vitamin content of vegetables is highest at the time that the vegetable is most prized from the standpoint of tenderness and taste. Potatoes, onions and parsnips are also considered valuable antiscorbutic foods. Rhubarb, lettuce and cauliflower must be included in the list, while lovers of cabbage salad and "slaw" will be glad to know that raw cabbage is one of the best sources of vitamin "C" that we have. Tomatoes have the three kinds of vitamins necessary to human health. Most vegetables have one or two but seldom all three.

It is probably best to eat our fruits and vegetables in the fresh form when it is possible to do so. There is little, however, to be feared from the usual methods of canning and cooking. If we eat a sufficient amount of vegetables and fruits throughout the year, it will not matter if a small percentage of the vitamins are destroyed in the cooking process. As a rule, long continued heating or cooking is considered undesirable, and air should be excluded as far as possible.

It is not necessary that we be vegeterians. We should be reasonable and sensible and not faddists. Every diet, especially that of growing children, should contain milk, butter, eggs, fresh vegetables, and fresh fruits if we expect to obtain the best results.

Various fruit and vegetable canning recipe books have been issued from time to time, but the best that has recently come to my attention is that issued by the Fruit Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. These booklets contain recipes which have been thoroughly tested, are practical and economical. They may be had free upon application to the Fruit Commissioner, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

BUSY LOCKSMITH.

By GUS M. OEHM.

BERLIN (By mail to United Press).— "Count" von Hohenau moved into a house in Georgenkirchstrasse at 8 p.m.

At nine he fell in love with a young lady who lived across the hall.

At 10 he was engaged.

The next morning he invited in about 100 guests for a champagne party.

At six in the evening the police arrived.

At 7 o'clock the count's indentity was revealed. He was a lock-smith named Rausch.

At 8 o'clock he was not engaged any more.

Rausch had stolen an automobile which he sold for a couple of hundred million marks.

He blew in his money on his party and couldn't pay his fine.

At 10 p.m. he was given free lodging in the city jail.

FIGHT AT KLAN MEETING.

Elmira Police Escort Preacher and Other Ku Klux Members to Train.

ELMIRA, N. Y., Aug. 17. — After a general street fight that followed a public meeting at which the Ku Klux Klan principles were explained the Rev. Nicholas Cassaboon of Buffalo, and several other persons who had been speakers, were escorted to their train by the police.

The trouble started when a heckling crowd surrounded one of the Klan delegates as he left the hall. One of the delegates was struck in the face.

Vertner H. Morgan, 26 years old, of this city. was arrested charged with discharging firearms. Arthur Saylor, who was struck on the chin with a stone, declined to make a complaint against his assailant, but Morgan paid a fine of $50 in the police Court.

NUXATED IRON
Helps make rich, red blood and revitalize weak nerves

A CAUSE OF WOMEN'S ILLS

WOMEN OFTEN THINK THEY HAVE HEART TROUBLE, INDIGESTION, NERVOUS PROSTRATION, ETC. WHEN IT'S SIMPLY IRON STARVATION OF THE BLOOD.

Many women believe they are weak and nervous as a result of age, worry and overwork; they think that their disturbed digestion, headaches, heart palpitation, shortness of breath, pains across the back, etc., are due to some serious disease instead of the real cause—iron starvation of the blood. This is proven by the fact that when many of these same women take organic iron for a while all their alarming symptoms quickly disappear and they become strong, robust and healthy. Iron is absolutely necessary to enable your blood to change food into living cells and tissue. Without it nothing you eat does you the proper amount of good —you do not get the strength out of it.

If you are not strong and well, do not wait until you go all to pieces and collapse in a state of nervous prostration, but take some organic iron—Nuxated Iron—at once. Be sure it's organic iron and not metallic iron which people usually take and which is made merely by the action of strong acids on small pieces of iron. Organic NUXATED IRON is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples and it often increases the bodily and mental vigor of weak, wornout women in two weeks' time.

Beware of substitutes. Look for the word "Nuxated" on every package and the letters N.I. on every tablet. Your money will be refunded by the manufacturers if you do not obtain perfectly satisfactory results. At all druggists.

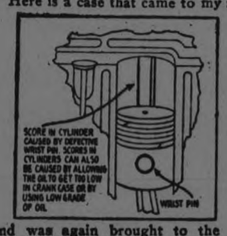
THE "TROUBLE SHOOTER"
TIMELY TIPS FOR THE AUTO OWNER
By E. H. SCOTT.

Watch the Kind of Parts Used in Repairs Made to Your Car

So much trouble and expense is caused to automobile owners through unscrupulous repairmen, who, for the purpose of making a few extra cents profit, use imitation, instead of genuine parts when making repairs or replacements, that this week I am going to give you a few tips that will guard you against this kind of graft.

Here is a case that came to my notice a short time ago. An owner had a knock in his engine and drove into a service station where it was diagnosed as a loose wrist pin. This particular owner knew a mechanic who worked at a certain garage, so he decided to have the work done there. In making the repair, the garageman did not use genuine factory wrist pins, but "just as good" pins put out by an imitation or pirate parts manufacturer, because they were a little cheaper. Within a short time after the repair was made, the engine commenced to knock, service station. When the owner he insisted the knock could not had just been renewed.



and was again brought to the was told it was wrist pins again, be caused by them, because they

An examination was made and showed that not only was one of the pins worn badly, but it had also gouged the cylinder walls to such an extent the cylinder could not even be rebored and safely used again, and it was necessary to install a new cylinder block, a repair that cost $85.00.

Another case occurred just last week where a car had been overhauled, valves ground in, new pistons and rings fitted, and a set of new contact points fitted. The car ran all right for a few weeks, then the engine began to get hard to start and to misfire now and again. The climax came when the owner was driving along a crowded city street and suddenly the engine stopped. There he was, right in the centre of the traffic, with a line of cars banked up behind him, tooting their horns and making things generally unpleasant. The car was rolled over to the curb and a man from the service station called. He quickly found the trouble in the Ignition, and traced it to the set of imitation "just as good and a lot cheaper" contact points that had been fitted when the engine was overhauled. The thin veneer of tungsten metal had quickly burned off, leaving the steel base underneath exposed. The country is flooded with inferior Ignition parts turned out by the "pirate" parts manufacturer. Always use genuine parts, then you are assured of something that will stand up and give no trouble.

Suppose you hear a grind or hum in the rear axle, and simply say to the repair man that you want it fixed. He goes to work and tears down the axle, then tells you that a new ring gear and pinion is needed. You say all right, go ahead. He uses an imitation part. In a few weeks or months, you have the old trouble back again. Why? These gears must be very carefully hardened and heat treated. An alloy steel must be used to stand up under the extremely high pressures exerted on the teeth. Perhaps the imitation part is made from common carbon steel which was not hardened sufficiently to make it hard enough to resist wear, or was hardened too much and made brittle. What is the result. The gear that was not hardened enough soon wears and becomes noisy, and the gear that was hardened too much, breaks a tooth or perhaps the whole gear strips when a sudden strain is applied.

The genuine gear is made from an alloy steel which is tough to stand the strain, and is carefully hardened to take the wear on the face of the teeth. All of these things cannot be detected by simply glancing at the part. The real difference lies where you cannot see it. For the small difference in cost, it does not pay to allow imitation parts to be used in any repairs.

Another reason why you should buy only genuine parts, is the fact that manufacturers from time to time find it necessary to make changes in dimensions on certain parts which cannot be followed by the imitation parts manufacturer, and if these pirate parts are used, trouble is sure to result.

The manufacturer knows what kind of parts suit his car better than anyone else. Every time you have a repair made, convince yourself that a genuine part is being used. Pirate parts generally cost a few cents less to buy than genuine parts, but in the finish, if you use the pirate part, you will more than pay for the difference in the trouble and expense you will have later on when the inferior part begins to wear or breaks.

If you make sure that all parts used in any repairs or replacements are genuine manufactured parts, you will save money in future repairs, and at the same time get more pleasure and satisfaction out of your car, because of the absence of trouble.

NEXT WEEK—WHERE TO HAVE REPAIRS OR ADJUSTMENTS TO YOUR CAR MADE.

YOUTH AND BEAUTY

By MARIAN HALE.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—One of Old Age's most formidable enemies today is Anne Dolan, titian-haired, Irish and determined, who is teaching thousands of women how to stay young and healthy.

Her physical culture studio in New York is one place where you are sure to see celebrities—beauties of the stage and screen who can't afford to show their years, society women who could afford to but won't, and business and professional women who are too clever to let anything outwit them—all learning her secrets of health and beauty.

"Today the woman of 40 who is not as lithe of figure and as radiant of complexion as she was at 20 is neglecting the opportunity of living in this enlightened age," Miss Dolan says.

"Any woman will naturally protect herself from the inroads of time if she preserves her health," she continues. "When you see your skin becoming sallow and wrinkled, when sagging muscles and increasing flesh destroy the symmetry of the figure, it is only nature's way of warning you that your youth is dying and must be revived.

Can Be Revived.

"Fading beauty is dying tissue, and scientists have proved that as the life-giving cells of the body are destroyed, physical care by hygienic living can restore them.

"We must supply this new energy to our vital forces We must aid nature in restoring perfect harmony so that the rich, life-giving blood can renew our strength and vitality and restore the youthful contour of face and figure through the glow of perfect health."

Tell-Tale Signs.

Many women make the mistake of giving all their care to their faces, Miss Dolan finds, forgetting that a stolid figure, a heavy tread, and a walk that has lost its youthful spring flaunt age as much or more than grey hair and wrinkles.

"So why preserve merely surface beauty when the real symbol of youth, the slight girlish figure, becomes a mass of flabby, fatty tissue?" she asks. "Keep up your joy in life and let others notice it."

ALTER COAT OF ARMS.

LONDON, Aug. 18.—(Associated Press)— The All-Russian Soviet Executive, according to a London message, has decided to alter once more the coat of arms of the Russian Republic.

For the last few months the coat of arms consisted of a crossed sickle and hammer, but now this gives way to a more elaborate design which represents the same sickle and hammer crossed in the background of a globe representing the earth and surrounded by a wreath of wheat with the words "Workers of the World, Unite" transcribed in Russian, French, English, German, Arabic and Chinese.

WOMEN SHORTEN DRESSES.

LONDON, Aug. 18.—(Associated Press)—The death of Stambuliski, former premier of Bulgaria, seems to have had more than a political effect in his country. No sooner was it confirmed, says a Sofia news message, than the women in the cities began to order and make new dresses, and to buy new shoes with high heels.

This is all due to the fact that Stambuliski had ordered that women's dresses should be worn long, and even described the exact length. He also ordered that all shoes have flat heels, and the police were instructed to enforce these regulations.

Now the demand for dresses and high heeled shoes in Sofia is so great that the shops cannot meet it.

Lakeviews Trimmed Oshawa Juniors-Ruth Hit Another Homer

OSHAWA JUNIORS FELL BEFORE ONSLAUGHT OF THE LAKEVIEW JUNIORS

First Game of O. B. A. A. Play Offs Resulted in a Victory For The Local Junior Champions.

SCORE WAS 14 TO 4.

The Lakeviews walked off with the first game of the Junior O.B.A.A. play off by defeating the St. Georges' team of Oshawa 14 to 4 last evening. Though errors figured in several of the runs the visitors were clearly outplayed and the final outcome was never in doubt. In their eight innings at bat the locals collected a total of seventeen hits, three of which went for extra bases and most of which figurd in the run getting. Six were bunched in the last inning for six runs. The visitors had ten hits but they were kept widely scattered with the exception of four which were crammed into the fifth frame and which netted three runs.

Whitehouse was on the mound for the Lakeviews and turned in a first class game. His strike-outs totaled eighteen which included eight in the last ten put-outs and he had the visiting batsmen guessing most of the time. He issued but one complimentary.

Clause, a fifteen-year-old artist was the pitching choice for the visitors. He pitched a good game, fanning eight and walking two, but was up against some heavy hitters and was tapped for seventeen safeties.

McIntyre was the leading batter of the evening with four hits in five trips to the plate, one hit going for two sacks. Moore and J. LeBarr connected safely three times in five tries, one of Moore's going for a double. Every player of the Lakeview line up got at least one hit and scored at least one run. Turner topped the visitors in the willow wielding department with three hits in five times up while Gower distinguished himself by getting two doubles in five trips.

St. George's scored one in the first inning when Clause, the first man to bat, got on on an error, stole second and came home on Broads single. The Lakeviews came right back in their half with four. Cameron took first on an error and second on a passed ball. He romped home on Moore's double. Moore went to third when Whitlow got on on an error and came home on Collin's sacrifice fly to right field. Whitlow stole second and scored on Whitehouse's single. Whitehouse went to second on throw home, stole third and was batted in by McIntyre.

Only three men faced Whitehouse in the second frame. Cardinal, the first man up singled but was caught trying to steal. The other two fanned. In their half the locals added two more runs. L. LeBarr singled, stole second and came home on Whitlow"s double. Whitlow went to third on a bad throw from the pitcher to second and came in on a wild pitch.

There was no further scoring until the fifth when the visitors counted three times. Clause started it with a single and was safe at second when Gower got on on a fielder's choice. Both advanced on a passed ball and Clause scored on an infield out to first. Gower scored when Turner singled to right. Bonehan followed with a hit to advance him to third and he came in on another safety by Cardinal.

The Lakeviews scored one in the fifth when Cameron drew a walk, went to third on L. LeBarr's single and came home when Moore got on on an error. They added another in the seventh, McIntyre getting on with a two bagger, going to second on L. LeBarr's single and scoring when the pitcher made a bad throw to second.

The eighth was the big frame for the locals when six runs were sent across the pan. L. LeBarr, the first man up was out at first when he sent a hot grounder to short. Moore followed with a single and stole second. Whitlow went out on a fly to right. Collins singled scoring Moore, and Whitehouse got a life on the second baseman's error. Halliday singled scoring Collins and McIntyre singled to score Whitehouse and Halliday. McIntyre stole third and was in position to score on J. LeBarr's hit. LeBarr pilfered second and third and came home on Cameron's single. Cameron ended the rally when he was caught trying to steal second.

NEW YORK TEAMS PICKED TO REPEAT

New York Teams Are Leading Both Leagues And Will Probably Play Off for the Third Time.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—Wjth both New York team out in front by quite comfortable margins, and figured to repeat by the majority of critics, one baseball precedent seems pretty sure of being upset. And the overthrowal of another is not beyond the realm of possibility.

Should the Giants and Yankees again hook up in the diamond's blue ribbon classic—the world series—it will be the first time, on record that the same two clubs, representing the same cities in their respective circuits, will fight it out for the third successive year.

Never before in the annals of the game have the same teams met three seasons in a row. Other clubs, in days gone by, have won the pennant three consecutive years but never have clashed with the same opponents on each occasion.

If the McGraw clan gets into the series this fall, it will have a chance to turn a trick which no other club in either league has yet been able to put across. And that is copping the world's title three years in succession. A number of teams have had two such victories to their credit but none has yet exceeded that feat.

Thus, if the two Gotham outfits come through, as now looms apparent, it will give the city of New York a monopoly in pennant-winning aggregation, that will rank unprecedented in baseball history. For it will mean six flags in as many chances. An unusual accomplishment to say the least.

And if the Giants should again cop the game's highest honors another new mark will have been hung up.

All of which shows that there is a possibility of a record-breaking climax to an otherwise record-breaking season.

STYMIES BLOCKED A CHAMPIONSHIP

Emerson Carey Lost The Western Junior Title to Ira Couch of Chicago.

CHICAGO, Aug. 18.—(Canadian Press.)— The stymies, blocking the way to the cup, yesterday cost Emerson Carey, 17, of Hutchinson, Kansas, the western junior golf championship as they made him two down and one to play to Ira Couch, 20, of Glenview Club, Chicago, winner of the honor, which carried with it possession of the W. K. Alexander Cup. The victor did not shoot as good golf as usual but the Kansas was ragged with his wooden shots and erratic with his putts.

Carey had shot a 75 in the semi-final round to defeat L. A. Montedonico of Memphis, one up, but he slumped to what would probably have been an 85 yesterday afternoon and failed to take advantage of the many openings his older and more experienced opponent offered him. In the second flight, Massey Miller, of Indianapolis, won the final round from Donald Carrick of Toronto, Canada, 2 and 1. The third flight honors went to Leonard Martin, a 17-year-old youth from Apawamis, N. Y., who defeated John Bartlett, of Hammond, Ind., 4 and 3.

CINCINNATI WON IN ELEVEN INNINGS

Came From Behind To Beat New York. St. Louis - Brooklyn Game Went Twelve Innings.

NEW YORK, August 18 (Canadian Press). — Cincinnati waged an uphill fight here yesterday and defeated New York in eleven innings, 5 to 4. Burns, formerly of the Giants, clinched the game when he hit a home run with two out in the eleventh. Donohue was stung for four runs in the first two innings, but pitched brilliantly after that. Ryan, who succeeded Bentley, did well until the eleventh, when Burns hit for the circuit. Score:

Cincinnati ..... 00002200001—5 10 2
New York ..... 22000000000—4 10 2

Donohue and Hargrave; Bentley, Ryan and Gowdy, Snyder.

Pittsburgh 11, Philadelphia 6.

PHILADELPHIA, August 18 (Canadian Press). — Pittsburgh evened the series with Philadelphia yesterday by defeating the locals 11 to 6. The Pirates found Ring easy, and pounded him for 11 hits, driving him from the mound in the seventh inning. Score:

Pittsburgh ..... 001240301—11 13 1
Philadelphia ..... 000420000— 6 9 3

Steinader, Hamilton and Schmidt; Ring, Betts, Behan and Wilson.

St. Louis 8, Brooklyn 1.

BROOKLYN, August 18 (Canadian Press). — The St. Louis Cardinals stopped the winning streak of Dazzy Vance yesterday, but had to go 12 innings to win, 8 to 5. The score was tied three times. Ainsmith came up in the twelfth, with the bases full, and cleared them with a double to centre field wall. Score:

St. Louis ..... 20010002101 3—8 13 1
Brooklyn ..... 20001000101 0—5 9 1

Sherdel and Ainsmith, McCurdy; Vance and Deberry.

Chicago 6, Boston 2.

BOSTON, August 18 (Canadian Press). — Chicago bunched hits off Fillingim and made five runs before he was compelled to leave the game in the seventh. The visitors defeated Boston 6 to 2, and have won 15 out of 19 games played with Boston so far this year. Score:

Chicago ..... 100103001—6 9 1
Boston ..... 100001000—2 8 2

Keen and O'Farrell; Fillingim, McNamara, Barnes and O'Neill.

MISS HELEN WILLS AGAIN IN FINALS

Seventeen-Year-Old Girl Will Attempt To Wrest Tennis Laurels From Mrs Molla B. Mallory.

FOREST HILLS, N.Y., Aug. 18 —(Canadian Press)—For the second successive year, Miss Helen Wills, 17-year-old tennis marvel of Berkeley Calif., will attempt to wrest the national singles championship from Mrs. Molla B. Mallory, of New York. But where a year ago the coast "wonder girl" proved no match for her veteran Norse rival, the brilliance of her game has reached this season prompted critics last night to the belief that she will give the title holder one of the hardest struggles of her career with at last an even chance of triumph, yesterday when Miss Wills and Mrs. Mallory won decisively in their semi-final matches on the turf courts of the West Side Tennis Club, proving conclusively their superiority over an international field of 61 players, the pick of U. S. and British stars, who started play in the tournament last Monday. Miss Wills flashed the most spectacular game she has shown all week to crush Miss Eleanor Goss of New York 6-4, 6-0, while Mrs. Mallory eliminated Britain's last hope in the singles when she swept to victory over Mrs. R. C. Clayton, 6-4, 6-2.

The national doubles championship will witness an international contest, for the survivors of today's semi-final play were Miss Kath leen McKan, and Mrs. Nancy Covell of England, and the veteran U. S. combination Miss Goss and Mis. Hazel Hotchkiss Wightman of Boston, a former holder of both the national singles and doubles titles.

Both teams gained their final round brackets easily and promise a pretty struggle for honors to-day. The British pair disposed of Mrs. Helen G. Lockburn of Mamaroneck, N.Y., and Mrs. Natalie Morris of New York 6-0, 6-2, while Miss Goss and Mrs. Wightman gave a remarkable exhibition of court strategy in eliminating the youthful combination of Miss Ceres Baker, of Orange, N. J., and Miss Lillian Scharman, of New York, 6-1, 6-1.

Change Date For The Sculling Championship

DULUTH, Aug. 18. —(Canadian Press.)— To accommodate W. E. Garrett Gilmore, Philadelphia, holder of the Canadian singles sculling title, Walter Hoover yesterday consented to change the date when he will defend the world's championship from Spt. 8 to Sept. 15. Gilmore wired that he might be able to row here on Sept. 8, as he was entered in the national exposition regatta at Toronto Aug. 29 and 30, and in the middle states regatta at Philadelphia on Labor Day. He requested the week's delay which Hoover approved.

PETES MADE FEWEST NUMBER OF ERRORS IN THE BIG FOUR SECTION

Locals Fielded Well During the Schedule. In Second Place. One Point Behind Leaders.

BELLEVILLE FIRST.

The fielding averages as compiled by F. O. Beaudry of Kingston show that the fielding of the four teams in the Big Four section was very even. As a team, Belleville tops the list by one point, with Peterborough and Cobourg for the second place. The Petes made fewer errors than any of the other teams, but accepted fewer chances.

Weir of Belleville made the most errors, bobbling away 23 chances. The leading regulars in fielding were: First base, T. Kenny, Cobourg; second base, Skitch, Cobourg; third base, Batstone, Kingston; short-stop, W. Evans, Kingston; outfielders, J. Kenny, Cobourg, Nicholson, Kingston, Thompson, Cobourg; catcher, Swanston, Peterborough; pitcher, Oulette, Belleville.

The fielding averages are:

KAMM WAS WORTH HIS FULL PRICE

Gleason is Satisfied That $100,000 Was Not Too Much To Pay For Him.

BY BILLY EVANS

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—Did Chicago get a run for its money when it spent $100,000 for Third Baseman Bill Kamm?

If you should put that question to Kid Gleason, manager of the White Sox, he would soon settle it in a most decided manner.

Prior to the opening of the season Kamm was the most talked about man in baseball, not excepting Babe Ruth or any of the other celebrities.

With the season well on its way Kamm no longer occupies the headlines. The flurry occasioned by the fact that Chicago paid a fabulous sum for an untried recruit has worn off.

What about Kamm?

I put that question to Manager Gleason coming up from Boston recently. We were sitting in the buffet car discussing players of the past and preesnt.

Real Praise From Gleason.

"He's a wonder," the Kid popped off, "the greatest third baseman since the day of Jimmy Collins.

"Kamm works with such ease and grace that a great many of the fans fail to appreciate his remarkable ability. Like Jimmy Collins and Lary Lajoie he makes the hardest kind of chances look easy.

"Great third baseman must have intuition, they must sense the play that is about to be pulled. Likewise they learn the mannerisms of every batter. Most batters you know tip off their intention to bunt by doing something at the plate just a little differently.

"Kamm seems to glide over the field instead of run. He is a marvel with his gloved hand, can throw from any position and has a strong and accurate arm.

Will Improve at Bat.

"Kamm is a wonder right now in the field and yet he is improving every day. Twenty years from now when Kamm has passed out of the picture the fans will be lauding his greatness.

"Bill has the ideal disposition for a great ball player. Nothing worries him. If he has a bad day he will probably come back the next day with a spectacular exhibition.

"Some of the baseball experts say that Kamm has failed to hit major league pitching as well as expected. He is around the .300 mark and that's plenty good enough for me. And he's going to be a much better hitter in a couple years. He has a few faults at the plate that handicap his batting, but these are being overcome.

"Kamm is worth every cent the Chicago Club paid for him."

If there is a chance for him to Gleason, one of the game's greatest managers, and in his day as a player one of the game's smartest infielders.

I seconded what Gleason had to say about Bill Kamm. He already ranks with Collins, Bradley and Devlin.

THREE CHAMPS ARE IN TRAINING

Dempsey, Villa and Lynch Are Getting Into Shape At Saratoga Lake.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, Saratoga Lake, N. Y., Aug. 18. — (Canadian Press.) — Three worlds champions were in training or about to begin training here to-day—Jack Dempsey, heavyweight; Pancho Villa, flyweight; and Joe Lynch, bantamweight. Dempsey went through light workouts yesterday with Jack Burke and George Godfrey, after tearing up the dust of a few miles of mountain road on his daily run and taking his usual long swim in the lake. Bag punching and shadow boxing occupied the afternoon.

Villa also spent a full day in training, taking to the road and lake in the morning, and working out in the ring with Mike Balerino and the bags in the afternoon.

Joe Lynch, bantamweight king, arrived in camp yesterday preparatory to beginning training for an early bout.

Floyd Johnson, Iowa heavyweight, who reached Camp some time ago, put in a light workout against George Levine.

Dempsey and Villa will be seen in action in exhibition bouts for charity at Saratoga Springs and Schenectady to-night. At Brandywine Park, Schenectady, Dempsey will face Floyd Johnson in a four-round affair, later going to Saratoga Springs to meet Charles Schwartz, society boxing fan in a similar exhibition. Villa will appear at Saratoga Springs, boxing Mike Balerino.

AUSTRALIA WILL MEET U.S. TEAM

France Eliminated by the Australians In Race for The Davis Cup.

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 18.—(Canadian Press.) — Australia will meet the United States this year as last in the challenge round of competition fo rthe Davis Cup, the emblem of supremacy in lawn tennis, as the result of the feat of two of the stars from the "Land Down Under" in vanquishing the representatives of France in two singles and one double match Thursday and yesterday.

Struggling gamely to keep the tricolor flying in the international series the French school boy, Rene Lacoste and the veteran Jacques Brugnon forced the strong and steady Australian combination of James O. Anderson and John B. Hawkes to five sets before they were subdued by the score of 6-8, 6-3, 6-3, 6-8, 9-7.

Although the Australians have now won the series, the two singles matches will be played, when it is expected Anderson will meet Brugnon and Hawkes will play Lacoste. The same players, with opponents reversed, took part in the singles yesterday.

IMPORTANT GAME AT FAIR GROUNDS

Keene and Cognawaga Play on New Athletic Grounds Monday Evening.

The Peterborough Exhibition Board through President Denne, have come to the assistance of the East Peterborough League, by giving the use of the new athletic grounds for an important game between Keene and Cognawaga A.C., next Monday evening.

A win for Keene, which club won the first half, means the League championship. A victory for Cognawaga will give the local club second half honors, and send the two teams into a final game for the championship.

The East Peterborough League winner meets Elizabethville, champions of the East Durham League, in the semi-finals of the O.B.A.A. Intermediate series.

TAKE MORE LAND.

BERLIN, Aug. 18.—(Associated Press)—Another agricultural concession has been taken in Russian by a German organization called the German-Russian Seed Growing Company, which will establish an experimental farm on a tract of about 30,000 acres near Moscow. This is similar to the Krupp agricultural concession in the Ukraine.

Other German interests soon will take over wood concession covering 200,000 acres of forest near Mya-Rybinsk. Sawmills will be erected and cellulose factories operated.

"EVOLUTION GIVES US HOPE OF IMMORTALITY"

CHICAGO, Aug. 18.— (United Press).—"Evolution is the hope of the race, for it gives us strong proofs of immortality,' declared Dr. Franklin Davis Barker, professor of zoology at the University of Nebraska, who is a member of the Northwestern university summer school faculty.

"Evolution is a fact as surely as gravitation. The comparative study of the nervous system of animals shows an evolution headward! Man's brain has freed him from the slavery of enrivonment and is the physical basis of his personality and his soul.'

"The observable trend 'brainward,' if projected, foretells the nature of the future super-man. That which has required millions of years to bring into being, will not be scrapped at death."

Mr. and Mrs. A. Barnes, Mrs. E. Cookman of Peterboro and Mrs. Herbert Barnes of Toronto, motored to Ennismore on Friday evening and took in the church social.

The many friends of Mr. George Cookman will be sorry to hear that his health is not improved. Mr. Cookman has gone to Toronto to attend a hospital there.

Despite the high prices of material building in this vicinity is stil advancing. Many improvements are to be noticed, and several houses are nearing completion. There are seven new houses on Edison Avenue within a short time.

Quite a number of the friends of the Orpington Road Mission motored to Warkworth on Sunday, to attend a meeting.

Crops Conditions

Pasture is scarce and this is causing a lowering of the milk supply. The oat crop is nearly all harvested and is a good crop, despite the fact that it is very short in the stalk.

CHANGES IN THE FEDERAL CABINET

Shake Up Will Entail Two By-Elections, in Pictou And S. Renfrew.

OTTAWA, Aug. 18. —(Canadian Press.)—Important cabinet changes were announced last night, namely: Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Trade and Commerce, since the formation of the King government, takes the portfolio of Immigration and Colonization.

Hon. A. Low, member of the cabinet without portfolio, succeeds Mr. Robb as Minister of Trade and Commerce.

Hon. E. M. Macdonald, who has been Acting Minister of National Defence, becomes Minster of Defence.

The changes entail two bye-elections. Mr. Macdonald will seek re-election in Pictou and Mr. Low will have to seek re-election in South Renfrew.

Until the present appointment of Mr. Robb, the Immigration Departmetn has been in the hands of Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

BIG SEA PICTURE IS "HOMEWARD BOUND"

A story of the seas, packed with drama and every scene having a distinct thrill of its own, Thomas Meighan's latest Paramount picture, "Homeward Bound,' based on the story "The Light to Leeward," by Peter B. Kyne, and superbly directed by Ralph Ince, will be the feature at the Capitol theatre for three days beginning Monday next, Lila Lee, beautiful and popular, plays opposite the star.

In this captivating photoplay Mr. Meighan is seen as Jim Bedford, a sailor who saves a ship from founder ing after Captain Svenson the cowardly skipper, quits the bridge and gives up the struggle. When the ship reaches port, Svenson is given an ovation and Rufus Brent owner, unaware of the facts make him skipper of his yacht which Brent aims to present to his daughter, Mary.

Bedford, who loves Mary, refuses to permit Svenson to command the yacht and thus imperil Marys life. When the yacht is about to sail, Bedford forces Svenson off the vessel and himself takes command. Brent threatens to have Bedford arrested for piracy and after a severe time aboard Bedford takes the yacht back to port. He then takes command of an unseaworthy schooner and before sailing, quietly marries Mary. Events follow in quick succession, all of which combine to make the picture tremendously interesting and appealing.

The supporting company is exceptionally strong in the cast are Charles Abbe, William T. Carleton, Hugh Cameron, Gus Weinberg, Maude Turner Gordon and other noted players.

THE MYSTERY OF STONEY LAKE

(By GORDON HILL GRAHAME)

Where Mount Rascal's northern s ope is fringed by the lily-padded waters of the Lost Channel you may find this thing that has created endless discussion and futile surmise amongst the few people who know if its existence. Deep-hidden upon the mossy bank of a long bayou lies the Mystery. Well off the beaten channel, where the little steamers 'Islinda' and 'Empress' ruffle the calm surface of the lake, is the peaceful location of the unsolved riddle —an intriguing enigma made more fascinating by the beauty of its setting.

When the shades of evening cover the black Kawartha waters with a veil of mystery and the setting sun casts long shadows across the Lost Channel, then is the time to approach the Mystery to best appreciate the beauty and solemnity of its lonely environs. Paddle with me then into the sunset as we enter the eastern end of the Lost Channel; it is but a little way—a mile at most from end to end of the Rosherville gardens—and our course lies through the most beautiful portion of the lovliest of Kawartha's lakes.

The tall pines move slowly past and the wild rice whispers to the canoe as our light craft glides smoothly through the channel. Above us the night-hawks have started their nocturnal flight; in the dark shadows about us little creatures of the night stare unseen upon our noiseless passage scuttling through the dried leaves in sudden fright as the paddles flash in the last beams of the dying sun. The lazy bull-frogs hidden amongst the weeds have started their evening chorus; the dull murmur of Burleigh Falls swells and dies away in recurrent waves of sound at once a threnody and a benediction.

Where the Tumbling Rocks maintain their age-old guardianship of the inner channel we turn our canoe and enter the deep silent pool upon which the blind bayou which harbours the Mystery has its entrance. The sheer beauty of this lovely spot under the magic of the twilight, will make the heart beat faster and under its mystic spell one unconsciously speaks in whispers. A hoary pine-crowned granite bluff stands reflected in the ebon waters at its base; the mirrored trees about us toss and quiver in the undulating wake of our canoe—and we leave the pool behind us, the rocky cliff where Echo lives repeating in sibilant whisper the swish of our paddles as we enter the blind bayou.

And now the day is done and though the sky is emblazoned with the colours of the sunset, the evening mist is rising from the water freighted with the odour of ferns and lilies. The tenebrous shore-line closes in upon us as we near the end of the channel. Under a thick-leaved oak upon the northern shore of the lagoon a black rock can be dimly seen in the gloom carved by nature into the semblance of a cowled head and in the gathering darkness one can almost imagine that a pair of stony eyes gleam malevolently upon the intruders who have profaned this quiet waterway.

Where the channel ends, the rock slopes gently up from the water and here beneath the protection of a drooping pine lies the Mystery—a cross of stone. Dark though it be there is yet light enough to see the rough stones which form the figure which lies flat upon the sloping surface of moss-covered granite. Above the cross is the word SANCTUS formed of pieces of granite and below it the word LOVE made of the same material. The whole occupies about one hundred and fifty square feet the perpendicular limb of the cross being about ten feet in height with the horizontal limb about the same length across.

That the stones were placed in their position many years ago is evinced, not only by the moss that still covers the edges of the figure but by the time-worn edges of stones which have split and fallen to pieces in the years they have lain upon their lonely bed.

What is the meaning of the Cross? Does it mark the spot where some mid-Victorian swain wooed and won the lady of his desire and who, in the exuberance of his feelings left for posterity a record of his happiness? Did some devout christian marvelling at the beauty of his surroundings and at the goodness of his God, perpetuate in mingled Latin and English the gratitude which his tongue could not utter? Does the cross mark the place in the deep water below where legend has it a young bride was drowned on her honeymoon? Did the river-drivers of another day mark the spot in memory of comrades who had lost their lives in the turbulent rapids above Burleigh Falls?

It is a fascinating subject and one which lends itself to many interesting theories—but the hour grows late and it is getting too dark to distinguish the individual stones of the cross. We must hasten to get out of ghostly Rosherville before the light is gone altogether

As we leave the Lost Channel by its upper entrance and paddle out again into the lake, the glow of the dying day covers the western sky. Under its soft radiance the Burleigh end of the lake resembles a broad sheet of gold upon whose lipid bosom float a score of distant black specks—the canoes of a picnic party returning home from Perry's Creek.

In fancy as we leave Mount Rascal behind us and darkness settles down so that no evidence of civilization can be seen along the shores, it is not difficult to imagine one's self back in the days when Champlain passed through the very waters. See those distant specks upon the water They are the canoes of the Huron host who over three centuries ago accompanied the daunt'ess Frenchman on his expedition against the Onondagas. Listen to that sullen murmur It is not the roar of the falls that you hear; it is the far-off chanting of Huron warriors as they paddle their phantom barks through the beautiful lake which once was theirs—before the ravening Iroquois made of their land at once a shambles and a forgotten memory. Did Champlain's hands fashion the cross of mystery?

CHURCH UNION.

The Edtior of The Examiner:

Sir,— The closing hours of the struggle for and against the abolition of the old denominational churches is at hand. The Methodist unionists have just issued a new set of cards of information, setting out the history of their case. It appears that originally the Presbyterians asked for a conference to find some way out of overlapping. That was all—a way out of useless and often harmful rivalry. About ten years after this offer the Methodist Conference asks for organic unity! An entirely different thing, and one fraught with most dangerous qualities. Now the question naturally arises, "What stampeded the Methodists into a proposal for organic union?" The answer, long delayed, at last appears. The total increase in all Canada of the Methodist membership for this last church year has been only 331 (three hundred and thirty-one). The increase should have been at least 40,000 (forty thousand), allowing for the 3,000 small congregations that had to give up their churches and join in with others. How is it that the once mighty Methodist church has come to such a pass? Many people think it is because they have established social service for the service of Christ, and for the leadership of the Saviour the leadership of Dr. Chown and the like. Is it too late to get back? Is it too late to return to that powerful simplicity and religious fervour which characterized the Methodists in the old days? The withdrawal of that force from our national religious life is a disaster.

WHY THEY LEAVE HOME.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 18.—(Associated Press)—Immigrants into the Pittsburgh district are astonished at the prosperity of the country and express delight to know their weekly income bids fair to meet their expenditures.

One man who settled in Ambridge, the bridge manufacturing town on the Ohio river, declared recently that with his savings for a year in Europe he could purchase a hat, suit of clothes and a pair of shoes, while in Ambridge he has outfitted himself from head to foot with his savings of one week.

New invention is a powerful electric light attached to lifeboats and automatically switched on as the boat touches the water.

PUT HOLLAND CLOTH ON THE FREE LIST

Mr. G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., has been able to induce the Tariff Board to put on the free list Holland Cloth, of which the Canadian Nashua Paper Company Limited uses large quantities in making bookbinders' cloth. The Tariff Board has heretofore ruled that Holland Cloth coming into Canada, imported direct by book binders. for their own purposes. should come in free, but when imported by others for the purpose of being used as a raw produce, under treatment for book binding cloth, they required to pay duty.

However, Mr. Gordon succeeded in convincing the Department of Customs at Ottawa that it should be admitted free, and directions have been given to put Holland cloth on the free list when imported into Canada for the purpose of treatment for manufacture. This will enable the Canadian Nashua Paper Company Limited to practically keep out all finished book binding cloth from the United States and will give them a large part of the Canadian market, with the book binders of Canada.

BRITISH HARVESTERS

These are a few of the men recruited by the Canadian Pacific Railway in Britain for work in the Canadian harvest fields. As will be seen, they are a sturdy type, and as all are workmen, skilled in some trade, they will be a valuable addition to the Dominion's agricultural and industrial workers if they can be induced to remain in the country after the harvest. Nearly four thousand men were recruited in England by this Company and given passage at reduced harvesters rates on the Canadian Pacific Steamships.

FUNERAL YESTERDAY

The funeral of little Elizabeth Briegel took place yesterday afternoon to the Little Lake Cemetery. Rev. J. R. Webb came from Kitchener to conduct the funeral services, which were most impressive.

The pall-bearers were four little girl friends; Ann Donoghue, Elizabeth Lang, Isobel Glover and Doris Mowry.

That Elizabeth had already won her way into the hearts of many, old and young alike was evidenced by the very large number of floral tributes sent.

The little girl will be greatly missed in the family circle she has left and in the simple walks of life she was just entering.

A TYPHOON SWEPT HONG KONG HARBOR

British Submarine Sunk With All Hands—Shipping Damaged.

HONG KONG, Aug 18.—(United Press).— Many lives were lost and there was great damage to shipping in a disastrous typhoon which swept the harbour here to-day. The wind reached the highest velocity ever recorded in Hong Kong. The storm lasted more than an hour.

A British submarine was sunk with all hands, two Japanese steamers were ashore, later reports said the lost British submarine was the L-9, 1000 tons with a crew of 36 or 40 men and officers. The fate of the men still was uncertain, one report declaring a majority were saved and another that all but one were lost.

Up to a late hour this morning, the admirality at London, had received no official information regarding sinking of the submarine L-9 in a typhoon at Hong Kong.

been tested and proved themselves real men and real executives during the recent period of depression. It was the man who could foresee for himself, who knew his own business thoroughly in all its details, who was in touch with his markets and conditions on which his markets depended, who proved himself worthy the name of a business man. Time to provide for future prosperity is when prosperity is here, and not when it has vanished or is vanishing. The far-sighted man does not at that time, boost dividends, build large buildings recklessly, but feels his way more cautiously and carefully than at any other time. It seems odd to me that the lessons of the good and bad times are not more generally remembered, and yet abnormal prosperity seems to distort the normal viewpoint of many men. Then they and their shareholders have to suffer."

In statement given out this morning Curator Barker promised to inform depositors regarding their position, at the earliest possible moment. Banking authorities point out that the Home Bank has not yet assigned but has merely suspended payment till it is ascertained whether or not an assignment is necessary. It has already been stated that Home Bank currency, "paper money" is quite good and will be redeemed by any other bank In event of permanent suspension or assignment holders of bank notes will have first perference, after payment of employees salaries. Next will come Ontario Government deposits, extent of which is not definitely known. Finally will follow general depositors and shareholders latter may be held to double liability on an assignment

Hope is expressed by some authorities here that larger banks of Dominion Government will yet come to the aid of the Home Bank, if necessary to cover depositors.

The present state of suspension may last for ninety days while curator is taking stock of things. Then there may be an assignment or a reopening as situation develops. In the meanwhile bank will cash no checks, pay out no deposit but will make all collection possible due to itself.

"Bank closed, payment suspended," was the only information available to depositors and others who essayed to enter the big walnut doors of the Home bank, head office, here this morning. Enquirers over the telephone were given similar information. A police constable guarded the doors and the porter within opened them to no persons except employees.

A. D. Barker, manager of the local clearing house, who was yesterday appointed curator, will to-day be officially confirmed in that position by Mr. Justice Fisher, local judge in bankruptcy. It is understood that Mr. Barker has already had a conference with A. E. Calvert, assistant general manager of the bank, with a view to an immediate preliminary inspection of the books.

Reports from the outlying branches in this city indicated that the situation was being taken quietly, and while the enquiries of smaller depositors were many, there was little comparative excitement. In some of the smaller towns of the province, where the Home bank's branch was the only bank, the closing of the branch presented considerably more difficulties.

Sir Frederick Quoted.

A despatch received at Toronto from Montreal, quotes Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor, president of the Canadian Bankers' Association as saying that the Association is not prepared to assume liability for deposits in the suspended Home bank or any other bank.

A despatch from Vancouver says:

The local branch of the Home Bank of Canada was locked up ten minutes before regular closing hour Friday, immediately upon receipt by Manager Lovegrove of official notice from Toronto to suspend payment. Rumors of threatening suspension were circulated, but only a few depositors withdrew their savings, no large amounts from bank before official instructions arrived.

REICHSBANK WILL ISSUE BIG DENOMINATION NOTES

BERLIN, Aug 18. — (Canadian Press). — Anticipating a further crash in the German currency, the Reichsbank is preparing to issue banks notes of 100,000,000 denomination, meanwhile the Government is perparing to print thirty thousand billion marks during the coming week to keep the banks supplied with reserves of the expected drop materialises.

The Ackerman-Dawson Co. Purchase Control of the General Animals Ins. Co.

Announcement of Business Deal of Special Interest to Shareholders in Toronto Casualty Insurance Co.

Shareholders in Peterboro and vicinity of the Toronto Casualty Insurance Company, will be interested in the announcement yesterday of the purchase by the Ackerman-Dawson Company, of the control of the General Animals Insurance Co., of Montreal, a company incorporated in 1907 by Special Act of Parliament, and licensed to transact live stock, automobile and plate glass insurance. The Toronto Casualty Company, organized in 1921 by the Ackerman-Dawson Company, will thus have an allied company throughout Canada, facilitating expansion, reduction of expense, and providing insurance facilties.

It is expected that the General Animals Co., will cease to underwrite live stock and the name of the company will be changed to the Canadian General Insurance Company, a charter for which was obtained at the last session by Special Act. The head office will be changed from Montreal to Toronto, operating from the same offices and under the same management as the Toronto Casualty Co.

A further announcement of importance is to-day made by the Ford Motor Co., of Canada, referring to an arrangement entered into with the Traders Finance Corporation (Canada) Limited, whereby the latter company will handle the entire wholesale and retail acceptances of the Ford Motor dealers throughout the whole of Canada. This deal constitutes one of the major undertakings of recent years in Canada, and it affects the Toronto Casualty Co., because of the very large volume of insurance involved, and because of the close identification of interests between the insurance company and the acceptance corporation, Mr. A. E. Dawson, General Manager of the Toronto Casualty Co., being on the board of the Traders Finance Corporation, and Mr. Evans, President of the latter company, being vice-president of th Toronto Casualty.

The sound growth and steady development of the Toronto Casualty Co. will be a source of satisfaction to the numerous shareholders in this district.

IN MEMORIAM

CAVANAGH—In loving memory of my dear husband, Richard T. Cavanagh, who died Aug. 18th 1921. Two years has passed our hearts still sore

As time rolls on, we miss him more
His loving smile, his welcome face,
No one can fill his vacant place.

Forget him no, we never will,
We loved him then, we love him still
His memory is as fresh to-day
As in the hour he passed away.

Oh, how our hearts do wander
To the lone and silent grave
Where they laid our loved one
Just two years ago to-day.

The happy hours we once enjoyed
How sweet their memory still
But Death has left a vacant place,
The world can never fill.

His weary hours and days of pain,
His troubled night has passed,
His ever patient worn out frame
Has found sweet rest at last.
—Inserted by his loving wife and family.

TO EXPECTANT MOTHERS

A Letter from Mrs. Smith Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her

Trenton, Ont.—"I am writing to you in regard to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I would not be without it. I have taken it before each of my children were born and afterwards, and find it a great help. Before my first baby was born I had shortness of breath and ringing in my ears. I felt as if I would never pull through. One day a friend of my husband told him what the Vegetable Compound had done for his wife and advised him to take a bottle home for me. After the fourth bottle I was a different woman. I have four children now, and I always find the Vegetable Compound a great help as it seems to make confinement easier. I recommend it to my friends."—Mrs. FRED H. SMITH, John St., Trenton, Ont.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent medicine for expectant mothers, and should be taken during the entire period. It has a general effect to strengthen and tone up the entire system, so that it may work in every respect effectually as nature intended. Thousands of women testify to this fact. c

Victoria Heights

Victoria Heights subdivision is situated in the West Ward, extending north from Charlotte to Weller street, and lays immediately west of Monaghan road. Lots face on Charlotte street, Gilmour street, Homewood avenue, Walkerfield avenue and Weller street. Sewer and water is now laid in to street line of each lot, with the exception of Charlotte street lots. Twenty-six lots have been sold off this very beautiful piece of building property, some of them just recently. A number of first-class houses have already been built and one new house is now under construction. Another one will be started in a few days. There are still a number of lots to be sold at very attractive prices and on very easy terms. Size of lots are 50 x 117. Lots within a block of this property sold at $35.00 per ft., and these can be bought for almost half and less in some cases. It will pay you to get in early on this property and pick out your lot, because these lots are situated in the residential section of the West Ward and are sure to advance in price when building operation becomes brisk. You can buy a lot with payment of $100.00 down and $50.00 every six months, or for cash, whichever you prefer. Clear title can be given to each lot. For further particulars see H. J. McCannan or Walter Nugent at 140 Simcoe street. No trouble to show you this property whether you buy or not. It won't do you any harm to look it over.

TRAINED CHILD TOOK JEWELRY WORTH $25,000

Mother Engaged Clerk in Conversation While 3-Year-Old Child Walked Around.

A DAYLIGHT COUP

DETROIT, Aug. 20.—The police were asked on Saturday to assist Pinkerton detectives in solving the mystery surrounding the disappearance of $25,000 worth of jewelry, stolen from an open show case in the store of Charles W. Warren & Co., jewelers, 1504 Washington boulevard, between 10.30 a.m. and 2 p.m. Thursday. The theft had been kept secret by the detectives until Saturday.

A woman who came into the store with a 3-year-old child, and left a fountain pen to be repaired, giving a fictitious address, is being sought by the detectives.

The jewelry consisted of four diamond rings and eight bracelets, asserts W. H. Norton, superintendent of the Pinkerton National Detective Agency here, who is investigating the case for Lloyds, of London, the insurers of the jewelry.

Four Clerks on Duty.

Four clerks were on duty between the hours in which the theft was made. Every customer who entered the store, which has an exclusive trade, is known to the clerks and management, except the woman who came with the child. She gave an address on Baldwin avenue, which proved to be a vacant lot.

The jewelry was on a lower shelf of the case near an aisle leading behind the counter. Each ring was in an an individual plus velvet box and the four taken lay behind the eight bracelets which were lying loose in the front of the showcase shelf.

Child Walked About.

While the woman talked to the clerk the child walked about. Mr. Norton said that it is a common practice for thieves to train a child to steal things, while the mother engages the attention of the clerk. If the clerk should happen to notice the child stealing, the mother scolds him and the incident passes off.

If the child took the jewelry, it must have been concealed in its mother's hand bag, for otherwise the rings in their boxes would have attracted attention, Mr. Norton said.

THRESHERS BUSY CROPS ARE FAIR

Yield of Oats Appears to Be Heavier Than Was Estimated.

Roadside estimates of the wheat and oats crops noticed in motor trips out of Peterboro, leave the impression that the harvest in these grains will be much better than the recent gloomy opinions of farmers suggested. Both these grains made a favorable appearance in the stook, although it is likely that on close inspection the grain might be light, and not well headed.

There has been predictions, however, of almost a total failure due to the prolonged dry weather, and anything approaching an average or fair crop seems to be a surplus.

All the threshing machines are busy, and are now working on the later cut grains, after cleaning up most of the alsike, which is said to have produced one of the biggest crops in the history of the province. The yield was good in this district.

CANADA SHOULD ENCOURAGE IMMIGRATION TO DOMINION

Influential London Paper Complains That Heretofore Very Little Has Been Heard From Canada Regarding Inter-Imperial Migration

LONDON, August 20 (Canadian Press). — An appeal to Canada to encourage migration from Great Britain is put forward in a leading editorial in the Morning Post, which points out that only a proportion of the immigrants who have arrived in the Dominion since last April have come from this country.

The Post expressed the opinion that the changes in the Canadian Cabinet doubtless are connected with the Dominion's representation at the coming Imperial Economic Conference, and says: "Heretofore very little has been heard from Canada with regard to either inter-Imperial migration or of a share in the Imperial Conference, nor does Great Britain know Premier MacKenzie-King's views on the matters of Imperial policy."

AUTOISTS SAVE BILLION GALLONS OF GAS ANNUALLY.

National Motorists' Association Campaign Bears Fruit—Declining Cost Is Due to the Economy of Autoists.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 20.—Mark up the present declining cost of gasoline, in one sense to the item —economy.

Economy that is practiced by the automobile owner. Saving of waste fuel to such an extent that the total consumption of motor gas in the last six months has increased far more slowly than the number of auto mobiles in use.

This economy mania of motorists is the result of an educational program conducted by the National Motorists' Association. Almost from its birth last year, this young organization has been insisting that a billion gallons of gasoline worth at least $18,000,000, could be saved annually —if every motorist economized in its use.

Fred Caley president of the N. M. A., has pointed out time and again how this economy could be effected. The result has been a general campaign against minor wastes in driving automobiles.

Carbon-choked engines have been cleaned, Caley concludes, carburetors have been more finely adjusted and many other slight savings made during the last six months. He proves this by indicating that, in one "good" month there was an increase of about 96,000,000 gallons of gasoline consumed over the same period three years ago, in the face of an increase of about 3,000,000 automobiles in service.

That would be only 32 gallons to each new car for a whole month. Which is much below the average.

FAILED TO STOP CONSTABLE FIRED

One Autoist Found Dying With Bullet in Left Breast.

MONTREAL, Aug. 20.—(Canadian Press). — When they failed to stop on being challenged, Constable Lebreton, fired two shots at two occupants of a car on the corner of Malrose and Sherbroke streets, this morning. Later a man identified as Jacques Malinoff was found dying in an automobile with a bullet wound in his left breast in another part of the city and is believed by police to have been one of the men challenged by officer.

TORONTO WILL SELL WINGOW TO DETROIT

TORONTO, Aug. 20.—(Canadian Press). — President Solman, of the Toronto International Baseball Club, announced that negotiations had been completed for the sale of Adelerb "Red" Wingo, outfielder, to the Detroit club. The amount involved is $50,000, which is a record price for any Toronto player. Wingo will play out the season with the Leafs, and will likely report to the Detroit club at the end of the international season.

DISCOVER POPPIES MADE IN GERMANY

German Packing Slips Give Away Scheme to Sell Foreign Poppies for Armistice Day.

OTTAWA, August 20. — Canadian Press. — In an attempt to unload German made cloth poppies from the United States into Canada for distribution on Armistice Day, was revealed to-day by Dominion officials of the G.W.V.A.

Branches of the Association throughout the country have reported receiving circulars offering to supply poppies through a Toronto commercial agency. These are said to be imported from the States, where large stocks remain unused from Memorial Day as a result of the discovery that they had been made in Germany.

These stocks were originally purchased by an American ex-soldier organization from a French agency, which represented that they had been made by war widows and orphans in France. Just prior to Memorial day, German packing slips were discovered.

MINISTER FIELDING RECALLED TO OTTAWA

HALIFAX, N.S., Aug. 20.—(Canadian Press.)—Hon. W. S. Fielding, Minister of Finance, arrived in the city last evening, having motored from Shelburne. Mr. Fielding left Halifax last Wednesday intending to spend two weeks' holidays in his constituency, but had been recalled to Ottawa on urgent business.

Mr. Fielding refused to disclose the nature of the business which caused him to abandon his holiday and immediately return to Ottawa.

FRENCH STAND AVOIDS ISSUE BRITISH CLAIM

Poincare's Speech is Regarded as Conciliatory, But Indicates Continuance of Argument.

BREAK UNWARRANTED

LONDON, August 20 (United Press). — British circles consider that Premier Poincare's speech at Charlesville presages a conciliatory reply to the Curzon note, but fear also that it indicates a continuance of the argument and the avoidance of a definite decision.

"A mere prolongation of negotiations would be almost as distasteful to Britain as a complete disagreement. The Cabinet, therefore, is apparently facing the problem of whether to negotiate indefinitely while conditions at home and abroad continue to grow worse, or whether they carry out the threat of separate action in the face of a conciliatory French attitude which, although unsatisfactory, does not warrant an open break.

Occupation Illegal.

Speaking at Chester on Sunday, J. H. Thomas, British Labour Party leader, declared that the occupation of the Ruhr was illegal, and also raised the question of whether the Versailles Treaty itself was a true legal document.

Condemning the rise of the Treaty in his discussion of post-war conditions, Thomas said: "The politicians will never get organised workers to take part in another war."

MODERN ENGLISH PRISON ADOPTS MANY REFORMS

LONDON, Aug. 20.—(Associated Press).—Prison reform is popular just now in England, where it used to be regarded as purely an American notion. The latest thing in prison reform has been adopted in Wakefield Gaol, with excellent results, it is said. The prison, which was closed in 1916, has been reopened as a training centre for adult prisoners.

The underlying idea of the training is to teach the prisoners to "play the game." Scarcely a warder is to be seen. To maintain order the prefect system of the English public schools has been adopted. Solitary confinement has been abolished, and there is no restraint on conversation at meal times.

The men all have allotments. They work in pairs — a man who knows something of gardening being coupled with a man who knows nothing about it. Every prisoner who does well is allowed to grow a border of flowers to decorate his "room" as the cells are called. There is plenty of work done—nine hours manual, two hours mental. Work is arranged under expert instructors in the weaving shed, foundry, builders' yard and other workshops. One hour a week is devoted to discussion of happenings in the outside world on all topics except crime.

Author's Mail a Deluge As Ambitious Ask Advice

NEW YORK, Aug. 20. —"Dear Mr. Tarkington: My little Isaac acts a lot like your dear Penrod—could you tell me? . . ."

"Dear Mrs. Atherton: I am 39—blonde—my friends think me beautiful. . . ."

With the increase of comparative literacy, cheap postage, the typewriter and so on, the supposedly retiring type of authors share with the cinema folk in the deluge of unsolicited advice, inquiries, compliments, brickbats, heart histories Share? The most prominent are fairly drowned with "fan mail." They are driven to printed forms of reply, to private secretaries, who do nothing but 'answer," reports a writer in Time.

Letters of praise and blame are easy enough to understand. If a reader enjoys a book immensely, he has, in almost every case, no way whatsoever of thanking the author for the pleasure he has given him except by letter —and such letters form by far the pleasantest part of any author's mail, no matter how much said author may lie about it.

If the reader doesn't like a book, is shocked, offended or proudly discovers some technical mistake—his injured feelings and his professional criticism must, too, be expressed at long distance. And let him have no fear of going unheeded—such letters are always read—and with painful attention. And then there are the letters, usualy accompanied by manuscripts, lengthy manuscripts, from aspirants of from 7 years to 70, who want to "break into the writing game." Such letters very seldom go unanswered.

One of the most prominent women writers of America ever since she first made her reputation, has read, and carefully, every manuscript submitted to her for advice—and the manuscripts for years have averaged something like two a day.

But there is a third class —the writers who tell their troubles. Perhaps because the author seems to them a sort of impersonal veiled prophet, they pour out to him or her the most intimate sort of confessions. They don't get on with their spouses, their children go wrong, the roof leaks, they are in trouble, sick, despairing, what to do? Rather pitifully, they assume that the author can help them, tell them why and how, set life on its feet again.

INVESTIGATION OF HOME BANK IS LONG TASK

Curator and Experts Busy Today — Shareholders Will Pay Double Liability if Necessary.

HOPE FOR BEST

TORONTO, August 20. Canadian Press. — A. B. Barker, Curator of the suspended Home Bank of Canada, with a staff of expert banking accountants, was busily engaged today in the preliminary stage of the work of ascertaining the actual position of the institution, and the prospects of the depositors and the shareholders.

In the meantime legal proceedings have been taken on behalf of the creditors who want to have the Home Bank declared insolvent, by a "winding up" order. This motion is returnable on Tuesday next.

Protect Small Depositors.

Shareholders interviewed here declared that if it came to a point of putting up double liability to protect small depositors they would do it manfully. The hope was expressed however that the curator would find this unnecessary.

It is agreed everywhere that the curators investigations will take a long time and that in the meantime neither shareholders nor depositors will know "where they are at."

BANK SUMMARY

Following are some of the outstanding point regarding the condition of the Home Bank:

A. R. Barker, manager of the Toronto clearing house, has been appointed curator.

Report must be presented within three months by curator.

Heavy withdrawals rumored to have taken place lately.

Large sum reported loaned to British Columbia pulp mill, which has closed down.

Return to minister of finance on June 30, showed no material changes.

Regular seven per cent. dividend declared for current quarter.

Liquidation of government securities expected to aid in meeting obligations.

Assets exceed liabilities by nearly three million, but bad debts included in former.

Demands of depositors are expected to be met by directors.

Possession in Brussels late yesterday Modern English

WINNERS IN DRAWING.

The drawing for prizes donated to the Holy Name social on 9th August has taken place, with the following winners: Ton of coal, donated by W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., won by Butler Hickey, Reid Street; rocking-chair, donated by Neil Tobin, won by Rev. Father McCarthy, Norwood; electric lamp donated by Messrs. F. R. J. McPherson & Company and W. Bennett, Sr., won by R. Torpey, Elm Street.

POLICE FOUND HIDING MEN NEAR CHANCELLOR'S HOUSE

Attempt Not Anticipated on Stresemann's Life—Suspects Wanted Diplomatic Papers —Guards Opened Fire

LONDON, Aug. 20.—(Canadian Press). — Berlin Police Guards last night, found two men hiding in the shrubbery near the residence of Chancellor Stresemann says a Central News Despatch from Berlin to-day.

The Guards opened fire, but the suspects ran and succeeded in escaping.

The police, says the message believe that the object of the lurking individuals was not to at tempt to take the chancellor's life, but only to steal diplomatic papers.

MASSES CHARRED BONES CORRESPOND WITH THE NUMBER OF MISSING

Little Left to Identify Victims of Fire at Lake of Bays Which Destroyed the Wa-Wa Hotel--Bodies of Seven Persons Identified.

DEATH TOLL TEN

HUNTSVILLE, Ont., Aug. 20. — (Canadian Press.) —This afternoon it is thought that the list of dead in the fire which in less than half an hour reduced the Wa-Wa hotel, at the Lake of Bays summer resort, to ashes, on Sunday morning, will amount to ten.

The bodies of 7 persons have been identified, and it is thought there are others in the ruins. With the hotel register and all the books with the records of the hotel help destroyed, it is impossible to definitely establish the number of casualties. Some of the servants came from outlying settlements and farm houses, and their homes have not yet been checked up to see whether they escaped from the flames.

Missing and Dead.

One authority this morning gives as missing and presumed dead, Mrs. Emily McNally, wife of James McNally, of Chicago. Most of the United States 'guests left on the special train for Toronto, but Mrs. McNally's name is not given as among those who arrived safely in that city.

It is also stated that Miss Elizabeth Krogan, or Kroger, of Cleveland, who was earlier mentioned as missing, is now known to be dead, also Miss Annie Carrol, a Toronto girl.

Cause of Fire.

In an interview, J. D. Warde, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Railway News Company, owners of the hotel, gave it as his opinion that the fire was caused by somebody throwing a lighted cigar or cigarette down the elevator shaft. Mr. Warde occupied a cottage near the hotel.

Searching Enquiry.

Dr. J. P. McDonald formally opened the inquest to-day and adjourned it till Wednesday.

There will also be a searching enquiry by the Ontario Fire Marshall's Department.

Like Burying Ground.

This morning the remains of the Wa-Wa hotel has the appearance of some ancient burying ground. The wooden structure of the hotel was built on cement blocks. The wood was burned to a fine ash and the cement blocks rise above the debris like the headstones of graves. Here and there, like some tall tomb rise the brick fire place chimney. Scattered throughout the ashes lie the broken, twisted frames of iron beds, battered bath tubs and rusted pipes.

On one of these battered beds lies the mute evidence of the tragedy. On the rusted spring a charred mass of human bones, the remains of some unfortunate servant, overcome by smoke in her sleep in the servants' quarters in the tower alongside the elevator shaft.

The bed must have dropped through the burning floor, carrying the body with it.

Within three yards of this gruesome evidence lie four more masses of charred bones, the remains of other servants who lost their lives in the tower. There is little left to identify them, but the number of masses of bones corresponds with the number of people missing.

A Terrible Shock.

HAMILTON, Aug. 20.—The news of the only Hamilton fatality in connection with the fire at the Wa-Wa hotel reached relatives in the city in a most shocking way. George E.

TYPOS' PICNIC WAS EXCITING

Ladies' Ball Game Featured the Event With New System Ball Playing—Free and Easy.

The annual picnic of Typographical Union No. 248 was held on Saturday afternoon to Wallace's Point. Members of the various departments of the Examiner Printing Company's staff attended, with their families and friends, to the number of between fifty and sixty people. The paper was put through by one o'clock on Saturday, and, forgetting all the troubles that gather about the heads of those who labor to give the public its daily ration of printed news, the Examiner employees motored to Wallace's Point for a pleasant afternoon and evening of sports and races and dancing. The teeters and slides and swings at the Point came in for a share of patronage from old and young alike, and an al fresco supper, on the banks of the Otonabee that narrows to a small, placid stream at this stage of its journey to the sea, was enjoyed by all, with plenty of good things of all varieties supplied by the ladies.

Baseball a Feature.

The baseball games were the feature of the afternoon programme. When it comes to playing ball, nobody can say that there is anything "stereotyped" about Examiner players. They have a free and easy style which is very refreshing, and there is an individuality about their form that sets them on a plane far above cast-iron rules. That there are no casualities to report was due, possibly, to the fact that they were as expert in quick side-stepping footwork as in hard throwing. The catcher received more balls against his manly chest than he did in his mitt, but he bore up nobly against fierce and repeated onslaughts.

Mr John Anderson acted as observer for the men's game. With canny Scotchness, he reports the score as 3-3, between the Collins and Long teams, thus leaving no room for comparison. He says: "Gus Hay was a very efficient umpire, giving decisions jut as he liked the looks of the players. Walter Barringer, on second, had a mitt which seemed to put him "off color" completely. Walter catches best with the bare paw. Herbie Johnson was great as catcher, the ball rolling up his chest and tipping him under the chin. Frank Wallwork liked his "fag" better than catching passes. Maurice Dunkley pitched well, and also was great on telling the runners when to go and when to stand pat. Bob Pearse had a walk to first from a "pat" on the back by the pitcher. The other lads — Pearson, Benson, George Johnson (who also pitched like a major leaguer), Collins, Dewhurst, Gray and Long—showed their mettle on the diamond, and an "all-star" team could be seen in action.

Ladies' Wonderful Game.

The ladies had a wonderful game. Miss Robinson's team beat Miss Wilson's bunch to the tune of 16-0. Just how it happened nobody knows. The bleachers were quiet, but the pitcher did most of the "razzing," giving plenty of advice which bewildered bat-women endeavored to follow to the best of their ability. A feature of the ladies' game was the immobility of the players on bases, the ladies refusing to budge until ordered to do so by a frantic small boy who acted as umpire. Explanations of the various decisions were required in most instances, the umpire, Victor Johnson, getting tangled up with a small girl-player whose prowess at the bat was remarkable Southdaw pitching and batting and a hectic quality in the base-running were high lights in an exciting interval.

Mrs. Hill enlivened supper proceedings with her mouth-organ playing, and Walter Peters brought along his camera.

Races and Winners.

The races, run after supper, suffered a handicap in speed by reason of the previous prowess of the competitors as trencher men and women, but the events proved interesting to the spectators.

The winners were as follows:

Boys, under eight — (1) Ernest Johnson; (2) Maurice Dunkley; (3) Davey Pearse.

Girls, 14 and under—(1) Edith Wallwork; (2) Phyllis Rome; (3) Winnie Wallwork.

Boys, under 14—(1) Victor Johnson; (2) Garry Johnson.

Young ladies' special—(1) Phyllis Robinson; (2) Marita Collins; (3) Mrs. Morrison.

Married ladies—(1) Mrs. Morrison; (2) Mrs. Johnson.

Married men—(1) Mr. Dunkley; (2) Alex Miller.

Fat men's race (by default) — Bert Gray.

The shower at seven o'clock brought the major portion of the party hurrying homeward, but some of the younger members remained for a dance at the hall in the evening.

NEWS GETTING AND PRINTING IS DESCRIBED

R. M. Glover Tells of Process at Rotary Luncheon -- Service is Object of Newspaper.

HELP THE CITY

A talk on his classification as Managing Director of the Peterborough Examiner by Roland M. Glover, featured the Rotary luncheon to-day. Mr. Glover treated his subject briefly under three divisions —"The collection and making up of news; The relation of the circulation of a paper to its advertising worth;" and "newspaper policy in a small town."

Remarking that more people think they know how to run a newspaper than presume to dictate, the carrying on of any other business, the speaker said, after many years in the business he feels still a novice in the work.

In a field of a radius of 30 miles the Examiner serves its readers before any other paper can reach them. A paper in a one newspaper town must contain a great amount of district and local news, which will be intensely interesting to its readers. To gather this local news the Examiner has a staff of ten in the city; 47 district correspondents and a resident staff reporter in Campbellford. A news sheet consisting of five or six pages with news up to 11 o'clock the previous night, goes out to the country districts every day, by the noon trains and rural deliveries. As an instance of the quick service afforded by this noon edition, Mr. Glover cited the story of the fire catastrophe at the Wa-Wa hotel. This news was published by the Examiner in the mid-day edition, and was read by the country subscribers in many cases before the Toronto morning papers carrying the story arrived in Peterborough.

Telegraphic Despatches

For outside news, the Examiner is served by the Canadian Press, British United Press and the Star News Services. Before the world war if the costs for telegraphic news ran up to $50 a month, there was an investigation to discover where the money went, Mr. Glover said, but to-day there is more spent in a month than in a year under the old system. The machinery required to handle all this news gathered from diverse sources and the advertising matter is as up-to-date in the Examiner plant as in any other small city daily.

"The first business activitiy of many young men, who have now won a place for themselves in the city, was the selling of newspapers when boys," the speaker said.

It is fundamental that a newspaper cannot exist without advertising revenue. The larger the circulation of the paper the greater the value to advertisers providing the readers can get to the place to buy the goods. For this reason Mr. Glover said, the Examiner, with its comparatively small circulation, is better medium than a large metropolitan paper, since readers of the Examiner can reach the advertiser.

Aim at Fair Reports

Regarding the policy of the Examiner, the speaker said, "we realize our field is limited. We do not expect to solve many Dominion or world-wide problems, and so we confine ourselves mainly to local and district affairs. What satisfies one will hurt another. We try to be accurate, but when one sees the number of hands through which one piece of copy goes, the wonder is there are not more mistakes."

"We try to run a clean newspaper, and in order to do this many columns of matter which we have paid for are rejected."

"Our first objective," Mr. Glover declared, "is the furtherance of Peterborough. We believe we have never turned down any appeal that

ESSENTIALS OF CHURCH MUSIC

Music in the churches varies from cheap, trashy anthems to the music of the great masters, both with and without accompaniment Music has come to mean so much in the daily life of the individual, particularly in recent years, that there has developed a much larger general musical appreciation than is often recognized A poorly attended church generally means poor music Those in charge of such matters often do not consider the standards of public taste which must of necessity be high to appeal to the musical public It is on this account that the church which has worthy music well presented at its services, is generally well supported and attended, for there is a spiritual beauty and exaltation in such music which can not be measured and which exceeds greatly that of the spoken word

The first essential to good church music is a chorus choir, and if the church has sufficient funds that is not difficult to maintain This is a primary consideration of much more importance than a solo quartette which is too limited to be useful in producing fine choral effects If the church can not at first pay its singers, a volunteer chorus is the next possibility, for at any cost a chorus choir must be organized Under the prevailing conditions and customs in this country a boy choir is most difficult to maintain, and in many places where it is maintained the same energy and financial backing would produce infinitely greater and more important results if applied to a mixed choir

HEARING SINGERS

It is often of the greatest use to read books and magazine articles on singing, but let us bear in mind that it is of no use to read without discrimination The same truth applies to the hearing of singers Do not conclude after listening to a prima donna, whose lower jaw wobbles when she sings, that the reason she sings well is because her jaw wobbles and that you must make your jaw do as hers does in order to make good tones If you hear a singer who holds high notes until you forget which ballad he was singing, do not straightway go home with the notion that you have found in this cheap method of gaining applause the true key to interpretation

There was once a young man who had a very round, full voice He had all the mind and technic necessary to please unthinking folk, but he was not satisfied He realized that many other singers had something that he lacked, so after watching several of these and noting an occasional toss of the head and gesture of the eye he decided to incorporate these tactics into his method But alas, it was invariably the unstressed syllable or unimportant word on which he elected to brandish or ogle, and so the last state of the singer was worse than the first

An opinionated young soprano once fell into the hands of a new teacher After she had perpetrated several of the "best sellers" in the operatic repertoire of all divas she gave the teacher an opportunity to speak, and he criticised her tone, whereupon she retorted, "Well, my tones are good, and I know they are, because I went and heard Melba sing all those songs, and I made my tones just the way she did"

Grape Ice

Two cups water, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup grape juice, 1 orange, ½ lemon.

Boil sugar and water for ten minutes. Add grape juice (home made, undiluted juice is best), and juice from orange and lemon. Turn into freezer and freeze.

Have a Good Time

An Irishman and a Frenchman got into an argument about the total number of beverages, alcoholic and otherwise, in existence. Pat claimed there were 83. The Frenchman insisted there were only 82. They made a bet.

"I'll name the 83," said Pat. "First, there is water. . . ."

"Ah, you win," the Frenchman interrupted. "I had forgotten all about that one."

This story, told by Dr. William J. Robinson, the dean of medical writers, suggests that the world prohibition movement eventually will focus on France, which probably will be the last of the important countries to go dry, if ever.

M'Cready Sykes, another able writer, digs up the yarn about the Scotchman who complained that he could never get any real pleasure from smoking.

"If I am smokin' my ain tobacco," said Sandy, "I can na' enjoy it for thinkin' o' the dreadful expense; and I am smokin' a' ither body's tobacco my pipe is packed so tight that it winna draw."

Economy is a virtue, but it can be carried to the point where it takes all the joy out of life. Epidemic excessive economy, born from fear, usually ends business booms and starts depression. Prosperity is the result of widespread spending. No cause for fear as yet. Continue buying, thereby keeping prosperity with us. The wise system is to be moderate, spending to keep business humming, also saving prudently for emergency.

The Wall Street Journal ys a stock exchange firm wanted an experienced bookkeeper. An applicant, who favorably impressed the manager of the brokerage firm, was asked what salary he received on his last job.

"They paid me $125 a week."

"Who gave you that salary?"

A bankrupt bucket-shop was named.

"You apparently got $25 for your work and $100 for keeping quiet," the manager commented.

The jokes of our generation are becoming editorial in nature. Vividly they caricature important events and public trends. We are getting dangerously close to the intellectual in our humor—(dangerous, because intelligence and humor are as difficult to mix as oil and water)—but, after all, much of the news borders on the ridiculous, which makes it the logical target of the humorists.

The American sense of humor is becoming higher grade, more intelligent. If you doubt it, go back and try to get laughs out of the humorists of a few generations ago.

ESCAPE

Labrador, which skirts the Atlantic east of Hudson Bay, has been losing population steadily since 1884. Less than 3,700 people in its 120,000 square miles, though it has pleasant summers, excellent harbors and valuable fisheries and ore.

People get out of Labrador to avoid its rigorous ice-bound winters. Tendency of population is to follow the line of least resistance. Europeans, when they realize the frightful economic mess ahead of them, will pack up and migrate by the millions, with South America probably as their chief destination. It is not impossible that Europe is going to join the Lost Civilizations.

WHEAT

The world's wheat crop this year will be 214 million bushels more than in 1922, according to the International Institute of Agriculture at Rome.

The gains are made in Europe, Asia, Africa and Australia. The crop in North America, which includes United States and Canada, will be practically the same as a year ago. Yet our wheat prices tumble. Which illustrates how we are influenced by world conditions. An United States of the World is rapidly being created in economics—the system of supplying our material wants.

TO-DAY

Never a day is given.
But it tones the after-years:
And it carries up to heaven
Its sunshine or its fears;
While the to-morrows stand and wait—
The silent mutes by the outer gate.

There is no end to the sky,
And the stars are everywhere;
And time is Eternity,
And the here is over there;
For the common deeds of the common day
Are ringing bells in the far-away.

"He who has conquered doubt and fear has conquered failure."

PAINS

Artist: "I took pains with that painting."

Friend: "They must be contagious. I'm getting 'em from looking at it."

POINCARE DEFENDS ATTITUDE OF FRANCE IN REPLY TO CURZON

Quoted Versailles Treaty As Authority For the Occupation of Ruhr — Says British Trade Has Increased.

DESIRE FOR UNITY.

CHARLEVILLE, France, Aug. 20 —(Canadian Press)— Premier Poincare, speaking yesterday within the shadow of the building which was the seat of the German military head quarters during the war delivered an address virtually devoted to refuting the arguments advanced in the note of Lord Curzon, the British Foreign Secretary of Aug. 11. The Premier made little reference to the declarations of Dr. Gustav Stresemann, the new German chancellor in the Reichstag, last week.

M. Poincare quoted the Versailles Treaty as authority for the legality of the occupation of the Ruhr; cited figures to show that unemployment in Great Britian had decreased and that railroad traffic and shipping had increased since the French entered Essen, and reiterated the French government's earnest desire to come to an agreement with the British government on question in dispute.

After recalling the hardships suffered by the population of Charleville during German occupation, M. Poincare related at length the various phases of the military operations for the relief of the city. He eulogized the close co-operation of all the Allies toward the winning of the war

Unity in War Efforts

"The Alliances having survived the war," said M. Poincare, "the Allies might have hoped then that the monument which they had erected and cemented with their blood would remain standing upright, indestructible and unshakeable. But, nations, like men understand better the necessity to unite during great Cataclysms and great crisis than during the comforts of convalescence. Friendships which remain sacred through the hurricanes become neglected when the tempest has abated.

"Public opinion must react against the attempts of egotism, because they are blind and disastrous to the real and permanent interests of the nations concerned If union has saved the existence not only of France but of all the allies in general and each of them in particular, it is not possible that once our lives are safe it should become useless.

"As far as we are concerned we should consider as criminal any act or word which would tend to disturb or weaken such union. We have made and will continue to make all efforts to draw our policy closer to that of our allies and will always be prepared to seek with them such alleviations as concerted action may bring to their suffering.

"England, for instance, complains of long and painful unemployment. Why should not we have a most earnest desire to see England resume its entire economic activity? However, we merely allow ourselves to think that its government is mistaken in imagining that this unemployment is either a direct or indirect effect of the Ruhr occupation. While I was in London last year at this time, our soldiers were not in the Ruhr. Yet, there were in England and Scotland many more unemployed than to-day.

Trade Has Improved

"Just refer to the last commercial statistics published by the British government. They show that since our entry into the Ruhr, between January and the end of July, exports and imports from and to Great Britain have increased in tonnage value over those of the corresponding months of 1922. Moreover the transit service on imported goods for re-exportation, which is particularly interesting to British shipping, has increased 13.5 per cent., as compared with 1922.

"I do not conclude that England has profited by the Ruhr occupation as I should have wished and as she might have profited if she had been by our side in the Ruhr, but I have the right to say that if there are too many unemployed in England General Degoutte has nothing to do with it."

Concerning the reference in Lord Curzon's note to the occupation of the Ruhr being illegal M. Poincare said this really was an unhappy argument, especially when the text of the treaty of Versailles and the declarations made collectively by the Allies, including Great Britain, prior to January 11, 1923, recognized the right of the allies to occupy addition al territory as security for payment of reparations.

"Instead of engaging in controversies of this sort," the Premier continued, "we should better be advised to seek practical solutions of problems toward which no one may show lack of interest. Europe will recover its economic and moral equilibrium only on such a day as peace shall be established upon a solid basis and where justice, which placed its weapons in our arms during the war, will have its reign assured. Peace entails the loyal executions of treaties signed and justice exacts complete reparation for damages caused. France demands nothing else and England cannot desire anything different. Surely a way of agreeing together must be found."

M. Poincare ridiculed charges of Imperialism against France. According to innumerable statements which he personally had been receiving from friendly countries, especially from Great Britain, he said foreign public opinion now understood better the sincerity of France's intention.

IRISH ELECTIONS PROMISE TO BE GREAT CONTEST

Only Three Seats in 153 Are Uncontested—Three For Each Seat — Eighty Republicans in Field.

MUST MAKE DEPOSIT.

DUBLIN, Aug. 20.— (Canadian Press.)— The nominations for the Free State parliamentary elections furnish no surprises. On the average there are less than three candidates for each of the 153 seats, grouped into thirty constituencies.

The Republicans carried out their decision to increase their list of candidates, and these number more than eighty. Each candidate was required to deposit £100 but the Republicans did this seemingly without difficulty.

The only constituency uncontested is that of Trinity College, where the 3 present members, Sir James Craig, and Professors Alton and Thrift, are returned unopposed. There are only two instances of double candidatures, Professor John MacNeill, Minister of Education, standing for Clare as well as the National University and Dr. Michael Hayes, Speaker of the Dail, for both Dublin City South and the National University.

The Republicans put forward two candidates for the three National University seats, in Professor Stockley, one of the present members and Professor Hugh Ryan. Michael Collins' sister, Mrs. O'Driscoll, is a candidate for Dublin city north. She is an ardent supporter of the Free State.

Joseph McGrath, Minister of Labour, announced his intention of retiring from public life but under strong pressure from President Cosgrave finally consented to nomination for North Mayo in opposition to Patrick Ruttledge, Deputy of Eamon De Valera and now "acting president of the Republic."

In Waterford, Mrs. Cathal Brugha, widow of the Sinn Fein Minister of Defence, killed after the four courts fighting in 1921, is the only Republican candidate, considered to have a good chance of success. Major Redmond, son of the Irish constitutional leader, is also expected to secure an electoral quota in Waterford.

Nineteen candidates were nominated for the eight seats in Donegal, ten for the four seats in Cavat, and eighteen are contesting the Leitrim-Sligo constituency, of which six are government supporters, five Republicans, five farmers, one Laborite and one Independent. Louth has five nominees, including three members of the late Dail and Frank Aitken, former chief of staff of "The Irish Republican Army," under De Valera.

Kevin Barry's brother, Michael, opposes President Cosgrave in Kilkenny.

Austin Chamberlain Pleads For Caution

MANCHESTER, Eng., Aug. 20. —Canadian Press. — Addressing the members of the West Birmingham Unionist Association Saturday night, Austen Chamberlain, former Chancellor of the Exchequer, declared, "The Entente is hanging by a thread and any clumsy handling of the reparations question at this moment may snap that thread, and undo the work of the last twelve of fifteen years." He characterized the government's latest note to France as inconsistent, illogical and futile, and pleaded for caution in a situation which he said was fraught with peril for Great Britain, the Allies, Europe and the world.

"Germany is almost at the brink of a disaster and threatened with revolution," Mr. Chamberlain added, "she is in peril of starvation, because of the reckless finance in which she indulged, The Entente is in jeopardy and I plead for caution and foresight in saving it."

China Typhoon Takes Toll of Many Lives.

HONG KONG, August 20. Canadian Press. — More than one hundred persons were drowned and one hundred persons killed and injured ashore, and about fifty junks and sampans capsized during the typhoon at Macacon on Saturday.

Many persons were entombed when the houses collapsed.

Soldiers and firemen worked energetically to rescue the persons buried under the debris of the fallen houses. The floating plant of the Netherlands Harbor Works Company was not damaged, but the company's dredger Rotterdam, dragged anchor and grounded on a mud bank undamaged.

Trees in the public squares were uprooted and the roof was blown off the Catholic cemetery chapel.

French Reply Will Be Forwarded To-Morrow.

PARIS, Aug. 20. — (Canadian Press)—It is semi-officially announced that the note of the French government to Great Britain in reply to the recent communication of Lord Curzon, the British Foreign Minister, on the subject of reparations will be forwarded to London on Tuesday. It is added that the note will be published at the earliest on Wednesday.

EMIGRATION IS NOT FOSTERED BY COMMITTEE

Memorandum From the Liverpool Shippers Takes Stand Against Development of Industries in the Dominions.

DISCOURAGES LOANS.

LONDON, Aug. 20.— (Canadian Press.) — A memorandum by the committee which was appointed by the Chamber of Shipping and the Liverpool Steamship Owners' Association, in reply to questions addressed to the shipping industry, in connection with the imperial economic conference soon to convene, has been submitted to the board of trade.

Dealing with the question of whether the government should be encouraged to embark upon big emigration schemes, the memorandum says that the increasing manufacturing population in the Dominions which is determined to establish itself as a self-contained unit will tend to decrease the power of the dominions to export food and raw materials because it will increase the difficulties in Great Britain in exporting manufactures in exchange, owing to the direct loss of some of the country's best workers.

The benefits must also be seriously doubted, says the memorandum, so long as the Dominions cling to the belief that they can sell Great Britain all the food and raw materials they produce but refuse to accept freely British manufactures in exchange.

It is realized, continues the memorandum, that other considerations arise in regards to child emigration. The memorandum contends that under no circumstances should loans be made by his Majesty's government to the Dominions in connection with immigration schemes nor interest guaranteed on loans raised by the Dominions.

It is also urged that government enterprises should be put on an equal footing with private enterprises in all respects and that the governments of the Empire should be urged to abandon all shipping ventures.

Wa-Wa Hotel on Lake of Bays Fell Prey to Early Sunday Morning Fire — 250 Guests in Jeopardy.

EMPLOYEES TRAPPED.

HUNTSVILLE, Aug. 20.—(Canadian Press.) — Nine persons are dead, 23 are reported missing, many more are badly injured and the picturesque Wa-Wa Hotel, on Lake of Bays, the mecca of hundreds of Canadian and American tourists, is today a charred and blackened mass, the result of a fire which broke out in the hotel early Sunday morning. While the identity of nine victims has been established, the casualties, it is estimated, may be twice that number, as it is impossible at the present time to obtain any authentic list of those who perished. A number of the casualties occurred among help employed at the hotel, who had little chance of escape, so quickly did the fire spread.

Mr. C. G. Bowker, general manager central region of C.N.R., Toronto, occupied a suite in the hotel with his wife and children. He succeeded in getting the whole of his family out of the building. Mr. Bowker went back into the burning hotel, and it is believed that the youngest of his three daughters, Margaret, aged 14, detached herself from the family group in the darkness and in attempting to follow her father, lost her way in the corridor and was fatally burned. Among the dead are Mrs. James Alexander, 320 Roncesvalles Ave., Toronto; Mrs. Barrett Hamilton; Miss K. Roger, Cleveland, Ohio, and Annie Lee, an employee. Five girls were trapped in the cupola, where employees usually sleep, but their bodies were so badly burned that recognition is impossible. Phyllis Bernard, another employee, is reported missing, Kitty Carroll, New York, also an employee, is very seriously injured. Miss Annie Lee, of Toronto, who was in the cupola, jumped from the window for safety, but she was so seriously injured by the fall, that she died shortly afterward. Among the seriously injured are Miss Beulah Simpson and Mrs. Young, of Toronto, both of whom jumped from a window in a frantic effort to save their lives. The fire originated in the elevator shaft, near the baggage room and was first discovered by George Myron, the electrician, while an alarm was raised almost simultaneously by Dr. Taylor Henry and Dr. Shaver, of Toronto. There was a fire fighting system in the hotel, but owing to the rapid spread of the flames and the confusion which was necessarily created at such a time of the night, when practically all the guests and employees had retired, it was found impossible to bring it into full recognition. There were 197 guests and 60 employees in the hotel at the time of the fire. The building was a two-storey structure, with a cupola effect, which made a third storey, where the employees usually sleep. The guests made their escape in their night attire.

A First Survivor.

TORONTO, Aug. 20.—Almost the first survivor to reach Toronto was Mrs. A. Wesley Mason, wife of one of the factory managers of the T. Eaton Co., Ltd. Mrs. Mason, who had been staying at the hotel with a nurse, was brought to Toronto by motor by Charles Booth, second vice-president of the big departmental concern. Mrs. Mason had been in ill health, but with the aid of her nurse, was able to leave the hotel when the alarm was given. With other survivors she waded through the waters of the lake to a nearby point, where many of the guests took refuge. Mr. Mason said that his wife wished to pay tribute to the manner in which she and many others had been treated by the management of a neighboring hotel, the Glenmount hotel. "They were offered food, clothing, everything," said Mr. Mason. "The spirit of those who were in a position to assist was, I am told by Mrs. Mason, the finest imaginable."

Generous Aid.

Boats from the Bigwin Hotel, across the lake, worked in carrying the survivors to that place, men and women being provided with blankets and other temporary clothing to protect them from the cool night air. So generous was the subsequent response for clothing that when the special train left for Toronto, all the survivors were well cared for and were as comfortable as could be made possible under such circumstances.

Transport Workers in Favor of a Big Union.

LONDON, Aug. 20.—(Canadian Press Cable)—Enthusiastic speeches in favor of one big transport union were made at the joint conference of transport workers and the federation of the national union of railway men Saturday. It was stated that negotiations for an amalgamations had reached an advanced stage.

A resolution was unanimously adopted that the two organizations should immediately tackle the problem of getting into the fold the non-unionist workers in the railways and other transport services.

CITY ACCOUNTS WIPED OUT BY BANK FAILURE

Fernie Hard Hit By Home Bank Failure — Second Largest Branch in Canada.

DEPOSIT OFFERED.

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., Aug. 20 — Canadian Press. — Failure of the Home Bank of Canada has been a severe blow to Fernie, according to a special to the Herald, as the Fernie Branch is said to be the second largest of the institution's branches in Canada.

The local branch had as depositors many of the largest merchants in the city.

The City of Fernie carried its account here, and has not a cent today, it is understood, to carry on the business of the corporation; the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co., also carried its account at the Home Bank here, while the bank was also a favorite with the coal miners, and many large deposits were carried by them in the savings department.

Shareholders in Fernie hold about $20,000 in Home Bank shares.

VANCOUVER, B. C. Aug. 20. — Small knots of people gathered about the doors of the Home Bank on Saturday morning, and read the posted notice of the suspension of payment. Some knocked at the door but the clerk on duty paid no attention. Most of the men appeared to be of the artisan or small business class.

CALGARY, Alta., Aug. 20. — The branch of the Home Bank of Canada was the centre of many inquiries on Saturday, but R. B. Burland, the local manager, had no information to give to the anxious depositors except that the bank had suspended payment and that he had no idea how long the process of liquidation would take. Little knots of depositors gathered around the branch at the usual opening hour, and not a few pathetic scenes were enacted. Numerous telephone calls were received and to all was given the same answer. The head of a

GUNMEN STAGED BOLD ROBBERY NEAR DETROIT 1 KILLED AND 5 INJURED

Seven Bandits Held Up Road-house Patrons and Escaped With Several Thousand Dollars.

SHOT POLICEMAN.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 20. — (Canadian Press.)— Seven gunmen early yesterday held up the Allendale Inn, at Warren and Snyder streets, lined up about 170 persons at the inn, and obtained money and jewelry valued at several thousand dollars. Five persons, including one woman, were shot and seriously injured.

The gunmen escaped in an automobile. A short time later an automobile containing seven men, believed to be the same ones who held up the Inn, was seen in Monroe, about 40 miles southwest of here. The night policeman in Monroe approached the automobile and one of the persons in the machine shot and killed him.

Two of the gunmen stayed outside the roadhouse while three entered from the front door and two from the back. As soon as the men were inside the door they all began firing through the crowded dance hall. Women screamed and fainted. The bandits lined the waiters up first. One man guarded the waiters while two went from table to table through the crowds.

Another bandit guarded the front door while the fifth guarded the rear. All of the men inside the road house were heavily armed and those on guard showed two guns. They stripped jewelry from the women and money from the pockets of the men. In their haste the gunmen searching the guests tore diamonds from rings and stickpins with their teeth.

The Injured.

The identified injured guests at the road house are:

George D. Wilson, prominent club man and vice-president C. R. Wilson Body Company of Pontiac, Mich., shot in the right shoulder.

Joseph L. Weber, Detroit, shot in the right knee.

Miss Lucile Leroy, Detroit, shot in the right arm.

Two other men suffered injuries, but were removed before police officers arrived.

The policeman killed at Monroe, was Oscar Reinhardt, 30, a war veteran. He died at a hospital two hours later, without regaining consciousness.

Whether an argument at the road house between two women diners that preceded the entrance of the gunmen was a part of the hold-up plan, is being investigated by police. Just before the bandits appeared, a woman diner rushed on to the dance floor and began a heated argument with a woman dancer, whom she accused of paying too much attention to her escort.

At the height of the argument, when the attention of the patrons was centred on the two women, the bandits entered. A volley of shot were fired into the ceiling announcing the presence of the robbers. Then, under cover of pistols, one man went to the cash register and emptied it.

Youth Brandished Guns.

All of the men were heavily armed and a boy, said to have been not more than 19 years, brandished two revolvers over the crowd while his companion worked.

"Keep 'em up," he called over and over in a sing-song tone, firing occasionally when any of the guests spoke or moved.

At one table a bandit attempted to wrest a ring from a woman's finger. The ring stuck and he pulled the diamond from its setting with his teeth. The woman fainted.

One guest offered to release the clasp holding a diamond pin. "Haven't got time," snapped the gunman, as he jerked the pin loose with his teeth while branishing a pistol in his right hand after the bandits departed, more than a dozen guests had torn shirt fronts showing where diamond pins had been jerked from them.

All of the thugs carried a pistol in each hand when they entered, according to those in the road house and one particularly deft man carried two pistols in his right hand while he searched the guests. Small change, keys and other valueless articles found in the pockets of the men were thrown on the table, the bandits taking only jewelry and bills.

As the bandits withdrew one man began telling what he would have done had he a gun. One of the bandits turned and fired two shots toward the crowd. One of them hit Miss Leory in the arm.

When the gunmen left, tables were overturned, glasses, china and various liquids were strewn over the floor.

7,000 SPECTATORS SAW GALT BEATEN BY GUELPH

GALT, Ont., August 20. Canadian Press. — Before the largest crowd that has ever witnessed an amateur ball game in Western Ontario, if not in Ontario, estimated at 7000, with exactly 5881 paid admissions at the gate, the Terriers were beaten in a five inning contest, called on account of the rain, on Saturday, by the Guelph Leafs, 6-2.

The play-off for the inter-county title is now tied with the third and deciding game to be played at Riverside Park, Preston, on Wednesday afternoon.

ENFORCE REGULATIONS RE GRADING OF FRUIT

OTTAWA, Aug. 18.—(Canadian Press)—Officials of the fruit branch Federal Department of Agriculture have announced their intention of seeing that regulations respecting packing and grading of fruit are rigirly enforced. They draw attention to recent conviction of Toronto pedlar who was proceeded against by vegetable inspector for Western Ontario. It was shown at trial that while apples on face of barrel shipped by this man were good fruit below top layer was inferior. A fine of $25 was imposed.

SUCCESSFUL WEEK CONNAUGHT RANGES

Every Province Was Well Represented at Biggest Shooting Event of the Dominion — $12,000 in Prizes.

CONNAUGHT RANGES Aug. 20 —Canadian Press. — With the presentation of trophy cups, shields, medallions, medals and cash prizes, the 46th annual prize meeting of the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association closed a very successful week's competion here on Saturday afternoon. Cash prizes amounting to $12,000 were distributed and the trophies were packed up to be expressed to the teams and the individual marksmen. Every province of the Dominion was represented at this year's meeting and each province got its percentage of the trophies. The two new medals for competition this year namely, the King's medal and the Bostock memorial went to the east and the west respectively. The king's medal, won by R.S.M., J. J. Goodhouse, goes to Ottawa, while the Bostock medal goes to Edmonton, with its winner, Sergt. J. A. Bowen.

The final checking up of all the aggregates was not completed until yesterday and necessitated a few minor changes in the Bisley aggregate. Major J. Jeffrey, Kingston, is placed on the 22nd place instead of 24th, with Sert. P. Armstrong, of Hamilton, R.S.M., J. J. Goodhouse, Ottawa, Capt. R. S. Cross, Ottawa, Sergt. A. F. B. Wilson, Ottawa, Major F. Richardson, Victoria, and Lieut. H. E. Rowlands, Hamilton, following. Lieut. F. W. Huggins, Toronto, enters in the 31st place ahead of Lieut.-Col. C. D. Spittal, Winnipeg.

In the Helmer memorial competition for snapshooting, the western marksmen scored heavy, capturing the trophy with its $20 cash prize, and the second prize of $15. Capt. F. R. Martin, Calgary, winner of the trophy, tied with Lieut. T. Spittal, Winnipeg, on scores but won out by his consistent shooting.

The eastern shots while not as good as their western competitors on the snapshooting, proved to be their masters in the rapid fire competition for the Sherwood match.

Private G. Dudley, Toronto, made 24 points out of a possible 25 in the match, which necessitated the firing of five shots at a distance of 500 yards within 45 seconds. Capt. G. Crichton, also of Toronto, came second in the competition, with a score of 23 points.

The bronze medal for the miniature rifle team championship, went to the Twelfth York Rangers, Toronto, with an agregate score of 1880 points, a lead of over 20 marks over the headquarters' team of Toronto Military District, who came in with 1856. The Irish Rifles team came in third with 1842.

OBITUARY

EMMA LILLIAN FINNIE..

The death occurred yesterday at Nicholls Hospital, of Miss Emma Lillian Finnie, after a lingering illness etxending over the past three years. The deceased, who was twenty-one years of age, was pre-deceased by her father, John Finnie, of Bailieboro, on Monday 10th, 1922. She was born in South Monaghan, and was a member of the Methodist church.

GIRL WAS TAKEN THE LAD SAVED

The Tragedy of Youth in the Wa-Wa Hotel Fire Pathetically Illustrated —Danced Last Dance.

HUNTSVILLE, Aug. 20.—(Canadian Press.)— "I danced the last dance with Marjorie Bowker on Saturday night." Tragedy that sometimes so quickly follows the joy of youth, was never more strikingly illustrated than in the sentence above, brokenly uttered by George Radcliffe, a fifteen year old Toronto boy, who was one of the survivors of the fire which destroyed the Wa-Wa summer hotel on Lake of Bays early Sunday morning. Marjorie was just fourteen. She was the daughter of C. G. Bowker, manager of the central region of the Canadian National Railways. Her father got her out with the rest of the family to safety. Then Mr. Bowker went to the assistance of others. Possibly his young daughter had a similar irresistible impulse or perhaps she was confused in the distressing situation which followed, with the unfortunate people trapped in the top storey, leaping to the ground to their death. Anyway the girl went back into the burning building and was not again seen alive. One story says that she missed her mother and went back to make sure she had been aroused. The girl was taken, the lad was left.

TEN PERSONS LOST WHEN LAUNCH SANK

Entire Family Drowned in Waters of Mississippi— Mysterious Accident.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 20. — (Canadian Press.)—Ten persons, including all the members of one family, were drowned last night, when a thirty-foot gasoline launch mysteriously sank in the Mississippi river, near South St. Paul.

Not a passenger of the launch survived. The catastrophe occurred as a party of picnickers were returning to the Twin Cities from Pine Bend.

To Be Dainty

Combat that dingy film on teeth

Wherever you go now you see glistening teeth. They are teeth you envy, maybe. Then make this test we offer. Learn how people get them.

Millions are brushing teeth in a new way now. They are combating film. You will be amazed when you see what this new method means.

Why teeth grow dim

You feel on teeth a viscous film. Much of it resists the tooth brush, clings and stays.

Soon that film discolors. Then it forms dingy coats, and white teeth lose their luster.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. It breeds millions of germs, and they, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Very few people who brush teeth in old ways escape those film-caused troubles.

Now a better way

Dental science, after long research, has found effective ways to fight film. One acts to disintegrate the film at all stages of formation. The other removes it without harmful scouring. A new-type tooth paste has been created to apply those methods daily. The name is Pepsodent. Now leading dentists the world over advise it, and careful people of some 50 nations use it every day.

Protect the Enamel

Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

Gentle protections

Pepsodent also multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. It multiplies the starch digestant in saliva. Those are there to fight acids and starch deposits. Pepsodent, with every use, gives them manifold effect.

In these natural and gentle ways, Pepsodent gives new protection to the teeth, without any harshness, without harmful grit.

Learn now what Pepsodent means to you. Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

You will be amazed and delighted. You will know how clean teeth look and feel. Cut out coupon now.

HE WAS LOYAL TO LABOUR.

The death of James Dodds is a loss to organized labour in Peterborough. For several terms he was the Secretary of the Trades and Labour Council, to which he was a delegate from the Stationary and Hoisting Engineers' Union.

As a trades unionist he was a moderate. He was solicitous for the cause of labour, but he realized that there was usually more than one aspect to questions to which some of his colleagues could discern but one, and his views and counsel wre invariably wise and broad.

Mr. Dodds believed that the Labour Council should co-operate as far as possible with other elements of the community, and that labour in this country should not as a unit align itself with any political party. Within the organization, which he loyally served, he was a constitutionalist; and while he held that the Trades Council should be primarily occupied with its own affairs, he believed it could exercise a helpful and constructive influence in the general advancement of Peterborough.

IF THE BAND STOPPED PLAYING.

If people chatter at a band concert the fault lies either with the band or the people.

Music or manners are wanting.

Courtesy demands silence from a parlour audience whether or not they enjoy the voluntary entertainment, and public concert hall crowds are usually exemplary in their attentiveness.

Why, then, should this disposition of politeness be left at home on the evenings when the band plays in the park? Presumably the music deserves attention, otherwise the restless, noisy disturbers would be left in sole possession of the park for as long as the band was content with their indifference and impoliteness.

A tempehamental conductor would excusably resent the distraction and discourtesy of such a crowd, and a band that was confident of its ability, that had taken pains with its practices and felt that it had a message, an interpretation for musicians, might adopt the extreme recourse of packing up and going home.

It might prove a salutory lesson, and should certainly bolster the self-respect of the band.

The patter chorus and the gay paraders could have the show all to themselves.

LET THE MINERS BEWARE.

In the rapidity with which the larger consumers of fuel, here and elsewhere, are turning from coal to oil may be found, perhaps, at least a partial explanation of the change in tone which now marks the negotiations between the miners and their employers. They have noted the discovery by an appreciable part of the public that for many of the purposes for which coal has been used there are available substitutes—that for those purposes, in other words, coal is a convenience, not a necessary. Experience may prove, indeed, that there is little or nothing even of inconvenience in the change, and the present price of fuel oil suggests the possibility of saving money by resort to it.

Neither the miners nor the operators want the market for the product of their combined labors spoiled or even seriously injured, and both have been told with emphasis of late that if they do not stop quarreling and prevent the recurrence of intolerable conditions, the hitherto neglected third party to their controversies will assert its powers to their very material injury.

The oil men, too, are looking eagerly for new buyers of petroleum in its various forms, for too many wells have been drilled and they are flowing too fast for present demands. For the moment, at least, several elements in the situation are favorable to the fuel consumers, and, instead of pleading for mercy—to be saved from freezing to death—they are proceeding to make a rather good best of a case suddenly found to be by no means desperate.

As a result the miners and the operators are looking toward Sept. 1 with about as much apprehension as do their customers, perhaps even with a little more. —New York Times.

THE MASTER JOY.

We shall not travel by the road we make,
Ere, day by day, the sound of many feet
Is heard upon the stones that now we break;
We shall come to where the cross-roads meet.

For them the shade of trees that now we plant,
The safe, smooth journey, and the final goal,
Yea, birthright in the Land of Covereaset—
For us day labor: travail of the soul.

And yet the road is ours as never theirs!
Is not one joy on us alone bestowed?
For us the Master Joy, O Pioneer:
We shall not travel, but we make the road.

—Friedlander.

THE "BLUE-SKY" LAW.

It is reported that the Provincial Government is considering whether it should proclaim the Blue-Sky Law passed during the last session to be in force on the first of September, and that there is every likelihood that the Government will decide against this. If the Government should delay the enforcement of the Act, its doing so would meet with much approval, for there is no doubt that it requires a great deal more consideration, as Blue-Sky Laws have not been the success in the States which it was anticipated they would be. But not only that, the Act met with great opposition in the House, where during the debate upon it Premier Ferguson voiced a very general opinion that no Act is capable of protecting "fools against their own folly."

The objections raised to the Act were that it would interfere with legitimate speculative undertakings, and that its principal provision was one which it would be found impossible to carry out. This was that a securities commissioner should be appointed to examine all offerings of stock for sale, and to stop all sales of securities in enterprises which he deemed fraudulent. It was pointed out that no man could possibly do that, as clever promoters would quickly find loop-holes to escape through, while there was the certainty almost that people would imagine those securities passed by the commissioner bore the guarantee of the Governmnt, and that if any loss occurred, the Government would have to make it good. It can be readily understood, too, how quickly sharp promoters would use such words as "Passed by the Government" on their prospectuses in order to boost the sales of their stock.

There are already many existing laws regarding the sale of stocks, and it is more than probable that, if these were properly enforced, there would be no need for a Blue-Sky Law, though we might suggest that a study of the Company Laws of Great Britain would prompt some improvements, especially as regards the information to be given compulsorily in prospectuses. Some Canadian prospectuses which we have seen have simply been invitations to buy a pig in a poke, and no one except a fool in his folly would invest a cent in the undertakings.

After all it is the human element which governs this matter. This point was exceedingly well brought out in an article recently in the Financial Post by Mr. S. O. Rice, the educational director of the Investment Banking Association of America, giving nine reasons why people buy useless stock. He said: "Imagination, egotism and carelessness are foremost in the nine main reasons why people buy worthless securities. Dishonest greed, honest greed ignorance a belief that the law is a personal guardian and a notion that all crooks bear visible earmarks of crookedness are five more reasons. The ninth reason is fraud, which would be practically non-existent if the other eight reasons did not make it possible."

Mr. Rice went on to explain these nine points admirably and conclusively; and finally said that there is only one way to eliminate the nine reasons for buying worthless securities, and that is to consult an honest dealer, just as you consult a reputable physician, lawyer or engineer when in need of expert advice. We agree with him.—Kingston Standard.

A PROBLEM OF PULPWOOD.

Unrestricted shipment of Canadian pulpwood to the United States amounted in June, according to Government figures, to an increase of 150 per cent.

So rapid is this natural and national resource being depleted that close observers of the industry are making the alarming prediction that within five years, at the present rate of cutting and losses from forest fires, Canada will be forced to import newsprint at a high price.

Paper mills in the United States, with timber limits in their own country and in Canada, are reported to have shut down operations in their own woods and to be getting all their pulp supplies from Canada. And even more serious have been our tremendous losses from fire this year.

More effective measures of forest patrol and fire prevention should be immediately adopted by the departments that have control of our timber resources. Every effort should be made to check the waste of our forest wealth from natural causes. The existing system and methods have proved deplorably inadequate, resulting in enormous losses to this country.

With respect to the exportation of pulpwood, it is being urged that the Dominion Government should put into effect at once the embargo on pulpwood which was authorized in the Export Bill passed on June 26th. Let Canadian pulpwood be manufactured into paper in Canadian mills, instead of shipping two million cords a year to be manufactured in mills in the United States, say the advocates of the embargo.

Develop our raw product into the finished article in our country. It would yield us $100,000,000 a year as newsprint, instead of the comparatively small amount as exported pulpwood, and give employment to 11,000 operatives.

The proposed embargo would seriously affect powerful interests in the United States with possible reaction against Canadian consumers of commodities, such as coal, for which we have been dependent upon United States supplies. Conservation of our forest reserves suggests, at the very least, that they should not be exploited to meet the full requirements of United States newsprint consumers.

Between the extremes of prohibiting the export of pulpwood on the one hand and shipments increased to 150 per cent as in June on the other, there may be a medium course of restricted exportation which would not seriously interfere with both Canadian and United States interests, while preventing extreme depletion of our forests and at the same time encouraging, to a greater extent, Canadian manufacture of newsprint.

PRICES LOWERED FIRST TIME IN TEN LONG YEARS.

Overproduction is Believed to be Prime Reason For Decline in Gasoline Charges in the United States.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—For the first time in nearly 10 years motorists are coming to know—in some states—the meaning of "cheap gasoline."

Back in 1915, when consumption was not so great because the number of autos in use was decidedly less than now, gas sold for 11 cents in New Jersey, 15 cents in Massachusetts, and even 10 cents in Illinois and other places.

That, however, was held to be the "market" price at that time, and the Federal Trade Commission, in a ruling, declared its opinion that Standard Oil Companies virtually fixed the price for the entire country.

Followed then a period, especially after the war, when money was plentiful and motor car prices were not beyond the reach of the average man. The demand for gasoline shot up. So did the price. And as a result, producers and others seeking fortunes, rushed to the oil fields of Texas, Oklahoma and California and a period of drilling set in unequalled in history.

This frenzy was at its peak in the summer of 1921. Production records were smashed. In July of that year 569,711,415 gallons of gasoline were produced, an increase of 44,000,000 gallons over the previous month.

But producers didn't stop there. More wells were drilled, and a short time ago, despite the heavy demand for gas, the supply was greater still. Governor McMaster of South Dakota bought much of this "overproduction" and sold it to the public at 16 cents. Then things started for fair.

Oklahoma leads in production of petroleum. California and Texas are tied for second honors.

The United States produces and uses unbelievable quantities of gasoline. In 1922, when consumption reached a peak, the wholesale value of gas consumed by domestic and export sources was approximately $1,160,000,000.

CHICAGO WHEAT.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19— Although wheat had an upward tendency at first Saturday in sympathy with the New York stock market and with an unexpected advance at Liverpool, buying power later gave out, and with prospects of enlarged receipts here next week, the close was heavy at 1-8 to 3-8 net decline, Sept. 99 1-2 to 99 1-2 to 5-8 and December 103 5-8. Corn finished unchanged to 3-8 higher, oats 1-8 to 3-8 down and provisions unchanged to 7 cents up.

CASH GRAIN.

MONTREAL, Aug. 20.— (Canadian Press.)—There was not much business in Saturday's short session of the local grain market. Trading in flour continues unchanged. Mill feed is scarce with a very firm tone. Prices for baled hay are without change. There was little new in the egg market. Prices for butter and cheese are very firm.

ARTIFICIAL DRYING OF HAY IN OLD COUNTRY

LONDON, Aug. 18.—(Associated Press).—Making hay while the sun shines is out of date. Hay is now being grown in many parts of England by methods over which the weather clerk has no control.

In these advanced sections, the gross is gathered, perhaps in a damp state, as soon as cut and crammed into a rick in the stack yard.

An electric fan does the rest.

When the rick is built a metal cylinder is inserted so that an air cavity is formed. This cavity will serve a 30-ton rick to insure the safety of the curing and cooling process. A fan placed in the cavity dries out the grass and keeps it from rotting.

It is claimed that not only are the farmers saved the possible loss of their crops through bad weather, but analysis shows that hay dried in the rick has a higher percentage of albuminoids and carbo-hydrates, and therefore increased feeding value

The new method has been tried and approved by the Ministry of Agriculture and the ricks are appearing in all sections of England and Scotland.

BIBLES TO PRESERVE DIALECTS OF INDIANS

CHICAGO, Aug. 18.—(Associated Press).—For more than 25 years Miss C. A. Smith, curator of the E. W. Ayer collection of Americana at the Newberry library here, has been collecting Indian Bibles, and today her shelves contain the most complete record in the world of attempts to christianize the American Indian.

The catalogue contains Bibles, or parts of them, in 56 aboriginal languages, including Elliott's Indian Bible, published in the seventeenth century when the Puritans first established missionary contact with the New England redmen. There are Bibles, too, in Choctaw, Cree, Cherokee, Aztec, Chippewa Mohawk and Penobscot. Works used by missionaries in the language of the Eskimos of Labrador and Greenland and another translated into the language of the Aleutian Islands also are in the collection.

After the Spanish American war, E. W. Ayer, who spent 40 years gathering together his library of American lore, and who presented his books to the library, began collecting the Biblical literature which had been translated into Philippine and Hawaian dialects like Ilocano, Tagalog, Tsimshian, Tukuthkutchin and other minor tongues.

Since many of the languages have been forgotten, adding to the collection is said to be a difficult matter. A book was obtained in Paris, said to be a Hawaiian testament, with the euphonious name of "Buke A Moramona" by Geogi Pukuniaki. The translator's name when deciphered meant George Make-a-Big-Noise. Miss Smith afterward discovered she had bought the Book of Mormon and that the translator's real name was George Cannon.

LOVE IN PENNSYLVANIA SCORNS A ROYAL DECREE

BUCHAREST, Aug. 18.—(Associated Press).—Queen Marie tells a delightful story about her youngest daughter, Princess Ileana, in which an American doughboy living in Pennsylvania figures.

The former Yankee soldier, who had served on the western front in France, returned to his father's farm in a little town near Philadelphia, where he saw photographs of the little princess with her pet dog in the American Sunday pictorial supplements. Enamoured of her smile and girlish beauty, the doughboy wrote the princess asking her to correspond with him, and saying if she would become his girl he would "never take any other girl to the movies."

The princess, who is just past 14 and surpassingly pretty, replied to the Yankee soldier boy, enclosing her photograph and saying she had heard a lot about the gallantry of the American soldiers and would be delighted to hear from him again. The doughboy replied expressing his renewed admiration for Europe's prettiest princess, and a wish to see her in real life. Ileana was about to acknowledge his letter when her mother, Queen Marie, discovered the correspondence and cautioned her that she must not raise false hopes in the heart of her youthful admirer. She ceased her letters regretfully, but the letters from the doughboy have continued to this day.

In relating the story the queen took occasion to say that the frequent reports about the engagement of Ileana to King Boris of Bulgaria were silly fabrications, and she cited the doughboy story as illustrating the childlike simplicity of Ileana and her unpreparedness for marriage.

CHURCH PAYS A FINE IMPOSED BY HENRY VIII

LONDON, Aug. 18.—(Associated Press).—The record for a long distance fine appears to belong to the office of vicar of the Church of Our Lady of Willesden, which ancient edifice stands in one of London's suburbs, for that personage is required to pay an annual contribution of one pound two shilling and a sixpence to the King, and he has been paying it for almost 400 years.

This fine was imposed after the Reformation by Henry VIII. on the medieval vicar because he allowed pilgrims to come to his church and bathe their eyes in the water of a well which is supposed to contain curative properties. The pilgrims in gratitude often left sums of money, which aroused Henry's ire, and the vicar escaped the stake only by handing all the money thus collected over to Henry, and agreeing to pay an annual fine, and vesting his sins on his successors.

Although Henry instituted many such gentle methods of increasing the kingly exchequer, this is the only instance of the fine still being paid.

The well on the church property still attracts many pilgrims who come to bathe their eyes with the miraculous waters, many of whom claim to have been cured thereby.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Monthly Meeting Seymour West Women's Institute--Ladies' Aid Social—Personal Mention.

THE LATE VICTOR MASSON.

Norman Masson, who resides in the Burnbrae district, has received word of the death of his son, Lieut. Victor Masson, who was teaching school in Edmonton. It was impossible to bring the remains home for burial and the funeral was held at Edmonton Sunday, the deceased being interred with full military honours.

The late Lieut. Masson, who taught school in this district before going West, was attending the Normal in Peterboro when the war broke out. He offered his services but was at first rejected by the examining board of physicians on account of physical disability. He persisted, however, and finally pased his examination. He rose to the rank of lieutenant, and did valuable recruiting work in Campbellford and Hastings before going overseas.

While in Europe the deceased was operated upon for appendicitis, and never regained his former health. His death however was a surprise to his friends here as no word had been received of his illness, and the direct cause of his death is yet unknown to them.

The deceased before going West was married to a young lady whose home was in Brockville, and she with two children survive him.

The surviving relatives here, are the father and four sisters. Mrs. William White of Roslin, Mrs. J. H. Douglas, whose husband is the Presbyterian Minister at Kemble, Mrs. James Nelson of Burnbrae and Mrs. William Twigg.

Cheese Brings 20 7-16c.

The price paid for cheese at the meeting of the Board held on Saturday afternoon was 20 7-16c, an increase of 1 14-16 over the high bid two weeks ago. The first offer was 20¼, made by Thompson, the other buyers present being Cook, Ivey and Fitzgerald. The latter's selections were Crow Bay, Stanwood, Trent Valley, West Seymour and Woodlands; Cook took Brae, Empire, Kimberley and Prince of Wales, and Ivey I.X.L., Meyersburg and New Model.

The number of boxes boarded was 567, the two weeks' output of each of the factories being as follows: Brae 50, Crow Bay 30, Empire 57, I.X.L., 40, Kimberley 65, Meyersburg 37, New Model 26, Prince of Wales 58, Stanwood 40, Trent Valley 39, West Seymonr 50, Woodlands 75.

The next meeting will be held at 3 o'clock on Saturday afternoon, 1st of September.

F. D. Davis, of Milwaukee, paid a flying visit to Campbellford Saturday, arriving on the morning train from Peterborough and leaving in the afternoon for the east. Forty-two years ago, when Mr. Davis was a boy of 10, he left Campbellford with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Davis, for the United Sttaes, and Saturday's visit was the first he has made to the place of his birth. He has a clear recollection of what the place looked like when he left it, and on Saturday he said that all the old familiar objects had disappeared. Nothing looked natural but the river.

Mr. Davis says that the most remarkable improvement made in Campbellford has been the power development. He wonders why this has not been even greater and why a district so rich in electrical energy has not a radial railway connecting it with outside points.

During his brief stay in town Mr. David was the guest of J. T. Adams, whose uncle, the late David Adams, at one time proprietor of the Queen's Hotel, was married to an aunt of Mr. Davis.

Improvements at St. Mary's.

The old wooden walk and steps, leading to the entrances to St. Mary's church, which had been worn thin by the feet of the thousands of worshippers that have passed over it since the edifice was put up, have been replaced by solid concrete, that is warranted to stand the strain for years to come. The new steps add greatly to the appearance of the building and to that of the neighborhood. They were completed Saturday, the work having been in progress for weeks and were used for the first time at the various services Sunday.

A. E. Caddy, the well known engineer, prepared the plans. The lowest bidder for the work was T. A. Brown, who has the contract for the erection of the new High school, where he has a cement outfit in operation. Mr. Brown was awarded the contract and the work was superintended by his engineer, Charles Hayes, who is engaged on the High school building.

The improvements involved the outlay of several hundred dollars. The forms were put in by Henry Dunn and the cement work was under the care of Bert Nayler and Harry Smith. A large amount of steel was required to reinforce the concrete. The new steps extend across the full width of the building, 57 feet. The platform varies in width from 7 to 10 feet, according to the entrance, the main doors of the church being set in some distance. There are seven steps from the bottom to the platform, each step being 6 1-2 inches high and 14 inches in width. From the bottom of the steps to the sidewalk on Centre street, a cement walk 13 1-2 feet wide has been put in and a narrower walk of the same material has been continued from the front of the church to the entrance to the vestry.

When the building material is removed the front yard will be set in order so that St. Mary's will present an appearance that cannot fail to attract the notice of all who pass that way.

ROMAN ALTAR FOUND.

LONDON, Aug. 18.—(Associated Press)—Used for years as a jumping block in childrens' games, a large white square stone three feet high, near Kingston Road, has been indentified as a Roman altar, 2,000 years old.

The antiquarian, Doctor W. H. Kesteven, who made the discovery says it is like all early Roman altars, and the depression on top shows where the offerings for the gods were placed. Carved figures, supposed to represent prists, can still be seen on one side.

Dr. Beath was born on his father's farm near Whitby, in 1867. He was the youngest son of a family of nine, and was educated at the Oshawa High School, and the University of Toronto, taking his degree in medicine there in 1889.

BURNBRAE CHURCH HELD ANNIVERSARY SERVICES

'Christ Was a Good Sport,' Declared Rev. Dr. Dyde, Special Preacher, to Big Congregation.

PASTOR'S RECORD.

CAMPBELLFORD, August 20.—Christ was a good sport, according to Rev. Dr. Dyde, Principal of the Theological Department of Queen's University ,who preached the anniversary services on Sunday in the Burnbrae Presbyterian Church. A real sport, according to the Doctor's standard—one who sets the game and the object of the game above himself. As he played the game of life Christ reckoned the service as of greater account than himself. He put His duty above all else no matter what the black gate ahead of Him and we may be thankful to-day if anyone thinks we are worth while to follow Him.

The attendance at both services was large ,the church being filled to capacity in the evening. A number of residents of Campbellford motored out to Burnbrae to hear the distinguished preacher. The ladies of the congregation had made the interior of the church bright with flowers.

A special musical programme was rendered by a choir of 25 voices, Miss Lottie Thain acting as organist. The musical programme consisted of a number of anthems and a solo by Mrs. Charles Milne, one of the favourite singers of the district

The church at Burnbrae is the parent of all the Presbyterian churches in the district. It was founded by the late Rev. Dr. Neill, who helped to clear up the lot on which the handsome building now stands, and who was the faithful and honoured pastor for nearly half a century. From Burnbrae other churches were formed and nurtured by the mother church until the new congregations were able to walk alone.

A Human Interest Sermon.

Unlike so many teachers in religious institutions, Dr Dyde does not preach on theological issues. His discourse last night teemed with human interest and with kindly counsel for those who are playing the great game of life. He emphasised the human rather than the divine element in Christ's nature in order to crown Him with all the greater honour for His victory over temptation and for the unflinching courage with which He faced every duty no matter what the consequence to Himself.

The text chosen by Dr. Dyde was a clause of the 51st verse of the 9th chapter of Luke, "He set his face steadfastly to go to Jerusalem."

Danger confronted Him from the moment He set out on that journey, and whether He knew or only surmised that danger, He faced it bravely. He was tempted to stay in safety with His friends in Galilee, but He resisted the temptation because duty called Him.

Dr. Dyde believes that Christ knew what temptation was and that there is no ground to think that in this respect He was different from other men The temptation that Satan held out to Him on the mountain was the same as that from which we ask to be saved when we repeat the Lord's Prayer. One reason why Christ is the Saviour of mankind is that He endured temptation and so knew more about the history of Pal-knows all about it.

Jerusalem was dear to Him. He estine than we know the history of Canada, more about the public men than we know of the fathers of Confederation. He knew the Old Testament, the law and the prophets better than we know the multiplication table or anything else.

Ambition of James and John.

When James and John on the way to Jerusalem asked that one should sit on His right and the other on His left hand when He came into His kingdom they believed that Christ was the Messiah and that He would deliver the Jews from slavery to the Romans. The disciples had been travelling with Him around the country. Christ had no automobile in which to go from place to place, no horse to take Him around; His feet were dusty from walking by the roadside. He had no place to lay His head and very often did not know where He was to lodge for the night, and yet His followers were convinced that He was only wearing a cloak and that He would tear it off and reveal Himself in His true greatness as the temporal Saviour of the country of His birth, and that He would sit in state as the ruler of the people. What time more opportune for this manifestation than when the Jews were gathered from all quarters in Jerusalem for the Passover?

Jesus did not rebuke James or John, although He knew that they were wrong. He corrected without criticising them. Dr. Dyde's deduction from this was the thought that the more we criticise other people the smaller we are ourselves.

The Gentiles idea of greatness is to rule, but Christ's teaching was that there are in every man and woman the seeds of greatness, and that true greatness lies in the ability to win one's way into the hearts and souls of people Feeding the hungry, clothing the naked, caring for the sick, visiting those who are in prison was shown by Christ to be the highest service that could be rendered humanity. Life should be based on kindness, mercy, and brotherly affection.

After referring to the Saviour as a true sport, one who played the game for itself and not for His own glory, the preacher held Him up as a worthy leader for all to follow, concluding his address with the following words:

Young men, you may take it from me, an old man, that this great game of life is worth while. Play it fairly and follow your Leader."

The board of managers asked for a special collection of $500, and of this amount $443 was contributed at the morning service. The collection in the evening would swell the total to a sum greater than the board asked for.

business house was told the same story as the anxicus mother who called up to find out what had happened to the two savings acounts of her small sons. One had $26 and the other $24.

MONTREAL, August 20. Canadian Press. — Little knots of business men and a fairly good sprinkling of office boys of the financial district gathered in front of the Montreal head office of the Home Bank on St. James street during the course of Saturday morning and discussed the situation. They were not a very serious crowd and it was clearly evident that the majority of them were not affected by the neatly printed card on the door of the bank premises with "payments suspended, bank closed until further notice," in three parallel horizontal lines.

A good deal of hardship was imposed on a number of wage earners whose firms held current accounts with the Home Bank. Some of them had to forego their weekly pay until the heads of their firms had returned from week-end holidays.

About 30 persons gathered around the doors of the east end branch of the Home branch on Saturday morning. There was no disorder of any kind. Much amusement was caused when a man walked up with the intention of making a deposit of $1200. He said that he had made a deposit of $700 on Friday, and for a time could not understand why he should not be able to add the $1200 to it.

REVIVE ANCIENT ACT.

NORWICH, Norfolk, Aug. 18.—(Associated Press)—Another of England's most ancient industries is being revived in the county of Norwich. This is the "rush matting" industry, mentioned in Chaucer's Canterbury Tales as "Ye rushe mattinge." These mats, made from rushes which grow in profusion in the marshy district of Norfolk, are recognized as the best covering for stone floors.

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

Church Parade of Royal Black Preceptory — The I.O.O.F. Had Decoration Day.

MILLBROOK, Aug. 20.—About fifty members of the Royal Black Preceptory, No. 945, attended divine worship in Grace Presbyterian church on Sunday evening, the parade from the Lodge rooms being headed by the Millbrook band under the leadership of G. A. Duncan Rev. R. M. Paterson of Frazerville, Grand Chaplain of Ontario East, had charge of the service, the pastor of the church Rev. G. S. Gervan being also present and assisting with the singing. The church was filled to capacity with a union congregation of both Methodist and Presbyterian members and adherents the two having united for the past month while their respective pastors are on vacation. The order of service was:

Doxology
Invocation
Hymn 127, "O Lord, how great Thy mercies are" (Presbyterian Book of Praise).
Scripture Lesson, Exodus 3rd chapter: "God's Call to Moses to lead his people out of Egypt."
Anthem by the choir, "Have Thine own way, Lord."
Prayer, Rev. R. M. Patterson.
Offering— Usher, R. J. McKnight and H. Lancashire.
Quartette, (unaccompanied), "Come to the Father, O Wanderer, come," by Rev. G. S. and Mrs. Gervan and Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Johnson.
Hymn 399 "Wonderful Love."
Word of welcome to the visiting Sir Knights expressing appreciation of the invitation to address the Order, and urging that the effort to live up to the high obligation assumed be not allowed to flag.
Sermon from the texts: 1 Kings 18: 30th and 39th verses: "And Elijah said unto all the people, Come near unto me. And he repaired the altar of the Lord that was broken down."
"And when all the people saw it they fell on their faces; and they said The Lord, He is the God; the Lord, He is the God."
Hymn 71, "Faith of Our Fathers."
Benediction.

Choir Entertained

The choir of the Methodist church were guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Sayles at their camp near Pontypool last Thursday, Mrs. T. H. Bradley who with her husband is also camping at this delightful natural grove by one of the "pools' which gives the village its name, assisting Mrs. Sayles with her duties as hostess. Through the kindness of various friends the choir members were conveyed to the camp by motor and a most enjoyable afternoon and evening spent in games, songs and other pastimes. A ball game with the ladies playing against the gentlemen provided the most exciting and fun-producing event of the afternoon. G. W. Sayles and A. McCorry were the battery for the "Skirts", while W. Tremaine and Walter Sayles acted in that capacity for the opposing faction. Mrs. Sayles was umpire, the score being 19-14, in the men's favor

Needless to say appetites were considerably sharpened by the exercise and the bountiful supper thoroughly enjoyed. Among those present were: Miss Phyllis Richards, Amy Brock, Hattie Barnard, Marjorie Sayles, E. Staples, (Pontypool) ean Burnham, Katharine Duncan, Dorothy Higgs, Mr. and Mrs. W. Tremaine Mr. and Mrs. and Master Olver Brock, Mrs. B. R. Taper, Mrs. P. Stinson Mrs. G. Fallis and Elwood, Miss S. Hetherington, Messrs. A. and M. McCorry.

STOP THAT HEADACHE

During the past ten years the constant slogan of business has been — speed up! More pep! Practically all of the efficiency experts have made it their business to cut down the number of employees and to speed up the remainder. Day after day of this sort of thing is a dangerous strain on the nervous system.

But more than this it means hurry in eating, poor digestion and light sleep, with the cares and worries of the day as your bed-fellow. The result is frequent headaches, then more headaches and a disturbed nervous mental condition. If there is no let-up in work or worry and the efficiency expert visits you often enough a nervous breakdown may come your way.

Find Cause First.

The majority of people try to cure the headache itself rather than to remedy the conditions that induce headache. Try to find a cause or source and apply the remedy where it belongs. It may be merely overexertion, a slight attack of indigestion, bad ventilation or thinking too much. In such cases, a good purge will effect a cure. Don't expect a headache to vanish in a few moments. Go slow, give your stomach time to rest by taking light meals for a day or two.

Tight shoes are a frequent cause of headaches. Of course the wearer would not admit the shoes were too tight and consequently no cause for that day's headache could be found. Wear proper fitting shoes and bathe the feet every night, then your headaches will vanish.

Office men and women frequently bring on a headache by assuming a slouching posture during their office hours. The blood of the abdomen tends to stagnate in the liver and the splanchnic circulation. To remedy this condition be careful to sit and walk erect. And don't forget fresh air, out-door exercise.

The abdominal muscles must remain firm to afford support to the abdomen with its large blood vessels.

Nostrums Are Dangerous.

Nausea and seasickness that bring on headaches are from a disarrangement of the stomach. Car sickness and headache are brought on by the same cause. You may have teeth that need attention that cause your headache. Any irritation of the nasal passages will cause a throbbing pain. Keep the nasal passages open for the full supply of oxygen.

The occasional sufferer from headache should beware of taking headache dope. Most headache remedies so-called, contain depressants which affect the heart action. Worry, indigestion and speeding up, combined with the frequent use of powerful headache remedies, are undoubtedly one cause. Stop that headache—your physician can help you to properly diagnose its cause.

The Million Dollar Doll

By C. N. and A. M. Williamson
Authors of "The Lightning Conductor"

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY

Teresa Desmond (Terry), exquisite and unbelievably innocent, has determined to leave her father. Terrence Desmond, the proprietor of a roadhouse, the Blue Moon. He is moody and selfish, bent on Terry's "bagging" a rich man. He introduces her to Eustace Nazlo, a wealthy Greek, who falls in love with the girl, and on an auto ride makes unwelcome advances. She escapes from him and goes to Juliet Divine, the stage name of her beautiful half-sister, known as the Million Dollar Doll, whom she has not seen for years. 'Juliet's' career has been somewhat sketchy, but she has a genuine affection for Terry, whom she greatly resembles. Miles Sheridan, Terry's Dream Prince, furnished the money for Terry's education at a convent when she was a child, partly to atone for a past rudeness of his wife Betty Sheridan, who is now making him unhappy with her infidelity. Hartley Phillips, a member of the Four Hundred, calls on Julia to tell her that Sheridan, in order to facilitate his wife's obtaining a divorce, will pay the Million Dollar Doll twenty thousand dollars t take a yacht trip with him. Except for appearing with her in order to cause talk, he wants to have nothing to do with her. Terry confesses to Julia that Sheridan has always been her ideal.

CHAPTER XIX.

The First Blow Falls

"You've never seen him since that time when he was at the Blue Moon?" Julia broke in, oddly intrigued by the small sister's story. "He never wrote or turned up at the Convent to call?"

"No, never," answered Terry.

"I bet he would, if he'd had an idea how his little protegee was growing up. Let me tell you, my child, you're what that Nazlo man of yours would call some chicken—some peacherino.

"I believe you're better looking than me—if you had the clothes."

"Oh, no" the girl protested, as if she had heard sacrilege. "Why, Jule, you're the most beautiful thing I ever saw, and I——"

"You were always like me, and now we might be two dolls made from the same model," said Julia. "Only this doll is just wee bit battered. I wouldn't say that to anyone else. And I don't believe anyone's noticed it yet, except myself. Still, there it is.

"This doll's been in the shop window a long time. And that doll—you—is just out of the box, fresh as a new pin. I'm afraid, much as I love you, my kid, I wouldn't want you to go around with me much. I couldn't afford it for my own sake, to say nothing of yours.

"You—you're modelled on more delicate lines—or I've coarsened a bit. You're made of a grade finer porcelain. Your hair curls naturally—sort of marcels itself. Mine always had to be done, and coloring's dried it, so it wouldn't have the sheen if I didn't brilliantine it well. Oh, it's nearly as good as yours to look at. But I know the difference.

"Your mouth and chin are about the sweetest things they're making in that line. The blueness of your eyes—or the green or the grey whichever it is—gives them that soft look that gets men. Beside you, my dear, your Jule feels as hard as nails and—and as old as sin. I don't like it"

"And I don't like to hear you say it. Please don't," Terry begged.

"I never will again," Julia promised. "But I'm leading up to something. Now I've begun and I'd better go on. I suppose you came to ask me to let you stay here?"

"I hardly know. I didn't stop to think. I had to get away from Mr. Nazlo, and I thought if I could find you, you'd help me."

"So I will—if I can. But it's up to you, kid. You don't want to go back to Father?"

"I'm afraid"

"What are you afraid of, exactly?"

"Why—Mr. Nazlo. Father seems to like him. I don't think he'd mind much what Mr. Nazlo did. And then there are crowds of other men who come. I thought Mr. Nazlo was the best of them.

"But if he is—the others——" Terry shivered a little. "They look at me—with looks I don't like. They make me feel—somehow sick."

"You don't need to describe to me the way they look." Julia laughed a hard laugh. "I suppose you didn't learn much—about men, at the convent?"

"Nothing at all," Terry said, with wide eyes.

"Not even from the girls?"

"Oh, they talked when they had a chance—about mashes and crushes, and words like that. But I didn't learn anything. Father's the only man I know, except—Mr. Sheridan. I won't count Mr. Nazlo"

"And a fat lot you know about Sheridan. But wait. We're coming back to him by and by. The question is now, what's to become of you if I can't keep you with me?"

Terry's pride rose, and mingling with the pain of rejection, choked her. "I won't go back to Father," she heard herself decide, and was faintly surprised at the firm decision.

"I'd—be a servant at the convent if they'd have me, but I'm afraid they won't. Maybe there are things I could do to earn my living in New York. I know French. I can do typing and take dictation, and——"

"Nonsense At seventeen—with your looks. The wolves would get you before you had time to turn around. I know how to manage them. You don't. You're a very different proposition from me.

"I wouldn't have minded Nazlo. I'd have snapped at him—as a stepping-stone. He's worth more than Tom Perrin was.

"But, now listen, kid. I couldn't have kept you, anyhow, even if I'd been staying in New York. It just wouldn't have done—for you or for me. As it is, I'm going away. I'm chucking my—career—to get marfried."

Julia paused for some sign of surprise from Terry. But it did not come. The first blow had already fallen. She couldn't live with Jule. Jule didn't want her.

As for this news, it wasn't strange that Julia should get married. With all the men who must have admired her, it was rather strange that she hadn't married one of them long ago.

"He's a South American," Jule went on, "awfully rich and awfully handsome. He's wild about me. The one trouble is, I have to go and live with him in Buenos Aires."

"Oh" Terry said. "It's like the other end of the world I don't suppose—" she choked again—"I shall ever see you any more—until I'm old."

"I don't mind about that. Manoel says I can come back for a visit often if I like. But I'm not sure I shall like. I expect to be a swell down there. Manoel's in politics.

"I can't take you, because men think two's company and three's a crowd. Besides, he might notice that you're prettier than I am. If I didn't look out for myself nobody else would. So that's that"

"That's that," echoed Terry, drearily.

Paris Newspaper Hits Back at Premier Smuts.

PARIS, Aug. 20. — (Canadian Press Cable.)—The speech delivered at Bloemfontein last week by Premier Smuts, of the South African Union, in which he condemned the French occupation of the Ruhr, has naturally received a cool reception in France and the Paris Temps newspaper hits back vigorously.

"Although the South African premier signed the peace treaty he obviously desires to second or direct any operation to drive the French out of the Ruhr," says the Temps.

Referring to Smuts' advocacy of an appeal to the League of Nations and the convocation of an International conference the newspaper says the Kenya colony controversy might just as well be submitted to the assembly of the league of nations in September before Smuts defends his policy of obligatory separation between the whites and Indians in Kenya at the imperial conference in October.

GOVT. COMMITTEE DIS-ESTABLISHED

Duties of the Editorial Committee Have Been Transferred Back to the King's Printer.

OTTAWA, Aug 20. —(Canadian Press). — The editorial committee on government publications, which has controlled the publication of government reports since September 1917, has been dis-established and its duties have been again transferred to the King's Printer, acting under the supervision of a committee of the cabinet.

Fred Cook, who has been chairman of the committee, and such other officials of the committee as are deemed necessary are to be retained in the service and shall assist the King's Printer in the discharge of his duties.

The committee of the cabinet in charge consists of Hon. James Murdock, Hon. Ernest Lapointe, and Hon. A. B. Copp. It is provided in the order in council which authorizes the change in policy, that all regulations made on the recommendation of the former editorial committee in government publications shall remain in effect except that requistions made by the various departments on the department of public printing and stationary shall be forwarded direct to The King's Printer instead of going to the editorial committee. In case of difference of opinion between any department and the King's Printer as to publication or requisition for stationery the matter in dispute shall be referred to the committee of cabinet of which Hon. James Murdock is chairman.

The former editorial committee on government publications, in addition to Mr. Cook, chairman consisted of F. C. T. O'Hara, deputy minister of trade and commerce, F. C. C. Lynch of the Interior Department and the late Rodolphe Boudreau, clerk of the Privy Council.

Cavan Personals.

Mr. Gilbert Houson of Keene, visited his brother here, this week.

Miss Essie Hutchinson has returned home after a two week's visit with her sister Mrs. A. E. Earchman of Carleton Place.

Among those from this district, who attended Cobourg Horse show were Messrs. J. Swam, John Cathcart, Wm. Nell and Mr. Paoneau.

Mr. John Mitchell was a visitor to Belleville on Wednesday and attended the ball game between Peterboro and that city.

Some of the farmers have finished harvest and are already preparing the ground for Fall wheat.

Distinguished Visitors at Veterinary Convention

MONTREAL, Aug. 20.— (Canadian Press.)—The American Veterinary Medical Association convention which opens here next Monday will be honored by very distinguished delegations and visitors, notable among which are to be Sir Arnold Thieler, director of Veterinary education and research for South Africa, representing Great Britain, a delegation from the Republic of Cuba and a delegation from France, composed of Professors Chas. Porcher, of Lyons and L. Panisset of Alfort, Paris.

WHEN THE CORK POPS

"Where are you going in such a hurry," asked Mrs. Bibbles.

"Over to John Jagsby's house. He has just telephoned to ask if I could lend him a corkscrew and I'm taking it myself."

"Couldn't you send it?"

"Mrs. Bibbles," said Mr. Bibbles, in cutting tones, "the question you asked me shows why most women are unfit to lead armies and make quick decisions in business deals involving millions. When the psychological moment arrives they don't know what to do with it."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 20. — The regular monthly meeting of the Seymour West Women's Institute was held at the home of the president, Mrs. George Vanvolkenburg, with 36 members present. After the usual opening and adoption of minutes of former meetings, the matter of beautifying the cemetery came up for discussion, and it was decided to leave the matter over until the busy time on the farm is over. A letter from the Sick Children's Hospital was read, in which each member of the Institute was asked to donate one jar of fruit. The Institute decided that at the next meeting at the home of Mrs. Robert McCullough a box would be packed and sent as per their request. A quilt will also be quilted at the next meeting.

The roll call was unique, in that each member was required to tell what she first remembered and when.

An excellent programme was then rendered, consisting of the following:

Reading — "An Ideal Teacher," by Miss Beavin McConnell.

Solo — "If I Only had a Home, Sweet Home," by little Miss Isobel McArthur.

Paper—"The Ideal Rural School," was presented by Miss Margaret Anderson.

A musical contest, conducted by Miss Margaret Anderson and Mrs. Reginald McCullough, was enjoyed.

A very interesting and helpful part of the programme was a demonstration on two different kinds of salads by Mrs. Robert McCullough

Refreshments, consisting of cake and lemonade, was then served by the hostess. A pleasant social hour was spent.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. R. McCullough.

Ladies' Aid Social.

The Ladies' Aid of Stanwood Methodist Church held a social evening on Thursday at the home of Mr. Robert Lisle. There was a good crowd in attendance, and over $37 was realized. The ladies provided an abundance of good things to eat, and, considering the coolness of the evening, all the booths did a good business. Miss Esther and Mr. Harold McDonald, of Healey Falls, and others contributed much to the evening's enjoyment with guitar and piano selections.

Club Woman Selects Pictures

BY MARIAN HALE.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—One way to put a measure before the public is to get the club women back of it, and one way to get the club women back of a measure is to have Helen Varick Boswell at the head of it

That's why she was selected to be chairman of the woman's committee of the new "non-theatrical" motion picture company, whose object is to be a clearing house for the motion picture industry, and a permanent movie library to contain the classics of filmdom. She is organizing club women throughout the country to co-operate in the matter.

"Most of us," she explains, "have some idea of the entertainment value of pictures, but few of us realize the tremendous educational value of them. This is the end I am interested in.

"There are to-day 500,000 places, including churches, clubs and schools, where motion pictures may be shown, and those shown should be the very best because they reach the most impressionable spectators.

"The most wonderful educational pictures are being made to-day. But they reach too few people merely because they are not exploited by the big companies.

"Scouts" Out.

"We have organized a large committee and several sub-committees for the very purpose of seeing all the films that are made, and selecting those that should be put before children.

"Religious and Bible films are passed on by a group in which Protestants, Catholics and Jews are included, so that nothing which offends any race or creed will be indiscriminately sown.

"Some of the leading educators of the country are asked to pass on our educattional pictures before we buy them to vouch for their authenticity Representatives form every woman's organization in the country have been asked to serve on the committee that views the purely recreational films. No library was ever selected with more care than our pictures are."

Classics in Films.

In the stock already selected are most of the classics of literature in picture form. Two-reelers of Shakespeare, many of the most famous poems, the complete Old Testiment, incidents from the history of all countries travelogs and current events are there.

"The best films should not be lost or forgotten, but should be kept and rescen just as books are reread, and put before new spectators," Miss Boswell goes on.

"Schools have not realized the possibilities of the films. I believe Burton Holmes, the famous world traveler, is the greatest teacher of geography the world has ever known.

"I cannot agree with Thomas A. Edison that pictures will do away with teachers or the written word, but I believe they will become the finest supplement to both."

Miss Boswell is president of the Woman' Forum in New York, and is prominent in political and club work.

DONATIONS TO CAMP.

Donations to the Summer Camp at Jackson Park last week included jam and toys from Mrs. H. Cameron, ten pounds of cooked fish from G. James, Fish and Chip Restaurant, Charlotte Street, and vegetables and ice-cream from Mrs. R. R. Hall.

CHANGES MADE FOR GOVT. PURCHASES

War Purchasing Commission Has Been Replaced By a Sub-Committee of the Cabinet.

Press.)—The power hitherto exercised by the Purchasing Commission appointed during the war to supervise and control all government purchases have now been transferred, by order-in-council, to a committee of the Cabinet. The committee is known as the Government Contract Supervising Committee and consists of Hon. J. A. Robb, chairman, Hon. H. S. Beland, Hon. T. A. Low and Hon Dr. J H. King.

In explanation of the change the ordinance council sets forth that while the exigencies of war afforded a reason for referring to a commission the general supervision and control of government purchases, a more effective and satisfactory means of obtaining a centralizing and control of purchases and sales is by a sub-committee of council clothed with the necessary authority.

The only member of the old purchasing commission who is still functioning is Lieut.-Col. L. R. Lafleche, and he is to be retained as secretary to the cabinet committee at a salary of $6,000 per annum, while Lieut.-Col. L. H. Beer, formerly of Prince Edward Island and now of Ottawa, is appointed salvage commissioner at a salary of $5,000 a year.

The reference of control over purchases to a committee of the cabinet marks a return to a large extent of the old system of direct ministerial control over departmental business. The statutory provisions relating to calling for tenders, of course, remain in effect. It is provided in the order in council that the committee of the cabinet shall have power to make regulations and issue orders to govern and control all purchases, transfers and disposal of materials in connection with any department. Provision is also made for disposal under regulations of the committee of materials through the salvage officer, Lieut.-Col. Beer. The order-in-council revokes all previous orders in council conferring powers on the war purchasing commission or the purchasing commission of Canada, which succeeded the former body, and these powers are now transferred to the cabinet committee.

MASSES CHARRED

Barrett, 20 Rosemount Ave., an employe of the Laidlaw Bale Tie Co., was going to work early this morning when he bought a morning paper and received the first intimation that his wife, Mr. Helen Barrett, had been burned to death. Mrs. Barrett had spent two months at the Wa-Wa and had been expected home on Saturday. She had gone to Muskoka for her health and had written to say that she should be greatly improved by the change. She was about 40 years of age and leaves an eight year old son.

F. F. Daley, head of the F. F. Daley Co., was among the guests who escaped.

Heartrending Scenes

There were heartrending scenes at the offices of the Canadian Railway News Company here to-day. The husbands of two women supposed to be among the dead at Wa Wa came to the office this morning and pleaded to be allowed to go to the scene of the fire and try to find the bodies of their wives. "My God, what can I do?" sobbed G. E. Barrett, of Hamilton, whose wife was an employee of the hotel. "Is there nothing that I can do? I did not want her to go, but she wanted to have a little holiday at the hotel again, so she went up. Our little boy is on the farm."

Mr. Warde, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian News Company, in as kindly a manner as possible, told him how hopeless was the chance of his identifying his wife's remains in a mass of charred embers and ashes. "But if it will give you any comfort to go up I will gladly give you transportation to Wa Wa and return," he said. "Yes, let me go," said Barrett. "It will be some satisfaction even to know that I have tried. I do not blame you people, but I must do something," and he was given a return ticket to Wa Wa.

NEWS GETTING AND PRINTING

had for its object any improvement in this line. A newspaper is not doing its duty unless it helps to make the place where it exists, a better and a brighter place to live.

"The staff and management are only too willing at all times to give publicity to legitimate enterprises in the city for the development of the under-developed boy and girl, and anything for the benefit of the city."

Assistance to Rotary

In conveying the thanks of the Club to Mr. Glover, the Chairman, Reed Wren, said the Examiner had been of great assistance to the Rotary Club in giving publicity to its work.

It was announced by the Chairman that Rotarian Gordon Matthews is ill at his father's home in Toronto, and any Rotarians visiting the Queen City are asked to call on him.

On October 29, a musical entertainment of a high order will be staged by Rotary several high class musicians having already been obtained for the occasion.

Visitors to-day were W. Costello, Toronto, and Irvine Brophy, Ottawa.

MANY RAILROAD MEN HAVE ENDORSED TANLAC

Men who sit at the throttle and who pilot big trains must have steady nerves, clear brains and good health. Tanlac has won the praise of many prominent railroad men over the country for its remarkable reconstructive powers.

No calling demands a clearer brain, steadier nerves, nor a more perfect state of health than that of railroad employee. The lives of thousands of passengers depends on the man who sits at the throttle, on the man in charge of the train, on the men who keep up the roadbed, and repair the tracks, and on the man in the signal tower and at the dispatcher's key.

A railroad man cannot afford to make a mistake. He cannot "take a chance.' He must be on the job every minute of his watch every day in the year. There is no profession where the training is any more highly specialized and where good health and co-ordination of mind and body are any more essential.

Thousands of men who contribute their important part to the daily task of operating our railroads have found that by taking Tanlac they can tone up their systems, offset indigestion caused often by "Grabbing a snack to eat wherever thy can." and avoid that general run-down condition that so many are heir to.

Railroad men in every section have testified that Tanlac has helped them maintain their good health and in many instances regain it.

Following are a few testimonials from the files of the company:

RESULTS ARE LASTING DECLARES C.P. MAN.

"Three years ago I was about on my last legs and going down hill so fast I thought nothing would stop me," states Fred Hill, 349 Thames Street, London, Ont., well-known mechanic of the Canadian Pacific. "I could never eat more than two light meals a day because of indigestion; my nerves were a wreck; every bone in my body seemed to ache, I couldn't sleep and felt sick and tired all over. Tanlac soon fixed me up so I could eat anything, and my other troubles vanished like smoke. I gained twelve pounds and have felt fine ever since."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists. Take no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

Tanlac Vegetable Pills are Nature's own remedy for constipation. Sold everywhere.

OLD TIME ENGINEER GAINS 17 POUNDS.

Oran Denne, 53 Forest Ave., St. Thomas, Ont., who wears a gold medal given him by the Michigan Central R. R. in recognition of his forty years' service at the throttle of a locomotive on that railroad, says:

"I was all run down, had indigestion so bad I couldn't eat and was too nervous and miserable to sleep. I lost weight rapidly and got so weak I could not work. A trip out West failed to help me, and I thought I was about done for. My sister got me to take Tanlac, and in seven weeks I gained seventeen pounds and returned to work in as good health as any man in St. Thomas."

EXPRESS MESSENGER SAYS TANLAC IS A FINE THING.

"I had been in bad shape for several years before I got Tanlac," says Wm P. Gilchrist, express messenger between Vancouver and Nelson, B.C., and who resides at 1559 Parker St., Vancouver. "I sufferel all the time from indigestion, nausea, constipation, headaches, biliousness, and a tired-out feeling that always made me feel unfit for work. When I began taking Tanlac my troubles disappeared so fast it was amazing. You can mark my O.K. on Tanlac every time."

SIXTY-THREE YEARS OLD, HOLDS OWN WITH BEST.

"I am now sixty-three, but when it comes to work I can hold my own with anybody at the shops, and nothing but Tanlac has given me this fine endurance," declared Allen J. Briggs, 92 Lansing Place, Rensselaer, N.Y., a well-known machinist at the B. & A shops.

"For a year before I got Tanlac I suffered from stomach trouble, was badly run down, and my kidneys also bothered me a great deal. The pains in my back and stomach were awful, and I often wonder now how I stood it all. I was afraid to eat because I knew how I would suffer afterwards with gas bloating and heartburn, and was so unstrung I couldn't get a good night's sleep.

"But Tanlac did me more good in six weeks than everything else I took in a year. My appetite is a wonder, my digestion perfect, I sleep like a top, and haven't an ache or pain. I'm always ready to talk Tanlac."

BLANCHARD SAYS TANLAC KEPT HIM ON JOB.

"It is all due to Tanlac that I am able to be on the job to-day," states Harold Blanchard, 330 Donald St., Winnipeg, well-known trainman on the Canadian National Railway. "I had stomach trouble so bad I was just about past going and my heart used to pound so I thought I had heart trouble. My kidneys had also been bothering me for several years, and there was a severe pain in the small of my back. I felt miserable all the time.

"The results I got from Tanlac were simply remarkable. I am now as strong and well as ever in my life."

WHOLE SYSTEM IMPROVED. STATES SMITH.

Roy Smith popular Canadian Pacific R. R. man, residing at Boudary, Man., says: "Tanlac not only rid me of a severe case of stomach trouble and sleeplessness of two years' standing, but put me in such fine condition generally I am feeling tip-top in every way. I am always glad to say a good word for it."

RAILROAD MAN OUT WITH MORE FACTS

Tanlac Made Clean Sweep of Troubles and He Feels Like a New Man, States Barrowcliff.

"If any of my family were sick with stomach trouble or run-down condition I would rather have one bottle of Tanlac than all the other medicines put together" is the positive statement of F. A. Barrowcliff, 8 Locomotive Street, Hamilton, Ont., well-known yardman for the Grand Trunk Railroad.

"My wife's health was restored by the Tanlac treatment in such short order it was astonishing for she suffered so terribly with nervousness, headaches, sleeplessness, and loss of appetite that I thought she would break down completely. She went meal after meal without eating, and was so fearfully weak the care of our five children and the housework was more than she could do.

"After her first few doses of Tanlac my wife was like an entirely different person, and hasn't had a sick spell since she quit taking the medicine six months ago. Tanlac has certainly been a blessing in our house, and we are glad to recommend it"

BRINGING IN SHOPPERS

The first of a series of sales devoted to the interest of people living within a radius of 150 miles of Louisville will be staged by the members of the Louisville Retail Merchants' Association for June 20th and 21st, as announced by Tristam Shook, secretary and manager of the association at a meeting recently at the Seelbach Hotel.

The series of sales is not expected to swell the immediate profits of local merchants, but rather to develop trade from the nearby towns and cities in the Louisville trade territory and to make Louisville a buying centre for any of those towns in the future.

Here is an idea worth considering by Peterboro Merchants. What other cities can do, we can do. Just now any addition to business would be welcome. The Louisville people know how to go after it.

A BUSINESS MAN'S IDEAL

"To have endured early hardships with fortitude and overcome difficulties by perseverance; to have founded or developed a large business, useful in itself, and given employment to many; to have achieved fortune, independence position and influence; to have established a character above reproach; to have accumulated esteem, the confidence and friendship of his fellows; to have given n largely of money to charity, and of TIME TO CITIZENSHIP; and to have gained all this of the world; without LOSING THE SOUL BY AVARICE, or by starving the heart into hardness—I say, he who has so lived has nobly lived, and he should find peace with honor when the shadows begin to lengthen and the even ing of life draws on."—David R. Forgan.

ELECTRIC FAN WAS TO BLAME IN FIRE

Fibre Board Company Lost $500,000 in Big Blaze.

PENETANGUISHENE, Aug. 20 (Canadian Press).— A half million dollar loss was suffered here Saturday afternoon when plants of International Fibre Board, Wallboard Manufacturers and of First-Brook Brothers Limited, were totally destroyed. When the alarm was sounded at 3.30 the pulp piles of the International Company were a mass of smoke, in the outer walls of building is a fan to carry off the dust from factory, and firemen think this fan in action caused the flames to spread to the building, a rush was made to shut off the fan, but it was done too late the fire fighters say.

The Habitants

You could step into the cockpit of an aeroplane at Times Square, settle yourself in the little seat behind the pilot, and soaring above the tall buildings, fly away on a four-hour "hop" that would land you in the midst of a vast community of people whose manner of living is just the same today as that of their ancestors who settled thereabouts in the beginning of the seventeenth century, writes F Walter Wilson, in the Boston Transcript

Women would be using spinning wheels, and weaving cloth on hand looms Men would be seen carrying pails of water suspended from a heavy yoke resting on their broad shoulders Nowhere would you find a trace of modern methods or present-day machinery

In season the soil is laboriously tilled, and its products harvested, with the same sort of crude implements used three hundred years ago, when Boston was a tiny village Bread is baked in rough-built ovens of stone, which stand at a safe distance from the house, the heat furnished by a fire of blazing logs

Where, you ask? The conditions suggest to you the mountains—probably in some part of the Blue Ridge, or down in Kentucky or perhaps in Tennessee

A Happy People

No, it is not even in the United States The dwellers in this primitive land are industrious, moral and healthy, Among them you will find the brightest-eyed, intelligent-looking children you have probably ever seen The older people are kindly, hospitable and devoutly religious Arriving so recently from Broadway you might justly assert that they are not progressive, but aside from this you could find little or nothing in these people to condemn or criticize

When Samuel de Champlain arrived from Old France in 1608 and from the lofty cliff on Cape Diamond viewed a vast section of a strange new world, there gathered about him a small band of brave people who followed where he led them They came to sparsely populate a New France, in the wilds of what is now the Province of Quebec They came prepared to fight savages and wild beasts, to cut from the forbidding gloom of an endless forest enough tiny spaces on which to build their humble cabin homes—to found an empire!

Their descendants are there today In a four-hour "hop" from Broadway you could visit them In the Province of Quebec they are known as the habitants This name differentiates them from those others of French ancestry who have yielded to the lure of modernity, and grasped eagerly at innovations—from those, too, who have mingled with aliens, acquiring their mannerisms, their languages, and often their vices

But why, you insist, should anybody prefer to labor uselessly? Why deliberately shut their eyes to time and labor-saving devices, for the home, or on the farm? What sense is there in such a stand-pat policy? Where is there any possible advantage in it for anyone?

Indifferent to Riches

Coming so recently from Broadway it would be impossible for you to comprehend the spirit, the soul, or the ideals of the habitant; even though, at great length it were explained to you And in this is no reflection on your own keen intelligence, for Broadway is another world, and the divergence of ideals is too abrupt to permit a full mental visualization These people show in their chosen mode of life much that is worthy of admiration rather than ridicule, for it is sane, wholesome and enduring, and about it all is an atmosphere which invites one's sober reverence

Then, too, it is not alone an ideal which has brought the habitant to exclude himself from the march of progress Quite possible there is another, and more practical, causation which none could bluntly voice, yet which palpably wields an influence

The habitants of today may not know that their racial aloofness from modern customs is an inbred inheritance from sturdy ancestors who possibly were wise enough to decide that nothing would be gained by entering upon a competition which had no goal Through three centuries these people have refused to be drawn into the mad race to buy and own things—things which their own simple lives prove could add nothing at all to their happiness Even into their secluded homes must drift rumors of the fruitless struggle which absorbs the energies and frays the nerves of our city-dwellers, and resolutely they decline to adventure with innovations which may tempt them from an existence that is quiet, peaceful and benignly happy

The habitant does not put forth his mightiest efforts to "keep up with the Joneses"—they have nothing he wants—he owns naught which would inspire their envy

In a clean, speckless, little room a silvery-haired old lady sat beside a spinning wheel and deftly turned it as a fluffy rope of wool was twisted to a thread on the end of the steel spindle It was just like the spinning wheels you see in windows of antique shops on the avenue, or in Greenwich Village—except that this was one not gilded—it was a utile machine; not a curio

Scorn For Cities

Few of the habitants speak more than a few phrases of English, but the aristocratic-looking old lady who skillfully drew out vibrating threads from the whirring spindle spoke it uncommonly well, although with a charming accent

"I suppose you've often been down to Quebec," I suggested

"No, never I don't want to go," she calmly asserted

"But wouldn't you like to see the wonderful shops, and the great buildings?"

"No I'm sure I wouldn't care about them I've heard much of cities but I can't understand why they are God gave his people so much room—why do they want to huddle together in cities?"

And to this I could think of no very satisfying reply

In our own country the lure of the city grips the farmer's son or daughter and drags them from the calm security of country life to plunge in the malestrom of urban life, content to live in a squalid hall-room if need be, and satisfied to gain a livelihood by even mental tasks If human nature is basically much akin then why do the habitants children choose a life of toil and hardship, deliberately rejecting all that you consider worth while?

After all, are you so very sure that Broadway symbolizes the worth-while acquisitions? Has it never wearied you until you longed for the tranquility of virgin forests with the ease-fraught voice of rippling waters, the swish of summer breeze across a meadow blazoned with nodding wild-flowers, or maybe the homely welcome of a crude-built but staunch old house sheltering with warmth and cheery comfort from screaming winter storms? Wouldn't you rejoice in leisure in which to drowse, to dream, to think?

No one may ever voice the spirit of the habitant so eloquently as Louis Hemon in the beautiful story of "Maria Chapdelaine"—particularly in the latter pages of this Canadian classic, where in the mystery of night, in the presence of death, and in the dumb agony of grief, his loveable heroine listens to the voices which speak to her—fancied voices, it is true—but convincingly real for all that It was the soul of the habitant that found a voice that night—a voice of song, of poetry, of romance, and of love It chained her to the forest-girt home of her childhood, as it has chained all those others who went before

To our world of Main Streets and Broadways the voices cannot penetrate, and their simple though lofty and impressive creed is unintelligible—its message meaningless Maria Chapdelaine heard them plainly:

"Within these limits all we brought with us, our faith, our tongue, our virtues, our very weaknesses are henceforth hallowed things which no hand may touch, which shall endure to the end"

And to this, for three centuries, the habitants have been true

MOVIES A FORCE FOR WORLD PEACE

The intelligent use of movies will bring about better understanding between nations and will do wonders toward eliminating causes of friction, says O. R. Geyer in the August "Our World."

"During the war millions of feet of film were utilized by the Allies in acquainting their own nationals and those of their allied nations with the aims and purposes of the war. Scarcely a week passed during the two years in which the United States was engaged in the war in which the country's thousands of theaters were not used for the presentation of some particular message relating to the conduct of the war.

"Because of its extremely valuable services rendered during the war, the screen earned for itself the title of the international language of the masses. The extensive use made of film propaganda is a striking example of the effective work to which the motion picture of the coming day will be put by farsighted statesmen striving for world peace. The ability of the screen to visualize and give the breath of life to national policies and aspirations, plus its facility for sweeping aside boundary lines, racial classifications and the confusion of tongues in reaching the great masses of people, make it a powerful medium for a development of a genuinely helpful League of Nations."

Mr. Geyer lays particular stress on the improvement of our relations with South America which has come about as a result of the showing of American films in the Latin-American countries.

"A leading Argentine lawyer and former diplomatic representative, now an authority on international law in one of the great American universities, is authority for the statement that the screen has become America's greatest traveling salesman in the promotion of trade and better social and economic relations between the two continents.

"'We South Americans,' he said, 'are finding that you North Americans are not such barbarians after all.

Your women are beautiful, they dress in exquisite taste, and their social customs and manners are equal to the best to be found anywhere. Your methods of doing business with labor saving devices and the most up to date machinery constantly are arousing our admiration and interest. It is obvious, of course, that this interest in the things that you are doing has done a great deal to promote trade between the two hemispheres.'"

HOME BANK MAY PAY DEPOSITORS

Some Indemnification Is Hoped For—Bills Will Be Accepted at Par.

TORONTO, August 20. — Canadian Press. — Although the announcement of the suspension of the Home Bank of Canada has come as a severe blow to the thousands of depositors in Toronto as elsewhere, strong hope is felt that when the assets are realized upon to the fullest extent, though probably at the cost of a levy in part at least upon the shareholders under the double liability provision, persons whose money has been deposited with the bank will be indemnified to some extent against loss, the curator, Mr. A. B. Barker, announced on Saturday that all bills of the Home Bank would be accepted at par at any other banking institution thereby relieving any anxiety among unduly timorous holders, so far as the depositors are concerned they are likely to obtain a percentage of their money within 90 days, the period for which operations of the Home Bank have been suspended, while other payments will likely be forthcoming as the process of liquidation progresses.

A VALVELESS PUMP.

The only way in which liquids can be moved commercially is by pumping and, as liquids are used in the majority of industrial processes, it follows that few machines are of such general interest to the engineer and manufacturer. One of the most difficult problems is that of dealing with fuel oil, lubricating oil, and the various heavy fluids employed in breweries, bleaching works, refineries, paper works, and other concerns. Centrifugal or turbine pumps are not suitable for heavy or viscous fluids and any pump which contains valves is a potential source of trouble and expense. In the search for a machine which should represent the acme of simplicity and reliability, a British firm has evolved a pump which contains only two moving parts and no valves or springs. The complete pump, which, by the way, is often smaller than the pulley used to drive it, consists of a cylindrical casing, a toothed disc, a gear wheel, and the cover plate. The disc is driven by a shaft entering through the back of the casing, and on the face of the disc there are teeth extending radially inwards. These teeth mesh with the gear wheel which revolves on a stud fixed in the cover. The space between the tops of the two sets of teeth is filled by a crescent-shaped piece cast solid with the cover. As the disc and the gear wheel revolve, liquid is drawn in through the suction pipe and an equal amount is driven oqt through the discharge. The pump can deliver at a pressure of 70 lbs. per sq. in. (5 atmospheres), and it can be used with hot or cold liquids. When required, it is built from special materials resisting acid or alkaline liquors. As will readily be appreciated these valveless pumps need little in the way of attention or upkeep.

A NEW TIRE FOR COMMERCIAL MOTOR VEHICLES.

Those of the older generation will recall the glorious feeling of immunity from punctures which they enjoyed when using "cushion" tires on their bicycles in the early days of the pastime—also the less pleasurablable bumps which they experienced as the price of that immunity. Fortunately it soon became possible to obtain pneumatic tires which combined resilience with strength ample for the requirements of the bicycle and, in due course, for the much higher requirements of private motor cars. The development of motor transport has, however, revived the old problem in a different form and users of commercial vehicles will welcome a tire which combines the shock-absorbing qualities of the pneumatic with the durability of the solid tire. For many classes of commercial vehicle the solid tire is not sufficiently resilient whilst pneumatics are costly and, in the largest sizes, liable to "roll." After prolonged investigation of the many problems involved, a British firm, which has been associated with rubber tires from the earlier days, has perfected an air-core tire meeting the most stringent requirements. The new tire, which can be fitted in place of pneumatics without alteration to the wheel or rim, has a hollow centre and a metal base. Permanent cushioning is obtained by the air sealed in the core, and the walls are so designed as to eliminate all tendency to rolling. The tread is of non-skid design and is specially reinforced so that upkeep costs are reduced to a minimum Where pneumatic tires are replaced by the new pattern there is, of course, no need to carry a spare tire, and larger for heavier vehicles on which, at present, solid tires can alone be used.

ARE FARTHER FROM PEACE THAN WHEN ARMISTICE SIGNED

Wounds Laid Open By the World War Are Not Healing and Europe Prepares For Eventualities.

By WM. PHILIP SIMMS

Wounds laid open by the World War are not healing. They have only turned into sores, with nerves exposed and in danger of becoming chronic.

Europe and the world is farther from peace today than they were a year ago and much farther from peace than they were the day the armistice was signed in November, 1918.

All the elements for bringing on a crash of terrifying proportions are present in Europe.

I have just landed back after visiting 12 different European countries, where I talked with presidents and chancellors, prime ministers and dictators, generalissimos, business men and just plain folks, and what I heard—not always for publication—from all these is enough to make your flesh creep.

There is scarcely a country in Europe where the people are not in a ferment of unrest.

Before the war, Europe had a "Balkans"—a troublesome little war-breeding section down in its south-eastern corner.

Now all Europe is a Balkans. The principal reason why hostilities do not commence at once is that most of the powers are afraid to make the first move, because of their size, or internal conditions, and the rest do not think the moment propitious.

Europe is like a room full of big and little burglars quarreling over a small amount of swag. The little fellows are afraid to start anything but if somebody throws a brick at the lamp and puts out the light, they are all ready to pitch in, hoping, in the general melee, to get away with something.

All Want Peace

The one great yearn of Europe is for peace. The people want to go back to work with a feeling of security—without the canker of fear of war and invasions gnawing at their vitals by day and by night and keeping them from earning their daily bread.

The one great obstacle to peace is the legacy of hate left to every man woman and child in Europe by the World War. This and the natural suspicion each nation has for any peace project put forward by any other European nation.

The one great need of Europe is for some great moral force to make its presence felt among the hate-and-suspicion-filled countries and point out a road to settlement. As things stand now, there is not a disinterested power among them. Each nation is out for itself and itself alone, and all the rest know it.

Look to U. S.

The League of Nations has done much good in Europe despite unheard-of handicaps. But it is powerless in this instance for the simple reason that there is not one outstanding member of the league which is not, at the same time, up to its eyebrows in the quarrel itself.

No impartial observer can journey through Europe as I did, and talk with political leaders over there, all the time retaining a perfectly open mind, without realizing the latent influence the United States has for peace in Europe and the world—in the league or out of it.

Everywhere I have been I have found people watching the United States and trying to guess its next move. Europe is unanimous on one thing at least, and that is if America "had remained in Europe until real peace had come," using her stupendous influence as an arbiter between the more selfish powers, the world would long ago have settled down to work.

Most men with whom I talked still believe the United States could bring the nations together if it would take the initiative. But most, to be perfectly honest, have about lost faith in this ever happening.

FRUIT PRESERVES

In the good old days the farmer's wife considered it necessary to serve at least two kinds of jam or preserves at every meal. High sugar prices have taught her that these "spreads" are valued more if used in moderation and that her family is better off without too much sweet.

The woman in town who must buy her fruit as well as sugar has always considered preserves and jellies more or less of a luxury and uses them sparingly.

Be that as it may every woman, whether she preserves in a kitchenette or a spacious but hot farm kitchen, wants a few jars of extra fine preserves on her emergency shelf to serve to the chance guest.

These recipes may be new to you.

Ruby Conserve

One quart red currants, 1 quart red raspberries, 1 pound raisins, 2 oranges 5 cups sugar.

Wash currants. Put in preserving kettle with just enough water to prevent burning. Bring slowly to the boiling point and crush with potato masher to extract the juice. Simmer until juice flows freely. Strain through jelly bag. Wash oranges, cut in halves, remove seeds and put through food chopper.

Stone raisins if necessary. Wash through several waters and cover with boiling water before stoning. Put through foodchopper. Wash and drain raspberries. Put currant juice, raspberries, raisins, oranges and sugar in preserving kettle and boil forty-five minutes. Pour into sterilized jars and cover with parafin when cool.

Tutti Frutti Conserve

Twelve peaches, 4 quinces, 6 pears, 4 apples, 3 lemons, 1 orange, 5 pounds sugar.

Pare and remove stones from peaches. Pare and core apples, quinces and pears. Wash lemons and orange; slice and remove seeds. Put all ingredients through foodchopper.

It will be necessary to put a bowl under the entire chopper to catch the juice. Weigh fruit. The weight will be a little over six pounds. Allow three-fourths of a pound of sugar for a pound of fruit. Put fruit and sugar in layers in preserving kettle and let stand over night. In the morning boil until mixture becomes very thick. Turn into sterilized jars and seal.

A Norwegian is said to possess a sixth sense of discovering hidden or lost objects.

Dream of Air Flivvers Has Come True
